IRELAND'S ONE CHANCE

Sir J. Swinburne Leaves Colleagues on Account of the Budget — Redmond In Dublin Declares That Irish Can Abolish Act of Union If They Vote Liberal at the Coming Election in January.

London, Dec. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—John Redmond, speaking at the National demonstration at Dublin yesterday, when the convention decided to support the Liberal campaign, said that for the first time in a century they had the greatest opportunity ever offered them to tear up and trample under foot the Act of Union.

Reginald McKenna, addressing a meeting in the south end, referring to the contribution of New Zealand and Australia of two Dreadnoughts, mentioned that as only one of the great efforts of empire consolidation undertaken by the present Government. It would be a lasting memorial to the fame of the Liberal Government.

Sir J. Swinburne, one of the most prominent supporters of the Liberals in the north of England, has severed his connection with the party on account of the budget.

Though with some regret, the Liberals have decided to have all their meetings for men only. Order, they hold, is essential, and in the present condition of affairs no assurance of this can be had where women are present.

Mr. Charles Geake has prepared a set of colored posters which are in practically every constituency in Great Britain. He has contrived to concentrate an attack on the House of Lords in all of them. There is the Liberal Dreadnought with all its searchlights full on. There is the Liberal motor car with Mr. Asquith at the wheel, a pretty child by his side, a happy old lady and workman and a middle-class man behind—each representing what the Government claims to have done for different members of the community. And there is an airship, at which two dukes are looking and wondering whether it is possible to steal the air as well as the land. Another poster shows a peer consulting his constituents — a vacuous-looking youth in a coronet admiring himself in a pier glass. Still another shows a noble duke doing himself well on the higher rents that taxed food will bring in as a result of tariff reform.

Mr. Stephen Gwynn, M.P., editor of The Irish Press Agency, in the course of a letter says: "When the Liberal party pledged itself in 1905 not to introduce a Home Rule Bill it forfeited the confidence of the Irish people. We cannot proceed on the assumption that to put the Liberals in power will mean the accomplishment of that object which our party has striven after for thirty years. Home Rule is for Ireland the one thing that matters. . . Let it be made plain, not inferentially, but explicitly, that the return of the Liberal party to power means the introduction of a Home Rule Bill. . . and you will have no workers in all this land so keen as the Irish."

Premiers Of Ontario And Quebec Discuss Questions

Uniform Act for Compensation of Workingmen is Needed--- Sir Lomer Gouin Says Judgments in One Province Should be Enforceable in Another--Would Have British North America Act Amended.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—It was an important interprovincial love-feast which took place at the Parliament Building yesterday, on the occasion of the luncheon given by Sir James Whitney and his colleagues to Sir Lomer Gouin, Prime Minister of Quebec, and two of his supporters in the Legislature of the sister province.

The gathering was a distinguished one, and included, in addition to practically all the members of the Ontario administration, many members of the Legislature, as well as municipal, judicial and educational men.

Sir James Whitney, in rising to propose the toast to the Province of Quebec and its Prime Minister, declared that it was a welcome task to pay back to some small extent the welcome that the head of the Province of Ontario received at the hands of the Premier and "our brethren" of the sister Province of Quebec.

"We find to-day all the provinces marching side by side in peace and contentment, proud of our liberties, determined to stand by them, and insist on them, proud of our British institutions and ready to assume any of the burdens which we may be called upon to undertake as the result of our allegiance to the British crown.

"No person, outside of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," declared Sir James, in conclusion, "was given at the tercentenary as warm a reception as that extended to me by our distinguished guest of to-day."

Sir James then paid a graceful and sympathetic tribute to the colleague of Sir Lomer Gouin, who accompanied him, Hon. L. A. Taschereau and John Finnie, M.P.P.

Hon. Dr. Beaume, speaking in French, added his appreciation to that of the Premier of the "chalereuse reception" given the Ontario representatives at Quebec. Referring to "cet interest cordial qui existe entre Angleterre et la France," he said, "Nous, du Canada, peuvent poser l'example de la confederation des differents provinces inclus d'un Empire."

Sir James Whitney then proposed the health of the distinguished guests, electrifying his hearers by dropping easily and gracefully into the language of "La Belle France."

Sir Lomer Gouin, on rising to respond, was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering, and the enthusiasm was not diminished when the orchestra broke into the familiar strains of "O Canada."

He said: "Mr. Chairman, your honor and gentlemen: In order that I might be able to assure you, even in a very feeble way, how deeply we feel the kind and generous reception you, our Ontario fellow-citizens have given us, it would be necessary for me to speak in my own language; for it is my very great regret that, as I imperfectly speak your fine English language, you might not realize the significance which all this means to us of Quebec.

Sir Lomer referred to his first meeting Sir James in Ottawa in 1896, to the first inter-provincial conference and the fact that the calling of another had been entrusted to Sir James and himself. Because this had been delayed it was not to be thought that they had renounced their trust. "In a new country like this," he said, "we must rise to the requirements of the day and the need of the times.

"Turning to the administration of justice, don't you think we might have a treaty or law of extradition such as Canada has with other countries. An agreement might be reached by the representatives of all the provinces that the British North America Act be amended. This might be easily settled by an inter-provincial conference.

"We should have some means of enforcing judgments delivered in one province in the other province. We think the time has come that we should be able to devise some court, whose decisions should be binding for all the courts of our provinces of Canada. If you go to England you will find a practical system, by which any judgment registered in the clerk's office has the same force anywhere in the United Kingdom.

"A new system of legislation, introduced first in British Columbia, dealing with merchants, who have assigned, reducing their stock to the detriment of their creditors, we think should be adopted."

Dealing with provincial taxation of extra provincial territory, he said: "We should not be subjected to double taxation as regards Canada."

Sir Lomer spoke strongly on the rights of the provinces to incorporate companies to do business beyond their bounds. Section 92 of the B.N.A. act should be amended, if possible.

Another question for a conference was that of incorporation at Ottawa of companies to do business within the limits of a single province. Quebec, he said, had protested against this every time. "The time has come," he continued, "when we should settle finally and equitably the question of jurisdiction."

All the provinces, he held, should have a uniform act dealing with labor compensation for accidents.

"Gentlemen," he exclaimed, "we are all working for the upbuilding of a great nation. Matters of interest to all the provinces of the Dominion should be made the subject of the conference."

Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Minister of Public Works and Labor in Sir Lomer Gouin's Cabinet, seconded his leader's thanks and felicitations. The relations of the provinces, he said, should rest on the broad basis of respect, and not on necessity.

Dr. Finnie, M.P.P. for St. James, Montreal, also spoke briefly. "We are all brothers, all Canadians, from the Pacific to the Atlantic," he said. "Let us stand for the old flag. I hope the answer from Ottawa will be, 'Do it, and do it quickly'."

German Meat Prices.

Dresden, Dec. 16.—Discussing the increased price of meat, in the second chamber yesterday, Herr Koch, a radical member, said that dear meat meant dear everything else, in the way of food. He demanded that the embargo on American and Danish cattle be raised.

Replying, Count Von Vitzt-Hum D. Eakstadt, the Premier, denied that the cost of beeves and sheep on the hoof was higher and said that if the dressed meat had increased in price, the fact was due to the close combination maintained among the butchers. To admit American meat more freely would be to throw away the last trump card held by Germany in its trade relations.

The Liberals Attempt To Stop Race Track Gambling Is Obstructed By Tory Owners

Osler of Toronto, Vice-President of the Ontario Jockey Club, and Barker, Late President of Hamilton Jockey Club, Both Conservatives, Oppose the Amendment to the Criminal Code---Gambling Had Been Legalized by the Conservative Government.

Some time ago the Secretary of State, in the proper exercise of his functions, granted a charter to a racing association. This was the signal for a violent attack upon the Minister, and the gravamen of the charge was "that he had legalised gambling."

THAT RACING CHARTER

The Conservative press was loud in denunciation of the Minister, and the Toronto Mail howled louder than any other paper. In the attempt to influence the public mind on this question, the Mail sought to belittle and deride the Secretary of State by referring to him as "Charley Murphy," and the charter as "Charley Murphy's gambling charter." Day bl day the matter was alluded to. Race tracks were described as sinks of iniquity, places where young men were started on the way to ruin, they were a blot on the fair fame of Canada, the place where disreputable men and women congregated for the purpose of gambling. It was alleged by the Mail that race tracks had a debasing and demoralising influence on public life and that the Secretary of State had perpetuated this glaring evil by chartering another racing concern and legalising gambling.

RACE TRACK GAMBLING MUST CEASE

The Mail proclaimed from day to day that the evil must cease, and that the evil of race track gambling must stop, and demanded an immediate amendment to the criminal code.

HUNDREDS OF PETITIONS

Following upon this hundreds of petitions were presented in Parliament from all part of Canada praying for an amendment to the Criminal Code with a view to prevent the growing evil.

ONLY DID HIS DUTY

Hon. Mr. Murphy had already explained that in issuing the charter he was simply filling a duty incumbent upon him as Secretary of State, and that he had no option in the matter. He stated also that he would heartily support any amendment to the Criminal Code which tended to suppress gambling.

MILLER'S AMENDMENT

On December 2, Mr. H. H. Miller, Liberal, for South Grey, moved the second reading of a bill to amend the Criminal Code. The object of the bill may be defined as "Utterly, entirely and completely suppress and prevent the business of betting or gambling in connection with or upon race tracks in any place in Canada."

CURSE OF RACE TRACKS

Mr. Miller presented very powerful arguments in support of the amendment. He dwelt at length upon the evils of gambling upon race tracks, and quoted instances of the baneful effect of the practice. Among other examples to illustrate the extent of the evil, he stated as a fact that during the thirteen days of the race meeting at the Woodbine our people had placed in the hands of bookmakers $2,600,000 or $200,000 a day for thirteen consecutive days.

AN IGNORAMUS SPEAKS

After several members upon both sides had spoken in support of the bill, Mr. Reid of Grenville, Conservative, whose chief characteristic is lack of information upon rudimentary subjects, made the following statement:

"Now this matter of gambling restrictions was brought to the attention of the Government some time ago, and the Secretary of State, instead of taking it into his consideration and trying to carry out the wishes of the people, was willing to legalize it and give the applicants a bill that made it legal to do gambling throughout the Dominion of Canada."

To which Hon. Mr. Murphy at once replied—

MR. MURPHY CORRECTS HIM

"May I interrupt my hon. friend? The Secretary of State never did anything of the kind, nor was he asked to do anything of the kind."

In reply to this Mr. Reid went stumbling along and replied as follows—

"I may say that an application was made to the Secretary of State to grant a charter that would legalize gambling in the City of Toronto, and the Secretary of State gave a charter which legalizes gambling in the City of Toronto to-day."

Mr. Murphy again made an emphatic denial in these words—

"I wish to reiterate my denial that the Secretary of State was asked to issue any charter legalising gambling, and to assert that he did not do so."

TOBIES LEGALIZED GAMBLING

Just here it may be well to mention a point brought out by both the Minister of Justice and the Secretary of State, which is this—

"That gambling was authorized and legalised by Sir John Thompson, Conservative Premier, when he inserted the power in the Criminal Code, which Code is now being amended.

TALK RUBBISH

All the talk about the Secretary of State legalizing gambling is rubbish. The Conservatives must blame their own Government for bringing into force this pernicious law authorises the calamities and miseries for which race track gambling is responsible. It was not necessary for the Secretary of State to legalise gambling, it had already been done by the Conservative Government of which Sir John Thompson was the head.

HE HAD NO POWER

It will also be remembered how the Mail had been constantly demanding that the charter recently granted by the Secretary of State be cancelled. The answer is that there is a vital difference between the Provincial Company's Act and the Dominion Company's Act. Whereas, under the Provincial Company's Act, there is provision for cancelling a charter, there is no such provision under the Dominion Company's Act. The Secretary of State had power to grant the charter, he was bound by the law to grant it, but the law gave him no power to cancel it.

MAIL MISLED PEOPLE

Up to this point it must be clear that the Mail has mislead the people on this question, and Conservatives in the House are so misinformed that they make the erroneous statements that the Secretry of State legalised gambling. Every argument presented, and all the denunciation hurled, should be aimed at the late Conservative Government who alone are responsible for the terrible evils of race track gambling in the attempt to alleviate which Mr. Miller's bill is presented and in support of which so many hundreds of petitions have reached the House.

TORIES OPPOSED AMENDMENT

A strange feature of the case is now presented. In view of the attacks upon the Government from the Conservative press, and members of the House, and with the knowledge of the evil generally admitted upon all sides, and the further knowledge that the Conservative Government alone is to blame for the law as it stands, it might be expected that the bill would receive Conservative support. This is not the case.

What would the people of Canada, Mail should Liberal members arise in their places and uphold the integrity of race track gambling?

What would be the attitude of the the clean-minded, non-gambling portion of the community think of Liberal members who stated from their seats that gambling on race tracks was not an evil?

Yet this is the position of two leading members of the Conservative party —Mr. E. B. Osler of Toronto and Mr. Sam Barker of Hamilton.

With regard to the former, he is very seldom in his seat, but it is noticeable that when a matter comes up in which he has a personal interest he is generally to be found in Ottawa.

WHAT INTERESTS OSLER

When the bill to authorize an issue of stock by the Canadian Pacific Railway was in the House, Mr. Osler was there. The fact that he is a large holder of stocks and a director of the company and greatly interested in the melon-cutting, may or may not have had anything to do with it.

TORY INTERESTED IN GAMBLING

Then again as the President of the Ontario Jockey Club and financially interested in the race track, he was to be found from his place in the House solemnly telling the House that he never knew of a case of a young man gone wrong on account of betting on the races. Mr. Osler is either a very simple-minded man, or his knowledge of life has its limitations.

OSLER INSULTS CANADIANS

Not content with this statement, one easily controverted by criminal statistics, Mr. Osler cast a slur upon Canadian manhood and womanhood. He made the astounding statement to the House that:

"In the ordinary every day life throughout Ontario there is more money won or lost by women and men at a game of bridge, every day, than is won or lost at the Woodbine in a week."

To this Mr. Foster agreed by adding, "not including Sundays."

In other words Mr. Osler says that the men and women of Canada win and lose over $2,500,000 a day by gambling at bridge. Mr. Osler must settle this with the men and women of Canada.

WHY OSLER SUPPORTS RACE TRACK GAMBLING

Here is a prominent man advocating that the present condition of things be maintained and going contrary to public opinion, contrary to some of his fellow members, who are not interested financially in race tracks, contrary to the Mail, contrary to public morals, and, be it remembered he is interested in the Ontario Jockey Club, which receives from American gamblers large sums of money for the privilege of gambling at the race track, which money comes from a class of people in Canada who cannot afford to lose it.

ANOTHER RACING THEORY

Mr. Sam. Barker, Conservative of Hamilton, comes next. He admitted having been president of the Hamilton Jockey Club, and his testimony was that no evil things were done at the Hamilton Jockey Club of which he had the honour to be a member.

MURPHY PROMISES REFORMS

Hon. Mr. Murphy went further than any member in the House. He proposed when the bill reaches committee, to make it an offence for any newspaper which advertises, publishes, exhibits, posts up or supplies or offers to sell or supply any information relating to pool selling, book making, betting or waging.

As Mr. Murphy has been attacked so strenuously by the newspapers for doing something in respect of which he was quite innocent, he proposes now to deal with the evil of gambling and punish those papers which disseminate information of a character to encourage or abet gambling. Mr. Murphy's action will meet with public approval.

BILL SENT TO COMMITTEE

The bill was finally sent to a select committee on motion of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, composed of seven members Messrs. Miller, McColl, Monk, Blain, Sinclair, Stratton and Martin (Regina).

The people of Canada will understand that the Liberals are in favor of abolishing race track gambling, and that two leading Conservatives in the House, Messrs. Osler and Barker, both interested in race tracks, are opposed to the reforms suggested, notwithstanding the attitude of public opinion on the subject.

MAIL'S LYING HEADLINES

It is interesting to note that the Mail when publishing the debate, heads its article: "Bill to stop Betting Gets Cool Reception. Mr. Miller's Measure came in for Hard Knocks from two members of the Government. Compare this with the facts given above.

MORE "MAIL" MENDACITY

The Toronto Mail continues its attempt to influence the public mind to believe that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is not loyal to the Empire. In a labored attempt to divert the aim of Sir Charles Tupper, who has written very plainly to Mr. Borden, and told him that a serious responsibility rests upon any man or party attempting to embarass the Government in its proposals to create a Canadian Navy, the Mail says on Dec. 7: "Sir Wilfrid has been opposed to Canadian participation in the duty of protecting the Empire," and refers to a speech of Sir Wilfrid in the House in 1896 in support of the view, and says Sir Wilfrid opposed the re-arming of the militia on the ground: "that the expenditure was calculated to help the Empire."

WHAT SIR WILFRID SAID

What Sir Wilfrid said on the occasion referred to may be found in Hansard, Vol. 1, 1896, page 1216. After paying an eloquent tribute to the glory and greatness of Great Britain, Sir Wilfrid said:

"If the day should come—which God forbid—if the day should ever come—which I again say, God forbid—when England should have to repel foes, I am quite sure that all British subjects all over the world, would be only too glad to give to her what help they could—all British subjects, all over the world, not only British subjects of her own blood, but British subjects who are not of her own blood, but who have received from her the inestimable blessing of freedom."

This is the concluding paragraph of a speech delivered by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which the Mail describes as disloyal, and as a declaration that he would not support any expense calculated to assist in the defence of the Empire.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF MAILISM

The Mail is guilty of another glaring misrepresentation. The Mail says: "In extenuation of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's promise that our baby navy shall not be used in the defence of the Empire unless Parliament considers the war list," etc.

Sir Wilfrid said nothing of the kind but in reply to Mr. Monk, he said:

"Need I say to my hon. friend that whether we have such a navy or not, we do not lose our right to self-government; that if we do have a navy, that navy will go to no war unless the Parliament of Canada, including the hon. gentleman, choose to send it there."

Sir Wilfrid was maintaining the point that Canada with or without a navy would not sacrifice any of her rights to self-government, and this is a very different thing from the Mail's statement that the navy would not assist Great Britain unless Parliament considered the war just. It is only another example of the Mail's attempt to misrepresent the Premier.

MAIL INSULTS THE SENATE

Th insults of the Mail are not confined to individuals. In its issue of December 3 the Mail says:

"As the Canadian Senate is now constituted, nothing that a radical or even a grafter Government proposes is in danger of rejection."

As the Senate contains many Conservatives, eminent men, the Mail should be called upon to explain the meaning of this wholesale insult to members of its own party. The Liberal members of the Senate can afford to pass by the insult with the contempt it deserves.

TORIES WANT MONEY SPENT

In discussing the estimates there is a repetition of the scenes enacted at the last Parliament. Men rising one after the other and criticising the expenditures of the Government, without the slightest evidence that the expenditures are unnecessary or exorbitant and just as many Conservatives demanding for their particular constituency an expenditure of money not provided for in the estimates. Oh, inconsistency, thou art a Conservative member.

SHIPS THAT PASSED INTO THE NIGHT

RECENT Adventures of the Nourmahal Bring to Mind Tragedies of the Sea in Which Brave Craft Fared Forth Laden with Human Freight and Then Vanished from the Face of the Trackless Deep

BY PAUL EVE STEVENSON.

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

OF all the mysteries that hover about men's doings perhaps none is more intensely felt than that of the missing ship. She leaves port some sunny morning, well found and handled, and is seen no more. She perishes in the dark and leaves—

No black plume as a token of her passing. She dies an unknown death; she is buried without funeral expenses, and she has the grandest sepulchre in the world, unfathomable and incorruptible. But the manner of her end is the secret of the sea.

"Posted at Lloyds as missing." Probably no other phrase has carried with it the weight of woe conveyed in these few words, for every hope has been abandoned then. The great marine underwriting house of Lloyds has paid the insurance on the ship and she has been rubbed off their books forever. Some idea of the meaning of the phrase came with the recent adventures of the Nourmahal, the yacht of Colonel John J. Astor, but happily after a long suspense the word was not set down, and the Nourmahal escaped the fate of those recorded "missing."

Hundreds of persons filled with ambitions, great and small, and strong in the vigor and possibilities of life, go away in the vessel and shout their words of farewell and endearment to the crowds ashore. The weather is fine and the world has put on its best attire. How handsome she looks, the big ship, as she backs out into the stream, turning slowly with a consciousness of splendid power within her, as she heads for the vast solitudes that lie before her!

No thought of disaster enters the mind as she departs, though the tenderhearted shed a few tears as the great hull glides smoothly off. It is a holiday crowd, just entering upon the first step of its European excursion, and the air is filled with laughter and fluttering handkerchiefs, and voices call across the ever widening lane of water that separates the ship from the wharf. Swiftly she gathers way as she goes, and now she is across the bar and feels the first breathing lift of the sea—the rise and fall of the mighty breast on which she rests. Then she fades into a glimmer on the sea line before she blends with the mists of the horizon.

A fortnight passes without news of her. Another week and friends grow anxious. They gather in the agent's office for news. There is a portentous absence of it. Men think, but do not talk. Rumors, perhaps, give encouragement as some clew is followed, lifting believers up on the Himalaya of hope, only to cast them into the chains of despair next day, when the phantom dissolves and leaves them stranded with their broken trust.

Then begins the gambling on the ship, and we hear that fifty per cent reinsurance is offered. Swiftly the sum increases till ninety-five per cent is reached. There is a long pause, to give the ship her last fighting chance, while crowds fill the steamship offices. Then the axe falls and the dreaded bulletin is read, "The Queen of the Seas has been posted at Lloyds as missing."

What has happened to her? Ice, fire, collision, storm? Almost anything is possible, but of one thing there can be no doubt—the Sea has shouted his command, and none may disobey. Far away in the dull, waste spaces, under a wintry sky, the North Atlantic has called with ringing voice and claimed another bride. That is all, for no one comes ashore and we will never know how long she struggled in the clasping arms. For the gray, ancient Sea lies dumb and brims with mystery and brooding thoughts as he draws the dark cowl of night across his face, and even the rising sun can wring no secret from him.

And so we ponder on the fate of this great vessel, forever hidden from us, smitten by the sea. She went away; we watched her vanish on the distant skyline; we waited and we wept. But the sea is filled with riddles, and one more or less will be of little moment to him, for he alone can solve them. Perhaps 'twas fire and ice—arch enemies till harnessed by the sea—that bid upon her; perhaps some lonely derelict opposed her in the night, and both went, locked, to death. For ourselves, we only know that the august ship is gone with all her people.

* * * * * * *

Since ocean steam shipping began few vessels in the North Atlantic trade created in the human breast more lingering hope than the famous old President ere she was written off the books at Lloyds. She was a general favorite with the traveling public, many famous men and women electing to travel in her rather than in any other ship between Sandy Hook and the Channel. Tyrone Power, the distinguished actor, always chose her as the vehicle of his peregrinations, and the only sentence or word or clew of any sort that came from the fated President was written by his hand. For Tyrone Power was among her passengers when she left New York for Liverpool in March, 1841, and toward the end of May, or two months later, when all hope had been surrendered, a bottle was picked up at sea containing a fragment of paper on which was recorded the simple fact that the President was sinking, the signature at the bottom being that of the celebrated player Tyrone Power.

When disaster overtakes vessels in the Atlantic it is generally the case that they are westward bound at the time because the westerly gales are the wildest and the most difficult to weather out. But the President faded out of human sight bound to the eastward. There were 120 persons on board all told when she passed out by Sandy Hook that afternoon, and she was due in Liverpool in twelve or fourteen days, according to the weather. And a good deal still "depends on the weather" in the western ocean in spite of 40,000 tons displacement and 70,000 horse power, and twenty knots often dwindle to ten when the surly old fellow gets his back up.

A fortnight passed without any tidings from the President. No one wondered, though, for it had been a terrific winter in the North Atlantic and commerce had been held up by the elements almost for months. As the spring approached, too, great quantities of ice had been reported in the trade routes, and it was thought that the President was delayed because of it. As the days passed, though, without news telegrams and items in the press cautiously and briefly called attention to the fact that the big steamer—for she was a sort of greyhound in those far off days—was now overdue, and by the end of the month similar statements were issued about another crack steamship, the Britannia, which had then been at sea an unusually long time—in fact, for a longer period than any other royal mail steamer ever had been before, and some comfort was afforded by the thought that both vessels had been detained by the same heavy weather and that they were fighting it out in company. And it is indeed a comforting thought that a consort is standing by a disabled sister, lending what assistance she can amid the whistling seas and snowy gales

On April 2 the Orpheus, which had left America two days later than the President, arrived after a stormy passage and her log showed that on March 12 she had encountered a gale of unusual ferocity even for the season and locality. This gale of wind kindled hope in the breasts of many, and for some time little doubt was entertained that the President—valiant old ship—was making a heroic fight of it out there under a shrieking sky and was steering for the Channel with disabled engines. Then the Britannia came romping home, with happy faces waiting on the wharf to welcome her, for apprehension had mounted high concerning her, and they cheered her, delivered from the plunging sea.

And then still other ships came in that had departed long after the President, and faces paled and men looked at each other without speaking. The subject was avoided or was discussed in monotones under the breath on the quays and the exchanges. An idle story went the rounds that the President had been seen steering for Fayal under canvas, logging three knots—a myth that died a-borning. The day the newspapers contained full lists of the passengers' names on board, and these were read like the inscriptions on a tombstone.

Thus twenty-six days passed. Ominous comments were made relative to the boat's construction, and there were those who could recall many faults and lesions in her hull, fancied or real. Friends were warned to hope no longer, but to make their minds up to the melancholy belief that in the two days' storm reported by the Orpheus the President had foundered near the Devil's Blow Hole, in 45 North, 45 West.

But on April 13 a letter reached London which produced an electrical effect. It was addressed to the family of one of the passengers, stating that the President had sustained serious damage to her steering gear and engines and had been sighted over toward Madeira. The news was hailed with demonstrative joy, which the following day turned into a public demonstration when the Irish packets reported a large black steamer waiting outside for high water. Messengers darted about, crowds flocked to the riverside and the flag of the consignee was hoisted to acclaim the President's arrival.

Friends and families were certain now that this must be their ship that had come in from the beating storms. Excitement rose above restraint and Liverpool went almost mad with joy. Mutual congratulations filled the air and every one hung on the smoke and haze that brooded over the river and the offing, and when it finally thinned away and people saw that the hull beyond was not the President's the public grief was deeper than their previous joy. The same day it was discovered that the letter mentioning Madeira was nothing but a barbarous and brutal hoax.

Drowning men will grasp at straws, though, and yet once again public hope surged high when on April 13 a London merchant received a letter bearing the Bristol postmark asserting that a vessel had arrived at Waterford, reporting that she had left the President repairing at Bermuda. This letter was addressed to the brother-in-law of Captain Roberts, the President's commander, and the city was greatly agitated. Men met each other with the happy greeting, "Well, have you heard that the old President is safe after all? In Bermuda, you know. Another mistake? No, not this time." And it was several days before the people learned that once more they had been cheated with the malice of the devil.

As late as the middle of May there were still those to be found who believed in the President's safety, and a leaf from the logbook of a Portuguese vessel was published, stating that she had passed a large disabled vessel. Then came the final announcement of the bottle message from Tyrone Power, which in itself possibly may have been a merry jest, and after that came nothing. No further tidings from the North Atlantic, which had clapped its tiger's paw upon the steamship and swallowed her at a single gulp.

Thirteen years later the City of Glasgow, screw steamship, left the Jersey for Philadelphia on March 1, the year being 1854. She also was a large vessel, and every berth was filled. There were on board 111 first class passengers, 233 in the steerage and 76 in the crew, footing up a grand total of 480 persons, or exactly quadruple the number of those who left New York in the President. She was not so well known a vessel, but that is something that the grim old fellow that sits gray and pondering out there on the horizon does not consider, for

The shambling Sea is a sexton old,
And well his work is done.
With an equal grave for lord and knave
He buries them every one.

But she was a fine, Clyde-built vessel, the City of Glasgow, and her commander, James Morrison, was an experienced and able seaman, well versed in the temperamental vagaries of the Atlantic; and you have to try to overcome them as best you may by familiarizing yourself with his bad humors. At any rate, it was generally thought that no better shipmaster ever conned his vessel across the western ocean in those days than Captain Morrison, and undoubtedly every precaution as to the proximity of ice and derelicts was taken by this prudent man, though the oldest of all sailor phrases tells us that "any old thing can happen at any time at sea."

So no anxiety was shown over the City of Glasgow when a few days more than the usual limit had passed by and she was not reported. Some years, though, the ice breaks up very early in Baffin Bay and the giant bergs float down the current and stop many a tight ship in their path. Many

An errant princess of the North,
A virgin, snowy white,
Sails adown the summer seas
To realms of burning light.

But sailormen do not regard these gleaming wanderers as coolly as poets do, and when the City of Manchester reached Liverpool, having left Philadelphia about the same time that the City of Glasgow left the latter port, and reported that the ice fields off Newfoundland were breaking up, men shook their heads and made no comment. That the break-up of the fields was a good thing in itself was true, but it was equally true that it meant the strewing of the ocean with heavy ice which vessels, however powerful, in those days might meet in many a grife.

All the arriving transatlantic steamers testified that there was more ice in the Atlantic than they had ever known. Cold comfort indeed! The captain of the Westmoreland, which had preceded the Glasgow by only a few days, mentioned that he lay imbedded in the floes for five days and nights, and testified that this extraordinary ice mass extended in one direction for 350 miles, almost compact and sown with bergs of enormous size rising from two to three hundred feet above the sea.

Whether the City of Glasgow died by the frigid hand of one of these ocean ramblers lies in mystery as misty as those chilly seas through which she sought to force her way. Was she nipped between two bergs that cracked her like a nut? Did she blindly charge some icy fortress in the dark? And did her people die of slow starvation camped on the windy ice plains with the fog banks for a blanket?

In the early part of the last fifties there was no more popular steamship line out of New York to Liverpool than the Collins. The vessels of this great company were the successful rivals for a long while of the Cunard ships, and, flying the American flag and maintaining a high standard of efficiency in every detail, they obtained and held the cream of the American passenger trade. One of the best ships of the line, the Pacific, was particularly favored, and when she left Liverpool toward the close of January, 1856, she carried her usual complement of first class passengers, there being all told 180 persons on board. She was sighted in St. George's Channel a few hours later and then dipped below the horizon for good—another sacrifice on the tempestuous altar of the North Atlantic. Unlike the other heroines of the deep whose fair names Dame Rumor kept alive for weeks, the Pacific was never reported, and there was no mention of her as a phantom ship, disabled, bearing up for impossible ports. Her well known figure, that had long been famous on the wild Atlantic, just faded into the perspective of time without the blast of heralds bent on mischief. Somewhere in the Western Ocean something happened, and when the storm was spent or the berg had tramped by a vacant sea laid bare its flashing torso to the sun.

The City of Boston in 1870 was added to the roll of missing ships, the grimmest register in all the world, for when a stately ship has ceased to answer "Here" a hundred tragedies in one combine to shock the mind. A touching circumstance connected with the City of Boston throws out in clear relief the unquenchable hope that burned in one whose son did not return. She was a widow living in Detroit, and, with a curious fancy that the Boston papers would first contain the news of her only son's return, she subscribed for one and read it diligently. For forty years his plate was always laid at the table and her explanation always followed—"I have not heard from Jim yet, but I hope to this coming week."

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM HALL'S GLEN

Examiner Special.

Our stage driver says the weather was plenty cold enough on the start to be healthy. He often thinks of the bear and the north pole.

The storm of last week, sleet and ice, has done considerable damage in this vicinity. It is reported that orchards suffered the greatest damage. Go where you will and evidence of the havoc is easily seen.

Mr. Wm. Carveth who has engaged a number of good men for the winter has already begun operations on his limits in the east of Dummer. He is paying good wages for men accustomed to lumbering, and besides having a new foreman he expects this winter's output will far exceed all previous seasons.

Scarcity of water is being felt keenly of late in this neighbourhood. Unless things change considerably this will cause a great deal of inconvenience and extra work this winter.

We learn that a particular young man on the third line, who is old enough to draw land, has recently joined the volunteers. The militia laws and regulations must have changed recently for recruits enlisting this all have to furnish their rifle, shot gun and ammunition, and practise on night owls, rabbits, etc., for some months previous to their enlistment.

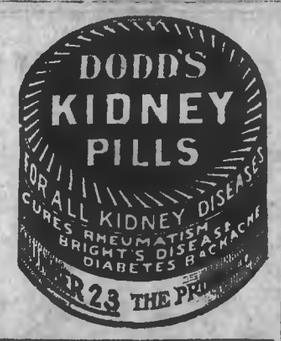
Our worthy representative to the township Council is as regular as clock work. He is always on hand rain or shine, fearless of friend or foe. He says an old dog for a hard road every time.

Mr. Walter Carveth lately purchased another driver.

Mr. and Mrs. Batten are preparing for a week's vacation with friends in Paisley. We wish them every success and a safe journey.

A number of young men showed their colours last week. After years of toil and labour they have succeeded at last in reaching the top of the ladder. We wish them success in the new branch of nature study, and we also hope that this event will put a stop to regular long drives and late hours.

The weekly practice was held at Mr. G. Crowe's home on the 3rd line. A large number was present and all took an active part.



A BIT OF ADVICE

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney troubles are but forerunners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Peterborough residents desire more convincing proof than the statement of a Peterborough citizen. Mrs. W. Huycke, of 311 Louis St., Peterborough, Ont., says: "Mr. Huycke frequently suffered with backache. At times the pains in the small of the back would become so severe that he was unable to straighten himself up without much suffering. He could not stoop or lift anything of consequence and his general health had been run down for some time. He had tried a number of different remedies but didn't find relief until on advice of a friend, he procured Booth's Kidney Pills at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy and commenced treatment. He soon found relief. The pains left his back and he strengthened. He has had no return of the trouble since and speaks very highly of Booth's Kidney Pills."

DOES IT PAY TO BUY OR SELL PULLETS?

From Farm and Dairy.

Whether there is more money in buying pullets or in selling them is a question worth considering. This fall some were willing to sell their early pullets at $1.00 each and many more were willing to pay the price. If both parties had accommodation for these pullets which made the more out of the contract? Of course much depends upon local conditions including the man or woman who looks after them. To give some idea as to which paid the better, we bought 50 white Wyandotte pullets in October 1908 and kept them through the winter till May 1909; $1.25 was paid for each pullet and each bird was sold in the spring for $1.00. How much did the pen make or lose or what would have been the profit or loss under ordinary farm conditions? The birds were not sufficiently matured when bought and did not begin to lay well until January. They were heavy layers, but they themselves did nothing out of the common, possibly because the parent stock had been forced for egg production. They were housed in two cold colony houses where they had less than four square feet floor surface to each hen. The temperature was at times as low as twenty below zero in the house, but no dampness was apparent. They were fed nothing but dry feed and fed grain only once a day. A hopper of dry bran was before them at all times. A mangel was thrown in to them once a day and they had snow or water to drink. This grain consisted of wheat, corn, buckwheat, barley and oats. They had grit, shell and beefscraps always available. The feed cost about $1.40 a cwt., and during the seven months, they consumed all told $42.00 worth of feed. They laid 228 dozen eggs or an average of 54 eggs each, a comparatively poor yield. These eggs brought when sold for eating purposes, $117.94, so the actual balance sheet stood:

7 months feed	$42.00
Total expenditure	$104.50
Cr. 228 dozen eggs at various prices from 40 to 60 cts.	$117.94
48 hens (2 dead) at $1.00,	$48.00
Total receipts	$165.94

Leaving a balance of $61.44 or $1.20 per hen.

The selling price of the hens may have been a little high and more than an ordinary farmer could get but so was the buying price. Had these hens been killed and sold at 60 cents each the balance would still have been $42.24. Take the selling price and buying price away and the eggs sold for $74.94 more than the feed cost or $1.25 for each hen. True, the eggs sold for a high price, more than an ordinary farmer might get but on the other hand the feed cost more too. Feed was high and not very good at that and it is just a question if the farmer paid the same attention to his new laid eggs that we did, whether he would not get good enough a price to make the margin as great.

According to this experiment and others I am of the opinion that early pullets of a good utility breed at $1.00 each, are good property for any person if he will only give them ordinary care, and business principles are adhered to in disposing of the product.

TO REFOREST WASTE AREAS

From Farm and Dairy.

Although it was made on a most conservative basis, a plan of reforestation, whereby the counties of Durham and Northumberland would be able in from 40 to 75 years to pay all their municipal expenditures with the revenue derived from their waste lands was laid down by Dr. Fernow, Dean of the Faculty of Forestry, Toronto University, at a special forestry meeting held in Cobourg, Ont., on Thursday last. The united counties' council of Durham and Northumberland is the first, and as yet the only council that has taken up in a serious manner, the matter of dealing with its non-agricultural land. Preparation is being made to act upon the suggestions made by Farm and Dairy that the county council should approach the Government to have these waste areas reforested.

Warden A. A. Powers to whom much credit is due for the intelligent and effective manner in which he has pushed this question, said that he had received a letter from the Minister of Agriculture, the Honorable James Duff, in which the Minister had assured him that since the united counties of Durham and Northumberland had been the first to take the matter up they would be the first to get consideration. He stated that the Government would begin the taking of a census starting the third week in December of the lands within the counties to be reforested.

Meetings had been arranged for at Pontypool, Orono and at Castleton to be addressed by Prof. E. J. Zavits of the O.A.C., his addresses to be illustrated with lantern slides. "The Minister," said Warden Powers "assures us that he is prepared to act in this matter of reforesting if we are prepared to ask him to take action."

In order to emphasize the value of timbered land as against land without timber lying in close proximity to the waste areas in question. Warden Powers told of a statement made recently by Mr. Thos. Smith who lives two and a half miles north of Leskard, that he had been offered for 12 acres of second growth pine, which 20 years ago consisted of merely poles, more money than an amount at which he valued the remaining 188 acres of his farm. Mayor Field of Cobourg who occupied the chair, laid particular emphasis upon the fact that anything seeking to improve the condition of the neighboring country and waste lands within the counties would help to up-build the business of the town as well as bring benefit to those directly interested in these lands.

PUTS THE WORST FORWARD

Dr. Fernow in his address referred to his statements made before the convention in Cobourg last June (which address was published in Farm and Dairy, November 4), and emphasised the fact that France and Germany have secured returns upon their investment in reforesting equal to eight or nine times the original expenditure. He told of how private individuals had started the work of reforesting in these countries and how the Government had been impressed with the practicability and the wisdom of the scheme and had later taken up the matter itself with such beneficial results. He stated that the 15,000 acres of land under discussion would be equal only to one year's planting in Prussia. Dr. Fernow presented before the meeting a formulated plan for the reforestation of the non-agricultural areas in the united counties. In making his calculations, he had taken the stand of the financier, i.e., putting the worst side forward so that if it then figured out to be a profitable scheme, the venture would be sure to be a success.

THE REVENUE FORECASTED

His estimate was that, did the counties adopt the plan as he suggested, they would in from 40 to 75 years secure a revenue from these now waste areas, sufficient to meet the total expenditures of the Counties. The Doctor urged that the council grapple with the problem before them in a large way and adopt the whole plan, not merely a piece of it. From the interest already aroused through the agitation in connection with this problem, a German corporation had approached him seeking his advice as to the advisability of buying up this land and reforesting it as a private enterprise.

That the council in view of the facts as presented by Dr. Fernow, should adopt a comprehensive scheme of dealing with these waste areas and placing them under forest management was urged by Mr. Chas. C. Nixon of Farm and Dairy. The proposition, he said, appeared to be a most practicable one and if, from these waste lands, the united counties of Durham and Northumberland could derive a revenue sufficient to cover their total expenditure, such a goal was well worth striving for.

POOR LAND AND NO MANURE

From Farm and Dairy.

I have a field I have pastured for three years owing to the poor crop it has had. I have not had the manure to put on it, nor have I the manure this year. I thought I would break it up and sow with some peas that do best on poor soil. The field has a hill running through it of a light soil, so it is high and dry half the time. Can you give me the name of the peas or something that will do as well or better than peas on this land? How best can I work it up without manure to its former condition?—H. H., Wellington Co., Ont.

I would suggest that on the field in question you do not attempt to do anything before the latter part of next July (July 1910). In the latter days of July, having left the field in pasture up till that time you might plow your field with a shallow furrow, say three inches deep. Immediately after plowing roll once or twice with as heavy a roller as procurable and then disc harrow once, twice and even three times if the soil is very dry and hard. From that time on the land should be harrowed with a smoothing harrow about once a week or whenever grass or weeds show themselves. This should be kept up till the latter part of October when the land should be ridged up with a double mould board plow into ridges about two feet apart and seven or eight inches high. It should be left this way till the spring of 1911 then sown to oats or oats and peas, a moderate seeding, say two and a half bushels an acre. At the same time sow 10 lbs. red clover seed and 12 lbs. timothy seed per acre. The next year, 1912, provided the season 1911 has been normally favorable for a catch of grass there should be clover and timothy growing. This might be pastured off or cut off for one crop hay and then left to pasture till the following July, 1913, when the shallow plowing process should be repeated. This three year rotation is in my experience the most satisfactory and the most effective in bringing up run-out areas.

If, due to very adverse weather conditions or other cause you should fail to get a catch of clover and grass in 1911 it would be well to cultivate the oat stubble well and sow fall rye in September. This rye could be turned down in the spring of 1912, the land thoroughly worked and then sown to buckwheat to be again plowed down and the land well worked till autumn, ridged up and seeded to oats and grass and clover seed in spring 1913.—J. H. Grisdale.

FEEDS TO INCREASE MILK FLOW

From Farm and Dairy.

Would you kindly let me know quality and quantity of hay or other foods to feed cows to increase flow of milk for buttermaking, and oblige.—H. A. P., Rockland, Ont.

Generally speaking farmers have on hand a supply of feeds which they wish to feed to their cattle. Having such a list in mind one is more likely to be able to formulate a ration that will be of really some value to the feeder. Taking it for granted that you have the more common feeding stuffs at your disposal or can procure them, I would suggest the following as a good ration to feed your cows in order to maintain a good flow of milk. The amounts given would be for one cow for one day.

Clover hay 15 to 25 lbs. according to size of cow.

Oat straw, 5 to 10 lbs. according to size of cow.

Bran, 3 lbs.

Barley, ground, 2 lbs.

The following feeds might take the place of the clover hay in part or entirely. Oat hay, pea and oat hay, millet, vetch hay, alfalfa, mixed hay. Oat straw might be replaced in part by barley. Wheat chaff has considerable food value.

A mixture of 800 lbs. bran, 200 lbs. crushed oats and 200 lbs. fine ground barley should be fed in proportion to the milk product, say one pound of the meal mixture for each four pounds of milk produced. That is to say to a cow yielding 20 lbs. or two gallons of milk you should give about five lbs. of the meal.

If you wished to buy any feed other than bran, I would suggest gluten meal, oil cake meal, cotton seed meal or pea meal. Of these oil cake meal is probably the best value just at present. The addition of 200 lbs. of oil cake meal to the meal mixture already described would be advantageous.—J. H. Grisdale, Agriculturist, C.E.F., Ottawa.

W. G. Fischer, Canadian Trade Commissioner, Glasgow, Scotland

A considerable quantity of apples have been arirving in boxes of 40 pounds weight. For a certain limited trade this seems to be a very popular package. An important point, which it seems necessary for the Canadian exporter to observe, is exactness in stencilling the different packages whether barrels, crates or boxes, and to see that the contents are exactly as the marks on the outside of the package indicate.

From inquiries here, the most desirable package for Canadian apples is the regulation Canadian barrel. There is a general feeling that the purchaser can rely on the quantity of fruit packed in that way.

POULTRY PRODUCTION ON THE FARM

From Farm and Dairy.

"Profitable production of poultry on the farm," was the subject of an interesting address delivered by Prof. W. R. Graham at the Guelph Winter Fair.

"During the past three years the chicken population has grown from nine millions to over 12 millions. Does this mean that there is any danger whatever of over-production? Most emphatically, no," said the Professor. "Prices for poultry and their products are now high and Toronto as well as other first-class markets are far from being glutted. Prices for poultry have been such that it would almost warrant our importing such farm produce.

"There need be no fear of over-production, either in poultry or in eggs. The British market always calls loudly and pays the highest prices for eggs that are guaranteed to be fresh, also for poultry that has been cared-for and shipped in the proper manner. Canadian poultry production is increasing, yet her exports of poultry and poultry products decreased during the past three years.

This means that the consumption of poultry and its products is increasing and unless we meet the ever-increasing demand, a serious shortage is sure to result.

FARM CONDITIONS MOST SUITABLE

"No man is in a better position to raise poultry more economically than is the farmer," continued Professor Graham. "Farm conditions not only give a great variety of foods but also a wide range of territory over which young chicks, growing, may roam, getting plenty of exercise besides being insectivorous. One way in which some farmers stand in their own light is, by not feeding liberally. Lean hens never commence laying in winter. Hens that are too fat, providing they are given the option of plenty of exercise, are usually those that would not lay anyway.

Danish eggs command the highest prices paid for eggs on British markets, why? Because, by means of co-operative societies scattered throughout Denmark, the eggs are gathered rapidly, and all are sent to a common centre where they are packed rapidly and well. From there they are sent to the British markets and the buyers there pay the very best prices because they know every egg is just as it is represented by the Danish Co-operative Societies. Why do Canadians not adopt a similarly effective method of obtaining the best prices for the finished product?"—R.B.C.

MR. J. R. DARGAVEL HONORED

From Farm and Dairy.

"That we the dairymen of the County of Leeds in meeting assembled in Town Hall, Leeds and Lansdowne Front, desire to place on record our appreciation of the valuable services rendered this Province by Mr. J. R. Dargavel, M.L.A., first as Director and later as President of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association. We feel that a great deal of the legislation for the benefit of the dairymen, especially the giving of free instruction to cheese factories has been brought about by his efforts and influence.

"And further, we strongly recommend that the said Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, at its first meeting, appoint Mr. Dargavel an Honorary Director of this Association, so that they may still retain the benefit of his experience and influence."

Such was the resolution passed with hearty unanimity by the dairymen in assembly at a special dairy meeting held at Lansdowne, Ont., recently. Mr. Dargavel resigned from the directorate of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association after the nomination had been offered to him and J. B. Wilson, the well known dairyman of Wilstead was chosen as the director for Leeds.

Mr. Dargavel was very much gratified and affected by the warm expression of appreciation of his services, so much so that he felt unable to reply to it. On his behalf Mr. Freeman Britton of Gananoque replied in fitting terms.

The resolution of appreciation was not only gratifying to Mr. Dargavel but was unusually well merited. It is not probable that any member of the Ontario Legislature has done more for the dairy industry of Ontario of recent years than Mr. Dargavel. He has served upon important agricultural committees and his advice is always sought by the Government on all agricultural topics," his judgment being considered particularly sound.

Sir Frederick Borden Answers Col. Worthington—Sir Wilfrid Asks E. N. Lewis to Withdraw His Resolution Favoring the Appointment of a Canadian Attache to British Embassy to United States.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in the House of Commons yesterday, stated that there was no necessity for a Canadian attache to the British embassy at Washington.

E. N. Lewis had proposed a resolution to petition the Imperial Government for the appointment of a Canadian attache, as seven-tenths of the British business there concerned Canada.

"Our relations with the United States," said Sir Wilfrid; "have been of late years, on the whole, very friendly, and present treaties have removed all possible cause of contention. At one time I would have been strongly inclined to vote for the resolution now proposed, but Ambassador Bryce has taken especial pains to give attention to Canadian affairs. As soon as he took office he came to Ottawa and tried to familiarize himself with Canadian questions. In conducting negotiations affecting Canada at Washington, he has taken no steps without consulting the Canadian authorities; and if there is any fault to be found, the blame must be Canada's.

"While some good might arise from our having a representative to advise with the British ambassador at Washington, still his presence might also give rise to complications. I would suggest that it would be the part of wisdom to withdraw the resolution."

Mr. Lewis complied.

Col. Worthington asked concerning the Ross rifle, Mark I., if "in view of its defects and the fact that it was widely considered unsafe for use," the Government shouldn't send them to the scrap pile.

The Minister of Militia replied that the slight defect had been remedied, and any impression as to insecurity was largely due to the persistent efforts of the inquirer to discredit the rifle. To do as proposed would be wasteful and ridiculous.

F. D. Monk asked that the reply as reflecting upon Col. Worthington be expunged, and Sir Fred. Borden said that, if so, the question should also be expunged. The Speaker will decide.

Mr. Monk, in moving for an order of the House for a copy of the petition of rights and pleas offered in defence in the case of the North Atlantic Trading Co. v. The King, in the Exchequer Court, introduced a discussion in the Commons yesterday on the question of the operations of the North Atlantic Trading Co.

The contract with this company had expired and a final payment of over $36,000 had been made to the company, but a flat had been issued by the Department of Justice allowing the company to take action for an amount exceeding $70,000 for damages incurred through the cancellation. This was strange in view of the fact that Hon. Frank Oliver had said that the Department of Justice had advised him that he had a perfect legal right to cancellation.

Hon. A. B Aylesworth said it was a question of law upon the language and provisions of a contract as to which different men might have different opinions.

R. L. Borden recalled that Mr. Oliver's reason for cancellation — that the company had not been sending certain nationalities of immigrants as agreed—had not been borne out. Mr. Aylesworth's readiness to grant the fiat indicated a tender regard for the company.

Brampton Produce Market.

Brampton, Dec. 16.—Brampton produce market was opened yesterday on the old market square, at John and Chapel streets. There was a large crowd of farmers and produce sold at good prices to a large number of buyers from Toronto. The old fire hall was used for a market building, but was found to be too small.

Jim Hill In B. C.

Aged Couple to Be Buried Together.

Passaic, N.J., Dec. 16.—Hilda Reinhold was apparently so preoccupied with her own sorrows that, in committing suicide Tuesday night she thoughtlessly killed her friend, Fanny Kemiank, who was quite content with life as she found it. Both girls were hotel servants and shared a bedroom. Hilda came home Tuesday night weeping, after talking suicide. Both were found dead yesterday, with the gas jet wide open.

FREIGHTER LOST.

Wissahickon Goes on Rocks in Gale on Lake Huron.

Little Current, Ont., Dec. 16.—The new steel steamer Wissahickon of the Anchor Line, ran on the Outer Duck Islands, Lake Huron, Sunday night, at 11.15, in an eastern gale and blinding snow storm. The lower decks and stern are submerged and all supplies cut off from the crew, who have had no food since Sunday night.

Heavy seas prevented them crossing from the Ducks to Manitoulin Island, 12 miles, until yesterday, when two fishermen, who reached the island where the steamer is in a small gasoline launch, brought off the first mate, W. H. Cassey, and Engineer John Ersken.

Tugs are being sent out from the Soo for the rest of the crew, 32 men in all.

All are safe on the island, but have suffered severely in the extreme weather without food.

Cassey and Ersken had to walk eight miles through snow and water to Fernie, the nearest telephone on the Manitoulin Island.

The vessel was only two years old, and will be a total wreck.

Suit For $100,000.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—A suit involving $100,000, in which three Americans are named as co-defendants, was started in the non-jury Assizes yesterday. The Colonial Development Syndicate of London, Eng., is suing James Mitchell of Boston, his father and his brother, J. A. Mitchell of New York. In March, 1908, defendant is said to have received $100,000 from Rose, Van Cutsem & Co., English brokers, to purchase Cobalt mining rights. Afterwards, the brokerage firm assigned to the plaintiffs.

Mitchell is charged with refusing to give up the purchases and an order is asked that he transfer his claims to plaintiff and pay costs of action.

He claims on the other hand that he turned over what claims he secured for the brokers, and adds that he got a few on his own account. He also claims that plaintiffs owe him money for profits and expenses. The evidence of the Mitchells was taken in the U. S. by a commission, the father and brother admit holding claims for W. S. Mitchell.

Horse Show Next Year.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—After a cessation of one year, the Canadian Horse Show, the pioneer of the horse shows in Canada, will be revived with great lustre during the first week in May next.

The cavalry regiments of Toronto will combine with the Canadian Horse Show Association and the event will be not only a horse show, but a military horse show. The military events will be of an interesting and spectacular character and some of them will be open to all cavalry regiments in America. The principal military event will be for the teams of three officers over a course of jumps similar to those used at the International Horse Show in London this year.

The event will take place in the armories from May 3 to May 7, and will be under the direction of a joint executive committee composed of representatives of the Toronto Garrison and Canadian Horse Show Association.

Bore Another's Crime.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 16.—Two years ago two foremen of the British Columbia Electric Railway, Maynard and Sharman, were charged with having padded pay rolls with names of dead men and stealing thousands of dollars. Both left the city, but Maynard first made a statement accusing James Milne, superintendent of the B. C. Electric Co., of having largely benefited from the crooked work, and of having passed the pay-rolls knowing them to have been doctored. Milne, who has large property interests, was arrested and pleaded guilty to one charge, on which he was sentenced to 18 months. He has served the sentence and returned to business in the city.

Yesterday Maynard, who was rearrested here Tuesday night, made a confession exonerating Milne from all guilt, and Milne now says he accepted part of the blame because he was careless under his very heavy work and because he wished to protect Maynard's wife and family.

Dies In Lonely Cabin.

THE APPOINTMENT OF ASSESSORS WAS LEFT OVER FOR THE COUNCIL OF 1910

Recommendation of Special Committee Was Turned Down at Last Meeting of the City Fathers for Present Year---Proposal to Combine the Assessment and Industrial Commissioners' Duties, Giving the Position to one Man

TOO LATE IN YEAR TO ADOPT THE REPORT

The principal feature of what was in all probability the last meeting of the City Council for the present year, held last night, was the consideration of the recommendation from the special committee appointed to consider the appointment of permanent assessors. In a recent issue of the Examiner the report of this committee was published to the effect that they were in favour of the appointment of T. B. McGrath, assessor, at the salary of $700 a year, and W. H. Thompson, assistant assessor at $400 a year, the former to devote all his time to the work of assessing or such other work as might be assigned to him, and the latter to begin work on February 1st, and to continue until the rolls were returned. Ald. McIntyre was appointed chairman, and at last night's meeting presented the report of the committee, recommending the appointment of these men. There were present Mayor Rush, in the chair, and the following members of the Council: Ald. Phelan, McIntyre, Metheral, Gillespie, Bradburn, Morgan, Duncan, Duffus and Hicks.

Ald. McIntyre moved the adoption of his report, which was seconded by Ald. Duffus. Ald. Bradburn moved in amendment that the appointment of a permanent assessor be left over until next year. Ald. Duncan seconded the amendment, which, on being put to a vote, was carried by five to four. Those who supported the amendment were Ald. Bradburn, Duncan, Gillespie, Metheral and Morgan. This, therefore, is one question on the slate of the Council for 1910.

Ald. Bradburn's Reasons.

In moving the amendment Ald. Bradburn stated that he did not think that this was the proper time to make the appointment. It should be taken up by the incoming council. "Some have said that the present Council was better fitted to deal with the question than next year's. Ald. Morrow, from present prospects, would likely be in the Mayor's chair, and there were four or five of the other members of the old Council, who would be on the new one. The appointment of an Industrial Commissioner is being talked of. There is nothing on the statutes providing for the appointment of such an official, and if he were appointed there is nothing to provide for the payment of his salary. Ald. Bradburn stated that they might be combined. For these reasons he moved that the matter be left over for next year's council.

Ald. Duncan, in seconding the amendment, said that he had felt all along that it was a matter for the incoming Council. He was of the opinion that Mr. McGrath was as good a man as could be obtained for the work of assessing.

Ald. McIntyre said he did not think the city was ready for the appointment of an Industrial Commissioner. While the Peterborough Light and Power Co. said they had a certain amount of power to offer, the city had only their word for it. Ald. Gillespie and Bradburn replied that the Company had given the city a written letter, stating that they had 1,-000 h.p. to supply to industries, or for whatever purposes the city required it.

Ald. Gillespie.

"I think that Ald. Bradburn's point is well taken," remarked Ald. Gillespie. He did not oppose the appointment in any way, but he thought the question should be left over until next year. There was a strong feeling in favour of an Industrial Commissioner and he would like to see one appointed if it was the general wish of the people.

Ald. Duffus enquired about the connection between the two commissioners. Ald. Gillespie replied that in many cities the Industrial Commissioner could not be appointed, but an Assessment Commissioner could, and the two positions had been combined and the one man performed the dual duties.

Ald. Morgan stated that as a member of the Special Committee he had supported the appointment of Mr. McGrath, and he still thought him a good man for the position. He was not going back on him, but he thought it would save trouble if the matter were left over until 1910.

Ald. Metheral said he had not changed his opinions since the last meeting of the Council. He did not think the appointment should be made at the very last meeting, as he did not want to tie up the incoming council in any way.

His Worship then called for the vote on the amendment, which carried as stated above. Ald. McIntyre stated as a parting shot that the same trouble would be met with next year. "You don't want Mr. McGrath, that's the trouble." Ald. Gillespie replied that such was not the case. He had not heard a word mentioned personally in regard to the Assessor. "You can't, that is why," Ald. McIntyre replied, and there the question ended, the council continuing with the other business, which is reported in another column.

"TRUE BILLS" FOUND

By Grand Jury in Cases Against G. M. Graham and J. T. Maunder.

SHOULD MAKE USE OF PHONE

People Often Run Two or Three Blocks to Fire Alarm Box When Telephone Would Better Answer Their Purpose.

CHIEF HOWARD'S COMPLAINT

Chief Howard of the Fire Department has asked the Examiner to call attention to the desirability of making use of the telephone in case of a fire. Despite the completeness of the fire alarm system the telephone is the most desirable way of giving an alarm, and should be used on every occasion possible. Frequently there have been cases in which people ran two and three blocks to the alarm boxes, when they might have saved much valuable time by making use of the nearest telephone to send in the alarm. All that is necessary to do is to take off the receiver and tell the telephone operator that there is a fire at such and such a place. She will do the rest by notifying the fire station, where a man is kept on watch day and night to answer calls. This is a point that citizens should be careful about as a minute or two gained in reaching a fire sometimes means the difference between a petty blaze and a serious conflagration.

THE PLAINTIFF GETS HORSE

Case of Jas. Kelly vs. Geo. O'Neill, John Haggart and John Mervin, to Recover a Horse or its Value Settled Out of Court.

EACH PAYS HIS COSTS

The action brought by James Kelly, a retired hotel keeper of this city, against Geo. O'Neill, John Haggart, and John Mervin, to recover a horse, was settled, the horse being returned to Kelly and each party paying his own costs.

The plaintiff claimed the return of the horse, or its value, $275, and $200 for wrongful detention, alleging that in December, 1908, he placed with one Cavanagh, a livery stable keeper, the animal. Cavanagh afterwards sold his business to defendant Neill, who took possession, including charge of the horse. O'Neill claimed $60.25 for keeping the animal, and to satisfy the account sold it by public auction, defendant John Haggart acting as the auctioneer. The plaintiff further stated that he offered defendants a sufficient sum for charges which was refused. The horse was sold to John Mervin for $162.00, the said money never having been paid over to plaintiff. The plaintiff also alleged that the horse was not sold for the best price.

HIS RESIGNATION

Ald. Morrow Resigned From Council Last Night.

The resignation of Ald. Morrow was received by the Council last night. He had intended to be present, himself, but had been called to Toronto, and was detained by civic business in regard to the sale of debentures. On motion of Ald. Bradburn and Gillespie, his resignation was accepted, and Ald. Bradburn was appointed to the chairmanship of the Finance Committee pro tem, on motion of Ald. Hicks and Gillespie. Up to the present Ald. Morrow is the sole candidate for the Mayor's chair.

Ald. Hicks arose to the occasion, and in an appropriate speech conveyed the Council's motion to his Worship, who made a very feeling reply. He had found it a pleasure to preside over the Council meetings, and had always appreciated the support the members had accorded him in the various business transacted. Mayor Rush thanked the aldermen for their very kind expressions and said he would never forget the occasion and the sentiment connected with it. He had always endeavoured to do his best during his occupancy of the chair, and it had been a source of satisfaction that the members of the Council had stood by him. Mayor Rush again expressed his gratitude to the members, regretting the fact that he was severing his connections with the Council, which, he hoped would continue to serve the best interests of Peterborough.

JURY RETURNS A VERDICT OF "GUILTY" ON CHARGE OF PERJURY AGAINST A BLACKLISTED MAN

George W. Martin Found Guilty of Having Sworn Falsely While Giving Evidence in the Police Court on the Ninth of July Last---Jury Was Out About Three quarters of an Hour---The Evidence.

HIS HONOUR DEFERRED SENTENCE IN THE CASE

"Guilty was the verdict reached by the jury in the case of the second charge of perjury preferred against Geo. W. Martin, who is being tried at the December sessions of the County Court. The jury was out about three quarters of an hour when they returned to the court room and rendered their verdict. His Honour Judge Huycke stated that he would defer sentence, after which the court adjourned until this morning at ten o'clock. The charge against Martin in the second instance was that he did swear in the police court on July 9th that he was not drunk on the sixth of the same month and that he did not have any liquor on that day, save what he received after being placed in the police cell, thereby committing wilful and corrupt perjury. Martin is a blacklisted person. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution and Mr. W. A. Henderson appeared on behalf of the accused and pleaded not guilty. The following jurors were empanelled: Messrs. J. Conway, Wm. A. Fife, Fred A. Boyce, Sam R. Dancy, B. Allin, D. Law, Thos. Flynn, Thos. Cooper, G. H. Hunter, John Collins (foreman) Thos. Forsythe and J. Moher.

The Evidence.

Police Magistrate Dumble was the first witness called. He remembered the prisoner Martin being before him on July 9th. He recognized the depositions taken in the case. Prisoner was duly sworn. Witness read the accused's evidence as given before him, wherein he denied having been drunk or having had any liquor on the sixth of July.

P. C. Newhall on being called, swore that on receiving a complaint at the police station on the afternoon of Tuesday July sixth, he went to the prisoner's shop and upon entering he found the accused lying in the back room with a flask of whiskey under his head. He was then the worse of liquor. When the prisoner was roused and put on his feet, he fell down again. Witness stated that Martin was quite drunk on that occasion.

Chief Rossel was also called to the witness stand and testified that on the sixth of July he also visited the accused's shop, arriving there shortly after P. C. Newhall. He saw Martin who, he said, was intoxicated. He also saw the flask of whiskey, the contents of which had partly been consumed. He heard the witness swear that he wasn't drunk when giving his evidence on July 9th in the police court.

The defendant went into the box and denied being drunk on the day in question and the only liquor he had had on that occasion was what he got from another man in the cell after he had been arrested.

These were the only witnesses heard, and Mr. Henderson, counsel for the defence, then began his address to the jury. He impressed upon them the points which should be proven to their satisfaction before reaching a verdict of guilty. They should be firmly convinced that the accused was drunk on that occasion and that he did knowingly swear that he was not.

Crown Attorney Wood pointed out that the prisoner's arrest followed as a result of a complaint. Chief Rossel and P. C. Newhall had both found him in a state of intoxication. If the prisoner had told the truth then the two police officers had conspired against him. But everyone knew what Chief Rossel commanded the greatest respect of all citizens and as an officer of the law he was fearless and honest in the discharge of his duties and that he would not be guilty of such conduct.

His Honour Judge Huycke in his remarks to the jury stated that to be guilty of perjury one must on oath make a false statement with the intent to mislead the court. It was not a crime so much against the individual as against the community. "The facts have been given you," His Honour said, "and you are the judges of them. You must give your judgment according to the evidence."

The jury then retired, returning in three quarters of an hour with the above verdict.

Mayor Rush Honoured By The Council At Final Meeting

A pleasant feature of the concluding business of the Council last night was the unanimous expression of appreciation of the treatment the aldermen had received from his Worship Mayor Rush during the past year. The little incident was quite a surprise to the Mayor, who, when the time drew near for the final adjournment, was asked to vacate the chair, on motion of Ald. Phelan and Gillespie. Ald. Hicks was thereupon asked to act as chairman.

Ald. Phelan then read the following motion, which was carried by a standing vote:

Moved by Ald. Phelan, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, that, as his Worship Mayor Rush has expressed his intention of retiring from the position of Mayor at the end of this year, we desire to place on record the fact that the relations between the other members of the council and his Worship have been a most pleasant character, and that we regret that they will soon come to an end. We also wish to express our appreciation of the very courteous, tactful and able manner in which he has presided at the meetings of the council during the past two years, and guided the affairs of the municipality during that time.

Early Morning Blaze Was Discovered By Watchman

This morning at 2.30 o'clock Night Watchman Fisher discovered a fire in the store in the new Brooks Block at the corner of Sherbrooke and George streets, occupied as a shoe store by Robert Di Bernardo. The blinds in the store were down, but Mr. Fisher noticed smoke curling through the fan light, above the door.

An alarm was sent in and the brigade responded promptly, succeeding in extinguishing the blaze in a short time with comparatively little damage done.

Chief Howard stated to The Examiner this morning that he believed the fire was of incendiary origin, and that he had reported the matter to the police. He stated that the fire seemed to have been burning in three places in the store.

Deputation From Hull Will Visit Peterborough

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The Hull Council last night decided to send four men, City Engineer Farley, A. Berthiaume, ex-ald. M. Burns and Ald. Caron, chairman of the Waterworks Committee, to Toronto and Peterborough, to examine pumps and report at the next meeting of the Council. By the waterworks appropriation two new pumps are to be installed in the Hull pump house.

There were six tenders received for the new pumps, but only three were placed before the council for consideration by the Waterworks committee. These were: Canada Foundry, Toronto, $18,000; John Inglis, Toronto, $17,-350; Wm. Hamilton, Peterborough, $14,500. The pumps offered by the last-named firm were strongly endorsed by City Engineer Farley, A. Berthiaume, Ald. Caron, chairman of the Waterworks Committee, and ex-Ald. M. Burns. One pump manufactured by the Company has been in constant use at Peterborough for 16 years.

It was decided that before awarding the contract the above-named delegation should visit places where the different pumps may be seen working, then the council will know the merits of each.

A Chance To Bring Yule Tide Joy To Nine Local Children

The spirit of Yue-tide is entering into its own in Peterborough homes just now and happy indeed are the youngsters in contemplating the coming of the mysterious and benevolent old gentleman known as Santa Claus. They are marking off the days until Christmas and counting the moments until the stockings have been opened or the mystery of the Christmas tree solved, and when anticipation has given way to realization, the cup of joy will be filled to the brim. These children are happy now with a certainty of a happy Christmastide before them.

For one little coterie of children in Peterborough, however, Christmas will be just the same as all the other three hundred and sixty-four units of the year unless some charitably inclined people of the city will undertake to play the role of Kris Kringle for the benefit of these youngsters. There are nine little ones in the Children's Shelter who have no parents to make a Christmastide a joy for them. These children who range in age from four to twelve years have just come through a siege of quarantine owing to an outbreak of scarlet fever. They will therefore be in a position peculiarly adapted to appreciating a bright holiday season, and an effort is being made to have a Christmas tree entertainment on Christmas eve, an occasion that the little folks will long remember.

The good people of Peterborough are asked to assist in this meritorious project, by contributing articles for the Christmas tree. Toys, books fruit and candies would be preferable on an occasion of this kind. You know how the eyes of your little ones light with joy when they receive an attractive toy or a pretty picture book. Think, then, how much a gift would be appreciated by the little waifs in the Shelter. The presents need not be new and surely the people of Peterborough have enough articles of the kind desired in their homes to give nine children the time of their lives on Christmas day.

Donations for this purpose may be left at the Shelter itself or at the Review or Examiner office, the newspapers having consented to look after such things as may be sent in.

MOVED INTO THE CITY

Mr. Thos. Allen, one of the eldest farmers in North Monaghan, and one of its longest residents, has moved into the city from his old home on the Gravel Road, and has purchased a home on Sherbrooke street. Mr. Allen came out from England in 1840, and commenced market gardening, a business in which he had some experience in the Old Country. He cleared the property he had selected and soon had it working on a business that began to bring in profits. He planted orchards and not a few of these are to be found in different parts of the county in the vicinity of the city. Mr. Allen sold his farm to Mr. W. O. Broglin.

THE STORY OF THE BUDGET.

Hon. Mr. Fielding on Tuesday did two things which, were never done by any Canadian Minister of Finance—he delivered his fourteenth consecutive budget speech and told an unsurpassed and unprecedented story of Canadian growth, advancement and enterprise. The following summary contributed by the editorial resident correspondent of the Montreal Herald admirably and racily summarizes two principal speeches, that of the Finance Minister and of the chief financial critic of the opposition, the querulous but clever Hon G. E. Foster:—

Hon. Mr. Fielding on Tuesday delivered his fourteenth consecutive budget speech as Minister of Finance for Canada. Mr. Fielding looks older than he did fourteen years ago, which is natural enough, but his mind is as agile, his delivery as torrential, his repartee as unfailing as when he first broke into the Federal field with a long record of uninterrupted success behind him in Nova Scotia. Anyone who looks at the picture of Mr. Fielding as it appears in the group photograph with Mowat, Mercier, Blair, Norquay and the others who met long ago to consider the differences existing between the Provinces and the Dominion, would never recognise the mild-eyed, dark-haired dark-bearded, spare figure of that portrait in the stoutish gentleman whose eyes snap out at a daring interrupter from a face that is framed in snow white hair. But to the ear there is no change. Voice and style are the same. "I didn't know Mr. Fielding," once remarked a former Liberal leader, but I remember that he wrote very admirable editorial sketches on politics for his paper." He has stopped that long ago, and went to public life, where ever since instead of writing admirably he has been speaking admirably; knowing just what it is he means to say and saying it with the least strain upon the patience and attention of his audience. In his art of concentrated effective statement, accompanied where necessary by argument as concentrated and effective, he is as admirable as ever.

The story of the financial situation of the country is not an intensely exciting one to tell. The Government's story does not, in fact, differ essentially. for the financial year which ended on March 31, 1909, from that of ordinary people in business. The depression struck governors and governed in the same way. The revenue fell off eleven millions, as compared with the previous year, ten millions of the eleven being a drop in customs receipts. As the works ordered by Parliament the year before, when confidence reigned, went right on, the Government was lucky to come off with a surplus, on ordinary account, of a million. Moreover, there was a further expenditure that year of forty-nine millions, twenty-four of it on the National Transcontinental, and the net debt was increased by forty-six millions. Mr. Foster was disposed to scold, when his turn came, because the Government had not put expenditure under double reefs in that year. But it is arguable that there was never an expenditure of fifty millions that came in so handily for the relief of industry that stood badly in need of relief. It possibly explains to some extent how Canada was able to weather the hurricane with relatively little disaster.

At all events, the recovery was rapid. The revenue, that in 1908, reached the record of ninety-six millions, that fell in 1909 to eighty-five millions, is already certain to reach ninety-eight millions in the year ending next March, and will probably reach one hundred millions. There is hardly any record of so quick a recovery after so violent a reaction. There will be a surplus on ordinary account this year of anywhere from seventeen to twenty millions. There will be spent this year thirty-five millions on items of capital expenditure, including twenty millions on the National Transcontinental. The surplus on ordinary account will pay for all this, bar the National Transcontinental. Indeed the debt increase will be not more than eighteen millions, and twenty will be spent on the road. Mr. Fielding thinks we will be doing pretty well if out of revenue we pay for everything except the railroad. On that point, by the way, he gave Mr. Borden figures to show that up to next March the road will have cost seventy-eight millions, and in the next year twenty-eight more will be spent. Up to last March the road had cost fifty-eight millions, and the debt increase in twelve and a half years had been just seven millions more. The object of the Government as Mr. Mr. Fielding puts it, is to pay for everything that can be done out of revenue and to add to the debt no more than the new National road will cost. Up to the present, one hundred and forty seven millions worth of capital expenditures have been paid for out of revenue.

Mr. Fielding contented himself with the confident statement that in the fiscal year 1911 the revenue will exceed a hundred millions, and passed to a statement of tariff subjects. The French treaty awaited only the formal ratification; Germany had shown herself very anxious to approach Canada in a good spirit, and a trade treaty with Germany was therefore to be looked for. Italy and Belgium were anxious to make trade arrangements with us also, and they ought to be gratified. The British West Indies seemed to be ready for an agreement under which Canada would get a trade preference. Finally, Mr. Fielding paid a tribute to the "most admirable message of President Taft,' 'in view of which he was "not going to assume that there was any cause for anxiety."

No tariff changes were suggested. Mr. Fielding took the ground that it is best for the country to avoid change as much and as long as possible. He mentioned that the iron and steel bounties were to cease a year hence, by law, and made an interesting calculation to prove that the establishment of the steel industry had brought in by way of Customs revenue almost as much as was paid out in bounties. About the only new announcement was one about combines and amalgamations. There is provision already for proving whether combinations enhance prices, and for the reduction of duties in case this is proved. But it has been complained that the proceedings are so expensive as to discourage the aggrieved consumer, and conceding this the Government propose, on reasonable proof being made at the outset, to bear the cost of the investigation before a judge. No doubt Judge Cannon's device of fixing the costs on those he condemns will also suggest an example to follow.

Having so said what he had to say, and having said it in a short hour and a half, Mr. Fielding closed with a well rounded period, that at last, on all the evidences, Canada was getting in ample measure, what were once her unsatisfied necessities, "men, money and markets."

Mr. Foster followed; when he was through, after two hours and a half, it was difficult to think of anything, from the Yukon Railway scheme of long ago, down to the estimates now going through committee, on which he could base a denunciation of the Government, that he had overlooked. He found the taxation bad, the spending bad. The borrowing was bad. Every railway project yet touched was bad, Yukon, Intercolonial, National Transcontinental all and several, in whole and in all parts. Too much spent on public works. Too much here, too much there, too much at Port Colborne, too much at St. Andrew's Rapids. He complained of everybody and of everything. He summarized, in a few sentences each, everyone of the issues that have been raised by the Opposition in the past four or five years, and all of which are familiar to newspaper readers. It is right to add that the Opposition vigorously cheered every well-delivered thrust, and that on the Government side the frequent interruptions evidenced the appositeness of the criticisms. Mr. Foster's speech, as to method, was a survival of an old tradition, from which Mr. Fielding has been trying to get away. Formerly the budget speech was an all-round stump speech, and the reply thereto, also a stump speech. Mr. Fielding now makes of the budget an almost unvarnished financial statement. Mr. Foster sticks to the old stump speech method in reply. As the reply is looked for, and as there is no knowing in advance what is to be replied to, and as in this case there is nothing at all to answer but plain statement of facts, it is perhaps excusable that the occasion should be utilized for an attack along the whole line. So, at all events, Mr. Foster seemed to see it, and his speech, full of familiar details, irresistibly recalled the verse

"There's a great slump in Galatians,
Once you trip on it, entails
Twenty-nine distinct damnations
One sure if the other fails."

Even so, there is no one else on that side who could duplicate the performance.

PILES

Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and guaranteed cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles. See testimonials in the press and ask your neighbors about it. You can use it and get your money back if not satisfied. 60c. at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Kidneys Act Fine And Backache Goes

A Few Doses Regulate Disordered Kidneys and End Bladder Misery.

If you take several doses of Pape's Diuretic, all backache and distress from out-of-order kidneys or bladder trouble will vanish, and you will feel fine.

Lame back, painful stitches, rheumatism, nervous headache, dizziness, irritability, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, worn-out, sick-feeling and other symptoms of sluggish, inactive kidneys disappear.

Feeling miserable and worried is needless, because this unusual preparation goes at once to the disordered kidneys, bladder and urinary system and distributes its healing cleansing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder or feel rheumatism pains, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Only curative results can come from taking Pape's Diuretic, and a few days' treatment means clean, active, healthy kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and no backache.

HOLSTEIN MILK THE BEST

The highest medical authorities are now unanimous in their endorsement of the peculiar value of Holstein milk in the feeding of infants. Science has demonstrated that the Holstein cow is the true foster mother of humanity.

Dr. Thomas Morgan Rotch , of Boston, recognized by his profession the world over as an authority on infant feeding and professor of Pediatrics, Harvard University Medical School, says: 'Now from a medica'l point of view, the Holstein cow is exactly what we find best for infant feeding, and it is an extremely good milk for any one to drink."

One reason for this is given by the same eminent physician: "In the emulsion from Jersey cows the corpuscles are much larger than in the Holstein, while the Holstein emulsion, when broken down, is much more easily restored—that is, it emulsifies better and resists better a destruction of its emulsion (such as occurs when cream is produced) than the milks of Guernseys and Jerseys."

On page 13 of his book, "Pediatrics," he states: This cow (the Holstein)) represents the most perfect milking animal known, having every characteristic of a cow suitable for an infant's milk supply." Dr. Rotch further states: The volatile glycerides for example, which are present in very small proportion in human milk, are considerably greater in Jersey and Guernsey milk than in that of commoner breeds of cows, such as the Holsteins. They increase decidedly the difficulty of digestion." On page 205 of the same work, treating of infant feeding, it is stated. "It is well in the second year to use an undiluted milk, preferably from Holstein Cows."

Dr. John Lovett Morse, Boston, another specialist of national reputation in speaking of a certain herd of cattle maintained exclusively for baby feeding says: "The breeds of cows are carefully chosen with reference to the suitability of their milk for infant feeding and also with regard to their natural disposition and digestion. Holsteins and Ayrshires have shown themselves most adaptable in these respects. They are, especially the Holsteins, of even temperament, of good digestion and not very liable to tuberculosis."

Dr. W. R. Northrup, of New York, Professor of Diseases of Children, The University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, attending physician to the hospitals of the health department of the city of New York, in advising as to the choice of milk for infant feeding, says: "The cow's milk should be of good average quality, mixed, from a herd of native cows, healthy, in the locality in which they live, Holstein preferred."

Dr. Robert Craik, of Montreal, Canada, says: "Infants' food prepared from cows milk is much more likely to contain too much fat than too little. Fat is the least digestible of all the ingredients of milk; and when at all in excess it is sure to cause more or less disturbance often ending seriously. But the milk of Holstein-Friesian cows comes nearer to the main standard than the milk of any other breed; and consequently it requires less sophistication (modification). Simple dilution, with boiled distilled water and sugar, to which a very little common salt has been added is usually all that is required."

Her Daughter Took Very Sick As Result Of Catching Cold.

Mrs. Dennis Delaney, Friar's Head, N.S., writes: "At the close of the year 1907, our youngest daughter, five years old, took very sick as the result of catching cold. She became very weak and could not move around at all. We consulted doctors and gave her various kinds of medicine but they did not seem to relieve her any. On the advice of a friend I procured a bottle of your valuable remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using the first bottle noticeable improvement was the result and after using three bottles she was entirely cured. can certify that it was through your valuable remedy that she regained her strength and would advise every mother having young ones similarly afflicted to obtain your valuable remedy. For myself I would not be without a bottle in the house."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree combined with Wild Cherry bark and other pectoral remedies. It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. Price 25 cents at all dealers. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

UNCLE WALT--THE POET PHILOSOPHER

Methinks I must be growing old, for I'm inclined to rant and scold at everything that's up-to-date, and every tale that friends relate of modern triumph makes me soar to triumphs of the days of yore.

THE OLD TIMES When I was young—ah, golden age!—all men were worthy of their wage; and all the virtues were so thick you simply couldnt throw a brick, bt that you'd wing a gross orimore; the moral grocer in his store would scorn to sell you mouldy flour; the milkman's juice was never sour; folks went to church and never thought to slumber while the preacher praught; they never worked off nails or rocks upon the contribution box. Then all the girls were passing fair, bald-headed men had lots of hair; and lovers sang, and spinsters span until they caught a likely man. Ah, then the skies were always blue, and maids were sweet, and men were true; the sun was seven times as bright, the moon was shining every night, and pearls were found in all the rills, and all the hens were whip-poor-wills! The dreams I've dreamt—the songs I've sung—when I was young, when I was young!

COME IN THE MORNING--COME IN THE AFTERNOON--COME IN THE EVENING

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

Did it ever occur to you that the puffs and rats and transformations that one hears so much protest about the masculine lips, after all are really on the mens' heads?

Figuratively of course I mean.

I am sick to death of reading man-made essays on the "simple, natural woman" and how greatly she appeals to masculine kind.

I wonder if any of the men who write that sore of thing really believe it.

Why do women try to make themselves beautiful?

So that they may take pleasure in looking in the mirror? Or so that they may win the admiration of other women?

Not exactly.

Do you think that if the wish of Rachel of "Rachel and Reuben" fame were granted and "the men were all transported far beyond the northern sea" the women who were left would wear puffs?

Certainly they wouldn't.

If men would only show their disapproval by shunning the be-puffed lady in the concrete instead of just talking about her in the abstract and approving her in the concrete she would promptly disappear.

Men talk a great deal about hating rats and puffs, but when it comes down to individuals I dont' believe one man in five hundred would know or care very much whether a woman had a puff or rat on or not.

I will admit that men do not admire the girl who is made conspicuous by carrying a bushel basket full of other people's hair on her head.

But then men do not like conspicuousness of any kind in their women folks.

But take the girl who wears a rather scant supply of hair gracefully and becomingly draped over a small rat and set her alongside of the girl who wears about the same apportionment of hair in flat and simple fashion, and other things being equal, the average man will gravitate towards the beratted one.

Here is a little document from experience along these lines.

It was contributed towards a controversy in a New York paper as to whether men really like and appreciate the simple, natural woman or not.

"As far as the natural woman is concerned," runs this little human document, "I think anyone will find it merely a question of supply and demand.

"I remember that as a girl I was as natural as could be, caring very little for the prevailing mode as to dress and wearing my hair, as simply and artistically as anyone could possibly require. Needless to say, I was but an indifferent success, something of a favourite with elderly bachelors but deserted shamefully by the young men for the petticoats made in the latest fashion."

She goes on to say at the age of fifty she mended her ways and became more popular.

Needless to say, if she had lived to-day instead of twenty-five years ago she would have been just as shamefully deserted by the young men for the heads dressed in the latest transformations.

Please do not think this is a defence of rats or puffs or transformations, or anything of that sort.

It isn't. It's merely an attempt to put part of the blame for one feminine folly where it belongs.

Ruth Cameron

The Ghost Walked At Last
Meeting Of Board Of Works

Ald. Duncan and Ald. Phelan Had One Last "Set-to" Over a Bill for $89 From Conroy Bros.—"Another Case of Not Calling the Board Together," Said Ald. Duncan.

MR. D. W. DUMBLE'S STREET

A meeting of the Board of Works was held last night, prior to a special meeting of the Council, with Ald. Phelan in the chair, and Ald. Duncan, Gillespie, Bradburn, Metheral, Morgan and Mayor Rush. Mr. D. W. Dumble waited on the Board in reference to the city's acceptance of his offer of King Edward street, which he proposed to open between Lock and George streets, south of Romaine streets. This matter has already been explained. Mr. Dumble's property is adjoining Mr. Henry Best's, and he had asked the latter to give 33 feet towards the street, and he, Mr. Dumble, would give the other half. Mr. Best had refused and Mr. Dumble offered the entire 66 feet, but reserved a strip twenty feet wide, adjoining Mr. Best's property, in order that he could not cross it, thereby receiving the same benefit as Mr. Dumble, who was giving the entire street. He asked the right to this strip for his own protection. It would be really the street and would be completely opened when Mr. Best would pay for the advantage he was receiving. Mr. Dumble wanted the street registered in order that he could designate the lots, according to the plan. He had given other streets to the city in various parts of the city, and had asked for no compensation. It had opened up the property and the city had gained from the increased assessment of these properties.

Ald. Bradburn considered that Mr. Dumble would be equally protected if he retained right to a strip of only two feet. His suggestion was that at the end of twenty years the city be permitted to take over 18 of the 20 feet. Mr. Dumble replied that he wanted the 20 feet for particular reasons. In twenty years neither he nor Mr. Best would be alive. Ald. Duncan was of the same opinion as Ald. Bradburn, in regard to the width of the strip.

Mr. Dumble stated that he would open a street near the property known as the Roger property, near Green's foundry, if 30 feet was accepted. He could not give 66 feet, owing to the character of the land. "You are blocking the city," Mr. Dumble stated to Ald. Bradburn, who replied that he was not. "That policy is," retorted Mr. Dumble.

After considerable discussion Mr. Dumble decided to give the city right to the entire 30 feet at the end of 20 years Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Duncan were opposed to this. "I will support it if you reserve the 20 feet for 20 years, and retain the two feet at the end of that time," Ald. Bradburn said. Mr. Dumble was agreeable as in twenty years, he said, it could not affect him in any way.

This was satisfactory to the members of the Board, and the matter went up to the Council, where it was adopted, in the form of a by-law.

Mr. Downer, of Downer's Corners, asked for some planking in front of the entrance to his property. Mr. Hay stated that he would look into the matter.

Ald. Duffus stated that an old drain on Auburn street, from the east end of the Smith street bridge, north, was out of repair. In the spring the water was not carried off by it, because of its being blocked. Walking was very bad and a number of the residents had asked him to speak about it. Mr. Hay promised to give it his attention.

A Bill of $89.25.

Ald. Phelan explained a bill of $89.25, presented by Conroy Bros., for work done on the old Smith Street bridge. Engineer Hay had called his attention to it, stating that it should be one right away as it was a source of danger. It was a portion that had to be removed anyway, but could have been left until the winter. The work was done for the city by Conroy Bros'. men. "Ald. Duncan considered that Ald. Phelan should have called the Board of Works together, before allowing the work to be done. It was another example of his not having called the Board together before allowing the work to be done, and he wanted to know why that had not been done. This remark started the ball a-rolling again. The two aldermen thereupon held a little tete-a-tete that was not exactly inaudible to the other members around the Board, and the eulogies interchanged were somewhat doubtful. Ald. Duncan completed his remarks by moving that no action be taken in regard to the account.

Ald. Bradburn stated that he would second the motion only the City Engineer had reported that some of the men in the city's employ were in danger and the work would have to be done any way.

On motion of Ald. Gillespie and Bradburn the bill was ordered to be paid and charged to the Bridge account. Ald. Duncan remarked that the work could have been done during the winter at half price by the city's labourers.

The Board then adjourned.

BLACK HEART IN FRUIT TREES

From Farm and Dairy.

W. T. Macoun, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa

Black heart is a condition found in trees grown in cold climates. It is caused by the death of the young wood in winter. The bark and cambium (the growing tissue next to the bark) remaining uninjured, growth continues in the spring much as usual, but the injury remains and may eventually cause the death of the tree. If, for instance, rot gains an entrance through the crotch or a dead branch the whole interior of the tree may rot and some day the tree will blow over and it will be found merely a shell which has been held together by the trunk and a few outside layers of wood.

Black heart in its incipient stage may be prevented by careful attention to Northern grown nursery stock. During the winter, after the first season's growth of the young grafted tree, most varieties are likely to be killed back, and when the tree begins to grow in the spring it will be found that the young wood is blackened below the point where growth begins. This is black heart. Careful nursery men now cut back the young trees almost or quite to the ground the first year, in order that the tree may start growth from healthy wood. The same thing may occur the second season, and the trees are again cut back, but it is usually not necessary to cut so far.

Even after trees are three and four years of age and have been planted in the orchard they may get black heart by winter injury, but it is much rarer than when they are neglected in the nursery. The tender varieties are more susceptible to black heart than the hardy ones.

FRASERVILLE ITEMS OF INTEREST

Fraserville, Dec. 13.—Miss Nellie Weatherill, of the P. C. I., is unable to attend school this week on account of slight illness.

Mrs. J. Hutchinson was in the village Saturday night.

Mrs. Stephen Miller, of Warsaw, is the guest of Mrs. W. A. Kidd.

Mrs. Wm. Cruikshank was in the city Saturday on business.

Mr. Scullthrap, of Port Hope, was in the village last week, buying peas.

A sufficient number did not turn out to the Sunday School meeting on Tuesday, so the meeting was postponed till Tuesday, Dec. 14th.

Copies of the annual financial report of the South Monaghan Methodist church circuit, for the year ending May, 1909, were distributed to the members of the congregation on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Weatherill, also expressed his wish that the church would be free from debt before he left to commence his labours in a new field, which to our deep regret is but a few short months henceforth.

The new church sheds are nearing completion, the shingling is all that has to be done to finish the work; this has been retarded by the local snowfall.

Miss Mabel Johnston has accepted a position in Peterborough for the holidays.

It is understood that Mr. Richard Stewart, formerly of Fraserville, and who has been for the past year in the Western Provinces, has gone to Montreal to study for the ministry.

Mr. Weatherill, of Osaca, was in the village last week.

Miss Hattie Kidd, of Warsaw, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kidd.

Mr. Graham, of East Peterborough, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewers.

THE VOICE OF THE VICTOR

Music is a language which expresses thought and emotion. Unless one knows its vocabulary and syntax he is as much at a loss to discern what the composer is driving as he would be listening to a Greek tragedy.

Music is among the things which make life worth living, just as pictures are, and noble architecture. By proper education it would be easy to teach the public to understand and enjoy good music as it is to create the taste for good books.

The Victor has made it possible for music to make a genuine appeal to a far greater audience than it could a generation ago.

The Melba records are among the gems of the Victor Red Seal list, and her presence in America has stimulated a brisk demand for these beautiful records.

Caruso's "Valse Lente," Record No. 88115, is one of the great tenor's best numbers. The words of this beautiful waltz song are Mr. Caruso's own composition.

The J. M. Green Music Co., L'td, are sole representatives for Victor machines and records for this district. An invitation is extended to you to hear these machines and records. 3d-139

City Buildings Searched For The Missing Aldermen

Something of a Mystery at the Opening of Final Meeting of the Council—Looked at One Stage as if There Would be no Quorum—Business Transacted at Last Meeting.

CITY PAYS $135 DAMAGES

The special meeting of the Council held last night was the last over which his Worship Mayor Rush will preside, at least for some time, as he will not be a candidate for 1910 honours. Ald. Bradburn, Gillespie, Phelan, Morgan, Duncan, McIntyre, Metheral, Hicks and Duffus were present. Ald. Morrow was in Toronto attending to some business in regard to the sale of certain of the city's debentures.

A communication was received from Jas. E. Doxee, applying for the position of librarian of the new public library.

The report of the Board of Health, asking for a by-law in respect to dogs running loose, and the danger of a hydrophobia scare from this condition was received.

Dr. Young's bill of $400 for services in connection with the small pox epidemic, was referred to the Finance Committee.

Wm. S. Clark applied for the position of janitor of the public library.

Messrs. Dumble and Johnston notified the city that action would be taken if Mr. Thos. Mitchell's bill was not paid. He had rented the Hilliard property from the city, and the small pox tent was subsequetly placed on it, and later, scarlet fever patients were isolated there.

C. L. Cunning ham applied for the janitorship of the public library.

Moved by Ald. Duffus and Hicks that Mrs. Connor Murphy be paid $25.00 without prejudice in recompense for an accident sustained on Cricket Place.

Mr. Felix Brownscombe was appointed deputy returning officer for the vacancy occasioned by Mr. H. Burritt, declining the position. Albert Doris was appointed poll clerk instead of J. P. Bryson, and A. J. Duncan instead of Mr. A. Throop.

It was reported that James' store would not be available as a polling place, and it was decided to use McColl's shop.

Ad. McIntyre thought that the owners of the polling booths shoud receive $5.00 instead of $4.00, as in the past.

The owners had not asked for an increase and the sum they were now receiving was considered sufficient. The matter was put to a vote and Ald. McIntyre's motion was lost.

Architect's Fees.

Ald. Bradburn brought up the question of the amount to be paid to the architects on the new public library. The by-law provided that they get $300 or $150 each. That cheque had been paid, but he felt that the Property Committee had intended that each should get $300. He, therefore moved that another cheque for $300 made out jointly be issued to the architects. Ald. Duncan seconded the motion and it carried.

Finance Committee.

The report of the Finance Committee was read by Ald. Bradburn, part of which provided for the payment of the following accounts:

George Hutchinson & Sons	$ 7.65

Gets $135 From City.

Ald. Metheral read the Legal Committee's report, which was adopted, as follows:

That the offer of O'Connell & Gordon to receive $135 in the case of Torpey against the City of Peterborough, be accepted, and that for the purpose of making a settlement a cheque for $135 be issued to the City Solicitor.

That no action be taken on the application of C. Griffin for the return of a fine paid by him in the Police Court, as it is one with which the Council has no authority to deal.

Canoe Co's. request.

The C. P. R. intend to put a siding in for us on the piece of property leased to us by the city, and they have asked us to obtain permission from the city to cross the end of King street. The attached blue print will show where the proposed siding will cross the street. It is practically all on the C. P. R. property, but as it will run at an angle to the tracks it will have to cross the northern corner of the street, about ten feet west of the line of their right of way. This end of King street is now open water and in order to lay the track it will be necessary for them to fill in the corner, which we are asking permission to cross.

As they intend to start the work as soon as their men can be spared, we hope your Board will give this matter their early attention.

W. A. Richardson, Manager.

On motion of Ald. Hicks and Duffus it was referred to the Chairman of the Board of Works, with power to act.

A by-law was passed accepting King Edward street from Mr. D. W. Dumble of a less width of sixty feet.

Jus as the Council was about to adjourn Ald. Phelan moved that the return to the ward system by-law, which had received two readings, be rescinded and not submitted to the people.

The aldermen, however, would not take up the question, and the meeting was adjourned a little later with half of the aldermen gone and others going.

Nearly No Quorum.

It might be stated that at one stage of the evening's proceedings it appeared as if here was not going to be a quorum. After a rather stormy meeting of the Board of Works, what might be termed a garrison finish touch, the Aldermen went up stairs to the Council room. This was before any business had been done. Ald. McIntyre and Metheral were down stairs and shortly afterwards Ald. Bradburn and Duncan left the Council room. The members had not settled down to business, and when it was desired to begin there were only five members around the desks. They were Ald. Phelan, Gillespie, Morgan, Duffus and Hicks. The Mayor was wondering where the other four had gone to and finally sent City Treasurer Adams to locate them but his search was unavailing. They were not even in the police station. City Clerk Armstrong said he had seen Ald. Metheral and McIntyre going out the street door and they had said they would return in a few minutes. Ald. Hicks made an effort to find the missing four, but there was not even a sign of them. Finally, towards 9 o'clock after waiting ten minutes or more Ald. McIntyre appeared and in a few minutes the original nine filled their accustomed chairs around the "squared circle."

Early Shopping Gives You the Advantage on late Shoppers.

Another Plea Made For Early Christmas Shopping

One can feel it in the air—can read it on the face of the passerby.

Thoughts are turning to the selection of gifts—each one to add to the cheer of the time.

If only these thoughts could be converted into action.

If instead of thinking of selection the great public were buying now.

How the Yuletide cheer would swell and grow, until every clerk—every delivery boy in every store in the land would rise up and call the Christmas shopper "blessed."

Now is the time to do your shopping—now while the stocks are fresh and clean.

Now while the stores are yet uncrowded and the air is pure.

Now, while the clerks have the time and spirit for courteous and smiling service.

It is to your advantage to do your Christmas shopping early.

Your choice is better—shop service is better—you are surer of satisfaction in every way.

Make this your gift, the most welcome one on earth, from the shopper to the worker.

Just as surely as you do you will do your part toward banishing the cruelties of a time which should bring nothing but joy.

Picture a moment the usual late Christmas rush in various shops, which has grown to such proportions in the last few years.

Think of the seething crowds of nervous people—irritable, tired of body.

Think of the workers—girls with aching bodies and pale drawn faces—paying tribute to the demands of a thoughtless people.

Step a moment back of the scenes. Think of the shipping, the packing, the wrapping and delivery forces working in feverish haste to the very limit of human endurance.

And still further back think of the candy makers, toy makers and box makers, whose health destroying "overtime" work follows the belated orders of the late Christmas shopper.

Think of this tumult keeping up until eleven o'clock Christmas eve.

And then for another moment think that all of this could be so easily avoided by a little thought and foresight on your part.

Is the world, indeed, heartless and inhuman?

Is it only heedless?

Does each individual buyer imagine that his necessity differs from all others and that he alone is justified in his late buying?

Does one impulse of pity for the worn-out shop people visit a single breast?

We wonder also what the simple Workman of Nazareth, if He looked down here on things below, would think of the manner in which the most enlightened of nations celebrate His feast. Is it consistent with the spirit of Christmas expressed in the words:

"Peace on earth, good will towards men."

GRAND JURY TAKES CITY TO TASK ON TREATMENT OF POOR

Confinement in Jail of Persons Whose Only Crime is Their Poverty a Reproach Upon the City—County Should Provide Modern Heating Equipment for the Court House.

CONGRATULATES THE JUDGE

The Grand Jury empanelled for the December Sessions of the County Court made their presentment to Judge Huycke to-day. As is usual with reports from Grand Juries of recent years in this county reference is made to the fact that there are persons held in the county jail on account of their poverty, no other crime being charged against them. The presentment made to-day speaks in strong terms against the city's delinquency in this respect. The County receives a little reminder that the heating system of the Court House is antiquated. The report is as follows:

To His Honour Edward C. S. Huycke, Judge of the County Court of the County of Peterborough and of the general Sessions of the Peace for the said County—

May it please your Honour,—

We, the Grand Jury for the General Sessions of the Peace of the County of Peterborough, have pleasure in congratulating your Honour upon your appointment to the Bench. While we heartily agree with the remarks which you have made in reference to the late revered and honoured judge of the county, whose death, even at a ripe age, has been generally deplored by all who have known him, and whose administration of justice in this county was always marked by eminent judicial ability; nevertheless we feel assured that in your succession to his duties we shall find in you in no less degree the attributes which distinguished him.

In accordance with your instructions we have passed upon the different indictments which were brought before us, and we trust our duties in that respect have been performed to your satisfaction. We have also examined the county gaol and the different institutions receiving government aid, and have pleasure in being able to report that they are all conducted with due regard to economy and efficiency. We must say, however, that in our opinion the county should adopt a modern system of heating the Court House and offices connected with it—the appearance of stoves in different parts of the building have a decided antiquated appearance and not in keeping with so wealthy a county as this.

We canot but deplore the appearance in the gaol of different persons whose only crime, if such it may be called, is that of poverty. The county possesses a House of Refuge for its indigent poor, but the city has made no provision for such persons. This is a standing reproach to this wealthy community, and its representatives cannot be too strongly urged to take a step either in the direction of themselves providing for this class of persons or making some arrangement with the county for their being provided for at the county building.

We cannot conclude this presentment without referring in terms of affectionate regard to the late John Moloney, whose urbanity during his long term of office was unfailing. He was an official who had a just appreciation of the responsibilities of his office and was unceasing in fulfilling his duties to the best of his ability. We welcome as his successor, Mr. George J. Sherry, a gentleman who having practised at the bar for many years, is fully competent to perform all the duties of his office and who, we are assured will be a worthy incumbent of the office to which he has been appointed.

We have the honour to be your obedient servants for the Grand Jury.

J. J. BENNETT,
Foreman.

Judge Huycke made a brief reply, commending the Grand Jury upon the carefulness of their examinations. He also thanked them for the felicitions expressions in reference to himself.

Item Welcomed By Many Men

This recipe can be filled at home so that no one need know of another's troubles, as the ingredients can be obtained separately at any well-stocked drug store. They are in regular use and many different prescriptions are constantly being filled with them.

This will prove a welcome bit of information for all those who are overworked, gloomy, despondent, nervous, and have trembling limbs, heart palpitation, dizziness, cold extremities, insomnia, fear without cause, timidity in venturing, and general inability to act naturally and rationally as others do, because the treatment can be prepared secretly at home and taken without any one's knowledge.

Overworked office men and the many victims of society's late hours and dissipation will, it is said find the restorative they are in need of.

If the reader decides to try it, get three ounces of ordinary syrup sarsaparilla compound and one ounce compound fluid balmwort; mix and let stand two hours; then get one ounce compound essence cardiol and 1 ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom), mix all together, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring.

A certain well-known medical expert asserts that thousands of men and many women are sufferers all because of dormant circulation of the blood and a consequential impairment of the nervous force, which begets the most dreadful symptoms and untold misery.

The wedding was quietly solemnized at the George Street Methodist parsonage at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon of Arthur Whetung, son of Chief Joseph Whetung, of Chemong, and Miss Bella Howard, daughter of Madden Howard, of Hiawatha. Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

DRAIN—EDWARDS.

At 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the wedding took place at the George Street Methodist parsonage of David Henry Drain, of the Township of Douro, to Miss Christina May Edwards, of the same Township. The young couple were unattended. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson.

GRIFFIN—KENNEDY.

A very pleasant event took place last night at the home of Mrs. Edward Kennedy, Robinson St., East City, when her daughter, Rebecca, became the wife of Mr. Hector Cecil Griffin, of Cannington.

The bride was charmingly attired in a beautiful white lustre gown, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Mary Main of this city, acted as bridesmaid. The groom was supported by Mr. Arthur Juby, a brother of the bride.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. C. Riddiford, of the Park Street Baptist Church, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

After a short honeymoon to Cannington and other points Mr. and Mrs. Hector Griffin will reside at Robinson street.

Among those present were Rev. W. C. and Mrs. Riddiford, Mrs. Edward Kennedy, mother of the bride; Arthur and James Juby, brothers; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. THE LATEST NEWS OF SPORT — TOLD IN BRIEF FORM

ALFIE SHRUBB AND MEADOWS MAY HOOK UP IN 12 MILE GO

Toronto, Dec. 14.—If there is one man in Canada who has a chance to beat Alf. Shrubb at his own distance, that man is Fred Meadows, the ex-West End Y.M.C.A. galloper, better known now as the Rockwood flyer.

There are a whole lot of people who think, that he can beat Alfred of Sussex, and two of those optimistic individuals are Frederick Meadows himself and S. W. Lawrence, his manager.

Lawrence and Meadows have been hot foot on agile Alfred's trail for a year, and he has yet to meet the great Englishman, and so when the latter hurled forth his famous Winnipeg "winner take all at 10 or 12 miles" the Meadows-Lawrence combination jumped at it. But Alfred had left the Western Metropolis, and so Meadows hit the trail for Toronto with blood in his eye.

"I'll race you any place, any time, winner take all," says Meadows to Shrubb, but Shrubb could not see enough money in sight, so he refused.

"Then I'll run you right here in Toronto on the ice on a roller rink, at the Armouries, or I'll run yo uoutdoors," returned Meadows.

"I'll run you any place here where we can get the money,' said Shrubb, and now promoters are endeavouring to stage the event for Wednesday, Dec. 22.

Winner take all!

Meadows must be running like wild fire to take that chance against the great Englishman. Up west he beat all the men Shrubb beat by as wide a margin. At twelve miles it looks like a lively race.

Meadows will take on Longboat and Sherring on the same basis, too, and it is whispered, too, that he would consider a 10-mile relay race against the pair of them.

Shrubb says if he beats Meadows he will run an open 12 mile handicap, allowing Red Hawk, Charlie Petch, Simpson, Queal, of Alexandra, N. Y., Abbie Woods, of Montreal, Bill Cummings and anyone else handicaps up to fou rminutes. That would be a clinking good race if Alfred is at all liberal with his allowances. With Red Hawk say three minutes in front of him, he would have to step 12 miles around 1.02.30 to win, for the redskin can travel to town when he is right.

EDMONTON HOCKEY TEAM WILL NOT COME AFTER STANLEY CUP

It is now improbable that Edmonton wil send a hockey team to the East this year to play for the Stanley cup, the emblem of worlds championship hockey. This is the unwelcome news that has been handed out by the officials of the club to-day and which will be heard with a great deal of regret by the general public as well as those more closely identified with the hockey situation in Edmonton.

The facts of the case are that Edmonton is being discriminated against in favour of Ottawa in their challenge by the eastern trustees of the cup, who it is generally known it all hockey circles have been largely at the dictates of the Ottawa executive. The Edmonton management have been unable to get any definite statement from the cup trustees as to dates and it is evident that the matter is being delayed until the Edmonton management can no longer hold the Patrick brothers who are the backbone of the Edmonton defence. The Patricks can only play with Edmonton provided early dates can be secured and this it seems impossible to obtain from the cup trustees.

For weeks past Ottawa has been endeavouring strenuously to secure the services of Lester and Frank Patrick and while the former was in Edmonton he received an average of half a dozen telegrams a day from Ottawa urging him to name his own price for the season. Offers have been made to him of $2,400 for the winter and $1,000 for his brother. These figures Edmonton of course is unable to touch and unless early dates were secured an eastern trip would have to be abandoned.

The Edmonton executive have signed up Deeton, Whitcroft, Winchester, Miller, Bolton, Ross and the two Patricks, the conditions in the last two being an early trip east. In this connection it is a noteworthy fact that the Patricks have never before played for money. Last winter a cheque for an amount that was thought should be forthcoming was sent to Lester Patrick. Later he sent an itemised account of his expenses while on his eastern trip with a cheque for the difference.

Another instance of where the Stanley cup trustees favoured Ottawa is shown in their changing this year of the cup rules. At first it was announced that strict rules regarding Stanley Cup players would be enforced but later when it became apparent that Ottawa were to lose some of their best players these rules were modified and made much looser than at first announced.—Edmonton Bulletin.

THE PATRICK BROTHERS HAVE BEEN SIGNED BY RENFREW

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—Word was received from Renfrew this morning that both Lester and Frank Patrick would leave Edmonton, Alta., to-morrow to join the Renfrew hockey team at once. This will come as quite a startler, as Edmonton was supposed to have signed up both Patrick brothers to play with the cup team that is booked to come to Ottawa for the Stanley ware in three weeks' time. In fact it was given out officially that Lester had signed to manage the Edmonton team.

The acquisition of the Patrick brothers by the Renfrew club means the Creamery town is practically sure of winning the National Association Championship and will swoop down on Ottawa at the end of the season with the most formidable challenging team ever sent out after the Stanley Cup.

Renfrew's defence is therefore made up. Bert Lindsay will play in the flags, Lester Patrick in front of him and Frank Patrick at cover. This looks one of the niftiest defences playing hockey to-day. Both the Patricks are skaters and score merchants of the first water. In fact each started out as forwards when they acquired their great stick-handling abilities. Lester first came into prominence in 1906, the first year he played defence. He played cover to Billy Strachan's point in the final of that saw-off series between Ottawa and Wanderers at Dey's Gladstone avenue rink, when Ottawa overcame an eight goal lead, then had the chagrin to see Patrick skate the whole length of the rink and throw in the goal that broke the tie in Wanderers' favour.

Frank Patrick started with McGill but came into prominence when he played cover for Montreal Victorias in the E.C.H.L. Like his brother he is very fast, and a fine stick handler.

With its all-star team, Renfrew will create lots of interest in the hockey world this winter.

JIM CORBETT CROSSING THE ATLANTIC TO TRAIN JEFFRIES

London, Dec. 11.—James J. Corbett has sailed on the Mauretania, and upon arriving in America will at once acquaint himself with all the details and conditions of the Jeffries-Johnson match. Mr. Corbett has been selected to take personal charge of Jeffries' training for the month next preceding the fight.

In England this fact is looked upon as dissipating the last hope that the black man might have of defeating Jeffries. Corbett's reputation as a ring general is world-wide. He knows more of the technique of fighting than any man perhaps who has ever shown in the ring.

The information that Mr. Corbett would train Jeffries was afforded in the course of a few remarks Corbett made at a farewell banquet which was given to him last night. It had been announced that he was to sail to-day, and many of his friends got together a final celebration for him.

After returning thanks for the kind treatment that he had received over here, Mr. Corbett proposed a toast to the success of Jeffries in his coming contest with Johnson. Then, to the astonishment of every one present, he said that he had been retained to coach and groom Jeffries and, in short, take personal charge of his training for the month before the fight.

His statement that he would do everything in his power to help Jeffries win was received with prolonged cheering.

Mr. Corbett's vaudeville engagement in England and elsewhere in Great Britain has been one of the most successful of any American that has ever come across. He has not only made money by the bagful, but has made thousands of friends. A return tour has been arranged for him by the managers at a guarantee which almost resembles the winner's end of a purse.

CANADIAN RUGBY CAN BE GREATLY IMPROVED

Canadian Rugby football will never do for us; it's not brutal enough. A New York newspaper brought on two teams from Canada, the Hamilton Tigers and Ottawa Football Club, to play an exhibition match, which was held yesterday at Van Cortlandt Park. The Tigers won, 11 to 5.

There are several things it lacks from an American standpoint; but on the other hand there are a number of points which could be taken up with advantage and which would greatly improve our present day football.

In the first place there are no delays. If a man is hurt a substitute is immediately rushed in and the game goes on. There are no tedious waits while a player is being patched up. The forward pass is not known. A player at all times must be behind the ball, otherwise his team is penalized for offside. There is a total lack of that concentrated force against an opponent's weakest spot, which is seen on our college gridiron. This is accounted for by the rapid passing of the ball from one man to another, and which almost eliminates the mass plays.

Summed up in a few words, the difference between the two games is this: We play the man and the Canucks follow the ball.

Over 5,000 persons saw the game, among whom were many noted football players and coaches.

GEORGE STREET TEAM BEAT COLLEGIATE

The George St. Methodist church has without a doubt the best team in the City Basketball League.

They line- up with the Collegiate boys last night, the lightest team in the league, but by no means the slowest. When the referee's whistle sounded, the little fellows hung right on them, and got away from them, too, for H. Wallace scored the first goal of the game. Then the George St. team started, and slowly but surely they started to score the and first half ended 14-10 in favour of George St.

H. Lees was taken out and D. Pearson put in his place, but it was feared Pearson was too light.

The Collegiates again scored the first point in the second half, but Cressman was by this time getting his eye on the basket and he scored four baskets in the last half.

For the Collegiates they all played a good game, and they deserve credit as they are the lightest team in the league, and Laing was all over the floor. Wallace had his eye on the basket, and Matthews, this is his first year at basketball, and three years from now he will have them all beaten to death as a defnse man. The line-up:

Collegiate		George St.
Wallace	R.F.	Miller
Laing	L.F.	Cressman
Bartlett	C.	Downing
Matthews	R.G.	McCarroll
H. Lees	L.G.	Best

Officials—Referee McLaughlin, timer B. Lees, scorer Hall.

SPORT NOTES

The Toronto Canoe Club, of which Jakie Moore, last year cover point with Peterborough, is member, has been admitted to the senior series at a special meeting, after having been groupd in the Intermediate ranks, at the meeting on Monday night.

W. J. Metheral of the Executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club, left this morning for Trenton, to represent the local club at the meeting of No. 1 Intermediate group, representatives of the clubs in which are meeting to-day for the purpose of drawing up the schedule. The other clubs in the district are Belleville and Trenton. Rev. Mr. Armstrong of Trenton, is the convener of the district.

Mr. R. M. Glover, convener of this district in the junior O. H. A. series, comprising Peterborough Juniors, the Peterborough Collegiate, and Lindsay, has written Lindsay, asking for suggestions as to what day will suit them for holding the schedule meeting. It will likely be held to-morrow.

Len Dobson and Jack Seymour, of last year's Strathcona team, will be with Jack Oldham's West End team in the City League this season. The Strathconas will also be without the services of Herb Long, their great scoring centre player, this season. In fact, only two of the team which played the final game against Lakefield last year, will be with the red and white this year. At that Manager Metheral says the Commissioners will have the best team that has represented them in their four years of City League hockey. Charlie Ray will captain and play rover for the team, and the vacancies caused by the withdrawal of some of the players have been filled by good men.

The City League opening games are less than three weeks away, and yet none of the teams has had a practice yet. "Blame the Weatherman!"

The Peterborough Junior O. H. A. team will be shy some of the men that figured on it last year. Goal-keeper Giroux is over age; Wade, the point player, will be with the Collegiate Institute, if he plays at all, and Charlie Ray will be kept out of the game, owing to the age limitations. Short and Cyril Giroux of the West Ends, will be candidates on the forward line.

The Peterborough O. H. A. intermediate team has applied to the O. H. A. for a permit to use McDougall of the Keene City League team.

Leo. Quinn, captain of the Champion Lakefield City League seven, who played two games for Peterborough in the Intermediate O. H. A. series last year, is with the Oshawa intermediates this year.

Mr. W. J. Sleo, president of the Canadian Rugby Football Union, was in the city on business to-day.

"THE TIME, THE PLACE AND THE GIRL"

H. H. Frazee in presenting "The Time, The Place and The Girl," which will be produced at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday, Dec. 21, offers us a musical comedy production that is a distinct departure from all others that have been presented in this city.

"The Time, The Place and The Girl" was taken from an actual occurrence, the scenes being reproduced from photographs around which the story was written. "Johnny Hicks," a slangy, goodnatured and honourable young gambler, is away from the old stereotyped stage character, very original and refined, and above all, highly pleasing. Molly Kelly, the trained nurse, Piedro, the organ grinder, Willie, the spoiled child, and the Coal Heaver hold up the comedy end of the play. The chorus comes from the La Salle School, long noted for its "Broilers" and having a reputation of being the greatest training school for chorus girls in America. The cast in its entirety has been carefully selected. The equipment is complete in every detail, the stage being stripped of everything before the arrival of the company to make room for the massive scenery.

One of the most beautiful pictures ever witnessed is that used in the second act. Forty ladies so arranged and grouped as to reproduce a large flag covering the entire stage. The song hit is "Thursday is my Jonah Day," and since the days of "After the Ball," nothing has ever equalled this song.

KICKED BY HORSE

Norwood Boy Received Blow Over Left Eye and Had to be Carried to House.

On Wednesday of last week John Puffer, the 13-year-old son of Mr. Isaac Puffer, of this place, met with a painful accident. He was leading one of the horses from the watering trough in the Stockyard back to the stable, and as he reached the door, stepped aside and gave the animal a slap as it was going into the stall, when it kicked at him, striking him in the head, just over the left eye, knocking him down and cutting a gash with its hoof which required four or five stitches to close up. He jumped up and started for the house, but fainted before he got out of the yard, and was picked up and carried to the house where Dr. Sutton attended to his injuries.—Norwood Register.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR THEIR CONCERT

The past presidents of St. Peter's T.A.S. have made all arrangements for the concert on January 10th in the Opera House. The tickets are now ready for distribution and may be received at the Society's rooms tonight, Saturday night or on Sunday afternoon. A number of the members of the committee will be present to look after the distribution. The tickets allow for the member's wife or lady friend as the case may be and the members are reminded of this manner of securing the tickets and are asked to call for them early.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

Have you a double personality?

If you haven't I don't think you're quite average.

For I find that the average person had a dual personality—one for the morning and one for the evening.

Mind you, I don't mean to say that people are any better or any worse in the morning or the evening.

According to the philosophers we are all made up of three qualities—intellect and will and emotion.

Just different.

Now, will and intellect are keen eyed things that are apt to see best in the strong sunlight, but emotion is a night owl sort of affair that sees much better by lamplight and best of all by firelight or moonlight.

In other words, most of us are a great deal more creatures of emotion at night than in the daytime.

Take your own case, for instance.

Haven't you ever, as you stood in the strong morning light in front of your mirror—combing your hair if you are of the feminine gender, or adjusting your necktie if you are of the other—haven't you ever looked at the person before you in the mirror and wondered — just wondered—if that could be the same person who felt all those tender emotions and dreamed all those fine dreams last night?

I know a girl who believes in this dual personality so strongly that she makes a point of posting her letters so that her fiance will get them at the same time of day that she writes them.

"If I write him a letter in the evening," she says, "I never post it that night, because if I did he would get it in the next morning just as he was starting for work and he wouldn't be at all in the same mood as I was when I wrote it.

"I always keep it and post it next morning so that he will get it in the evening. And I always do the same about letters I write in the morning—that is, post them at night so that he will get them at the same time of day as I write them."

"'Yes,' I answered you last night,
'No,' this morning, sir, I say,
Colours seen by candlelight
Do not look the same by day," said a wise maiden once upon a time.

A good many maidens aren't so wise as she, and instead of substituting a "No" for a "Yes," as this one did, drift into unhappy marriages.

If only a law could be made and enforced that no one should ever become engaged after six o'clock at night I think we would have about half the divorces that we do.

And on the other hand, if business dealings made in the morning had to be reratified in the evening when the will is a bit less strong and emotion more predominant, perhaps we might have a little less graft.

On the whole, I think that anyone who made it a rule never to make irrevocable any decision by lamplight, moonlight, firelight or any other night light until it has stood the test of sunlight, or any decision made in the morning until it had been thought over in the evening, he would have few unwise decisions to regret.

THEY SOLD KISSES

Special to The Examiner.

Buffalo, Dec. 17—Two hundred dollars worth of kisses real lip-to-lip kisses, not the candy kind—were disposed of by the forty chorus girls of The Newlyweds and Their Baby, when they played Buffalo. The kisses—real lip-to-lip kisses, as has been stated, —were purveyed by the aforesaid number of heroic and charming young women to all comers, and the money was used to buy the manager of the Company, George Goett, a Christmas present in the shape of a diamond ring.

The fair creatures all went in training for the event and did just as they predicted—that is, they performed a kissing Marathon.

Prices for the kisses ranged from twenty-five cents for snipy-snips, to two and a half dollars for the kisses furious. It is only right to mention that of the latter, only one or two were sold during the evening.

Only one kiss was barred. This was the kiss lingering. It took up too much time. Kissers were expected to step u, grab their kisses and break say. And so they did. Each applicant was allowed all the kisses he could pay for, but he was not allowed to kiss the same chorus lady twice in succession. As an event it was successful in both kissing and financial ways.

LINCOLN TRIED IT.

And That Ended the Naval Sweatbox Punishment.

On one of Mr. Lincoln's excursions to Fortress Monroe on the steamer Hartford in 1863 his attention was directed to a narrow door bound with iron, the use of which he was anxious to learn.

"What is this?" he asked.

"Oh, that is the sweatbox," was the reply. "It is used for refractory and insubordinate seamen. A man in there is subjected to steam heat and has very little ventilation. It generally brings him to terms very quickly."

President Lincoln's curiosity was aroused. "This," he said to himself, "is treatment to which thousands of American seamen are probably subjected every year. Let me try it for myself and see what it really is."

Taking off his hat, for he was several inches over six feet in height, he entered the inclosure, which he found to be little more than three feet in length or width. He gave orders that at a signal from himself the door should be immediately opened. It was then closed and the steam turned on.

He had been inside hardly three minutes before the signal was given. President Lincoln had experienced enough of what was then regarded as necessary punishment for American seamen. There was very little ventilation, and the short exposure to the hot and humid air had almost suffocated him.

Turning to Secretary Welles of the navy department, the president ordered that no such inclosure as the sweatbox should ever after be allowed on any vessel flying the American flag.

It was not an hour after this order had been given before every sailor on every ship in Hampton Roads had heard of it. The effect was most remarkable on the older sailors, many of whom had themselves experienced the punishment of the sweatbox. Some of them wept from joy.

But the good results of this act of President Lincoln were not confined to the American navy. Great Britain, France, Germany and other European countries heard that the sweatbox had been abolished in America as inhuman. One and all of these nations in turn fell into line, and today the sweatbox is not to be found on any vessel flying the flag o fa civilized nation throughout the world.

RAN THE BLOCKADE.

Putting Through a Risky Piece of Business at Santiago.

Some naval officers at a dinner party the other evening were discussing the efficacy of the Cuban blockade in 1898. That many vessels ran the blockade at Havana, Cienfuegos and elsewhere was admitted.

"But only one vessel ever ran the Santiago blockade," said one of the speakers, "and that was one of our own vessels, the little Gloucester."

He then described how the Gloucester ran the blockade, while commanded by Dick Wainwright, then a lieutenant commander, who had previously been executive officer of the Maine when it blew up.

"We had been sent down to Asserderon to communicate with the insurgents," said the raconteur, who was on the Gloucester at the time. "Upon our return it was quite dark, and we were proceeding slowly to our station on the inside line of the blockade when the electric signaling apparatus broke down. We could not give a signal, particularly the private identification signal of the night. End we been discovered by one of the blockading vessels it would at once have flashed the signal, and if we did not immediately respond it would have promptly opened fire. We would have been blown to pieces in a minute.

"It was a risky piece of business, but Dick Wainwright was perfectly cool, and the Gloucester actually picked its way without being discovered through the whole blockading fleet, took up its station on the inside line, under the Morro, and as soon as the signaling apparatus was repaired reported its arrival. It was a clear case of blockade running, but it was mighty ticklish while it lasted."

Two of a Kind.

Youth is like a taxicab,
Foe to melancholy,
Very smooth and very fast,
Tempting us halfway to meet
All the moment's folly.

Tempting us away to whirl,
Deaf to groans of reason,
Overstretches long, indeed,
But so gay with life and speed
That to think is treason.

Aye, youth's like a taxicab,
Only somewhat faster,
Swiftly is its joy ride past,
Leaving us to stare aghast
At—the taximeter!

No More Distress From The Stomach

No Dyspepsia, Gas, Heartburn or Indigestion Five Minutes Later.

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fulness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odour.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure almost any chronic case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.

An Intelligent Cow.

A few nights ago a citizen went home and found a cow in his yard. He drove her out. He then went into the house and later heard the animal in the yard again. He drove her out the second and third times. The citizen's son came home later and found the animal in the yard and drove her out. The citizen then made an investigation and found the cow got in by wading around the fence on the river side. He hung up a lantern to deceive the cow as she came in, and the next morning, so he says, he found the cow in the yard with the lantern hung on her horns, using the same to hunt out the best grapefruit in his grove. Say what you please, but that was an intelligent cow. And the story is true—of course it is.

Swell Stock.

"Could I sell you an imported Persian cat for $1,000?" ventured the cat and dog fancier.

"What!" exclaimed the multimillionaire in surprise. "Why, I just bought a $5,000 bulldog from you the other day."

"Yes, but I thought you'd want a $1,000 cat for that swell bulldog to chase. You surely wouldn't allow a $5,000 bulldog to chase a common cat, would you?"

An Important Advantage.

"Do you think a college education affords a man an important advantage?"

"Oh, yes! One has to have it in order to get into a university club."—Chicago Record-Herald.

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

The Edge of Night.

There are only twenty-four hours to the day—to the day and the night. And how few are left to that quiet time between the light and the dark! Ours is a hurried twilight. We quit work to sleep; we wake up to work again. We measure the day by the clock; we measure the night by an alarm clock. Life is all ticked off. We are murdered by the second. What we need is a day and a night with wider margins, a dawn that comes more slowly and a longer lingering twilight. Life has too little selvage; it is too often raw and raveled. Room and quiet and verge are what we want, not more dials for time nor more figures for the dials. We have things enough, too—more than enough. It is space for the things, perspective and the right measure for the things that we lack—a measure not one foot short of the distance between us and the stars.

If we get anything out of the fields worth while it will be this measure, this largeness and quiet. It may be only an owl or a tree toad that we go forth to see, but how much more we find in things we cannot hear by day—things long, long forgotten, things we never thought or dreamed before.

The day is none too short, the night none too long, but all too narrow is the edge between.—Dallas Lore Sharp in Atlantic.

The Real Napoleon.

At a review of the national guard at the Tuileries shortly before Waterloo I had for some time a most complete opportunity of contemplating this extraordinary being. His face is of a deadly pale, his jaws overhanging, but not so much as I had heard. His hair is short, of a dark, dusky brown. He generally stood with his hands knit behind him or folded before him and three or four times took snuff out of a plain brown box. Once he looked at his watch, which, by the way, had a gold face and, I think, a brown hair chain, like an English one. His teeth seemed regular, but not clean. He very seldom spoke, but when he did smiled in some sort agreeably. He looked about him—not knitting, but joining, his eyebrows. As the front of each regiment passed he put up the first finger of his left hand quickly to his hat to salute, but did not move his head or hat. He had an air of sedate impatience.—From "Recollections of a Long Life," by Lord Broughton.

Clearly Understood.

They seldom gave dinner parties, and those they gave were small. But they liked things done decently and in order and generally had the best. On the afternoon of one of the little parties the host summoned the boy in buttons and said to him, "Now, John, you must be careful how you hand round the wine."

"Yes, sir."

"These bottles with the black seals are the best and these with the red seals the inferior sherry. The best sherry is for after dinner. The inferior sherry you will hand around with the hock after soup. You understand—hock and inferior sherry after soup?"

"Yes, sir; perfectly," responded the boy in buttons.

The evening came and with it the guests. Everything went on swimmingly till the boy went round the table asking each of the guests, "Hock or inferior sherry?"—London Tit-Bits.

When the Fairies Are Noisy.

Among the flowers which are said to be very popular with fairies are bluebells, harebells and wood sorrel. All these flowers are used by the fairies to attract the attention of their friends, who are at a little distance. If you are ever out in the woods when the bluebell or wood sorrel begins to peal in delicate, soft tones you will know that the little flower is being swayed to and fro by some visiting fairy. The foxglove, known also as the fairy bells, are also said to be used by the fairies for chimes, but when the little people wish to sound a real resounding blast that shall awaken from slumber some tiny friend in a nearby flower bed or thicket they use not a bell, but a rose leaf rolled up into a very charming horn.—Lexington Leader.

The Beggars of Madeira.

There is only one fly in the ointment of Madeira comfort—the beggars. They begin to beg before they can walk, and they call "Penny, penny!" before they can lisp the sacred name of "mamma." However, one good thing has come of our experience with them. They have prepared us for beggars elsewhere. We are hardened now—at least we think we are. The savor of pity has gone out of us.—Albert Bigelow Paine in Outing Magazine.

Newspaper Personalities.

People are sometimes inclined to think that there is too much abuse exchanged between newspapers, and that personalities are rife. They little know of the change which has come over the Canadian press of late years. In the good old days, when George Brown was the leading light of Canadian journalism, the fur flew in reality. Then a paper was not considered a good paper unless it occasionally took "a whirl" out of a few individuals in merciless fashion.

The early issues of The Toronto World—which was started by three young men from The Globe staff—would also prow illuminating. George Brown's roast on the oratorical style of the late William Lount, when that well-known man was a youthful member of the Ontario Legislature, possessed a cruelty that no newspaper today would be guilty of. A specimen of the old-time amenities was the retort of the well-known writer, James Fahey, who had accepted a nomination to the Legislature. Fahey had lung trouble, and The Telegram said that if the gentleman got elected to the House he would be "coughed down." Fahey promptly replied that if the editor of The Telegram ever got elected anywhere, he would be coughed up and swept out.

RAILWAY CONDUCTORS.

The Many and Varied Duties They Have to Perform.

As a conductor he will probably begin in the freight service. His caboose will be a traveling office, and, more than that, it will carry all the gossip of the division up and down the line. It may be a homely little car, but it is just as sure to be a homelike place. From its elevated outlook he may command a good view of the train away ahead to the engine, and he will be supposed to know all the while that the brakemen are attending to their duties, that the train is in good order, particularly that there are no hot boxes smoking away and in imminent danger of setting fire to the train and the valuable contents. There is a deal of bookkeeping to be accomplished in that traveling office. The conductor will receive the waybills of the cars of his train and their contents, and he is held responsible for their safe deliveries to their destination or the junction points where they are to be delivered to other lines.

When he comes to the passenger service there will be still more bookkeeping to confront him, and he will have to be a man of good mental attainments to handle all the many, many varieties of local and through tickets, mileage books, passes and other forms of transportation contracts that come to him, to detect the good from the bad, to throw out the counterfeits that are constantly being offered to him. He will have to carry quite a money account for cash affairs, and he knows the mistakes will have to be paid for out of his own pocket.

All that is only a phase of his business. He is responsible for the care and safe conduct of his train, equally responsible in the last respect with the engineer. He also receives and signs for the train orders, and he is required to keep in mind every detail of the train's progress over the line. He will have his own assortment of questions to answer at every stage of the journey, and he will be expected to maintain the discipline of the railroad upon its trains. That may mean in the one instance the ejectment of a passenger who refuses to pay his fare—and still he must not involve the road in any big damage suit—or in another the subjugation of some gang of drunken loafers. The real wonder of it is that so many conductors come as near as they do to the Chesterfieldian standards.—Edward Hungerford in Outing Magazine.

An old woman hobbled up to the conductor of the train and said excitedly: "Vondt you to pleece boldt on yet, Meester Gondneckior, vile my two grandtkinder comes by the drain? I runs off midoult dem undt dey is coming so vast dey can, yes."

The conductor looked impatiently at his watch, then at the woman's pathetic face. Then he consented to wait a little, as the train was on time.

Five minutes later two blue eyed, chubby cheeked children came on the run, rushed up to their grandmother, kissed her, helped her on the train with her birdcage and basket and then hurried away.

Selling Baked Potatoes.

The baked potato merchant is a comparatively modern institution in the London streets, the first potato can having made its appearance, according to Henry Mayhew, about the year 1846. Fifteen years later, when Mayhew published his "London Labor and the London Poor," he estimated that there were 200 hot potato venders in London, each selling on an average 300 halfpenny potatoes a day. "In cold weather," adds Mayhew, "the potatoes frequently are bought to warm the hands. Indeed, an eminent divine classed them in a public speech among the best of modern improvements as forming an excellent medium for diffusing warmth into the system by being held in the gloved hand.—London Chronicle.

THE TRUTH ALWAYS

"When you are in doubt tell the truth." It was an experienced old diplomat who said this to a beginner in the work. It may pass in some things, but not in business. Fraud and deception are often profitable so long as concealed; yet detection is certain sooner or later; then comes the smash-up and the punishment. The best and safest way is to tell the truth all the time. Thus you make friends that stick by you, and a reputation that is always worth twenty shillings to the pound everywhere your goods are offered for sale. We are able modestly to affirm, that it is on this basis that the world wide popularity of rests. The people have discovered that this medicine is exactly what it is said to be, and that it does what we have always declared it will do. Its nature also has been fragrantly made known. It is palatable as honey, and contains all the creative properties of pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh Cod Livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. A combination of supreme excellence and medicinal merit. Nothing has been so successful in Anemia, Scrofula, Bronchitis, Influenza, Loss of Flesh, Wasting Diseases, Weakness and Low Nervous Tone, and complaints caused by Impure Blood. Dr. F———— of Canada, says: "I have used it in cases where cod liver oil was indicated, but could not be taken by the patient, and the results following were very gratifying." It is effective from the first dose and agrees with the most sensitive and nervous stomachs. It cannot deceive or disappoint you, and comes to the rescue of those who have received no benefit from any other treatment. "Do not accept a substitute." Sold by all chemists everywhere throughout the world.

Saltpeter in Glue.

The addition of a teaspoonful of saltpeter to a pot of glue will not only act as a deodorizer, but will aid the glue to dry more rapidly and to become harder.

Handy With the Sword.

Mlle. Mousin (in the time of Louis XV.), a beautiful woman and charming vocalist, was so nimble with either sword or pistol that Parisian gallants "fought shy" of her. Three did accept challenges, and she "pinked" each of them fatally. She afterward killed her fencing master.

Whirlpools.

Whirlpools are really circular currents of water produced by winds or other currents. They are very seldom found on a large scale. The two celebrated whirlpools of the world are the Maelstrom and Charybdis.

A Queer Fish.

The maltha, a Brazilian fish, can crawl, walk or hop, but cannot glide through the water like its finny brethren. In shape it is something like a toad and possesses a long snout. But it is also furnished with fins, though these are not adapted for acting on the water.

Granite.

Granite is a fire formed rock which has been subjected to intense heat and enormous pressure deep down beneath the surface of the earth.

Artificial Ivory.

An artificial ivory of creamy whiteness and great hardness is made from good potatoes washed in diluted sulphuric acid and then boiled in the same solution until they become solid and dense. They are then washed free of the acid and slowly dried. The ivory can be dyed and turned and used in many ways.

The Ambidextrous Japanese.

Japanese children are taught at an early age to write and draw with both hands, and to this fact has been ascribed the superiority of Japanese art in certain directions.

His Generosity.

"Yes," said the tired looking woman, "I have a very generous husband, and this is the way he gets that reputation. The other day I worked and slaved in the kitchen for about ten hours making jelly. It was my first attempt, so I had considerable trouble and burned my fingers about seventeen different times. It turned out pretty good, however, and of course I was proud and delighted. That night I put some on the table for dinner, and husband got enthusiastic.

"Next day he was visiting a sick friend of his, a man, by the way, quite able to buy anything he might want and whose wife never lifts her finger. On leaving Mr. Generous Husband says: 'My wife made some pretty good jelly the other day. You might like some. I'll send you up half a dozen jars.'

"Now, wouldn't that frost you or rasp you or whatever they say. Half a dozen jars! After all my work to hand that jelly over to a man whose wife is too lazy to breathe! I made exactly eight jars, so we will have one more unless he has already promised it to somebody else."—New York Press.

Sunshine and Dust.

There is more dust in the places illuminated by the sun's rays than in those which we call shady. If you look along a beam of light as it streams through a window or a chink in the door you will see innumerable dust particles dancing about in the light. You will be told by most persons that there is just as much dust in the non-illuminated parts of the room as in the more favored spaces, but you cannot see the particles because the rays do not fall directly upon them. You will think that this is eminently plausible, but it is not the case. The sun falling upon the air creates irregular currents, and these currents stir up the dust and collect it in layers along the line of light; hence there is more dust where the sun shines than elsewhere. A curious experience in a museum gave proof of this. It was noticed that there was always more dust on the glass cases exposed to the sunbeams than on those which were never touched by the rays of the great orb, and this led to an inquiry, with the above result.

Traced by a Thermometer.

One night many years ago Dr. Whitelaw was walking along with the messenger when he was set upon and knocked down in a lonely part of the road. His pockets were rifled, and he was left lying on the road with a fracture of the fibula. One of the articles stolen was a clinical thermometer with which he had that evening taken the temperature of a patient suffering from enteric fever. He remembered the temperature registered, also that he had not shaken down the mercury before putting the thermometer back in his pocket, and he communicated these facts to the police. Some time afterward a thermometer registering the identical temperature was discovered in a pawnshop in Glasgow, and by this means the police were enabled to track the doctor's assailants and to arrest them in one of the Glasgow theaters.—Glasgow Medical Journal.

Shell Sculptors.

The workman manipulated the comb of pale, translucent tortoise shell like putty, molding the top with his fingers into small balls.

"You thought we carved shell, hey?" he said, with an Italian accent. "No, no. We heat it up and mold it. We are shell sculptors."

He took three pieces of shell from a pot of steaming water and laid them very carefully, one on top of the other, in a press.

"Shell is like glue," he said. "These three pieces will weld together, and not a sign of a seam will show. Sometimes we weld nine, four, twenty pieces together. I learned my trade in Naples. I don't want to boast, but we Neapolitans are the best workers in shell and coral that there are in the world."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Her Transformation.

Irene was a little street waif. A kind hearted woman called her into her home one day, gave her a bath, brushed her hair and arranged it becomingly, tying it with a clean pretty ribbon, then stepped back to view the result. A friend who was present remarked that there was such a change one would scarcely know that it was the same child. Then the little girl spoke up timidly, "But my name's Irene yet, ain't it?"—Delineator.

Mr. O'Donnell and the Hour.

An excellent bull was perpetrated in the house of commons one morning at half past 1 o'clock. Mr. O'Donnell was the author. He rose suddenly to his feet and cut into the debate with, "At this late hour of the morning, Mr. Speaker"—

"Early hour you mean," from the government benches.

"Well, Mr. Speaker," he continued, "at this early hour of the following day."

True Enough.

Irritated Citizen—Aren't you ashamed of yourself, going about with that street organ and leading such a lazy life? Street Organist—Lazy life? Why, sir, life with me is one long daily grind.—Echo.

CANADIAN ON THE NILE

CHARLES LEWIS SHAW WENT WITH THE BOATMEN.

Winnipeg Newspaperman Tells Interesting Tales of the Expedition Up the Great Egyptian River on the Gordon Relief Dash—How Capt. Bill Robinson of Winnipeg Was Identified by the Boys Afar Off.

Charles Lewis Shaw, editorial writer on The Winnipeg Telegram, is a journalist who possesses a copious store of anecdotes and reminiscences. He has had a varied and adventurous career—and a long one, too, for Mr. Shaw is not as young as he looks. He can tell stories of east and west and south, and he never tires of relating incidents of expedition up the Nile to relieve General Gordon. Mr. Shaw went with the contingent of Canadian river-men sent to pilot the expedition. Navigating the Nile is a delicate operation, but the Canadians were used to running all kinds of twisty streams, and they performed their work to the Queen's taste, as the old saying was. As William Wye Smith puts it in his excellent poem, "The Canadians on the Nile," they felt that

"O, the East is but the West, with the sun a little hotter;
And the pine becomes the palm by the dark Egyptian water;
And the Nile's like many a stream we know that fills its brimming cup;
We'll think it is the Ottawa as we track the batteaux up!"

It was within two months of twenty-one years ago, but Capt. William Robinson, "Captain Bill," as we of the olden time in Winnipeg knew him, will forgive the yarn.

It is not a yarn, merely an incident of the Gordon Relief Expedition up the Nile in 1884-85, hardly worth recalling, if it were not to show how an unobtrusive Winnipegger became a man of note for a brief quarter of an hour along the historic banks of the river that from the days of Moses, Anthony and Cleopatra has provided more stories than any other watercourse in the world.

It was in the latter end of October or the early part of November—it was a calendarless time for us voyageurs of the Gordon Relief Expedition, and one cannot be sure within a week or two—and the advance boats of the expedition were fighting their way wearily through the worst rapids of the turbulent Nile above Wady Halfa, then the border city of Egypt on the river before entering the weary waste of deserts of the Soudan.

It was trying, heart-breaking work on the river from daylight until dark, and the first symptoms of homesickness were taking possession of those of us who had hitherto only known the exigencies of life in a sheltered home in far-off Canada.

One evening just before the quick sundown of the Soudan—there is no gloaming or twilight in the mystical Orient—the boats of the expedition were drawn up at intervals that the rapid strewn river would permit. There was the intense quiet of the coming Egyptian night undisturbed by the exhausted men of the expedition of toil and the only sound was that of the storied river that a few days before had swept the walls of Khartoum, where the Great Christian Knight of the nineteenth century was battling, a prisoner, against the myriad hordes of Arab Africa. The silence was suddenly broken by the sound of a steamboat's whistle, and soon we could hear above the subdued roar of the river the beating of the screw of a small steam launch.

A number of Canadians had collected from the various boats—with the clannishness of our kind — and we stood and watched with curious and professional interest the masterly manner in which the approaching boat took advantage of every eddy and back-water of the swiftly flowing river.

"The man that's at that wheel," said Jim McBurney, a veteran Minnesota man, eyeing the workmanlike manner the launch was handled, "knows his business."

He did. Years at the helm of many a steamboat on the Red River of the north had taught that steersman much.

"I wonder who it can be?" said Col. Kennedy, strolling up to the group of Manitoba voyageurs, nearly all of whom he had known in civil life on the border of the Red River.

"Some big gun, I would think, sir," said Larry Clark, now the clerk of the High Court at Calgary.

"Big gun or not," said Jack Doyle, the best steersman that ever put hand to tiller on the Nile. "The man that's pushing that wheel knows fast water when he sees it."

"I should say he does. I should say he does," half screamed Charlie Blanchard in his excitement. "By heavens, colonel! It's Captain Bill Robinson of Winnipeg!"

"It cannot be! it cannot be!" said the usual self-possessed colonel, in a voice trembling with excitement, for Col. Kennedy's heart was never very far away from the Red River. "My field glass. I thank you. Yes, yes. It is."

"Give him a cheer, boys," said Bill Gallliher.

We did. From camp to camp and boat to boat the cheer was taken up by soldiers joining in with the Britisher's love of a rousing cheer, until men, miles up the river took up the cheer and the garrison at forty miles away stood on their arms expecting the arrival of either Lord Wolseley or General Buller.

"Say, Canadian," asked a Cockney soldier as the cheering died away. "Who was that big bug that just passed up?"

"Who!" exclaimed the Canadian. "You don't know who that is. Why, that's Captain Bill Robinson of Winnipeg, Manitoba. He can steer a stern-wheeler up the side of a mountain in the dew."

Tales of Cities.

About 90 per cent of the fire alarms of Chicago are transmitted by telephone.

Hundreds of the houses of Minneapolis and St. Paul are equipped with outdoor open bedrooms, where the owners sleep in the coldest weather.

The largest tobacco manufacturing center in the world is St. Louis. Its annual sales aggregate $45,000,000, which is equal to 18 per cent of the total tobacco output of the United States.

Under what is now the cornerstone of the Bank of New York in Wall street, New York city, is the foundation of the bastion in the wall of the stockade that marked the northern boundary of the city in its infancy.

Recent Inventions.

A machine has been invented to grap with wire a telephone or telegraph pole to save it from gnawing horses.

A tack hammer the head of which feids into a recess in the stick for convenience in carrying has been patented by a Pennsylvanian.

A Swede has constructed an aerial torpedo which is claimed to be capable of destroying a fortification or the biggest battleship afloat. It weighs twenty-two pounds.

Zulu Music.

In most cases Zulu instrumental music is extremely monotonous and with very little value in melody or rhythm. Except in the case of a drum, the volume of sound produced is very small, and the performer himself is the only person who derives any enjoyment from the music.

A Cheese Rich.

In Valois, Switzerland, a man's riches are estimated according to the number of cheeses he owns, and the expression "a cheese rich" man is meant to denote a man as rich as Croesus.

Capital Punishment.

Capital punishment prevails in all of the states and territories of the Union except Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Kansas and Maine. It was abolished in Iowa in 1872 and restored in 1878. It was also abolished in Colorado, but was restored in 1901. In New York and Ohio execution is by electricity.

The Smallest Dog.

The smallest dog is probably the Chihuahua of Mexico. It can snuggle in the palm of the hand or may be concealed in a bunch of flowers.

HOW TO DEVELOP BUST, ARMS AND NECK

Get separately "two ounces glycerine," "three ounces rose water," and "one ounce tincture cadomene compound" (not cardamom), and five cents worth of borax. Take home, mix the glycerine with tincture cadomene, shake and let stand two hours; then add a teaspoonful of borax and the rose water. Shake well and apply to the neck, arms and bust, rubbing and massaging until completely absorbed; then wash thoroughly with hot water and soap and dry thoroughly. Apply morning and night regularly for several weeks and the most beautiful development will begin to reward the efforts. It is believed by experts to be the most necessary and effective prescription ever conceived.

A Prize Watchdog.

The Bears of Kadiak.

The biggest bears in the world are to be found on Kadiak island, in the gulf of Alaska, south of the great shoulder of territory that stretches out into the Pacific. The Kadiak bears are of the polar breed, perfectly white, with long, heavy fur, and at full growth are twice as large as the ordinary black bear.

Galvanized Iron.

Galvanized iron is not galvanized at all, but is coated with zinc by being plunged into a bath of that metal and muriatic acid.

Moth and Flame.

Moths fly against the candle flame because their eyes can bear only a small amount of light. When, therefore, they come within the light of a candle their sight is overpowered and their vision confused, and as they cannot distinguish objects they pursue the light itself and fly against the flame.

The Legion of Honor.

The Legion of Honor was founded by Napoleon in 1802 while first consul as a reward for military and civil services.

The Equity System.

Equity is a name used to denote those principles of justice that are not covered by any statute or rule of common law and require to be dealt with separately. Equity is a system of jurisprudence, supplementary to law, properly so called, and grew up from the inadequacy of common law forms to secure justice in all cases.

Mr. Pickwick's Nightgown.

A writer in the Cornhill Magazine gives it as his opinion that Mr. Pickwick and his friends had no nightshirts or nightgowns because Dickens does not mention such garments when he describes nightcaps.

Pasquinades.

Pasquinades is a term frequently applied to anonymous publications of a satiric or libelous nature, sometimes written and sometimes printed. They derive their name from one Pasquino, a witty tailor, who dwelt at Rome at the close of the fifteenth century and delighted his patrons with his sarcastic humor.

HOLIDAY ADVERTISING

THE HOLIDAYS are the harvest time for the Merchants, and they bend their energies towards inducing the largest possible volume of trade at this season of the year.

In most cases, enterprising merchants who are Regular Newspaper Advertisers increase their space before Christmas, and non-regular advertisers get into the papers about that time and drop out entirely after the Holidays.

Business Hypnotism.

You Have Heard It Said :

"I Don't Need To Advertise"

"I don't need advertising. My business was never better". This is the merchant we would like to convince of the weakness of the position he is assuming.

The advertising solicitor has seen many a man go under who for years had been hypnotised with this idea. Business was good and continued good with these men until such time as a more enterprising rival sprang like a bolt from the blue, and through a wise use of Printers' Ink and other up-to-date methods, had, in a few years, succeeded in focussing the attention of the Public on the Newcomer's Goods, to the dismay and ruin of the old firm.

JOHN WANAMAKER

Once said to a young business man who sought his service :—

"I owe my success to Newspaper Advertising. I know that, because I can reach a larger number of best buyers that way". : : : : : : : : : : : : :

"But It Costs Too Much"

says another merchant. That depends upon how you use it and where you place your advertising. Let us see :—THE DAILY EXAMINER prints this week an average of over 3000 copies every day. It's fair to assume that in the 3000 homes in this City and District into which THE DAILY EXAMINER is received, an average of at least three readers in each home read it.

THE WEEKLY EXAMINER has an average Weekly Circulation of 2650 copies. It's fair to assume that in the 2650 homes into which the WEEKLY EXAMINER is received, an average of at least three readers in each home read it.

The Total Approximated Number of Readers of the Daily and Weekly Examiner Each Week is 16,950

The Total Cost for Twelve Months of each one inch of Advertising in The Daily and Weekly Examiner per 1000 Readers is 15c.

The Daily Examiner covers the city from one end to the other and,—The Weekly Examiner covers Seventy-Five different Post Offices in the County. Judged by this test, The Examiner is in a class by itself as far as the City and County of Peterborough are concerned.

Everyone Thought She Was Going Into Consumption.

Gained Ten Pounds in Two Weeks by the Use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mrs. Fred. Biggs, Kingston, Ont., writes:—"I was completely run down, my blood was out of order, and I used to get so weak I would be compelled to stay in bed for weeks at a time. I could not eat, was pale and thin; every one thought I was going into consumption. I tried everything and different doctors until a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have one bottle used when my appetite began to improve. I used six bottles. I gained ten pounds in two weeks. When I began to take it I only weighed ninety-three pounds. It just seemed to pull me from the grave as I never expected to be strong again. I will tell every sufferer of your wonderful medicine."

The blood reaches every portion of the body to distribute nutriment and remove effete matter and waste products. Clearly then, any influence, good or bad, affecting the blood, must necessarily affect the entire system for good or evil as the case may be.

Get pure blood and keep it pure by removing every trace of impure morbid matter from the system by using Burdock Blood Bitters. It exerts a curative influence unapproached by any other remedy.

THE WOOLLY HORSE.

Toronto Reporter Who Was a Celebrity In His Day.

The playgoer of thirty years ago who took an interest in theatrical criticism recalls the writings of a newspaper man known as the "Woolly Horse," who was known in his own family circle as W. W. Williams, and was for a time on the staff of The Toronto Globe. He derived his sobriquet not from his personal appearance, for he was small and sandy, but from the fact that in winter time he wore a very shaggy overcoat. Moreover, he was always attended by a large bull-dog, and as Toronto was a good deal smaller then than it is now, he attracted much attention on King street. He wrote in a picturesque style, and his judgments were ex cathedra—the final word, so to speak, on a performance. His advent in the lobby filled the management with awe, and when he extended his august approval, it was in no unmeasured terms of praise.

First productions on any stage were not so frequent in Toronto then as they are now, but during his reign there was one event of great importance. Mrs. Scott Siddons, who had won fame and riches as a dramatic reader, decided to become an actress, and chose that place as the city in which she should make her first appearance in that capacity. It was in a Shakespearian role, Beatrice, in "Much Ado About Nothing," it is said; and the "Woolly Horse" prepared to sling himself.

The rival morning paper, The Mail, did not at that time have a regularly constituted dramatic editor, but on its staff were several men who could write an intelligent critique on a performance of the kind. Mr. Bunting picked out his most literary youth and told him to take all the space he wanted. The young man, who was learned in Shakespeare, came back to the office, and, while admitting the personal beauty and charm of Mrs. Scott Siddons and her ability to recite poetry, stated that she was not an actress at all, and probably never would be. The young man was a worshipper at the feet of Adelaide Neilson, as was every playgoer of his generation, and some of his comparisons were odious.

On the same morning The Globe came out, and the "Woolly Horse" had exhausted the dictionary and Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations" to find words of praise for the interpretation. Mrs. Scott Siddons purchased a thousand copies of The Globe, and her manager went out looking for the man who had dared to "roast" her. As the actress had many social friends in Toronto, the controversy aroused public attention, and for a few days recriminations were furious. Williams gained a temporary victory, and the young man on The Mail was told that he need not do any more writing on Shakespeare and the interpretation thereof—it was hinted that he was more useful as a police reporter. A few months later, however, Mrs. Scott Siddons tried her fortunes in London, England. The doyen of English critics at that time was Joseph Knight, of The Athenaeum, and the young man on The Toronto Mail watched to see what he might say. To his delight Knight took precisely the same view of her achievement as had The Mail after her first appearance on any stage. His critique was reprinted, and the "Woolly Horse" sustained a tardy defeat.

It was Williams who accompanied the Earl of Dufferin through the Northwest Territories for The Globe when the Governor-General made his trip across the prairies. He traveled by buckboard, and one reason why he was assigned for the task was that he had been all over the Northwest trails some years previously before he had struck Toronto. At one point the representatives of certain of the tribes were assembled to do homage to Her Majesty's Viceroy, and one of the chiefs of the Crees made a speech in his own tongue. It was noticed that he made pointed reference to The Globe correspondent who was present taking notes, looking at him pointedly and saying something in a genial tone after the formal words of welcome and homage had been uttered. The Governor-General was curious to know what he had said, and it transpired that the chief had declared that the tribe had felt additionally honored by the fact that he had brought their "little red-haired brother" with him. Williams afterwards went south and became the leading writer on sports in the city of New Orleans, and is said to be still alive in the south.

HOME OF THE 'PHONE.

Brantford Has a Double Claim to That Distinction.

Brantford, Ontario, as everybody knows, bases its claim to the title of the Telephone City on the fact that Alexander Graham Bell, the telephone inventor, lived for a time in that city. It is, however, the habit of United States journalists in referring to Prof. Bell's career to claim him as an American, and to give the impression that he spent only a few months in Brantford in his youth. In this connection it is interesting to note just exactly what are the claims of that city to the title it so proudly claims, and which it is soon to emphasize for all time by the purchase of the Bell homestead, and the erection of a handsome memorial, which Walter S. Allward, the Toronto sculptor and contractor, expects to complete by July 1, 1912. The inventor was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and became a teacher of elocution, which was also the profession of his father. The latter moved to Brantford, and in 1870 Alexander came to Canada and took up residence with his parents at their home at Tutela Heights. He was called to Boston to experiment with deaf mutes in 1871, but until 1873 he spent much of his time at his Brantford home. In 1874 and 1875, during his summer holidays, he succeeded in making important advances in telephony. The work done in 1875 enabled him to secure his first patent on March 7, 1876.

The year 1876 was a red-letter year for the telephone. Prof. Bell was confident that he had conquered space so far as transmitting the human voice was concerned, and returned to Canada in July to demonstrate the success of his invention. What followed is outlined in a recent issue of The Brantford Expositor. His first important experiment was that of transmitting the voice of the persons simultaneously. He had a triple mouthpiece made for one of his membrane telephones. This telephone he placed in an outbuilding of his father's house. The iron-box receiver was placed on the verandah of the cottage. The three voices were successfully reproduced by the diaphragm of the receiver.

In the second week in August, three experiments took place that indisputably confirm Brantford's right to the title, "The Telephone City." The most important experiment was between Brantford and Paris. For this experiment the telegraph line was used. Prof. Bell secured some singers to sing a three-part song into a triple mouthpiece. He drove to Paris and attached the iron-box receiver to one of the lines leading to Brantford. He first heard "bubbling and crackling sounds," to use his own words. Mixed with this storm of noises, he could plainly perceive the voices of the speakers and singers in Brantford, in a faint, faraway sort of manner. He had electro-magnets of high resistance substituted for the low resistance ones that were being used. The vocal sounds were then sufficiently loud and clear to enable him to distinguish familiar voices. His triumph was complete; he was rewarded for years of toil and privation. According to Prof. Graham himself this was the first time that words were spoken in one place, were transmitted by electrical means, and successfully reproduced in another place many miles away.

These experiments justify Brantford's claim to the title, "The Telephone City." They enabled Prof. Bell to obtain a patent covering important mechanical features of apparatus for transmitting human speech.

As though to emphasize her right to the title, the Lorimer Automatic Telephone was invented and largely brought to perfection in Brantford. This is an invention, which, it is claimed will be to telephony what electricity has been to traction. The present is an automatic age. In many ways the machine has taken the place of horse and man. It will not be surprising if the machine telephone dooms the "hello girl" to extinction.

PLAINTIFFS WON CASE

Jury Returned Verdict in Their Favour—Messrs. Carruthers and Ruse Awarded Judgment for $145 and Costs.

TRIAL A LONG ONE

The civil action, in which Wm. R. Ruse and Wm. T. Carruthers were suing Harry Mitchell for $145, the price of a horse which the plaintiffs sold the defendant, occupied the attention of the court at the December sessions yesterday, from ten o'clock in the morning until half-past seven, with the exception of the hour when the court adjourned for luncheon.

The jury, which brought in a verdict in favour of the plaintiff, was composed of the following gentlemen: Messrs. R. G. Clifford, Jas. Murphy, Thos. Forsythe, J. J. Moore, Thos. Cooper, G. H. Hunter, Thos. Flynn, K Burgess, John Simpson, George Spence, John Conway, and Wm. Guerin. They retired about half-past six and were out about an hour. When they brought in their verdict. His Honour Judge Hycke awarded award Honour Judge Hycke awarded the plaintiff judgment for $145 and costs. The counter claim for the horse's keep and maintenance was dismissed.

A large number of witnesses were called and it appears from the evidence that Mitchell, on a certain night in August last, agreed to buy a horse from the plaintiffs for $145, and was to have sent them a cheque for the amount next morning, but it seems that upon the advice of his brother, who inspected the horse, he returned the animal, claiming that it was not as represented. The mare was later sold and the proceeds were paid into the court.

KING LEOPOLD PASSED AWAY

At an Early Hour This Morning, Failing to Rally From the Operation He Had Recently Undergone.

A SUDDEN COLLAPSE

Brussels, Friday, Dec. 17. — King Leopold died at 2.35 o'clock this morning. The collapse ocurred suddenly and at a moment when the doctors seemingly had had the greatest hopes for his recovery.

Throughout yesterday bulletins issued from the sick room indicated progressive improvement. The bulletin posted at 6.30 p.m. gave the King's temperature, pulse and respiration as practically normal, and during the day the King had been able to take nourishment.

The public at large was satisfied that the King was on the road to recovery, but within the pavilion where the King lay there was a feeling of anxiety, chiefly because of Leopold's great age. After a restful day, the patient was able to sleep for a brief period early in the evening and the night passed quietly, until two o'clock when alarming symptoms appeared, Suddenly the King turned and called to Dr. Thiriar: "J'etouffe, docteur, J'etouffe" (I am suffocating.)

Dr. Depage was summoned and the two physicians did everything possible to prolong life, but without avail. The end came quickly, and, after a spell of weakness, peacefully. Prince Albert arived at the deathbed about 25 minutes later. He was accompanied by Princess Clementine. Albert kissed the dead king and left the chamber weeping. Baron Giffinet, the King's secretary, started immediately for Brussels to notify the members of the Royal family.

It appears that the doctors were totally unprepared for such a fatal termination. It was a nun, acting as a nurse, who first noticed the heavy breathing of the King. She called Dr. Thiriar to the bedside. Both Drs. Thiriar and Depage resorted to injections of morphine, but these had no effect.

Shortly after the end had come, the Ministers were notified, the first official to arrive in the death-chamber being the royal chaplain. The Ministers remained in the chamber for a considerable time, discussing the sudden death and matters of State in subdued tones.

STORIES DO NOT AGREE

Liquor Case in Police Court Brings Out Evidence That Might Properly be Called Conflicting?—Indian Was Drunk, Anyway.

JUDGMENT TO-MORROW

Magistrate Dumble took the evidence this morning in a case that occurred on the 29th of September, 1908, more than a year ago. It is a question of where did Robert Tobico, of Hiawatha, get a flask of whiskey on that day. Did he steal it from Ernest Weaver, while the latter was lying drunk in the bottom of a hay rack, or did Ernest Weaver, also of Hiawatha, give it to him At any rate Tobico, who is an Indian, was arrested in the city that afternoon on the charge of being drunk in a public place, and a charge was laid against Weaver for supplying him with the stuff that put him "to the bad." Tobico has not appeared at the hearings that have been arranged, but was recently arrested and could not escape attention this morning. After all the evidence had been received Magistrate Dumble reserved judgment until to-morrow morning.

The story of the defence is to the effect that Weaver had a flask of whiskey in his inside pocket when his father assisted him into the waggon that afternoon in Hogan's yard in East City. The father saw the bottle as the coat opened and he covered it and went inside the hotel for some parcels. He was only gone a short time, but in that time the bottle had vanished and likewise Tobico. The defence establishes the story that the whiskey had been taken from Weaver's pocket by Tobico, who got drunk on the contents.

Tobico tells an entirely different story. He came over to town with Weaver, who went into one of the hotels and immediately began to lubricate. Tobico states that sometime afterwards Weaver gave him a flask over on this side of the river. Tabico was afterwards arrested and told the story of how he had obtained the whiskey, and on the strength of his statements Weaver was arrested in Hiswatha. Tobico states that he was not in the yards of the East City hotel that afternoon, but Wellington Cowie substantiated the elder Weaver's story that Tobico was in the yard when the father assisted the son into the waggon before going into the hotel for the parcels.

Magistrate Dumble, after hearing the evidence, said he would deliver judgment to-morrow morning.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHE
Mrs. R. Morrow, Bracebridge, Ont., writes—"For years I was troubled almost constantly with constipation and never got anything to do me the lasting good that has been obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Not only have they cured constipation but have also entirely cured the headaches from which I used to suffer terribly and have improved my health in every way."

WILL TRY TO GET $250

Y. M. C. A. Boys Will Make a Canvass With a View to Securing That Sum to Furnish Their Departments at Once.

A WORTHY OBJECT

At the regular meeting of the cabinet of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, it was unanimously decided, after having secured the approval of the Board of Directors, to carry on a two days' campaign, between Christmas and New Year, for the purpose of raising $250 in cash for redecorating and refurnishing the boys' rooms on the second floor of the Association building. The boys will solicit the aid of their numerous friends in the city, but it is understood that no one who is now a subscriber to the funds of the Association will be asked to help the boys in this campaign, unless it be some of the boys' own personal friends. The boys are alive to the work of the Association, and realize the necessity of having their department so attractive that every boy in the city, between the ages of 12 and 17 will desire to be a member and participate in the activities of the department. At the present time, the boys have a good library and well-equipped reading room, so far as magazines and papers are concerned, but their game-room is not as attractive as it should be.

Several of the boys are taking a training class for teaching the Bible, and after the New Year, several classes will be organized, to be taught by the older boys, and any boy who is a member of the department, and is not a member of some Bible Study Club, will wake up some day to discover that he is out of it, so far as the activities of the Association boys are concerned.

The boys are most enthusiastic over their campaign, and are already making detailed plans in connection with it. They have no doubt that their success in this particular undertaking is already secured, and it will be a surprise if they do not far exceed the amount they intend to raise.

MR. H. BEST EXPLAINS

Makes a Statement in Reference to King Edward Street Which Has Been Offered to the City by Mr. D. W. Dumble

COULD NOT ACCEPT

In reference to the report in last night's paper of Mr. D. W. Dumble's proposition to the Council regarding the opening of King Edward street, Mr. Henry Best stated to the Examiner today that all the facts were not stated at the meeting of the Board of works. When the property was bought from the Bank by Mr. Dumble, Mr. Best was in Sault Ste. Marie. He was absent from the city two months and on his return he found that Mr. Dumble had purchased the property, laid out his plans and had consulted only himself in regard to the matter. Mr. Dumble had also held an auction sale of the lots into which the land had been divided. After Mr. Best returned Mr. Dumble met him one day and stated that he would grant Mr. Best permission to cross the strip of land referred to for $500.00. This is the strip that Mr. Dumble asked to have reserved in his name, although he gave the city the whole street. Mr. Best states that he refused Mr. Dumble's proposition because he had made a written agreement with the late John Burnham to open a street from Lock street through to Park street on the south side of his property. This street would be none other than Princess street extended east. When this street is opened Mr. Best says the houses on it will face south instead of fronting on King Edward street. He could not divide the lots in two and have them facing both streets and on account of this binding agreement he could not entertain Mr. Dumble's proposition and did not, therefore, desire to be understood wrongly by the general citizens. Mr. Best will open his street as soon as the demand for building room warrants it. The lots facing it will be 154 feet deep.

Charged With Stealing Amount Of Cobalt Ore

Special to The Examiner.

Toronto, Dec. 17.—Dr. John E. Wilkinson and Alexander Littlejohn appeared in police court this morning, the latter charged with theft of 102 pounds of high grade Cobalt ore and the former charged with having received the stolen property and with having violated the law respecting the purchase of ore. Both pleaded not guilty and were remanded for a week.

A despatch from Cobalt indicates that the police here made arrests without co-operating with authorities at the mines, and as a consequence it is feared Inspector Caldbick's plans for a clean-up of the gang in the North Country will be frustrated.

Three further arrests in the orestealing case were made this morning. Nicholas Zogots and DmytasSanders are charged with having brought ore from the mines and JacobCohen of Agnes street with having smelted part of the loot.

SPOKE ON BUDGET

Hon. J. R. Stratton, M. P., Member for West Peterborough, Took Part in the Debate Yesterday in the House of Commons.

MADE TELLING SPEECH

Hon. J .R. Stratton, member for West Peterborough in the House of Commons, made his maiden speech in the debate on the budget yesterday. An Ottawa despatch to the Toronto Globe, says:

Hon. J. R. Stratton, in a telling maiden speech, noted that the Opposition critic seemed to be still "looking backwards" and rehashing old issues, on which the people had already pronounced. He dwelt on many evidences of the growth and prosperity of the country, declaring that no other country in the world could show relatively as great an income or national undertaking in improving transportation facilities with so small a population. Mr. Stratton advocated a national policy of the conservation of the natural resources and their transformation inot finished product within the Dominion. He emphasised the advantages that would accrue from taking steps to have Canadian pulpwood, Canadian nickel, and Canadian iron and steel exported in the form of manufactured and finished commodities rather than, as at present, exported largely as raw material. The export of pulpwood last year totalled 794,986 cords, valued at $4,366,391. Had this been manufactured into paper in Canada the value would have been approximately thirty-eight millions. On the question of the Government's naval policy he claimed that there was no valid reason why it should not be made concomitant with the building up in this country of a great steel shipbuilding industry.

MISS GUTHRIE FREE

Perjury Charge Dismissed at Barrie on Account of Technicality.

Examiner Special.

Barrie, December 16.—Clara Guthrie escaped conviction for perjury this afternoon upon technical points raised by her laywer, Mr. Boys, and is now free, unless the Crown decides to proceed against her on a charge of arson, in accordance wiht the verdict of the coroner's jury. This, however, does not seem likely. Mr. Boys first submitted that the investigation was not properly constituted. He contended that as the coroner had no authority to engage a stenographer, the latter's notes were not admissable as evidence. In the absence of such record there was nothing to uphold the charge of perjury. Mr. Boys further submitted that the court was improperly constituted in that the requisition for the inquest was not properly signed by three residents in the vicinty of the fire.

Judge Wismer sustained the objection of Mr. Boys on the matter of record, holding that a record or an exemplication of one should have been produced to the court. He therefore dismissed the case.

HAD TO FACE THE MUSIC

Miss Clara Guthrie Had to Stand Trial at Barrie in Connection With the Recent Fire Investigation—Was Tried Yesterday.

HER PARENTS FLED

Barrie, Ont., Dec. 16.—Clara Guthrie, charged with perjury in connection with the double fire which destroyed her parents' home and also the music hall block on Nov. 17th, appeared at the quarter sessions this morning, before Judge Wismer and a jury.

The girl and her mother were liberated on bail shortly after their arrest. The mother, however, disappeared a few days later and the seventeen-year-old daughter has since been in jail. W. A. Boys is acting for the accused, Crown Attorney Cotter representing the Crown.

Grand Jury's Return.

A true bill was returned by the grand jury, and in his opening remarks the Crown Attorney dwelt upon the prevalence of perjury in Canada, stating that judges were now punishing it more rigorously than formerly.

"Naturally," he added, "our sympathy goes out to a young girl in the peculiarly trying position in which Clara Guthrie is placed, lodged in jail, forsaken by her parents, and also by her friends, but if she is guilty she deserves to be punished as much as any one else.

"If a person will tell a lie, he will swear to it," said the Crown Attorney, as he enumerated the circumstances that led up to the double fire and the inquest.

Coroner as Witness.

Coroner Wells, who conducted the inquest, was the first witness. He was reminded by the Crown that the owners of the Music Hall property, Miss Clara and Miss Jennie King, were orphans, but the court ruled that they were not entitled to much sympathy on that score.

Chas. Lowe, the Allandale baggageman, again identified Clara Guthrie as one of the women who had called on him at the station on the 17th. Expressman Roy Stone also recognized Clara, having repeatedly seen her on the streets. Bert Stubbs told the same story. "There are not two Claras for me," he concluded.

Lost Witness Returns.

Herbert McDougall, the long-lost witness, was present, and swore that Mrs. Guthrie told him she drove into the country the day after the fire to find a home for her two boys. Gordon Guthrie, when asked what he took to his mother the morning after the fire, replied, "A ladder," and not a horse, as supposed.

W. J. Poole, of the Fowler Livery, identified the boy as the one who got the horse and buggy the day after the fire.

Throughout the hearing Clara Guthrie displayed little feeling. On behalf of the prisoner, Mr. Boys succeeded in having the stenographer's notes of the inquest declared as inadmissable, and attempted to prove that she had not been properly sworn on the 28nd.

"This only goes to show the strictness with which a trial for perjury involving fourteen years' imprisonment must be conducted," said Judge Wismer, "but as she had been warned that she was under oath, I must overrule that objection."

DR. MANN "HEALING" IN FRANCE NOW

His "Institute of Radiopathy" in Rochester Was Closed—Operated in Toronto.

Rochester, Dec. 17.—Chief Joseph M. Quigley has received a letter from the Lyons Medicine Society, of Lyons, France, asking for information in regard to Dr. G. A. Mann, formerly of Rochester, who, the letter states, is now in France and is flooding the country with literature regarding his alleged cures.

Dr. Mann was formerly the head of the "Institute of Radiopathy," in this city, the operations of which reached such proportions that the postoffice authorities made an investigation, with the result that a fraud order was issued and the proprietor was prohibited from using the mails.

Later he removed to Toronto, Canada, where he continued the business through the mails until the postal officials of Canada ordered his arrest and issued a fraud order against his company.

To patients in all parts of the country the institute sent out portraits of Dr. Mann, with instructions that the patient must look at the picture a number of times each day in order to effect a cure. For this privilege the patient in each case paid $5.

UNEXPECTED ACTION ON PART OF CROWN FOUND DEFENCE UNPREPARED

A rather sudden surprise was sprung on the court sitting at the December sessions, on its opening this morning, when Crown Attorney R. E. Wood stated that he would proceed first with the charge of perjury against Mr. G. N. Graham, it having been a foregone conclusion that the case against P. J. Carroll would be the one heard to-day. Carroll was the first to be arrested, and his case was the first that the Grand Jury considered, and returned a "true bill." Even the counsel for Carroll, Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon understood that it would come on first, and were prepared for trial this morning, having subpoensed twenty witnesses.

Mr. O'Connell was, therefore, very indignant, and protested strongly, when the Crown Attorney declared his intentions. "What reason has the Crown Attorney to bring on the Graham case first?" Mr. O'Connell asked. "We are all prepared in the Carroll case. It was the first in which a 'true bill' was returned. The Grand Jury did not consider Graham's case until yesterday."

"I want to try the principal offender first," Mr. Wood stated.

"For the first time, at five minutes to ten, I am told that the Graham case will be tried," Mr. O'Connell remarked. "It is very disadvantageous to me. It must be for some very material purpose that the Crown is pursuing such a course. It is that strong arbitrary reason of the Crown that I protest against."

"All the cases arise out of Graham's," the Crown replied.

"But Carroll's is entirely independent of the other three," the counsel for the defence argued. "The reason he gives has fallen."

His Honour Judge Huycke stated that he did not think it fair and would not force Mr. O'Connell to go on. However, at the same time he would not interfere with the judicial intention of the Crown. It was unfortunate that neither the Crown nor the counsel for the defence had consulted each other as to which case would be first taken up. It was a pity to have to keep the jury waiting.

Mr. O'Connell stated that over twenty witnesses had been waiting for the past two days for the Carroll case under great expense to the defendant. He hadn't subpoenaed one witness in the Graham case. But at the suggestion of the Judge he said he would try and be ready by this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

THE PERIL OF GAIN-GETTING.

Mr. Adam Shortt, of the Civil Service Commission, in his address at Montreal, spoke words of warning and counsel in respect of the danger arising from the present tendency to popular absorption in the pursuit of wealth. Mr. Shortt seemed to think that there was a danger of this country in its pursuit of wealth forgetting the need of spiritual development. What example, he asked, was being set that would prevent the next generation from being merely the spenders of their fathers' riches? This was what had occurred in the United States, and the result had been the vulgar ostentation of the idle rich. He said:

> A great improvement had taken place in economic conditions the last century. Now it was possible for the artisan class to work eight or ten hours a day and earn wages that would have astonished their predecessors. In America it was especially true that every man had the means of realizing more than his daily living. It was not now only lords and persons of wealth and station who had advantages. What might be termed welfare was within reach of all.
> There had come no slackening in the pursuit of wealth. The business man had now often made the pursuit of wealth an aim in itself. To some this seemed stupid. The Indian in the West looked with contemptuous amusement at the labours of the white man, who sweated from morn to night, while the Indian drew a pension and watched him. Men went on working often because they felt that they would not know what to do with themselves if they retired. They had neglected to develop interest in other issues besides those of business. So they toiled on, the slaves of a groove.
> Occupation and even arduous toil, are necessary in the human, economy. Idleness is the parent of mischief. Employment is what stands, to the rightly constituted individual, between misery and happiness. But, as in all things, temperance is indicated. There are things nobler than food and raiment, indispensable elements of human life. These are cultivation if the mind and of an interest in the happiness of our fellows, which can never be properly subordinated to the pursuit of wealth or attainment of purely selfish ambitions. We are, in duty bound, to work for our own sustenance, comfort, and even luxury in a moderate degree; but we cannot shake off responsibility from the cultivation of the higher faculties of our nature, nor escape the duty of thinking of and acting for, the welfare of our neighbours. This latter comes into play with especial prominence at the Christmas season, when divine unselfishness and the spirit of sacrifice became incarnate on the first Christmas day.

A FOOLISH BILL.

(Montreal Gazette.)

The bill "respecting the saving of daylight" has been re-introduced in Parliament. It proposes to enact that between the first Sunday in April and the first Sunday in November (outside of the Yukon territory) the time shall be an hour in advance of the present. In other words, noon will be at eleven o'clock, a.m., and six o'clock, the usual time for quitting work, will be at five o'clock in the evening. The bill, which is on the lines of a measure that has been reported against in England, assumes that working hours have been fixed by the clock and not by the consideration of what has been found convenient in commercial and industrial occupations. Some twenty-five years ago, to get rid of the inconvenience caused by a multiplicity of local times the British system of a standard time was adopted in Canada and the United States. Instead of each city or town using its own meridian time, and every eastward or westward movement requiring a change in the traveller's watch, the continent was divided into zones, marked by lines running, with some narrow geographical modifications, north and south, and within each one, a common time was established. To railways, especially, but also to business men and newspapers, the new order proved so acceptable that the general wonder was it had not been thought of before. The bill now before Parliament will, if it becomes law, to an extent, restore the former inconvenient conditions. It will disarrange the time tables of railways operating in both Canada and the United States. It will work to create for the eastern part of Canada a set of business hours different from those of New York and other parts of the eastern United States with which there is a large interchange of telegraphic business, in connection with which, sometimes, a few minutes may mean a large loss or gain. Incidentally it will to an extent disarrange the news services of the leading newspapers of eastern Canada, Halifax, and St. John time, for instance, being advanced to two hours ahead of New York and Boston. Such an ill-considered bill should be killed. It is not to the credit of the House of Commons that it was not killed last session.

Grigg of London.

E. W. M. Grigg, colonial editor of The Times, London, during his visit in Toronto with Mr. J. S. Willison, has been an interesting speaker at several gatherings. The other evening at the Canadian Club he followed Senator Ross' comprehensive survey of the Australia constitution and spoke of the attitude of his paper upon matters pertaining to the Empire, particularly defence.

"Let me tell you," he said, "what I think is the English attitude toward war: War is no longer the sport of kings; no longer the movement of the ruling party, but war of the people. War in England is regarded in much the spirit in which modern commercialism regards insurance, a disagreeable necessity to be put aside as quickly as possible. The element that really counts in war to-day is not the force of armument, but the forethought, care and force put into the question beforehand. We feel that the battles of the future will be won, probably long before they are fought. We hope they will never be fought, but if we secure what is best for the Empire we will do so only in the care and forethought we give to the question of defence." Likening the Empire to the Banyan tree, whose separate branches take root, he said: "The British Empire cannot stand on a British stem alone; it must rest also on such stems as Canada, Australia and South Africa, drawing strength from our own separate skies and soils and adhering to the parent stem to get added strength."

The Dominion's Dairies.

Some idea of the "intrinsic worth" of the dairy cow can be formed when it is known that $29,000,000 represents the dairy product exports of Canada in 1900 and the home consumption no less than $90,000,000 for the same year. Ninety millions dollars for milk and butter is a big pill to swallow, but down it must go, for Canadian statisticians have made it so, and "figures won't lie." After all, it is only an average of ten or twelve dollars a head.

Giving Him Her Trade.

There was a new clerk at the corner drug store.

"Will you please let me have a stamp?" smiled the woman.

"I wish," said she, "that you would weigh this letter. Maybe it takes more than 2 cents." He weighed it.

"Only 2 cents, madam," he said. Then, taking the stamp up from the counter where she had left it lying, he added politely, "Allow me to put it on for you," and he did.

"You are so nice," said she, "that I'm going to begin to buy my postcards here too."—New York Press.

The Flying Idea.

The first man who got the theory of the flying machine right was no less a person than the painter Leonardo da Vinci. He pictured it as heavier than air, provided with wings and uplifted, in spite of its weight, by the rapid revolutions of a propeller. Leonardo had an idea that the propeller might be turned by clockwork or by setting a number of laboring men to turn a handle, but in that respect he was mistaken.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Life's a reckoning we cannot make twice over. You cannot mend a wrong subtraction by doing your addition right.—George Eliot.

Her Very Picture.

He (rhapsodically)—I adore everything that is grand, exquisite, supereminent. I love the peerless, the serene, the perfect in life. She (blushing coyly)—Oh, George, how can I refuse you when you put it so beautifully?

Our Neighbor.

What is meant by our neighbor we cannot doubt. It is every one with whom we are brought into contact, whosoever it be, whom we have any means of helping.—Dean Stanley.

Athens Saved by Poetry.

When B. C. 404, after a heroic struggle, Athens, the "City of the Violet Crown," was captured by Lysander there were not wanting clamorous voices to urge that the city whose lust for empire had brought such woes on Greece ought to be laid level with the ground.

The Spartan general at first lent a willing ear to his powerful allies, but while the council was still debating this momentous issue a plaintive voice was heard from the city walls chanting those noble lines from the "Electra" of Enripides, that most human of the poets of Greece, in which the heroine contrasts her fallen lot with the splendid exploits of her father, who had dismantled the towers of Troy.

Lysander bent his head and pondered on fortune's cruel reverses. Triumphant as Agamemnon, who could tell but that he might be reserved for a fate as cruel? The lesson of moderation was accepted. Athens was saved.

> The repeated air
> Of sad Electra's poet had the power
> To save the Athenian walls from ruin bare.

Comets and Great Men.

It is somewhat remarkable how often the death of an eminent person has been marked by the appearance of a comet. A certain writer, indeed, after going through a list of comets for 600 years, says that it is "as if God and nature intended by comets to ring the knell of princes, esteeming bells in churches upon earth not sacred enough for such illustrious and eminent performances." To mention only a few, Lotharius the Younger, Louis II., Charles the Bald, Theotilion, bishop of Tours; Henry II. and Richard I. had their knells thus rung by comets. Even in Shakespeare's time the comet was considered a fitting accompaniment to the obsequies of kings:

> Hung be the heavens with black, yield day to night.
> Comets, importing change of times and states,
> Brandish your crystal tresses in the sky,
> And with them scourge the bad revolting stars
> That have consented unto Henry's death.
> —London Outlook.

Thoughtless Clerks.

Every business has a good will cap, and every satisfied customer is a feather in that cap. Trained men at high salaries are employed to keep tightly in place the feathers that are already there and to add new feathers. It is the advertising department that is most conspicuously engaged in the feathering process, while the adjusting department is most characteristically employed in keeping the plums firmly anchored. Both of these departments are maintained at a large proportionate expense, which goes to show the value of feathers. Who, then, in the organization of a business could be mischievous enough to pluck the feathers from the good will cap? Who, indeed? Yet all day long here and there throughout some stores peck, peck, peck, go ruthless beaks, impelled by raven brains in the heads of vacuous clerks.—Bookkeeper.

Painful.

It was during his last appearance at Niblo's Garden, in New York. At the time he was suffering untold torture from the gout. A sort of runway had to be constructed from the stage to the dressing room, for he was quite unable to step up or down stairs.

The performance had been "Coriolanus," and Forrest was petulant from pain and tired with his work. He stumbled against the runway, causing such a twinge in his toe as to make him cry out with the pain.

A young actor standing by unfortunately addressed the tragedian at the wrong time, saying:

"Dear me, Mr. Forrest, that must have been exceedingly painful."

"Not half so painful as your acting," was the cruety response.

"Never Too Late to Mend."

Most of us associate the phrase "It's never too late to mend" with Charles Reade's famous novel, and very likely some of us think he invented it. But it is really one of the most ancient gems of popular philosophy. A correspondent of London Notes and Queries has discovered it is a petition from the commonalty to the mayor and aldermen of the city in 1483. It must have been of a respectable age even then, seeing that it is quoted as one of the "proverbe" of the period.

A Failure.

"There isn't enough asalogy in the English language," proclaimed the bright young student. "If we say 'male and female' to distinguish sex, why not say 'lion and felion' too?"

"Wouldn't distinguish," replied the practical professor, "considering both are felines."—Baltimore American.

Easy Money.

How the street urchin spots an "easy mark" and gets the coin was shown recently at Third and Chestnut streets. An excellently dressed young man with a setter dog which he held by a strap was standing on the corner.

One of the newsboys stood beside the dog and when its master was not looking reached down and gave its tail a sharp pull. With a yelp of pain the dog turned quickly and jumped for its tormentor, but missed him by several inches.

The fact that the dog did not bite him was no obstacle to the boy, who grabbed his left arm with his right hand and began to scream furiously. "It bit me; it bit me. Take me to a hospital."

The owner of the dog became alarmed and ran to the boy. "Here, son," he said, "take this five dollar bill and keep quiet. It'll be all right," and he hurried away.

"Easy money," said the newsboy as he joined his companions.—Philadelphia Times.

Bloodshed Averted.

Opie Read, the novelist, once told of his experiences as a journalist in Kentucky many years ago.

"There was a good deal of news," he said, "such as shootings and killings, but this news was not regarded as important, and little attention was paid to it. I remember once, when a local feud broke out afresh, when members of the opposing sides met at the county seat. There were hot words, a blow was struck, and weapons were drawn, when the sheriff interfered. He loudly announced that he would not tolerate any violence, ordered the parties to separate, and when his orders were not obeyed he began shooting. I forget whether he killed eight or nine, but I know that in describing the incident in my paper I commended the sheriff for his prompt action and bravery and added the paragraph, 'There is no doubt but for the prompt action of the sheriff there would have been bloodshed.'"

Brains For Diet.

There is a latent truth in the primitive Maori belief that by eating the brains of his enemies a warrior acquired their skill and cunning.

It was a custom among these savages, whose descendants I have seen and admired in Hawaii and New Zealand, to hold a brain feast after a successful battle. The conquering chief always reserved for his own portion the gray matter of the opposing leader. Observe how the practice works out in modern life. We do not actually eat our rivals' brains, but if we are wise we will try to absorb what those brains contain. The man who makes a big success is the man who makes the best use of his enemies, studies their moves, learns their method, knows what thought processes they are apt to follow. Down here in the street I guess we're more or less akin to the Maoris, anyway.—New York Herald.

Finger Prints Never Fail.

Although scars from wounds and ulcers frequently partly destroy the pattern folds, such disfigurements are more often than otherwise aids to identification. When the system of finger prints was first introduced at police headquarters in New York a lieutenant in one of the administrative departments tried to discredit it. He had an experimental print made of the tip of a finger and a short time afterward asked to have the same finger reprinted. He had meantime ground down the skin of this finger on a grindstone until the blood almost flowed. Nevertheless the pattern form was more accurately disclosed in the second printing than in the first. Once the record has been made nothing has yet been discovered to invalidate it.—Charles Brewer in Century.

Revised Upward.

One evening at family prayers the head of the house read that chapter which concludes with, "And the wife see that she reverence her husband." After the exercises had closed and the children had gone to bed, the New York Post says, he quoted it, looking meaningly at his wife.

"Let us see what the Revised Version says on that subject," said she. "I will follow the new teaching, if you please."

The Revised Version was produced, and her chagrin may be imagined as the head impressively read, "And let the wife see that she fear her husband."

UNCLE WALT---THE POET PHILOSOPHER

"I say what I think," said the Tiresome Jay, as he roamed around on his futile way, and the things he said, in our common mon', weren't worth a cent and a half a ton. And folks avoided the THE PLAIN Tiresome Jay; they saw him coming and hiked away; they SPEAKER hid in alleys or crawled in holes, or scrambled up to the tops of poles; for things unpleasant, and things that jolt, were sure to come when he shot his bolt. It came to pass that the Tiresome Jay curled up with colic and passed away; and not a soul in the village wept when out 'neath the jimson weeds he slept, and never a citizen heaved a sigh, when the fine large hearse with its plumes went by. For our time is brief, and we've many chores, and we haven't time for the tiresome bores; and we haven't time for the man whose brain is stored with scandals and legends vain, and we haven't time to be fooling round with the man whose sayings will leave a wound. When you go down town where the toilers sweat, say something pleasant, already yet; and hang a smile on your home-grown face and swear this world is the a mootheet place! And when you croak, all the village guys will weep till they spavin their blooming eyes!

WHY WOMEN DO NOT BORROW MONEY FROM EACH OTHER

How is it that women so seldom borrow money from one another? Even the closest women friends—and it is surely not needful to here contradict the old fallacy that close friendship among women is unknown—who confide the most sacred secrets to one another, will wrangle as to which should pay a penny car fare, and each manoeuvres and argues to a bewildering extent rather than let the other pay for a modest luncheon.

This characteristic is reflected and utilized in innumerable plays and novels—"Diana of the Crossways" is a notable example. Lady Dunstone is rich; yet her "beloved Tony" rushes into disgrace and temporarily wrecks her happiness, rather than ask for the smallest loan, or accept hospitality, from her old friend, and the realism and truth of this feature of the novel's construction has never been questioned.

Some women do borrow. Almost every one has heard of one or two incorrigibles who will unblushingly ask for the loan of their neighbour's diamond rings or blue-bag, according to the needs of their station in life, but these are regarded with so much amazement, their feats are chronicled with such zest that it must be admitted that they are freaks of feminine nature, just as if they smoked pipes or drank beer at breakfast time.

What is the reason for this feminine trait? The anti-feminist rushes in with his or her cry: "It is because of woman's inherent inability for comradeship—because she is instinctively anti-social," and all the rest of the phrases that are almost worn out by being set in type so often, but the matter-of-fact observer has another explanation. Women so often haven't any money to lend.

QUALITIES THAT MAKE A LADY

Some are born ladies, some achieve ladyship and some have ladyship thrust upon them.

These are not they who open their eyes to the purple necessarily; there are ladies in the slums, there are ladies in the middle class as there are ladies in the upper class. At heart they are the same; the one soil produces the varied fruit, and its name is refinement. This is the quality of a lady.

A lady—slum or otherwise—will never offend the susceptibility of whatever company she is in. Instinct tells her how to guide her bark, and as kindly intention is always at the helm, there is never any fear of a collision. A lady born never condescends, for she has a clear vision of true worth, and she never pushes—she "knows her place," which is another way of saying "she is a lady."

"Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh," and nothing coarse nor vulgar, nothing cruel nor cutting, can be the fruit of refinement.

It is as easy to tell a lady by her tongue as by anything else. The girl who talks loudly in train or 'bus for the evident reason of attracting attention, the girl who persists in monopolizing conversation, or who breaks in rudely when the subject under discussion does not happen to interest her, need never hope to be mistaken for a lady.

All day long the lady is visible, almost unconsciously her status is revealed, her habit of considering other people is called into play a dozen times a day. Her work shows evidence of her royal birth; everything she touches bears the hallmark of gentility.

If she is poor it is more than ever noticeable—a sewer grown on a dust-heap is always remarkable.

Her house is clean and as dainty as she can make it, her children never go untidy nor uncared for, and her dress is the sign and symbol of her order. A lady dresses like a lady; it would go against the grain to do otherwise. She may be poor and shabby, but "lady" is written all over her. You don't find such a one with elbow sleeves in an office, nor in deshabille at breakfast.

There is no need to scoff, for it is possible to become a lady—in spite of the foregoing. And that not by any special regeneration, but by a gradual change, sometimes made almost unconsciously.

"How that girl has improved!" we often say and we wonder how it has come about. The reason is not far to seek. Her environment has been changed. Man is an imitative animal, and when he sees something better than himself he has generally a desire to become like it. Thus it is that, given a good model, dress, manner, and bearing can be so fashioned that something very like the original is secured. This may be counted superficial, but it goes deeper than that.

You cannot behave like a lady without feeling like a lady—for long. It is surprising how acting like a lady induces the feelings of a lady. For instance, if you know that a lady does not demand all attention, that she is even content to efface herself if good manners require it, you get out of the habit of grabbing for self. Almost unconsciously you become a lady. It is as if a barometer of good breeding had been set up in the midst.

Born in a high position, they cannot help themselves they have ladyship thrust upon them. To a certain extent they accept it—noblesse oblige is part of their education. To all intents and purposes they are ladies.

But will the truth not out?

Time and opportunity only are wanting. The woman who is not a lady at heart is bound to reveal it sooner or later. Her servants know it, although they dare not say it; the shop people are quite aware of it. Those who look up to her inwardly despise her, while her own class is secretly ashamed of her. In a thousand ways her true status is revealed. Dress, manner and bearing are all factors in the unmasking.

What lady—by the dictionary a gentle and noble woman—would wear the trophies of cruelty on her head? What gentlewoman would allow poverty or indolence to rob her of her birthright?

A name may cover a multitude of sins, and a pedigree cast a halo round the most unworthy, but neither makes a lady.

A FAMILY AFFAIR.

The Drummer Had an Easy Thing and Knew It.

"If that drummer ever puts up at this house again I'll try to make his stay interesting," said the clerk of a hotel in one of Michigan's liveliest towns as he scowled at a bellboy who was trying hard not to laugh.

"He came in here the other day and after registering turned the page back and looked at the names of the day before. 'Say,' he said suddenly, 'I have discovered a funny thing in the last few days, and that is that there are more persons registering under the name of Brown than there are under the name of Smith. I don't know whether the Brown family are more numerous or whether they travel more than the Smiths, but it is a fact nevertheless that there are more Browns to be found on the hotel registers than there are Smiths.'

"'That hasn't been my experience,' I answered, 'and you will find that it isn't true at this hotel, for there are six Smiths registered here to one Brown.'

"'You don't know,' he retorted. 'Now, to prove what I say and make it more interesting I will wager you that by the time I'm ready to leave tomorrow there will be more Browns on the register than Smiths.'

"I thought I had an easy mark, so I took him up. He proposed that I should buy him a twenty-five cent cigar for every Brown whose name went down on the register and he would do the same for me when the name was Smith.

"That was agreeable to me, and I simply chuckled to myself, for I knew of at least two Smiths who were due and who would undoubtedly be here before the drummer left.

"Well, in less than ten minutes it began to rain Browns. I never saw so many Browns together in my life. The hotel register began to look like a record of the Brown family. Every few minutes the drummer would call around, check up the register and demand the cigars coming to him.

"The truth came out at last. That miserable drummer had discovered that there was to be a reunion of the Brown family in this city, and, learning that most of them were going to put up here, he sprang his scheme on me to get his smoking for a month for nothing, and as if that wasn't enough he has just sent me a collect message reading, 'Done up brown!'"—Detroit Free Press.

An Awful Lunch.

Professor William James, the famous Harvard psychologist, was giving to an attentive class remarkable instances of absentmindedness.

"And let us not omit from our catalogue," he said, smiling, "the well known case of John Burdon-Sanderson.

"John Burdon-Sanderson sat at his desk in University college lost in thought. It was noon. Beside the great but absentminded student lay his frugal lunch, a sandwich. Next to the sandwich lay a frog, not dead, but motionless. It had been the subject of a curious experiment in the lecture hall an hour before.

"At noon the assistant left the professor meditating before the sandwich and the frog, and at 1, when the assistant returned, the professor was meditating still. The sandwich was untasted, but the frog—the frog had disappeared."—Washington Post.

A Sensitive Subject.

"You made a grave mistake at Billinger's last night when you offered to teach the Billinger girls how to play auction bridge."

"I noticed that something was the matter. What was it?"

"Why, Billinger used to be an auctioneer years ago. His first wife was a Hammer, and the mother of the : was a Gawne. They're awfully sensitive on the subject."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Lovely.

"And did you enjoy your trip through Switzerland?"

"Yes; very much. They had such attractive postcards all through that country."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Billy—Yes; automobile. He's a street car conductor.—Chicago News.

Inhuman Fellow.

"Upon what grounds do you seek a divorce," asked the lawyer whom she had just retained—"nonsupport, cruelty or"—

"Both!" she cried tearfully. "He would not support my passionate longing for a diamond necklace, and if that isn't cruelty I'd like to know."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Mental Pabulum.

In picking out your food for thought
From all the bookish jam
Adapt your mood to worthy food
And try a little Lamb.

Or if that doesn't suit your taste
Then make another grab.
From out the books in dusty nooks
Select a little Crabbe.

And if the books are culled with care
And disregard of pelf,
Why, bear in mind you'll always find
Some Bacon on the shelf.
—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Mistaken Cure.

"Jennie!" yelled the composer.

"Yes, dear," called back the gentle wife.

"Why in thunder don't you keep that kid quiet? What ails it?"

"I can't think, dear. I'm singing one of your lullabies to the poor little darling."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Driven to Cover.

Linnie—Did you hear Tom Beverly say that he thought Mamie Dudley was pretty?

Minnie—Yes. I'm afraid he gets his ideas of beauty from the girls on the covers of the magazines.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Stole Ore From Cobalt And Sold It To Men In Toronto

Dr. Wilkinson of Toronto and Alex. Littlejohn of Cobalt Arrested for Theft of $20,000 Worth of Ore —Further Arrests Expected.

THE MINES INVOLVED

Toronto, Dec. 17.—Following the exposure of large thefts of silver ore from Kerr Lake and other Cobalt mines, Dr. John E. Wilkinson, 511 Sherbourne street, manufacturer, and Alexander Littlejohn, miner, Cobalt, were arrested yesterday by Detectives Murray, McKinney and Guthrie.

They are charged with receiving stolen ore and Dr. Wilkinson faces the further charge of having violated the amendment to the Criminal Code, recently made, by which it is an offence to purchase ore unless under the written authority of the mine owner.

Dr. Wilkinson was admitted to bail late last night by consent of Mr. Garvey, in the absence of Crown Attorney Corley, and David A. Dunlop, 93 Highland avenue, went on his bond for $20,000 the sum fixed.

Tracked From Train.

The police and the Canadian Detective Bureau have been at work on the case for some days. Yesterday morning Detective Murray boarded the incoming Cobalt train at Parkdale, and when Littlejohn got out at the Union Station and hired an express waggon to take a sack to a house in Simcoe street, he followed.

Littlejohn succeeded in getting away from this place unnoticed, but the scent was taken up later, and both men were arrested at Dr. Wilkinson's office in Lombard street, where he operates a reducing plant.

Both were taken to Inspector Duncan's office at police headquarters early in the afternoon, where David Fasken and Percy Galt, solicitors for the mine owners interested, were closeted with them and the police until late in the evening.

Selling Large Quantities.

They discovered that Littlejohn, under the name of McFarlane, had been selling large quantities of ore to Dr. Wilkinson, which he has been receiving from men employed in various Cobalt mines. McFarlane says that these thefts are going on in practically all the mines in the district, and admits having made 17 trips to Toronto, for the purpose of disposing of this ore upon each of which he has brought from 50 to 100 pounds of ore, which is worth between $4 and $5 a pound. The sack brought down this morning contained 108 pounds, but he says that the quantities have been greater of late than earlier in the season.

Wilkinson's Purchases.

An examination of Dr. Wilkinson's books showed the purchase of four tons of ore during the last month. The lot brought down yesterday was sold for $100, but the amount stolen from a number of the mines at Cobalt during the past year is estimated by those close to the matter at $20,000.

Dr. Wilkinson admits that he did not ask nor did he receive the prescribed authority required by the code for the purchase of the ore, and says that he was ignorant of the provision.

The companies known to have been involved in the present thefts are the Kerr Lake, Crown Reserve, and Right of Way.

Both men come up in the police court to-day.

FOR BABY'S SKIN TROUBLES

There are times in the life of nearly every child when Dr. Chase's Ointment proves itself a blessing. The tender skin chafes and is irritated by the clothing. Oftentimes baby eczema developes from this very cause. In a dozen ways Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used to sooth and heal the skin and prevent suffering of the little one. No treatment is so well suited for this purpose and none is so entirely satisfactory.

OBITUARY

JULIA DOHERTY

The death occurred at eleven o'clock last night at the residence of her nephew, Mr. Patrick Doherty, lot twenty, concession nine, of Julia Doherty. She was 87 years of age and was born in Ireland, coming to this country when quite young. She lived for a number of years in Otonabee and Ashburnham.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 8.30 o'clock from lot twenty, concession nine, to the Church of the Sacred Heart and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

Crushed By Falling Tree In The Ketchecum Lake Woods

While working in the woods in the vicinity of Kethecum Lake, about 70 miles north of Lakefield, in the Cavendish Lumber Company's camp, Mr. David Lobb, third son of Mr. Wm. Lobb, of Asphodel, met with a serious and almost fatal accident about two o'clock last Thursday afternoon. A tree, which he was felling, became lodged, and when released (as is often the case) fell in an opposite direction from that which was expected, striking him upon the back and shoulders and crushing him to the ground. Fortunately for him there was a slight depression in the ground where he was standing, and the rise on either side, kept the weight of the tree off him, which was all that saved his life. Had it not been for this, no doubt, he would have been crushed to death instantly. He was released as speedily as possible and taken to the camp, where, as soon as he recovered consciousness, preparations were made for his removal to his home, where he could receive proper care and medical treatment.

His brother James, who was working with him in the same camp, started with him about four o'clock Thursday afternoon. It was a long, cold drive with few stopping places or signs of habitation to break the monotony of the journey. The sleighing was good to Burleigh Falls, at which point the sleighs were exchanged for a wheeled vehicle. Lakefield was reached Friday morning, where they took the train for Norwood, arriving here the same evening.

Dr. Ford, who is attending him, reports that his back and shoulder is badly bruised and scraped and considerably swollen, but thinks that there are no bones broken and that the young man will soon be able to be around again.—Norwood Register.

Ald. Turner Returns To The City From Trip To West And Coast

Ald. J. J. Turner returned to the city last evening after a two-months' trip to the Pacific Coast in the interests of the firm of J. J. Turner and Sons. Mr. Turner went from here to Vancouver and Victoria, and there worked back eastward, returning by way of the Crow's Nest Pass. Mr. Turner visited a large number of towns and cities of the West, all of which, he states, have made wonderful progress. Many new towns have sprung up within the last couple of years, and all of these are going ahead in great strides. Ald. Turner met several former residents of Peterborough in almost every place he visited. Everyone was doing well, and seemed very enthusiastic over the future of the West. His Western trip included among other places, Winnipeg, Brandon, Moosejaw, Calgary, Edmonton, Nanton, Nelson, Revelstoke, Vancouver and Victoria.

Handy in the house as a clock, Davis' Menthol Salve, cures quickly a great many of the simple ailments such as cuts, skin injuries, insect bites and stings. 25c a tin at all druggists.

WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Bon-Bon Social at Park Street Baptist Church Was Enjoyable Affair.

The bon-bon social under the auspices of the men of the Park street Baptist Church last night was in every way a most successful and enjoyable affair. The attendance was gratifying in its proportions and the programme was unusually attractive and meritorious, every number being received with unmistakable marks of approval.

A telegram was read from Hon. J. R. Stratton who was to have acted as chairman, stating that on account of the budget debate in which he had to take part, he regretted that he woud be unable to be present.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford, pastor the Church occupied the chair and the following programme was rendered.

WEST ENJOYS PROSPERITY

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 17. — This Christmas season is showing such evidence of prosperity as the Canadian Prairie West has never before known. It is manifest through one hundred lines of business activity in this city.

The great crop appears to have put money in everybody's pocket, and, moreover, they are willing to spend some of it. Most people, especially farmers, are paying their debts. Loan companies, with their head Western offices in Winnipeg, are complaining that money is coming in too fast; loans and mortgages being liquidated at such a rate that there is no placing the cash again.

Clearings' Big Gain.

The Winnipeg bank clearings for the first eleven months of the year totalled over six hundred and seventy-five millions, as against six hundred and fourteen millions for the whole of last year. This is notwithstanding that the Winnipeg clearing house is now delieved by clearing houses at Edmonton, Calgary, and Regina. As to the Christmas trade itself, it has been wonderful, and to-day a well-known local jobbing house had to turn down rush orders for thousands of dollars' worth of Christmas goods from a country point, because all its Christmas stock was sold out. The West wears a broad smile for Christmas tide.

ENJOYING BIG BUSINESS

The Peterborough Show Case Company during the past three weeks has been enjoying a big increase in their trade. The work they have done for Peterborough business houses alone totals more than $1000. They have installed two silent salesmen and one wall case in Reynold's Barber Shop, a splendid wall show case in Warne's grocery, at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets, a wardrobe in H. LeBrun's and also provided and installed the complete fittings of Haggis' new confectionery. The work has won many compliments in point of neatness of workmanship and general utility of cases and silent salesmen.

A BIG TURNOUT EXPECTED

Park St. Baptist, Knox Church, All Saints, and one or two others will be out and should be ver ystrong. There is some doubt expressed as to whether St. Andrew's, the Cup holders, will defend the title. The games will be likely played at the Auditorium rink. An offer of $12.00 a night is the sum reported to have been obtained by the league for one night during which two games will be played. The league will be permitted to collect the gate.

HIS CONSCIENCE REBUKES HIM

Secretary of Arctic Club Writes Captain Bernier That Story of Loose and Dunkle Was Concocted for Sale

New York, Dec. 17. — Captain S. Osbon of this city, secretary of the Arctic Club, has written Capt. Jos. E. Bernier, captain of the Canadian steamer Arctic, at Ottawa, and others that Captain August W. Loose's story of his dealings with Dr. Cook, as published in the New York Times, was concocted for sale, without regard for the truth.

"In the presence of witnesses," said Captain Osbon, "I heard Loose say: 'I was out for the money, and I didn't care how I got it.'"

Captain Osbon does not believe that Loose's narrative, as supported by his affidavits, was a part of any plot to discredit Dr. Cook.

"The idea originated with Loose and Dunkle,' says Captain Osbon. "They had for sale matter in this controversy so explosive that nobody dared handle it. When they found that out they cast about for something else. Dunkle was the promoter; Loose the workman.

"Also, Dunkle got most of the money. That's what Loose says, and now he is casting around to see where he stands. He's got a conscience and it smarts.

"I wrote these facts in private letters to Captain Bernier and others, and their premature publication is a mistake and may spoil what would have been complete documentary proof of my assertion, sworn to before a notary.

"Loose had an appointment to-day to sign a confession which has already been drawn up. He did not appear, and now he has just 24 hours' grace. If he does not sign to-morrow the substance of the confession will then be printed from notes of the conversation on which it is based."

EX-MAYOR WILSON OF GODERICH DEAD

Examiner Special.

Goderich, Dec. 17.—Ex-Mayor Jas. Wilson died last night, aged 54.

WRIT AGAINST THE INSPECTOR

License Inspector Charged With Having Erroneously Placed Man on Blacklist.

Toronto, December 17. — The Provincial Government has decided to conduct the defence of License Inspector Thomas M. French of West Kent in a peculiar civil action launched against him.

A writ for damages against the inspector was issued this week by Mr. Wm. Piggott of Wallaceburg. Piggott was placed on the list of persons to whom intoxicants could not be sold, at the instance of a relative, according to the inspector, and subsequently was arraigned at the police court on a charge of securing liquor when prohibited. Magistrate McDougall of Wallaceburg dismissed the case, declaring that the man had been illegally put on the list. The action for damages is in consequence.

The act provides that certain specific relatives, parent, wife, brother, sister, or child of over 21 years or parent, brother or sister of the wife, shall have the right to secure prohibitory papers. While the inspector took his instructions from a relative other than those specifically mentioned, the department is satisfied he acted in good faith and will undertake to defend him in the action.

The action will be an interesting one, and the Government may make a test case of it.

CANAL DOINGS AT HASTINGS

The dredge, which has been busy for the past month at Hastings had to be laid up on Friday, on account of the river freezing up where the scows have been dumped and is now in winter quarters just below the locks with her tug and scows. The coffer dam is being put rapidly into place and the filling has been put in for considerable distance. This will be completed this winter and leave things ready for the work in the spring when the lower lock gates will be lifted off and the construction of the new locks begun.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE LATEST NEWS OF SPORT — TOLD IN BRIEF FORM

ONLY TWO CANUCKS WOULD CATCH PLACES IN THE STATES

The New York Tribune says Dave McCann, the Ottawa side-half, and Don Lyon, Hamilton's outside wing, were the only men of the two visiting Canadian teams who could catch places on either Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell or Pennsylvania.

A prominent player of this year's Princeton eleven who witnessed the exhibition at Van Cortlandt Park, picked McCann as the most qualified player on the field. In reference to McCann, the N.Y. Tribune says:

"The Ottawa backs, of whom McCann and Johnstone proved themselves really brilliant runners in a broken field, were generally inefficient when threatened at the start of a run by hostile tacklers. McCann, however, was able to gain more ground on what seemed to American eyes to be straight football than any back on the field. He was adept in swinging end runs and chose his openings well. He held his feet in fine style, too, and cut in at the right time on a sweep across the field."

THE RENFREW CLUB IS STILL GRABBING AFTER PLAYERS

Renfrew, Dec. 16.—Mr. George Martel, chairman of the team committee of the Renfrew Hockey Club has announced that he has positively closed with Chester Gregory, of Moncton, to play with the Creamery Town team in the new National Hockey Association. The All-Montreal, Wanderer and Shamrock clubs had also been after Gregory. Art Ross, in fact, announced that he had come to terms with him for the All-Montreal team. Renfrew, however, kept after Gregory hot foot and yesterday Mr. Martel and Ambrose O'Brien signed him up for the season.

Gregory is likely to prove one of the finds of the season. He played on the New Glasgow team in the Stanley Cup matches three years ago and was last winter the sensation of New Brunswick. He is only a youngster, but has shown great form and it is believed he will prove another Dubbie Kerr. Kerr was comparatively unknown when he came to Ottawa last year and to-day he is one of the finest wing men in the game.

Gregory plays centre or rover. The Renfrew Pirates now have Lindsay for goal, Frank Patrick for point and Lester Patrick for cover with Gregory for rover, Edgar Dey for right wing, and Bobby Rowe for left. They also expect to land a cracking good centre man to-day, thus completing their team. Lester Patrick may also bring a player from the West with him. Renfrew intended to carry nine men. Larry Gilmour wants to retire from hockey and the Renfrew magnates will not press him into the game unless it is absolutely necessary. Should their line not prove strong enough they will put Gilmour in at point and move Lester Patrick up to rover. Frank Patrick can also play on the forward line. He played right wing for the Westmount team in the old C. A. H. L., but it was at point that he made his big reputation.

EASTERN BRANCH OF O. H. A. PROPOSED BY TRENTON FAN

Rev. Mr. Armstrong of Trenton who is an enthusiastic supporter of hockey and the man behind the gun in the Trenton Hockey Club is fathering a new scheme in connection with hockey in Eastern Ontario that he expects to prove a decided boon to the game and that is being endorsed by the clubs in the district to which the subject has been broached. His idea is to form an Eastern Ontario branch of the O. H. A. comprising the teams along the lake front, Whitby, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Belleville, Trenton, Picton and other towns in that section. Rev. Mr. Armstrong would have two series senior and intermediate and is counting on getting about twelve clubs in each division. The plan is to keep the twelve teams in each series in one group so that each would have to play home and home games with the others. In this way, Rev. Mr. Armstrong points out there will be plenty of hockey for every one whereas now in the case of small groups a team gets but one or two home games.

If it would be possible the winners of the district could play off with the O. H. A. winners at the end of the season. Mr. Armstrong is writing to the clubs in the district about the matter.

THE TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE IS FEEBLE

Annual Meeting Showed Decline of Once Flourishing Organization.

The Trent Valley Hockey meeting in Marmora last week was only attended by representatives from Madoc and Marmora, and outside of electing a president and secretary-treasurer, no business was done. Although Hastings will likely have a team, it will not be known until the meeting on Friday whether they will enter the Trent Valley League. Keene is going into the Peterborough City League and Norwood is said to be without a team.—Hastings Star.

BOWLING

The first time the Greens and Whites met in the Y. M. C. A. Basketball League the Whites trimmed the Greens by one point, but last night, the Greens turned the tables and won by an easy score of 24-16.

H. Wallace played a remarkable game and shot baskets from all angles of the floor. It was easy going for the Greens, as they outplayed the Whites to a finish.

Laing, the mainstay of the Whites, had a hard game to play. He saw there wasn't much chance to win, but he played just as hard as if he were wining.

The spectators cheered for the Whites, but it wasn't a bit of use to them. What they wanted was points.

Following were the line-ups:

Greens—Phalen, r.f.; Hogan, l.f., Wallace, c.; Brown, r.g.; Harper, l.g.

Whites—Hol. Hill, r.f.; Smith, l.f.; Laing, c.; Thornton, r.g.; Mulhern.

The Junior boys meet to-night for practice, in a drill to be given at the exhibition, from 5 to 6 p.m., and tea at 6 p.m.

Look for the Y. M. C. A. circus posters in the windows of the stores next week.

Talk about fun; well, if you want to enjoy yourself and have three good laughs, why break all engagements for the 31st and January 1st, and go up to the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium, and see the Forget-Me-Not Twins on the high bar.

Funny? Why they can make a horse laugh. Remember, and don't forget it.

BILLY WALLACE BACK

Well Known Boxer Home After a Successful Tour in the West.

Billy Wallace well known in Peterborough as a boxer of no mean ability arrived home yesterday froom the West after an absence of some two and a half years and will spend the winter here. Billy has been cutting some wide swath in the fighting game since he left Peterborough and has a score of wins to his credit over the best featherweights of the West. He has had many mills in Alberta and Saskatchewan and on the coast and has made good, emphatically being regarded as one of the cleverest ring generals in the West. He reports that Fred. Whitcroft, Bill Crowley, Alf. Kempt and other Peterborough boys are doing well in Edmonton.

SPORT NOTES

Four weeks from to-night the first intermediate O.H.A. game as far as Peterborough is concerned will be played. So far the team has not had any practice. The Belleville team start their training to-night.

W. J. Metheral of the Peterborough Club's executive who represents the locals at the district meeting in Trenton yesterday says that Trenton will have a fine hockey rink this winter. It is now in the course of construction and it is believed that it will be finished in plenty of time before the opening game of the season proper. The ice surface will be 190 by 85 feet, somewhat bigger than the Brock Street rink and the arena will afford comfortable accommodation for 2,500 people. There will be an upper gallery in the building as well as plenty of seating accommodation downstairs. The building will be well provided for in the matter of exits as there will be no less than seven passage ways by which the crowd may leave the rink after a game.

R. M. Glover, the convener of this district in the junior O.H.A. has decided to hold the district meeting for the purpose of drawing up the schedule in the Oriental Hotel at 2.30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

There will be a meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough Hockey League in the Oriental Hotel, on Monday night next, December 20 for the purpose of drawing up the schedule of the season and transacting other business. The meeting is at 8 o'clock sharp.

CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE MEETING

A meeting of the Church Hockey league was held in the Y.M.C.A. last night when reports were received from various committees and from the present prospects it is expected that a good season is ahead of the League. The President Mr. Wm. Rose presided. A request was received from St. Peter's School to enter a team in both leagues. This communication was laid over until the regular meeting to be held next Tuesday. It is understood that there will be no junior elague this year, but the Seniors promise to be stronger than ever.

PETERBOROUGH CANOE COMPANY HOCKEY CLUB

The employees of the Peterborough Canoe Company at a meeting held at noon today organized a hockey team for the season, which will fight it out for the Mercantile League honors. There are a number of good players down at the boat factory and they are figuring on something that looks like a championship.

The following officers were elected:
President—C. H. Rogers.
Vice-President—E. J. McDonald.
Secretary-Treasurer—G. McGarrity.
Manager—H. Fagg.
Team Committee—H. Morgan, B. O'Dette, A. Harron.

SATURDAY MARKET WILL BE A LARGE ONE

One of the features of the Saturday market will be the sale of Christmas poultry. It is customary to purchase the main article of the Christmas dinner a week or two before the holiday and to-morrow will likely see a large quantity of poultry brought into the market. It has been learned from a city source that the prices are likely to be a little higher than during the past two weeks and that the supply is none too plentiful for this year. Those who desire to get a turkey or goose to-morrow should attend the market in good time and well prepared for any circumstance.

HUSBAND OF WOMAN DROWNED IN BATH TUB IS NOW LOCATED

Special to The Examiner.

St. Catharines, Ont., Dec. 17.—A man who says he is Fletcher W. Snead, bath tub murder victim, was located here last night. He is known here as John Lucas, and is engaged as a dishwasher at the new Murray Hotel. He has been here since the disappearance of Snead.

When seen by a reporter Lucas was busy washing dishes. He is about five feet ten inches tall. His face is covered by a thick light brown beard, which almost completely obscures his face. George Smith, a clerk at the hotel where Lucas is employed, said that he believes Lucas to be the missing Snead. Smith first conceived his suspicions when he found several towels of good quality in Lucas' room bearing the name "Snead" in a corner of each. Next day the name had been cut from the linen.

Lucas at first declined to speak, but upon being pressed finally admitted that he really is Fletcher Snead.

"I have been here since March last, coming direct, or almost so, from New York City. I will say nothing as to why I left the city. I had strictly private reasons."

When asked concerning the house wherein his wife died he asked, "What house?"

"The one named in the house of mystery, in East Orange, N. J."

"I know nothing about it. I was never in East Orange in my life. I don't know how my wife die. I could offer no explanation as to any suicide, but I am convinced beyond doubt from reasons of my own that she was not murdered."

When asked if he would return to New York and go to East Orange, he said he would not, and added: "I intend to say right here in St. Catharines."

He also admitted that his wife was the daughter of the woman now being held for her death.

TWO POLICE OFFICERS TESTIFY TO SEEING DEFENDANT SERVE DRINKS FROM BAR

Officers Newhall and Meharry Gave Evidence Yesterday in the Perjury Charge Laid Against Geo. N. Graham—Tell What They Say They Saw Through the Bar Window.

CROWN'S CASE IS ALL IN

The omission of the word "knowing" in the indictment against Geo. N. Graham, charging him with having committed perjury, may have an important bearing on the final disposition of the case. Accused appeared for trial at yesterday afternoon's sittings of the December sessions of the County Court and after the indictment had been read to him, his counsel, Mr. D. O'Connell rose and moved to have it quashed. After hearing the grounds on which Mr. O'Connell asked for a dismissal of the case and Crown Attorney Wood's reply His Honour Judge Huycke reserved his ruling but asked that the trial be proceeded with. The empanelling of a jury then took place, after which the first witness for the prosecution was called. The evidence given for the Crown was practically the same as given in the preliminary hearing at the police court, P. C.'s Newhall and Meharry testifying as to their movements on Sunday night, November 21st. An additional witness, in the person of Mr. Ernest Lawrence, told of getting liquor from the accused on that night. At six o'clock the Crown rested its case.

The court then adjourned until half past seven when the witnesses for the defence were called.

To Quash Indictment.

The indictment was to the effect that Geo. N. Graham, in the police court on Tuesday, December 7th, before D. W. Dumble, police magistrate, upon being sworn did state that Ernest Lawrence or anyone else did not receive any liquor from him on Sunday night, November twenty-first, whereas in truth, he did, thereby committing wilful and corrupt perjury. In moving to have the case dismissed, Mr. O'Connell pointed out that in section one hundred and seventy of the criminal code, perjury was defined as an assertion, to a matter of fact, as part of one's evidence, intended by the witness to be false and misleading. This indictment did not allege that the accused's statement was intended to mislead the court. It did not state that the accused knowing it to be false, did swear to such a statement. The word "knowing" had been omitted. The counsel for the defence cited the case of Kings vs. Cohan in the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. Philip Cohan was charged with swearing that a certain man was not a member of a certain firm. The court decided that the indictment must be quashed because it did not contain the elements of perjury, one of which was that the indicted one must know the statement to be false. Mr. O'Connell quoted other learned authorities to bear out the point raised, in reference to the case against Mr. Graham.

Crown Attorney Wood, argued that the form used in the indictment before the court was sufficient, it differing from the one mentioned by Mr. O'Connell. It was laid in an affidavit. This was laid under subsection E of Section 364 of the Criminal Code. The affidavit must fulfil all requirements of statute, but this case was on a judicial proceeding, and therefore Mr. Wood stated the form used was sufficient.

Jury Empanelled.

The following jury was then empanelled, Messrs. Geo. Hardwick, Jas. Gilbert, Jos. Grey, Jas. McGuire, Chas. Graystock, G. H. Hunter, Fred A. Boyce, K. Burgess, Thos. Forsythe, J. J. Moore, Jas. Murphy Thos. Flynn.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, in addressing the jury, said that the charge was that G. N. Graham committed perjury during a police court case. The depositions stated that George N. Graham swore that he did not give Ernest Lawrence or anyone else liquor on Sunday, November 21st. He intended to bring in evidence to show that he did sell liquor on that night.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, police magistrate for the city, sworn, stated that he tried the defendant on December 7th. A number of witnesses were examined, among them defendant Graham. The deposition taken was read by the witness, he first stating that the defendant was sworn and made his signature. The deposition read was to the effect that Mr. Graham denied having given E. Lawrence or anyone else any liquor on Sunday, November 21st. In answer to Mr. O'Connell witness said that he took down the answers to the questions as far as they were material. Witness stated that previous to giving judgment he asked defendant's consent to change a date in the deposition. Graham was not resworn.

Chief Kozel called, stated that he remembered Graham being recalled for the purpose of changing a a date on Thursday, December 13th. He (Graham) was not sworn.

Ernest Lawrence.

Ernest Lawrence, sworn, stated that he had lived here all his life. He was a cab driver. He remembered Sunday night, November 21st. He went to the Oriental about half past twelve. He saw Mr. Graham.

Did you ask him anything? the Crown Attorney asked. The witness hesitated in answering.

"Has anybody made any threats to you about giving your evidence?" Crown Attorney further asked.

"Mr. Graham told me last Tuesday and yesterday that I didn't know anything about the case, because I wasn't there. He asked me if I saw Maunder or Fowler I told him no. He asked the boss to put me off the hack and not let me drive," he answered.

"Was there any violence?" he was next asked. "He just called me a d——d liar." he replied.

Here Mr. O'Connell took objection to the witness being asked by the Crown Attorney questions regarding what took place after 12 o'clock on Sunday night. His objection was noted.

Continuing, witness said that he asked Mr. Graham if he could get a drink. He was told he could if he waited a few minutes. Lawrence was given a glass of liquor but he didn't know where defendant had got it. Graham was standing in the hall at the rear of the bar when he gave it to him. He didn't pay for it.

Questioned by the counsel for the defence, witness said that he had lived here a long time working as a cab driver.

"Where were you a week ago last Sunday?"

"I was pleasure driving in the afternoon and in the evening I was working in the barn."

"Where were you two weeks ago Sunday.?"

"I can't say."

"Were you in the back country this fall?"

"Several times. The last time was a week ago Monday?"

"How often do you go to the Oriental?"

"Every night."

"What do you go for?"

"A drink, I suppose."

Asked if he discussed the case with anybody he replied that he hadn't.

"Did you speak with Mr. Gordon in O'Connell & Gordon's office last Wednesday?" counsel asked.

"I don't remember of it."

"Did you tell Mr. Gordon about not being in the Oriental on the Sunday in question?"

"I did on Hunter St."

"Did you not also tell Mr. Graham yesterday in the presence of witnesses?"

"Yes I did."

"Did you not tell me the same yesterday?"

"Yes, I told you that I didn't remember it?"

"Then you come here in the witness box and you say that you did get a drink?"

"That is right."

"Did you say in police court that you did not have a drink on the 19th?"

"Yes sir and I didn't."

"Then what P.C.'s Newhall and Meharry say is not true."

"It is not. I never had a drink on the 19th."

He explained to the Crown Attorney how it was that he told Mr. Gordon he wasn't there on the 21st. He said it was because he thought he was in the back country. Mr. O'Connell yesterday, he said, called him and told him not to talk to the police. On both occasions he had the 21st confused with the 14th of November.

"Did you say to the chief, "I suppose Graham will kill me after this case?"

"Yes."

"The Chief told you to tell the truth no matter whom you offend. Didn't he?"

"Yes."

P. C. Newhall.

Samuel Newhall on being sworn, stated that he was on duty on Sunday, Nov. 21st in the neighbourhood of the Oriental. He went there about 11 o'clock. The bar blinds were up. Geo. Graham, John Maunder and Victor Fowler were in the rotunda. His evidence was then as follows:

"I saw the three men leave and go in the passage behind the bar. I saw Graham enter the south-west door into the bar. Mr. Graham lighted a match, filled two glasses of beer and handed them to the two men. Graham worked the cash register and then all went back to their seats. Shortly after twelve, Ernest Lawrence came and I saw Graham go into the bar and fill a glass and give it to Lawrence. After a while the 'bus came from the station bringing seven travellers. They registered and then Graham went into the bar, lighted a match and made up several drinks, passing them to the men in the door. A bell boy came to the bar door, and after Mr. Graham had filled a number of glasses the boy took them away on a tray. Maunder was again served with beer and Graham made a drink for himself.

"Has anybody threatened you?" the Crown asked.

"Yes, several times. Mr. Gordon threatened me in police court and this morning going out of court he said, "I will get you, I will have you arrested for perjury." I reported the same to His Honour. He also spoke to me about telephoning to a certain minister. I told him that I had and that I had a right to."

"Did you ring the minister up?"

"Yes."

"What for?"

I rang him up to find out if he was to testify against my character. He or any other man cant say anything against my character."

"Nobody can truthfully charge you with perjury?"

"No."

"You were never charged with an offence."

"Yes."

"Did you ascertain from Mr. Langfeldt what you wanted?"

"Yes, he told me."

"Was Meharry with you that night?"

From 11.55 on he was."

"Then shortly after Meharry got there there was something doing?"

"Yes. the first drink started about five minutes to twelve."

"Why didn't you go in and get the names of the travellers?"

"Because defendant always has two men watching?"

Witness recalled.

"What kind of an arrangement have they for drawing beer?"

"An arrangement that pulls towards you."

"Do you know the difference between a pump and a tap?"

"Yes."

"What is this?"

"It is a lever that pulls towards you. It is different from a water tap. I described it as a pump arrangement."

P. C. Meharry.

John Meharry next sworn, spoke as follows:

"I am a police officer of the city. I was with P. C. Newhall on Sunday, November 21st, going to the vicinity of the Oriental at 11.55. I saw the defendant, Maunder, Fowler and a man Connor, sitting in the rotunda. I saw Graham go into the bar, leaving the door partly open. He filled glasses and gave them to Maunder and Fowler. I could see them distinctly. After the men had their drink, Graham went over to the cash register. The next transaction was when Ernie Lawrence entered. Graham went in and filled a glass and gave it to him. When the 'bus came, seven travellers went in and registered. Some of them stood in the bar door while defendant prepared drinks and handed them to him. Maunder was also served with another drink and then he and Graham went for a walk."

To Mr. O'Connell, witness stated that during that week he watched the Oriental on Monday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. He said that ex-Ald. Johnston was with them on the Friday night.

"You saw drinks served out on Friday night."

"Yes."

"Did you make any notes?"

"Yes."

"Did you talk the case over with Newhall?"

"Yes. We talked about the threats made against us."

"How many times did you see the register worked?"

"Ten or eleven times."

Witness stated that there had been complaints made about defendant selling after hours."

This concluded the evidence for the prosecution and the court then adjourned until 7.30.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

By F. M. D.

Poll Your Votes.

The proudest now is but my peer
The highest not more high,
Today of all the weary year
A king of men am I.
Today alike are great and small,
The nameless and the known;
My palace is the people's hall,
The ballot box my throne.

Who serves today upon the list
Besides the served shall stand;
Alike the brown and wrinkled fist,
The gloved and dainty hand.
The rich is level with the poor,
The weak is strong today;
And sleekest broadcloth counts no more
Than homespun frock of gray.

* * * * *

While there's a grief to seek redress,
A balance to adjust,
Where weighs our living manhood less
Than Mammon's vilest dust;
While there's a right to need my vote,
A wrong to sweep away,
Up, clouted knee and ragged coat!—
A man's a man today.

—Whittier.

It has always seemed to me that the foregoing lines by the good old Quaker poet summed up far better than any sermon or long-winded oration, the duty that is incumbent upon every man to exercise the right given to him in the franchise. We are apt to forget, perhaps many of us have never learned at how great cost our forefathers gained for themselves and us the priceless privilege of the ballot, that it is only by the concession of the Great Charter and a multitude of lesser charters and by the passing of various reform acts that England and thereby we ourselves, have amongst other things obtained the system of representation by manhood suffrage that we today possess.

But possession of a privilege is of no benefit to us unless we use it—and use it properly. The ballot paper is the emblem of arrival at a free and enlightened manhood, and the man who neglects to use his vote either from fear of hurting anyone's feelings or from absolute indifference is no friend to the community, in which he dwells. The coming year is going to be an important one in the history of Peterborough. Many weighty questions will have to be considered and decided upon by those whom the people elect to serve them at the Council Board, and the best way of showing our belief in the value of our votes is by turning out and using them in support of men whom we look upon as best equipped to do good work for the city and for the measures likely to be of the greatest help in its advancement and prosperity.

The greater the interest that people take in questions affecting their social and economical welfare, the more progressive and enterprising they will be—a town's or city's fitness can be pretty accurately gauged by the percentage of voters who go to the polls.

England's Nobility.

In 1841 Lord John Manners, afterwards Duke of Rutland, wrote a volume of poems entitled, "England's Trust and Other Poems," in which the following lines occur:

No, by the names inscribed on History's page,
Names that are England's noblest heritage,
Names that shall live for yet unnumbered years
Shrined in our hearts with Crecy and Poictiers,
Let wealth and commerce, law and learning die,
But leave us still our old nobility.

Whether or not the noble writer meant to refer to his own class or simply to nobility of character, as some of his friends rather tamely strove to explain, the words created a great storm and occasioned an awakening in the minds of the English proletariat that centuries of passive subjection to their social superiors had failed in accomplishing. It will be surprising if before the Budget campaign is over some enthusiastic platform orator does not make use of this unfortunate slip of a lordling of days gone by for the purpose of proving the spirit that animates the Upper House. Lord John Manners was only 23 when he wrote the lines, and it is only fair to add that in later years he owned himself as ashamed of having written them.

Reforesting the Waste Lands.

It is a very hopeful sign when a country sets itself to the task of doing something for posterity, for it shows that mankind is rising above the selfishness of past days when it recognizes that it has a duty to perform of succeeding generations. In days gone by men were quite content to let the state go to ruin so long as their own immediate relatives and loved ones were provided for. They were animated very much with the same spirit as Sir Boyle Roche, who on one occasion in the Irish Parliament asked, "Why should we legislate for posterity? What has posterity done for us?"

The reforestation of waste areas which is now being so urgently pressed throughout the country, is distinctly a case of working for the benefit of those who come after us, and there must be few indeed who would argue against the necessity for its inception. There is another great evil too for which a remedy cannot be applied any too soon, and that is the suicidal policy of exhausting the wheat lands of the West by neglecting a proper rotation of crops. Here is a clear case of the present generation acting on Sir Boyle Roche's principle. It is most sincerely to be hoped that this evil will be checked before the land is rendered absolutely valueless.

"Under the Stars"

A Christmas Carol

Under the stars, one holy night
A little babe was born;
Over his head a star shone bright,
And glistened till the morn.
And wise men came from far away,
And shepherds wandered where he lay
Upon his lonely bed of hay,
Under the stars one night.

Under the stars one blessed night,
The Christ-child came to earth,
And through the darkness broke the light
Of morning at his birth.
And sweet hosannas filled the air,
And guardian angels watched him where
The Virgin Mother knelt in prayer.
Under the stars one night.

Under the stars, this happy night,
We wait for him once more,
And seem to see the wondrous sight,
The shepherds saw of yore,
O, baby born in Bethlehem,
Come to us as you came to them,
And crown us with love's diadem,
Under the stars to-night.

—By Anna S. Driscoll

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I read so-and-so's letter every day," I said to a friend of mine, "and it seems to me—of course it may be conceit—but it really seems to me that mine are about as good."

"I think they are—quite," said my friend with gratifying promptness, and then with a somewhat less gratifying frankness, "but I wouldn't read them if I were you. I think it would do you more good to read Penelope's letters, for they are much better than yours."

Do you also need the kernel of that advice?

It sems to me that a great many people do.

For there is certainly a tendency with many of us to compare our work with inferior or equal work—as I was doing—and to be weakly satisfied if we do as well or a little better than someone else.

And that tendency is fatal to growth.

The only way to grow is to continually compare your work with better work.

"Read your own paper every day, of course, but be sure to also read some paper of a better grade than yours," was the advice a famous journalist gave me when I was a young reporter.

It certainly was wise advice.

If you look only at your own work or work of the same grade as yours you will not be very apt ever to do better work than you are doing.

The boy in the little country high school where he is easily the superior of the handful of scholars in the school never does as good work as he will when he gets to college and finds a dozen fellows in his class more clever or fully as clever as he.

Nothing is worse for a man than to be for long at a time the best in his class. As soon as he has demonstrated his ability to hold that position it is time for him to step out and into another class where he can find su-pe-riors.

In the same way, though it is undoubtedly pleasant to associate with people who look up to you and admire you, it is far better for your ultimate good to associate with people whom you look up to and admire.

Mental and moral greatness is more or less contagious. The best way to grow mentally and morally is to be with people who have developed beyond you mentally and morally.

The feeling of discomfort, the sense of uneasiness we sometimes experience at being with people who are acknowledged superiors are nothing more or less than our growing pains. As far as ease of mind is concerned it may be better to "be first in a little Iberian village than second in Rome" but if it's growth rather than ease you want it's fatal to be first in the little Iberian village, and healthier even to be last in Rome.

I was on the verge of saying "Always associate with your superiors" when the sad situation of the superi-ors in that case occurred to me.

But I can at least advise—always have your attention upon the work of your superiors and try to be with them enough to keep yourself from stagnating.

Ruth Cameron

MARGARET ILLINGTON IN THE DIVORCE COURT NOW

Her divorce document and second marriage certificate signed with the one dip of a pen was the record established by Margaret Illington in Reno, Nevada, the western town now famous for the number of marriage bonds that have been disrupted and the ease with which these separations were secured. Her doubling back to the marriage life caught the breath of the blase colony of matrimonial misfits, who patiently pass the required six months in the little town in order to secure Judge Pike's signature to their divorce paper. Margaret Illington was given a separation from her husband Daniel Frohman, and without another dip of the pen her remarriage certificate was signed, and she was then the wife of Millionaire Bowes. A New York paper, in a recent issue, gives the following account of the incident:

Judge Pike had granted Miss Illington's divorce. A gentleman among the spectators immediately left the courtroom. There was some delay about making out the decree. Finally the papers were ready and the judge dipped his pen and signed it. Just then the gentleman who vanished so suddenly reappeared and stood beside the fair plaintiff. He whispered in her ear. She smiled, and, leaning over the bench, said to His Honour:

"Oh, Judge Pike, the bridegroom is here with the license — won't you please marry us? It would save so much time and be so sweet of you, don't you know."

For a moment Judge Pike seemed to have lost his breath. Then his face flushed. He looked at the fair applicant for immediate marriage, then at the man beside her, then at the pen still poised in his hand—and his glances seemed to say:

"Well, really here is a new way to save ink. I sign the divorce decree, and then, without pausing to dip the pen again, I sign the certificate marrying the lady to another man—ha, hum!"

Then he spoke, slowly, but quite firmly:

"I—ah—hardly feel it to be a—ah—a seemly act for the judge in a divorce case to, in—ah—a breath, as it were, to immediately remarry the plaintiff in whose favour he has just ruled. I will—ah—have to beg to be excused."

It was not until three days after this episode that Margaret Illington, having divorced Daniel Frohman, was married to Millionaire Bowes.

My attorney heartily approved of Judge Pike's action. He grew indignantly eloquent over the callous attitude many divorce-seekers maintain toward the fair name of the State of Nevada. Some of his statements were quite interesting.

"Women come from all points of the compass to Nevada," he said, "to shuffle off the yoke of their alleged bondage, in many instances only to immediately bind themselves to their 'affinity.' This 'affinity' feature of the divorce proposition carries with it an element distinctly objectionable to our citizens. Most of these women have their 'affinity,' judging from the quantities of letters and telegrams which pass between them. Some the husbands know all about; some they most assuredly don't. Within a few days after securing decrees several of these women have married the man waiting for them.

MAKE CHRISTMAS EQUAL TO CHILD'S EXPECTATIONS

To appreciate what Christmas means to the child one needs only to turn back to those pages in his memory when the fairy personage of Santa Claus overshadowed his imagination and bewildered him by the actualities of Christmas morning. The average child is told the wonderful stories of the mystic land of Grimm and Anderson and these fairy tales appeal to his tender imagination more strongly than the few realities that impress themselves upon his tender mind. He revels in the recitals of the deeds of the good fairy who rescues the young Prince from the Ogre's castle and enables him to set at liberty the beautiful princess and to lead her back to her father's kingdom after he had long since given her up as lost forever. Into the child's fairy world Santa Claus steps as a pleasant reality, a kind old fellow, bluff and good-natured but nevertheless discriminating between the good and the naughty boys and girls. The child counts the days one by one, eager and impatient for the eve on which he will hang up his stockings or scamper to bed after putting the finishing touches upon the Christmas tree he had prepared.

Santa Claus days count highest in the cherished memories of our youth and the wise parent will encourage the child's faith in the good old saint who has never missed a Christmas Eve since time immemorial. Guide the baby hand in its endeavour to tell Santa how good the writer has been and not to forget the big doll or drum, whatever the case may be, this year. See to it that Santa Claus is instructed to be generous and fulfil your promise that you will tell him to be very good to baby Jim or Geraldine. You will share in their pleasure, at least to some extent, and the child's heart is easily gladdened. Besides, the memories he will retain of his tenderest years will always be of the happiest and will be a reminder to him in after years of the kindness his parents showered upon him.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

Suggestive questions on the Sunday School lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

December 19th, 1909.

Review.

Golden Text for the quarter—I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. II. Tim. iv:7.

The following questions can be used as a new and complete lesson, as well as for a review of the eleven preceding lessons.

The date and title of each lesson and where found, the Golden Text, and one question from each of the eleven preceding lessons follow:

October 3.—Paul a Prisoner.—The Arrest. Acts xxi:17 to 22-29. Golden Text: Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. II. Tim. ii:3.

Verses 20-24—In bringing the two dispensations, is it likely that God, so to speak, winked at the apostles trying to graft the law of Moses into Christianity; or was it God's plan that Jewish Christians should still keep the law?

October 10—Paul a Prisoner—The Plot. Acts xxii:30 to xxi:35. Golden Text: I will say of the Lord He is my refuge and my fortress, my God; in Him will I trust. Psalm 91:2.

Verse 11.—There is no way to take the miraculouse out of the New Testament without destroying it. Now in viwe of that fact, why did not God rescue Paul, in this instance, as He did from the prison at Philippi?

October 17.—Paul a Prisoner—Before Felix. Acts xxiv. Golden Text: Herein do I exercise myself to have always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men. Acts xxiv:16.

Verses 26-27—What was the besetting sin of Felix, and how do you estimate the character of a man who wants to be bribed to do right?

October 24.—Paul a Prisoner—Before Festus and Agrippa. Acts xxv: 6-12, chapter 26. Golden Text. I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day. II. Tim. i:12.

Verses 24-32—Why did not Festus and Agrippa both turn to God, seeing that they were clearly convinced of the truth of Christianity and their need of salvation?

October 31.—Paul a Prisoner—The Voyage. Acts xxvii:1-26 Golden Text: Commit thy way unto the Lord, trust also in Him, and He shall bring it to pass. Psalm 37:5.

Verses 21-26—What reason is there to believe from this narrative that when we fail to use, and it is too late to adopt God's best plan, He will still graciously provide a good one which we may adopt? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club).

November 7.—Paul a Prisoner—The Shipwreck. Acts xxvii:27 to xxviii:16. Golden Text: The Lord redeemeth the soul of his servants, and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate. Psalm 34:22.

Verses 33-38.—May praying and fasting, when you ought to be eating and working, be as great a practical crime as scuttling the ship?

November 14.—Paul a Prisoner in Rome. Acts xxviii:11-31. Golden Text: I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Romans 1:16.

Verses 25-28.—Is it a law of God that sin deadens the consciences and perverts the judgment, hence, can a man living in any kind of sin, trust his judgment on personal, moral and spiritual questions?

November 21.—Paul's Story of His Life. II. Cor. i:21 to xii:10. Golden Text: He said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee, for my strength is made perfect in weakness. II. Cor. xii:9.

Chapter xii: 1-6.—What is the only real proof of God, of immortality and of the wisdom of the spiritual life?

November 28.—Paul on Self-Denial. Romans xiv:10-21. Golden Text: It is good neither to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth. Romans xiv:21.

Verses 15-18.—If you enjoy and drink your glass of wine, when you know that wine drinking is doing vastly more harm than good, what sort of a person are you?

December 5—Paul on the Grace of Giving. II. Cor. viii:1-15. Golden Text. Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, It is more blessed to give than to receive. Acts xx:35.

Verse 15.—What reason is there to believe that if we give systematically to God's cause that we ourselves shall never lack?

December 12.—Paul's Last Words. II. Tim. iv:1-18. Golden Text: For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. Phil. 1:21.

Verses 3-4.—Why is it that burglars, gamblers, counterfeiters, liars, drinkers and other bad men and women, often persuade themselves that they are right?

Lesson for Sunday, December 26th, 1909.—The Birth of Christ. Matt. ii: 1-12.

Pain in Heart

"For two years I had pain in my heart, back and left side. Could not draw a deep breath or lie on left side, and any little exertion would cause palpitation. Under advice I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I took about thirteen bottles, am in better health than I ever was, and have gained 14 pounds."

MRS. LILLIE THOMAS,
Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

For many years Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been very successful in the treatment of heart troubles, because of its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles. Even in severe cases of long standing it has frequently prolonged life for many years after doctors had given up all hope, as proven by thousands of letters we have received from grateful people.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

NOW SOLD IN CANADA

In Less Than Three Years Parisian Sage, the Splendid Hair Tonic, is Sold All Over Canada.

There is a reason for the phenomenal sale of Parisian Sage in Canada during the past three years.

And the reason is plain to all. Parisian Sage does just what it is advertised to do.

Ask Wm. Madill about it, he will tell you that they rigidly guarantee it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

There is no reason whatever why any man or woman should fail to take advantage of the above generous offer.

But one thing that has made Parisian Sage so famous is its peculiar power to turn the harsh, unattractive hair that many women possess into luxuriant and radiant hair in a short time. Women of refinement the country over are using it and it never disappoints.

Sold everywhere, and in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, for 50 cents a large bottle.

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN FORECAST

Washington, D.C., Dec. 18.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 14 to 19, warm, wave 13 to 18, cool wave 17 to 21. This was expected to bring a great high temperature wave, severe storms and be followed by a great drop in temperature, accompanied by rains south and snows north.

Next disturbance will come from the Japan gulf stream, skirting the southern borders of the Aleutian islands and Alaskan coasts, will reach British Columbia about 18, cross Pacific slope by close of 20, great central valleys—between Rockies and meridian 90—about 21 to 23, north-eastern provinces 24. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 19, central valleys 21 and reach Atlantic coast about 23. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 22, great central valleys 24, eastern provinces and northeastern states 26.

Temperatures of this disturbance will average lower than preceding storm wave, will be followed with snows north, cold rains south. Christmas will have a cold day near the ground along and north of latitude 36. That cold wave will move slowly eastward and may not reach the northeastern states and eastern provinces early enough to please Santa Claus.

Last disturbance of December will reach Pacific slope about 24, cross Pacific slope by close of 27, great central valleys 28 to 30, northeastern states and provinces 31. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 2, great central valleys 28, eastern states and provinces 30. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 29, great central valleys 31, northeastern states and eastern provinces Jan. 2.

This disturbance will cause warmer weather and less precipitation than previous storms. Next bulletin will contain general crop-weather forecast for January. Winter wheat will continue in good condition to end of December.

I must congratulate the U. S. Weather Bureau on its recent progress. Twenty years ago, when I contended that the storm waves do not originate in the Rockies as then claimed by weather bureau professors, they ridiculed my ideas but very recently they have adopted my claim and now say in their predictions, that certain storms arrive on our Pacific coast a week after leaving the Phillipines.

Was Weak and Nervous.

Heart Would Stop Beating.

Mr. Paul Poull, Cascapedia, Que., writes:—"About five years ago I gave up all hope of getting better of heart trouble. I would nearly choke, and then my heart would stop beating. I could not lie on my left side, and became so nervous and weak I could not work. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before the first box was taken I was almost well, and the second box completed the cure. I have advised many others to try them, and they have all been cured of the same trouble. I have offered to pay for a box for anybody they do not cure."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all diseases or disorders arising from the heart or nerve system. They make the weak heart strong and the shaky nerves firm by imparting a strengthening and restorative influence to every organ and tissue of the body and curing palpitation of the heart, dizziness, sleeplessness, anæmia, twitching of the muscles, sensation of "pins and needles," general debility, lack of vitality, etc.

Price, 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NOTHING TOO GOOD FOR PETERBOROUGH

Peterborough Citizens Get the Pick of Toronto Cattle Market for Their Christmas Dinner.

Meat dealers in Peterborough, as well as the general public, will be interested in knowing that Mr. H. P. Kennedy shipped to Peterborough from the Toronto cattle market on Thursday a carload of the choicest butchers' steers and heifers for the Christmas trade. Dealers wishing to secure any of those prime cattle can do so by communicating with Mr. Kennedy, at his office, No. 340 George street; telephone 133.

In conversation with Mr. Kennedy he stated that the prices ruling this year for Christmas cattle were the highest on record. It will be seen by reference to the report of the sales in another column that several lots of choice butchers' cattle were sold around and above the $6 mark, live weight, while common cattle are still selling at from three to four cents per pound. Individual cattle, in Toronto this week, sold as high as eight cents per pound, live dweight, while one lot of prime steers sold as high as ten cents per pound, live weight.

The selections brought to Peterborough by Mr. Kennedy for the benefit of our citizens are the pick of the shipments. No doubt many will be anxious to secure their Christmas cuts from these choice cattle.

HOW OSHAWA BUILDS ITS MACADAM ROADS

Town Sets an Example to Other Municipalities for Thoroughness.

Mr. D. Cinnamon of Lindsay, returning from Oshawa, was delighted with the road building he had seen there some weeks ago. He stated that the council of that town was putting down a stretch of macadamized roadway on one of the principal thoroughfares, which, he said, was one of the finest stretches of roadmaking he had ever seen.

The street had been excavated to the depth of several feet, and narrowed down to a width of from 22 to 24 feet. Large stones had been placed in the bed, and on top of these was placed another layer of stone of smaller size. Broken stone was then placed on top of this, which was secured from Burnt River, and then followed a coating of screenings. The steam road roller then went over the stretch, which was nicely crowned. On either side of the roadway the boulevards had cement curbing nicely rounded off at the driveways into private residences. The boulevards were levelled off even with the curbing, and there was an opening to carry off the surplus water. Some of the property owners on this street, Mr. Cinnamon said, were so elated with the improvement made that they had asekd to have their assessment raised in order to pay for the same.

Mr. A. W. Campbell, C.E., deputy minister of public works, has visited Oshawa on different occasions in the interest of good roads and the citizens of that enterprising town are acting on his suggestions regarding the best methods of roadmaking.

(Percy B. Stovey in Aberdeen, Wash., World.)

To what cause may be attributed the growing tendency of men to neglect the church? Why is it that men do not go to church? It was once the case that men manifested much interest in religious work, but now that manifestation is almost exclusively feminine. What's the matter with the men—or the church?

They are trying to find the answer to these questions here in Kansas City, and investigators are not numerically small. Interest in the subject follows the late visit of a noted divine who undertook to discuss the problem, and thereby started a discussion that seems unlikely to end for some time. The investigators concede at the outset that men do not attend church. Of course, conditions are not identical the country over. In some communities one will see many men at church. Generally speaking, however, the average present-day congregation is made up largely of women. Not only is the church relying now on the support of women, but even the theatres, music, art, letters, and philanthrophy are actually dependent upon the interest of the gentler sex.

It is not to be denied that the moral condition of men is steadily improving. Drunkenness, for instance, is on the decline. The percentage of criminals is decreasing. Conditions have improved even in the slums. In this city of nearly half a million people the spectacle of a drunken man is indeed uncommon. Drunkards cannot obtain employment; no one has any use for them, and the drunkard is also a loafer. Again, the liquor interests are discouraging drunkenness, which, contrary to orthodox belief, is bad for the saloon. Nowadays a drunken man cannot buy liquor at so-called first-class bars.

Man is morally better than he used to be, if outward appearances may be accepted for it, yet he doesn't attend church as regularly as was formerly the case. Man's evident indifference to religious work is attributed by some really eminent divines to modern business requirements. No less prominent a minister than Dr. Washington writer, of Columbus, O., declares that the business man of to-day finds it necessary to devote all of his time and attention to commercial affairs, to the exclusion of church work. Man's business cares keep him away from the church, from the theatre, from the higher arts, says Dr. Gladden, who is a man of universal repute. He adds, "The main reason why men do not attend theatres, and aid music, art, letters, and philanthropy in person, is the pressure and rush of business. Business through the ages has deprived man of the higher things of life. The ascendancy of woman in the church and in the schools is growing. Men are slaves to things."

There are other investigators who, while agreeing that press of business has much to do with man's religious indifference, declare that ministers themselves are not entirely blameless for the condition. These critics avet that the average man does not care to hear politics discussed from the pulpit; that prohibition discourses in church disgust him; that treatment of local issues by ministers is annoying. What men want it is insisted, is a ample, religious sermon — something that will prove refreshing and invigorating, while at the same time making for the moral uplift.

Few men are so busy that they find it either inconvenient or disagreeable to figure out political considerations for themselves. Those who criticise ministers go farther and declare that the preacher is at best a theorist, and not any too well prepared to discuss civic matters. Such discussions, they conclude, force the word of God into the background, engender animosities (as political discourses usually do) and weaken the church. One critic recently expressed the idea in this language: "The church must utterly abandon vaudeville methods and get back to first principles if the interest of men in the work is to be aroused and held."

When Dr. Gladden said that "men are slaves to things," he expressed a belief that is shared by many other noted students. The man must earn the living for the family, which is no simple matter in these days of sky-high prices. He must clothe his wife and children, and fashion's demands are becoming more and more burdensome. He finds that it requires his best efforts to provide for the members of his family and give them the ordinary comforts, and in his effort to do this he employs all of his time. His wife represents the family in church and philanthropic work, while he slaves to provide means to keep the establishment running. It is little wonder that he does not attend church, that he seldom steps inside a theatre, that he manifests no interest in art, science or letters. Other things, more urgent, more essential, demand his attention. He is a slave indeed.

The statement that men do not attend church is contradicted. Ministers will declare that men are not losing interest in religious work, but that ill-informed persons seek to encourage such belief. It would appear, however, that the statement is quite correct—that women actually support the churches. Dr. Gladden said here the other day: "I am here to call the attention of Christian men to conditions that are intolerable. I refer to the fact that the growth of the church is checked everywhere by the failure of men to go to church. There are twice as many women as men in the congregations. The large proportion of male church members take no part in the work."

That men have become slaves to things has "resulted in the effeminization of the higher things in the communities," adds the doctor. "The great majority of boys at school never come under the direction of a male teacher. Children need the masculine touch as well as the feminine. We must have a religion that appeals to both men and women. The average boy will not go to Sunday School after he is fifteen. He doesn't find men there. He does not believe the church is a man's place. We are able to remedy this, but the best of the men outside won't be wop by a woman's religion."

UNNA DEFINES A CAUSE.

European Skin Specialist Says Dandruff is Caused by Parasites.

Upon that theory, proved beyond a doubt, a cure for dandruff was sought after. Scientists, chemists, druggists and physicians all "took a hand" and the successful issue is the present product known as "Newbro's Herpicide."

This remedy actually kills the parasites that infest the hair bulb, does its work most effectively and contains not an atom of substance injurious to anything else than the germ alone. Herpicide causes the hair to grow as nature intended it should, soft and abundant.

Delay Winnipeg Fair?

Winnipeg, Dec. 18.—Private information goes to show that the Selkirk Centennial International Fair, planned to be held here in 1913, will be put off one year, largely to meet the personal wishes of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who would like to see the fair combined with the official opening of the National Transcontinental Railway from ocean to ocean.

Also, the national road and the G.T.P. would by that time be in a position to get a share of the advantage accruing from the heavy traffic in connection with the fair.

The same source suggests that this great spectacular fair in Winnipeg would be followed by an early general election, in which Sir Wilfrid, for the last time, would lead his party.

NUMBER ARE ARRESTED

Detectives In Toronto Round Up Eight Men Who Are Charged With Acting as Go-Betweens In Wholesale Robberies — Cobalt Police Catch Two More—Amounts to $240,000 Worth a Year.

Toronto, Dec. 18.—Ten arrests have now been made in connection with the gigantic thefts of ore from the Cobalt mines which are now said to approximate at least $250,000 a year in ore disposed of to the J. E. Wilkinson company alone.

The men arrested are:

H. A. Van Winckel, life insurance agent; selling illegally, arrested at Cobalt.

J. H. McGale, hotelkeeper, arrested at Cobalt.

William Jansen, Finnish, bartender, Cobalt; illegal selling.

Jacob Cohen, alias Harry Cohon, jeweler and restauranteur, 78 Agnes street; illegal buying and illegal selling.

Dmytas Andreas, Austrian, miner, Cobalt; receiving stolen ore and illegal selling.

N. Nicholas Zosots, Austrian, miner, Cobalt; receiving stolen ore and illegal selling.

The number was advanced by eight yesterday when the city detectives rounded up additional prisoners upon a charge of receiving and selling in violation to the provision of the criminal code, and Chief Caldbeck of Cobalt gathered in two more at the mining town on like charges.

Thus far none of the thieves has been arrested as only the go-betweens are known to come to the city, and as these are the only charges which can be tried here. Of these latter two escaped from the police yesterday and more are to be located. Further action against those on the spot at Cobalt is expected to-day.

H. A. Van Winckle, a life insurance agent, was arrested as he left his office at Cobalt yesterday afternoon on charges of illegally selling the stolen ore. He is charged with having made at least nine trips to Toronto with ore and to have received checks as large as $1,200 at single payments, from the Wilkinson company.

Earlier in the afternoon, J. H. McGale, owner of the Leland Hotel there, was also arrested by Chief Caldbeck as he stepped off the Haileybury train. He is said to have made five trips to the city with ore. Van Winckle has his office in one of the best blocks in Cobalt, and has been known as a life insurance agent for two years. McGale is a big Irishman who has been in camp ever since there was a mine here.

Detectives McKinney and Guthrie have gone to Cobalt to bring the men to the city. The police have received descriptions of ten other men, but information was received so late that they are not very sanguine of success.

Once more the work here was begun by Detective Murray who boarded the in-coming Cobalt train at Parkdale and picked out four men carrying gun sacks and suit cases. Of these one left as the detective boarded the train and one separated from the other two at the Union Station. Murray followed the two to the house at 58 Simcoe street, to which he had traced Littlejohn on the previous day. He placed both under arrest and they were taken to Court street station and taken before the court at 10 o'clock.

Cohen was gathered in by Detective Tipton in the street at noon and taken to headquarters. A search of his premises later disclosed broken melting pots which had been destroyed and placed in a pail in the yard in the rear. Detective Archibald arrested Rodchinsky at his place of business at 1.30, and he, too, was taken to headquarters. Jansen and Heikkila were arrested two hours later by Detectives Wallace, Mackie and Bockett.

Among the effects found in the Wilkinson premises on Lombard street which were searched yesterday were the returned bank checks for the month of November last. These show that during the month payments of $35, $65, and $25 were made to Rodchinsky and $135, $50, $91, and $168 were made to Cohen under the name of H. Cohen in that month. Among these checks were others for $1,000 and $1,900, but the police refuse to disclose the names of those to whom these were paid.

A scrutiny of the company's books disclose that about two tons of ore per month were being handled. The value of this in a proper market would be about $20,000, showing a business of $240,000 a year.

In the police court yesterday morning Wilkinson, Littlejohn, Andreas and Zosots were arraigned. All were remanded a week without plea or election. Bail was furnished and permitted for one alone, Wilkinson, who was given his liberty upon sureties of $20,000, and even this was reluctantly assented to by Magistrate Denison. T. C. Robinette, K.C., who appeared for Littlejohn, will likely defend all, who will probably go to a jury.

Rifle Practice for U.S. Schools.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Representative Hull of Iowa yesterday introduced a bill in the House providing an annual appropriation of $100,000 for rifle practice in public schools, colleges, universities and civilian rifle clubs.

Traveling expenses of superintendents to teach the art of shooting straight, and to manage competitions, are arranged for in Mr. Hull's bill.

To Build Five Cruisers.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—A Liberal member of Parliament here yesterday stated that when Parliament meets in January it will be found that a vote of about three million dollars per year will be asked for from the Commons.

It is said that these cruisers will be up-to-date and will possess the very best sailing qualities, or equal to 27 knots an hour.

G.T.R. Brakeman Killed.

London, Dec. 18.—Ernest Glennon, a G.T.R. brakeman, living at Sarnia Tunnel, fell from a through freight at Ridout street here last night, and was instantly killed. His head and one arm were cut off. The body was noticed by the crossing watchman when the train had passed.

Glennon had just cashed his pay check before leaving Sarnia on his run.

Ferrets Beat Dogs and Guns.

Galt, Dec. 18.—The attention of the game warden has been called to local "pot hunting." A specimen instance is that of three men with ferrets who killed 17, 10 and 18 rabbits in one afternoon's "sport." Dog and gun hunters complain that they have no chance with "pot hunters" and this fine rabbit section is fast being depleted of game.

Prominent Woman Killed by Train.

Paris, Dec. 17.—The body of Mme. Gouin, whose husband was the late Jules Eduoard Gouin, governor of the Bank of France, was found mangled under a train near Paris yesterday.

The door of the compartment in which she was traveling was almost torn from its hinges and there was a pool of blood on the floor.

The relatives of Mme. Gouin first believed that while trying to emerge from the train, her dress became entangled in the door, throwing her under the wheels.

Now, however, the police believe they have found evidence of a crime. Rings and other jewelry were missing from her reticule.

The curtain of the door of the compartment, covered with bloody finger marks, was found half a mile from the body.

Strangled With Clothes Line.

New York, Dec. 17.—Willie Paul Gebauer was in the Police Court yesterday awaiting arraignment for intoxication, and still half dazed from the effects of drink, his wife's dead body was found in their flat in Brooklyn. The woman had been strangled to death, and her five-year-old son said that he had unwound ten feet of clothes line from around her neck. He was playing with the rope when the neighbors entered.

Blinded by Dynamite.

Cobalt, Dec. 17.—Picking into a missed hole in a tunnel under the Montreal River at Ragged Chutes, James Pardexter, colored, of New York, will probably lose the sight of both eyes, while Major Jackson, also colored, will probably lose one eye. Their faces were terribly smashed by flying rock.

The five other men in the tunnel escaped with minor injuries.

Railway Cars Looted.

New York, Dec. 17.—More than $100,000 worth of goods has been stolen recently from freight cars of the Michigan Central, the Pennsylvania and the Lehigh Valley railroads, according to detectives who appeared yesterday against four men charged with being partly responsible [illegible].

Gave Girls Liquor.

Kingston, Dec. 18.—Magistrate Farrell yesterday committed Frank Redden and Herbert Stanford for trial on a charge of supplying liquor to two girls for immoral purposes. Bail was fixed at $1,000 each.

The girls went out to Collins Bay with the men for a drive and were served with two glasses of whisky. They claim the whisky was doped, as they did not know anything until the police raided a building on Clarence street, where they were found with the men. The proprietor of a hotel at Collins Bay was fined $200 and costs, or three months, the minimum penalty for selling liquor, as he had no license.

Government Control of Potash Mines.

Berlin, Dec. 18.—The Government of Prussia, which owns three potash mines, has presented to the federal council a bill extending imperial control over the potash production of the country. Many of the existing potash contracts are with American firms. It is understood that if the measure is adopted the foreign contracts will be permitted to remain in force for two years, after which they will be subjected to Government regulation.

Mr. Turriff Introduces Bill to Amend Veteran's Scrip and Homestead Regulations—Sinclair Refers to Tupper's Change of Attitude—Grain Inspection Act Amendment Is Introduced—House Adjourns.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced in the Commons yesterday that he had decided to continue to sit in Parliament for Quebec East, the constituency he has represented almost since his entry into public life. This means that Ottawa City is now vacant, in so far as the French-Canadian representation is concerned.

An official statement was read by Hon. L. P. Brodeur bearing on the wreck of the car ferry Bessemer No. 11., and the loss of forty of her crew on Lake Erie. Mr. Brodeur stated that the vessel was not subject to inspection as it was a United States craft. Port Stanley, he said, was equipped with two splendid lights, which could be seen for many miles, and no complaints had reached the Department as to the inefficiency of the aids to navigation at that port. The statement quoted the president of the Lake Carriers' Association to the effect that all navigation on the lakes should close not later than December 1.

J. G. Turriff, East Assiniboia, introduced a bill to amend the act authorizing a bounty to volunteers who served in South Africa. The object of the bill is to enable either a veteran or his substitute who has been unfortunate enough to apply a warrant to land which is worthless, to get another half section. Mr. Turriff said that in a few cases veterans or their substitutes had secured land of no value. The bill was given a first reading.

Mr. Turriff also introduced a bill to enable second homesteaders who have paid their fee and one dollar an acre on quarter sections which are worthless, to get a credit of $160 on another quarter section.

Major Currie objected to the bill on the ground that as it would affect the revenue it should be preceded by a resolution. The Speaker was not prepared to give an immediate decision, and Mr. Turriff agreed to its standing over.

Major Currie introduced a bill to amend the grain inspection act to prevent shortages in grain shipments.

Grain weighed into terminals at Fort William was often found to be short when it reached the lower lake ports. The bill would provide for the weighing of it both when taken in and taken out of terminal elevators.

Mr. Sinclair, Liberal member for Guysboro, who resumed the budget debate, entered into a general defence of the Government's policy and expenditure. Dealing with the I.C.R., he expressed the belief that the cultivation of business snap would go a long way in the direction of making the railway a success.

Touching on the naval question he declared that the followers of the Government to a man would stand firmly back of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in carrying out the terms of the joint resolution of last session. He doubted if the Opposition would present the same united front.

Mr. Sinclair said that Sir Charles Tupper, who at one time predicted that the Liberals could not rule Canada for six months, was now appealing to R. L. Borden to stand by the policy of the Government in respect to a Canadian navy.

Major Currie criticized the method of declaring a surplus by charging certain payments up to special accounts and so deceiving the public. He objected to the Finance Minister "taking unction to himself regarding the flotation of loans, when it was found that Australia got better terms than Canada."

The adjournment of the debate was moved by Malcolm Schell of South Oxford, and several bills were given a second reading.

The House then adjourned until Jan. 12.

Somebody's Carlessness.

Parry Sound, Dec. 18.—The coroner's jury in the case of James Keeler, killed in the gas explosion at the Marine Department's depot on Nov. 26, decided that death was caused "through the negligence or carelessness of some persons connected with the manufacture of gas at the factory where the explosion occurred, and it is the opinion of this jury that no person not an expert in the manufacture of such a dangerous gas should be allowed to give orders to as when gas should be made."

TWO CLAIM THE THRONE

Five-Year-Old Son of the King and Baroness Vaughan Cannot Succeed to the Throne Because Marriage Was Morganatic, Says Paper—Marriage Seems to Have Been Confirmed by the Vatican.

Brussels, Dec. 18.—A contest over the succession to the throne of Belgium is possible. The Vatican is reported to have confirmed the marriage a year ago of King Leopold and Baroness Vaughan. Two sons are said to have been born from this union and both survive. The elder is Lucian, five years old. It is reported that he will claim the throne.

The Socialist organ, Le Peuple, violently attacks the memory of the King, because he repulsed his daughter and admitted his favorite to his bedside. The paper discusses the reported morganatic marriage of the King and Baroness Vaughan, and asks whether the children of the union will hold pretentions to the throne. This point appears to be settled by the constitution. The children will have no rights, but it is understood that they will inherit a great part of the King's immense personal fortune.

Prince Albert, the heir presumptive, who will take the oath to the throne next Thursday, is a nephew of Leopold II., being a son of Prince Philip, Count of Flanders, Leopold's younger brother. Prince Albert married in 1900 Princess Elizabeth of Bavaria. They have three children, the eldest of whom, Prince Leopold, is eight years old. Prince Albert has traveled and studied in America, and is a great student of economics and politics, is a splendid horseman, and is interested in aviation and motoring. He has even made a flight in a dirigible.

Prince Albert is a tall, soldierly looking man, more than six feet in height. He wears glasses and bears an extraordinary likeness to his uncle, King Leopold II., when he was of the same age, and also to his grandfather, King Leopold I., for they are all tall, finely built men in the Belgian royal family.

Prince Baldwin, Prince Albert's elder brother, who died suddenly in 1891, was the handsomest officer in the Belgian army. Prince Albert was equally popular in the army, never allowing any difference to exist between himself and his brother officers, again showing his resemblance to King Leopold by this democratic trait.

Little Effect on Politics.

London, Dec. 18.—It is thought here that the death of King Leopold can have little effect upon the political situation of Europe, apart from the withdrawal from the scene of the man who knew the innermost secrets of every state, and whose intellectual and practical talents, especially in former years, were drawn upon frequently by brother sovereigns.

All comment here lays at Leopold's door the responsibility for the barbarities committed in the Congo and it is believed that his removal will be followed by new methods of administering in that colony.

With the death of Leopold the lease of the Lado Enclave expires and Great Britain will resume sovereignty on behalf of the Soudan. This enclave was leased to Leopold during his life, to give the Congo access to the Nile.

Lawyer Leaves Court.

Toronto, Dec. 18.—L. V. McBrady, council for George Weber, charged with perjury, left the sessions court room yesterday after a warm discussion with Judge Winchester. The lawyer objected to his honor sitting on the case, as he had laid the charge against Weber at the trial of Lansdowne v. Kelly, in which Weber was a witness.

JUDGE FINKLE REPORTS.

Provincial Authorities Asked to Look Into Oxford Affair.

Woodstock, Dec. 18.—County Judge Finkle made a report yesterday on his investigation into graft charges in connection with the country roads system. He made no recommendations, but stated that he could not accept Councillor M. T. Buchanan's present statement as to the charge made by J. L. Thayer.

The judge held that the document which purported to represent the sale of an automobile from Buchanan to Thayer was fictitious. He could not see why Buchanan would return the $340 had the document represented a bona fide transaction.

Thayer had charged that Buchanan demanded the sum in return for the purchase by the company of a road roller and as a receipt acknowledged the payment of money as on the purchase of an auto.

The council referred the whole matter to the Provincial Department of Public Works, with a request for a thorough investigation.

Funeral Drapes Caught Fire.

Winnipeg, Dec. 18.—At Eli, Manitoba, a candle set fire Wednesday evening to the funeral hangings in the house of Joseph Prefontaine, former member for Provencher, where the body of his mother was laid out. A large number of mourners were present, who escaped panic-stricken, in their hurry, the seven-year-old son of Prefontaine, asleep upstairs, was forgotten and was burned to death. George Prefontaine, another son, was seriously, and perhaps fatally burned, trying to save the corpse from cremation.

Yesterday morning during the absence of Mrs. Sydney Masters, 396 Arnold avenue, fire broke out in the house where she had left her two children, Ida, aged four, and Earl, aged two years, both being fatally burned. Owing to the doors being locked, neighbors could not render help.

Zelaya's Resignation.

Washington, Dec. 18.—As to the published statement from Zelaya, the retiring President of Nicaragua, that on Dec. 4 in a telegram to Secretary of State Knox, he suggested that an American commission visit Nicaragua, and that if their findings should show his administration to be detrimental to Central America he would resign, it is officially announced that no such telegram ever was received.

Zelaya's message to President Taft complains that he has received no reply to this offer and adds, "To avoid harm to my country and desiring that it shall renew friendly relations with the United States, I have to-day sent my resignation to Congress. As my opponents consider my presence a disturbing factor, I propose to show my good faith by leaving Nicaragua. I stand ready to account for my acts."

Abolition of Cobdenism.

London, Dec. 18.—Joseph Chamberlain, who again is a candidate for the House of Commons in Birmingham, has written the preface of a political pamphlet in which he strongly supports the position of the House of Lords in rejecting the budget.

Doctor Acquitted.

Cobourg, Dec. 18.—In the County Criminal Court, before Judge Benson and a jury, a verdict of "not guilty" was returned in the case of the King v. Stinson, which occupied the attention of the court for a day and a half. Dr. Stinson, Cobourg, formerly of Brighton, was charged with having performed a criminal operation on a Mrs. Dale, wife of a farm laborer. The prosecution was conducted by D. F. Kerr, crown attorney, and Dr. Arthur J. Johnston, Toronto, medical expert. Dr. Cotton, Toronto, was present for the defence. Counsel for the defence were George Tate Blackstock, K.C., Toronto, and F. M. Field, K.C., and F. F. Hall, Cobourg.

The judge charged strongly in Stinson's favor.

THE GRAHAM CASE WENT TO THE JURY AT 3.30 THIS AFTERNOON AFTER HIS HONOUR JUDGE HUYCKE REVIEWED EVIDENCE

The Defence Concluded Evidence To-day—Testimony Against the Credibility of the Police Involved in the Case Heard This Morning

"CHARACTER" EVIDENCE

The perjury charge against Geo. N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, arising out of a recent police court case, in which he was charged with the illicit sale of liquor, went to the jury at 3.20 o'clock this afternoon. His Honour Judge Huycke having finished his charge at that moment.

The case for the defence was concluded before the court adjourned for luncheon.

This afternoon Crown Attorney Wood reviewed the evidence from the Crown view point and Judge Huycke charged the jury, after which the twelve good men and true retired to the jury room to debate the case.

Crown Attorney's Evidence.

Crown Attorney Wood in his address to the jury, first took up the position of the witness Ernest Lawrence. He referred to the wording of the indictment and informed the jury that it was not for them to say whether it was Sunday night or Monday morning that the liquor was sold. His Honour would decide what hours constituted Sunday night. The only complaint against Lawrence was that he told that he wasn't at the hotel and then swore that he was. But as was often the case a man would make a statement outside that on his oath in the witness box he would not. In corroboration of Lawrence there were the two policemen. They were public servants and credence should be given their testimony, and it was necessary to watch the hotel The little variations in the evidence of the prosecution bear out the fact that the witnesses were speaking from memory and had not concocted a story In the case of P. C. Meharry only two witnesses spoke of his untruthfulness. Mr. Burnham and Mr. Bartlett. Their reasons for not believing him arise out of the election trial. "We all know that trial didn't suit Mr. Burnham very well." Mr. Wood stated "and I ask you, gentlemen, to leave that evidence out of your minds." These two witnesses did not speak as to the general reputation of Meharry, but as to their own personal opinion. He impressed upon the jury that they must determine whether P. C. Newhall and P. C. Meharry concocted a scheme against Graham and that they came into court and swore to it. Then if they cannot be relied upon, they were unfit for their duties. It was true that P. C. Newhall was an energetic and efficient officer. It was said that in his ambition his judgment sometimes carried him away and it was necessary to have his evidence corroborated. It had been corroborated. The Crown Attorney referred to the witnesses, Maunder and Fowler, characterising the former as a law breaker.

His Honour Judge Huycke.

His Honour Judge Huycke urged upon the jury that they must give this case careful consideration. It was important to the community and to Graham. The case had been well handled. "You are the judges of the facts, he said. "Your duty is to arrive at the truth as near as you can and must judge from the evidence and the evidence alone. Dismiss all prejudices and bias from your minds, either towards policemen or against hotelkeepers. Consider the charge This is the third one that has been tried, and you have no doubt heard my remarks in regard to perjury. It is a serious offence and I ask you to find if that is proven to your satisfaction. We have had a lamentable state of affairs in this court room. We have had contradiction after contradiction."

His Honour then reviewed the evidence. Lawrence was corroborated by the two policemen. Then if the officers of the law threatened people, they are dangerous to the community.

This Morning's Session.

At the opening of the Court this morning Mr. O'Connell, counsel for Mr. Graham, returned to his motion of yesterday to have the indictment quashed, and cited another case in support of his contention. He considered that to go on with the proceed-

"NOT GUILTY"

Court Room, 4 p.m.—The Jury in the Graham perjury case has returned a verdict of "not guilty," after having been out forty minutes.

"I quite agree with your verdict," said Judge Huycke. "Mr. Graham, you are honourably acquitted."

PECULIAR ACCIDENT AT BLACKWATER

Blackwater Jct., Dec. 17.—A rather peculiar, serious and fatal accident occurred here about one o'clock in the Grand Trunk stock yards. Three men were standing in the stock yards looking over a number of cattle in the same yard when a supposedly "spent" bullet came whizzing past them. One of the men had a narrow escape, as he was almost in a direct line of the bullet, and standing close to the cow that was killed. It is supposed that some persons shooting in a nearby bush wasted a bullet in this direction while shooting at some object.

FINED $23.35 FOR BUYING POULTRY BEFORE TEN A. M.

Wm. Fennell, Representing the J. A. McLean Produce Co., Limited, 74 Front Street East, Toronto, Aroused the Ire of Peterborough Citizens by Purchasing Turkeys at High Price---Bought Five Before 10 o'clock---Will Appeal Decision.

Indignation is a mild form of expressing the feelings of a large number of citizens who attended this morning's market and found one William Fennell who claimed to be a representative of the McLean Produce Co., of Toronto, buying all the turkeys and geese he could obtain at prices that were practically beyond the purse of the ordinary householder. During the past few weeks poultry has been quoted at very encouraging figures and it was long expected that they would still prevail to-day. It was not long, however, before the people were disillusioned, and it is claimed that the said Mr. Fennell was largely responsible for it. He offered 18 cents a pound and there were some who stated that they had been offered as high as 20 cents. He was also picking out the best of the turkeys with a very commendable discrimination. He was remonstrated with by some of the people, but only laughed at them. Complaints were then directed toward the police station, but it was found that he could buy the whole market after 10 o'clock. It looked for a time that he would pursue his purchasing uninterrupted by the authorities and in the meantime his pile of poultry in the southwest corner of the hall, directly under the clock tower was growing larger..

However, although the police were somewhat handicapped, the case was looked into and a charge was laid against him for buying before ten o'clock for the purpose of retailing. When the reporter returned about 12 o'clock he found P. C. Meagher standing guard over the pile awaiting the return of Mr. Fennell and within the lining of his helmet was a little summons to appear in court this afternoon at 2.30. It was claimed by many prominent men that the boosting of the price of poultry in order to buy up as much as possible affected the householders who paid more than would have been asked had Fennell not made an early bid.

There seemed to be at least a hundred turkeys and geese in the pile and any one of them would make select eating. It was stated that they were to be taken to Toronto for the McLean Produce Co., where on account of the high price they could be sold at a decided profit.

In Police Court.

This afternoon Fennell appeared before Magistrate Dumble on the charge of purchasing poultry on the market prior to 10 o'clock, he being a butcher, grocer or runner.

"I suppose I am guilty in a way your honour, Fennel replied to the charge. "I had bought five turkeys before ten o'clock. I would like to say that we are neither grocers or butchers. I represent the W. C. McLean Produce Co., Front St. East, Toronto." Fennell said he was an employee of the company and also a stockholder As he was an employee he was therefore a runner and came under the by-law. "It aims at protecting the local people from persons engaged in business such as you, and I must enforce," Magistrate Dumble remarked. "You know," he continued, "our Council never makes a by-law that it does not intend to have carried out to the letter. Everyone looked in the direction of Ald. Bradburn who was present.

Fennell stated that in other towns the market by-law was posted up prominently about the markets and in the hall. "In Barrie, Woodstock and other towns we visit, there are about 20 of the by-laws printed in a conspicuous place. The buyers, thereby have a reasonable knowledge of knowing what the law in the town is."

Magistrate Dumble replied that Fennell should have taken the trouble to find out at the city hall what were the rules in Peterborough before he felt the turkeys. He had bought 95 turkeys this morning and five of them were secured before 10 o'clock.

The Magistrate said he had nothing to do but enforce the law, and after apparently figuring up a total of conveyed the intelligence to Fennell that he was fined $20 and costs or a total of $23.35. "Less than half the maximum," His Worship remarked.

Fennell's immediate reply was that he would appeal the decision. He had been in communication with the Toronto office and had been instructed to pay the fine if it was only nominal but otherwise to announce that the judgment would be appealed. He was told that he would have to pay the fine at once or would have to go to jail. The limit of the fine was from $1.00 to $50.00. Fennell was told that he could talk over the long distance phone from the police station but as he had no distress in Peterborough he would have to be kept in custody. Ald. Buller and Bradburn were interested in the case this morning when it was brought to their attention and tried to have Fennell prevented from continuing to buy. In the meantime Mr. Fennell will have to remain in jail until the appeal has been settled unless security is given.

Said He Had Been Robbed of Forty Dollars by Two Young Men Who Got Away With It—Police After the Parties.

"KEEP YOUR MONEY CLOSE"

That he was robbed of forty dollars by two unknown young men was the story told by Thomas Debar, of Lakefield to P. C. Adams and P. C. Newhall, early yesterday morning. He was picked up by P. C. Newhall on George St. in a drunken stupor about three o'clock yesterday morning and brought to the police station. He was let out at seven o'clock but at that hour he hadn't sufficiently recovered from his spree to know what he was saying. He had been around the city drunk the evening previous. He said that he had been robbed.

DEFENCE WITNESSES FLATLY CONTRADICT THE POLICE

Case for the Defence in Perjury Charge Was Commenced Last Night--Defendant and Other Witnesses Deny That He Gave or Sold Anyone a Drink on the Night in Question---Mr. O'Connell Raises an Objection to the Manner in Which Crown Proved Judicial Proceedings.

Evidence in the hearing of the perjury charge against George N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, was commenced last night before Judge Huycke, in the December Sessions of the County Court, and is being continued to-day. The case for the prosecution had been completed just at 6 o'clock, and in order to expedite matters, it was decided to hold a session last night, court being adjourned until 7.30 o'clock.

The evidence last night was a flat contradiction of the testimony given by Police Officers Newhall and Meharry and Ernest Lawrence in as far as all the principal points of the evidence were concerned. The prisoner called in his own behalf, swore that he sold no liquor to anyone during the time alleged by the police, and in this he was corroborated by John T. Maunder, of Lindsay, and Victor Fowler, while in other details, his evidence was supported by T. J. McDonough and Harry Stinson, two employees of the Oriental Hotel.

The interest that is being taken in the case in the city was shown by the crowded court room last night, the audience following the evidence closely and remaining until court was adjourned, shortly after 10 o'clock. Several local ministers were noticed among those present, in the court room.

When court was resumed last evening Mr. O'Connell, counsel for the defence, suggested that the witnesses be excluded from the court room.

Court Crier Wood was commencing to announce that all witnesses, both for the prosecution and the defence should leave the room, when Crown Attorney Wood asked that P. C. Newhall be allowed to remain, to advise him in the case.

"I think that should be the duty of the Chief of Police," remarked Mr. O'Connell, objecting to the presence of the officer, on the ground that he was a very important witness, and would likely be recalled by the Crown, in rebuttal.

"I think that Mr. Newhall had better withdraw," decided Judge Huycke. "He seems to be one of the storm centres."

The officer accordingly retired from the court room.

Mr. O'Connell registered an objection to the case going any further on the ground that there had not been a satisfactory record put in as to the judicial proceedings, out of which the charge arose. He quoted many authorities in support of his claim, and contended that the conditions had not been complied with. The case of King vs. Drummond was referred to as showing that the trial, indictment, verdict, and judgment, must be proven as a matter of record.

Mr. O'Connell submitted that under common law rule the best evidence must be produced. This point was relaxed in one case, only when there had been proceedings under the criminal code, it was permissible to produce a certificate containing the substance of the proceedings. In the case before the court Mr. O'Connell submitted, however, that common law rule must stand in full force, and he held that no such record of proceedings as was required, had been produced.

"No record has been produced," he argued. "There is no seal of the court, no legal evidence of the judicial proceedings. There is no evidence before the court upon which this case should go to the jury."

Mr. Wood reiterated that the record submitted was not of the nature required, quoting the Liquor License Act in support of his contention.

His Honour announced that he would reserve judgment on the objection raised by Mr. O'Connell, in the meantime going on with the case.

John T. Maunder.

John T. Maunder was the first witness called by the defence. "I live in Lindsay," he testified. "I am manager of the Central Hotel there. I was in Peterborough on Nov. 20 and 21, staying at the Oriental Hotel. I was there on Saturday night and Sunday night.

I was in the rotunda of the hotel on

Five Cattle Killed By Being Struck By Train

An Asphodel farmer to-day is mourning the loss of five fine cattle as the result of a collision between a herd he was bringing into the city for Mr. Gil. Thompson, and a C. P. R. freight train. It seems that the farmer was driving a herd of fourteen to Peterborough and at Kelly's Cut, a crossing five miles from Norwood, the freight engine smashed squarely into the middle of the cattle, killing five of them, including three select heifers intended for the Christmas market. There was a heavy snow storm raging and the man in charge of the cattle did not see or hear the approaching train.

Local Option In Omemee Must Be Strictly Enforced

Lindsay, Dec. 17. — An Omemee young man got himself into trouble by purchasing liquor in Lindsay and bringing a quantity to his home village. There he supplied another boy under age and reports state that a hilarious time was raised down in Omemee.

Last week a young Lindsay man, who obliged this fellow by getting him a bottle of whiskey was fined ten dollars and costs. This morning the bar tender who supplied him with liquor was fined $15 and costs, $20.87 in all. Then he pleaded guilty himself, and was fined $20.70, including costs.

Magistrate Jackson heard the charge against the bartender this morning, Mr. G. A. Jordan defended and G. H. Hopkins, K.C., prosecuted. Mr. Jordan put in a plea of guilty for his client and appealed to the magistrate for leniency, pointing out that the bartender was not entirely to blame.

"There are two classes of people that hotelmen must not supply liquor to, and these are the "Indians" and the "infants," declared Mr. Hopkins, with emphasis on the "must not."

"If there are more cases of this nature," went on Mr. Hopkins, "I am going to "butt in" to the extent of asking your Worship to give the offenders a little jail."

The penalty for supplying liquor to minors is from a fine of $10 to $50, or three months in jail.

Mr. Hopkins continued: "I understand liquor was brought to Omemee, and one thing I will insist on is that the law must be observed The point is not whether local option is beneficial or not, but that Omemee carried Local Option, and this young man had no right to take the whiskey down there to pollute the boys of the community."

Magistrate Jackson imposed the fine, stating that when a bartender has any doubt about the age of a young man, no liquor should be sold him.

County Police Magistrate Moore presided at the case against the Omemee youth, who was charged with supplying minors. He pleaded guilty after a few minutes hesitation and was fined $20.70 in all, or 21 days in jail. The fine was gathered up around town and paid.

License Inspector Thornbury is keeping a watchful eye on Omemee, and told a Warder reporter this morning that he would see that the law was observed to the letter in that village. He is acting under special instructions from the department, Omemee not being within his district.

BETTER TERMS.

It is said that Premier McBride of British Columbia is about to renew demands for better terms in regard to the Dominion subsidy. The very circumstances which justify such a demand if it could, in justice to the other provinces of the Dominion, be met, contravindicate its entertainment of it. British Columbia is badly in need of the money which an increased subsidy would supply. That Province has lately shouldered a tremendous financial responsibility. A population of 350,000 all told, has to meet for all time the burden represented by a guarantee of the bonds of Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann's railway to the amount of 21 million dollars, principal, and $840,000 annual interest payment. This is what constitutes, for British Columbia's point of view, a justification of her demand for increased subsidy. At the same time it brings condemnation of such a demand. A province which will deliberately enter into such a tremendous financial entanglement cannot expect the rest of the Dominion to relieve it of the consequences of its folly.

DEALING WITH COMBINES.

Combinations of capital and organisation, when they pass the limits of association for mutual advantage and become combines, having the effect of restraint of trade are regarded as hostile in the interests of weaker organisations, as well as to the public interests, chiefly in the enhancement of prices produced by the combine. The combine or trust evil has reached alarming proportions of power for evil in the United States—power to amass immense concentrations of wealth at the expense of the consuming public. To obviate this evil in Canada the Dominion Government in 1907 procured legislation or parliamentary assent, permitting the Government, on receiving assurance that a combination for restraint of trade was in existence, or in operation, to take action by order-in-council, to reduce the tariff rate on the article or articles forming the subject of the combine, and thus neutralise its action in regard to the restraint of trade exercised by the arrangement. This was considered placing too much power in the hands of the Government, and the course was modified so as to require a reference to a judicial commission to determine the question of the existence of a combine to enhance prices. This left the Government power to take executive action upon the affirmative finding of the commission. It, however, tended to make the machinery slow, and it was complained that the Government had not made sufficient provision for payment of expenses to encourage people to take advantage of the commission. A measure will speedily be submitted dealing with the subject, the object of which will be to empower the Government, in case of the establishment of a prima facie case of combination, to provide all the expenses of conducting an inquiry, including the employment of counsel. This provision while facilitating investigation, will avoid hasty, or reckless action, which is obviously undesirable where large industrial and vested interests are involved, will, at the same time, encourage and aid those who have a grievance to undertake action to obtain redress by employment of the improved machinery provided. The justification of the employment of the public money to assist investigation consists in the fact that the public interests are involved in dealing with combines which necessarily derive their power to injure from the increase they create of the prices of articles of which the public are the consumers.

MAKING MONEY.

The Liberal Government ever since its advent to power, has successfully pursued the policy of making money for Canada. It provided the conditions that stimulated every commercial, industrial, and other interest in Canada. This brought prosperity and thus money was made—if not outright—at least, accessible. In another sense, the Government made money. A branch of the Royal Mint was established at Ottawa, in order that Canadian coinage might be done in Canada from Canadian silver and gold. The mint has been conducted at a profit and the more we coin and the more that is put in circulation the greater the profit. This justifies the action of the Government in deporting American silver coins, and replacing it with Canadian coin. This has not only the merit of giving Canadians coin made in Canada, of Canadian metal, the produce of Canadian mines, a preference and by providing place for larger circulation, but gives larger employment to our Canadian mint, which means larger profit. It is a fact that Canada could have her coining as well as her bank note printing done more cheaply in the Old Country; but the same reason which influences us to desire the making of other things in Canada has led to doing our own coinage and printing our own bank notes in Canada; and arrangements are under way to have gold coins—sovereigns, struck in Canada. A refinery for gold is in course of construction at Ottawa with a view of coining sovereigns from Canadian gold. The cost up to the present of the construction of the mint has been $547,796.33; and the condition to that of $67,000 for the gold refining plant will bring the total cost of the mint up to $605,047. The mint has been in operation nearly two years. In the first calendar year it coined $4,887,427 pieces, and so far this year, the number has reached 6,862,962 pieces. The cost of operation for the two years has been $133,726. The revenue from the mint for the same period has been $405,565.68, leaving profits of $271,838. This is, even with the deduction of the $75,000 per year, appropriated by parliament for the maintenance of the mint, a rather tidy profit upon the $605,047 invested in mint buildings and equipment. In his budget speech Hon. Mr. Fielding announced that the Government proposed to call in and re-coin the Canadian currency that has become defaced and worn thin with use. This will involve a slight loss, but it will be compensated by furnishing the people with a fresher, cleaner, and better currency. If the same principle were applied in the matter of bank notes, public appreciation would be instantly forthcoming. The worn, ragged, and filthy bank notes so largely in circulation are not only an inconvenience and source of repulsion, but a positive menace to the public health, as they may easily be the means of spreading the germs of disease contagion. When the surface of the paper becomes broken by use, the power of germ absorption and retention is greatly increased. We should have clean money in a physical as well as moral sense.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Ottawa Board of Trade has re-elected all officers.

President Zelaya has sent a message of resignation to the Congress of Nicaragua.

Clara Guthrie was acquitted of the perjury charges, arising out of the Barrie fire inquest, on a technicality.

Congress will be asked to support a resolution changing inauguration day from March 4 to the last Thursday in April.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain was so persistently interrupted at a political meeting at Bromsgrove that he was unable to finish his speech.

John Osterholm, secretary of Clifton Lodge, A.O.U.W., at Niagara Falls, was acquitted of the charge of embezzling the lodge funds at Welland Assizes. George Burns, M.C.R. yardmaster, was also acquitted of a charge of fraud on the railway.

Northcliffe Criticizes Canadians.

London, Dec. 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A lengthy interview with Lord Northcliffe appears in Canada Illustrated. Lord Northcliffe says he found a distinct prejudice against Englishmen in Canada, due almost entirely to the fact that England in the last twenty years had made Canada a dumping ground for the surplus Cockney. The fault is a little on the side of the Canadian immigration authorities.

The American immigration authorities were much wiser. They put the right men in the right place.

Regarding naval defence, Lord Northcliffe did not believe that the average Canadian knows anything about the dangers of his overseas trade. Hundreds of thousands of Canadians had never seen a sea at all, and are never likely to.

"I found people at Vancouver who had seen warships, and those in the Maritime Provinces, anxious, but the fact that the whole of Canada's export overseas trade could be held up by one or two modern fast foreign cruisers is quite unknown to a people who are extremely busy getting their country into shape for residence and trade."

Manitoba to Own Elevators.

Brandon, Man., Dec. 17.—Hon. G. R. Caldwell announced yesterday at the Western Grain Growers' Convention that, owing to the failure of the Premiers to achieve any co-operation in the matter, the Government of Manitoba had decided to adopt the policy of accepting the principle laid down by the grain growers of establishing a line of interior elevators as a public utility, owned by the people and operated for the public.

The Government was prepared, he stated, to co-operate with the association in carrying out that policy and working out a plan to that end, and he asked that a committee from the association prepare and file plans and meet the Government to prepare a bill to present to the next Legislature, which will meet sometime in February.

The announcement was a complete surprise to the convention, and when he sat down the delegates rose in a body and cheered enthusiastically, many being moved to tears.

Wissahickon Loss $12,000,000.

Buffalo, Dec. 17.—The Wissahickon, of the Anchor Transportation Co., Buffalo, wrecked on the Outer Duck Island, Lake Huron, was in command of Capt. Hugh Miller, of Ogdensburg, N.Y. She was one of the finest of the new type of boats on the Great Lakes, built in 1907. Her dimensions are: Gross tons, 4,062; length, 350 feet; beam, 46 feet.

This is the second disaster the Anchor Line has suffered this month, the first being the loss of the steamer Clarion, burned in Lake Erie, last week.

The Wissahickon was valued at $500,000, and the cargo at $700,000.

UNCLE WALT---THE POET PHILOSOPHER

RIENZI TO THE ROMANS

He stood erect, and having seen that artists for some magazine had sketched him in his proper pose, he cleared his throat, and blew his nose, and said: "Hi, Romans, you are slaves! You've not the price to buy your shaves! The good old sun's still on the turf, and his last beam falls on a serf! Great Scott, my friends, is freedom dead? O whence and whither do we tread? I view the future withalarm! We tremble 'neath the tyran t's arm, and ye may tremble, sons of Rome, until the muley cows come home, but you will still be in the hole, unless some fiery, dauntless soul, like me, shall lead you from the wreck, and soak the tyrant in the neck! And here I stand to cut the ice! I'm ready for the sacrifice! I'll save you, if a Roman can! As can-didate for councilman, I ask your votes, and if I win I'll swat the ty-rant on the chin. I'll represent the fourteenth ward, and represent it good and hard, and drive, the graft ers from their place, and kick the tyrant in the face! Corruption in our Rome will die, if you'll support your Uncle Ri!"

Christian Science Case.

Mt. Holly, N.J., Dec. 17.—At the request of the public prosecutor, the Burlington County Court yesterday entered a nolle prosequi in the case of Edwin M. Watson and his wife, who were convicted on a charge of manslaughter in May, 1908, for refusing to summon a physician for their seven-year-old son, who was ill with pneumonia, preferring to rely upon Christian science methods.

Following their conviction the case was carried to the State Supreme Court, which ordered a new trial on the ground that the trial judge had erred in his charge to the jury. In making the motion for the nolle prosequi yesterday the prosecutor said he was convinced that it would be impossible to secure a conviction that would be sustained if the accused parents were tried a second time.

The case excited great interest among Christian scientists throughout the country and many of them aided the defendants financially.

Hon. Ian Gordon Dead.

London, Dec. 17.—The Hon. Ian Archibald Gordon, third son of the Earl of Aberdeen, died yesterday from injuries received in an automobile accident. He was born in 1884.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Asquith to the Hon. Archibald Gordon was made last week, while Miss Asquith was in attendance on him in the hospital.

Deceased spent considerable time in Canada at the time of tenure of office of his father, Lord Aberdeen, as governor-general. He was only fourteen years of age then. He paid a visit to Ottawa about a year ago.

DEFENCE WITNESSES CONTRADICT POLICE

Sunday night from about 10.45 o'clock to about 5 o'clock on Monday morning. I was talking with Mr. Graham. Victor Fowler was also there and there might have been some others.

"Did you have a drink there that evening?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"I did not," replied the witness.

"Did you go into the passage way behind the bar and take a drink?"

"I did not."

"Two police officers have sworn here that you went into the passage way, and that Mr. Graham went into the bar, and handed you out a drink. What have you to say to that?"

"It is not true."

"You obtained no drink from him there either on Sunday night or Monday morning?"

"I obtained no drink from him there either on Sunday night or Monday morning?"

"I obtained no drink from him on either occasion."

"Did you see Ernie Lawrence there?"

"No, sir."

Witness explained that he did not know Lawrence at that time, but had met him since.

"If he had been there that night you would have seen him " asked Mr. O'Connell.

"Yes, sir."

"And you didn't see him?"

"No, sir."

"He couldn't have been there and you not see him?"

"I would certainly say that he was not there that night."

"Were you there when the 'bus came back from the midnight train?"

"Yes, sir."

The witness testified to seeing a number of travellers getting out of the 'bus and registering at the office.

"Did you see any of them go into the passage way behind the bar?"

"No, sir."

"Did Graham go into the passageway then?"

"No, sir."

The witness was cross examined at some length by Crown Attorney Wood.

"How long have you known George Graham?" asked Mr. Wood.

"About twenty years."

"You are somewhat of a sport, are you not?"

"It depends on what you call a sport."

"You are a chicken fancier are you not?"

"Well, yes."

"You fight cocks, do you not?"

"Sometimes."

"That was what you came to see Graham about, was it not?"

"Yes."

"To arrange a cocking main?"

"Not exactly. I wouldn't be fighting against Mr. Graham's birds, any way."

The witness admitted that he was not a teetotaler, but stated that he drank nothing else than lager, as a rule. He swore that he did not have a drink, with the exception of tea or coffee, or water, all the time that he was in Peterborough.

The Crown Attorney examined him at some length, as to whether or not he had gone for a walk with Mr. Graham on Monday morning early. Witness swore that he did not do so, and that he did not remember seeing Police Constable Adams on the street that morning.

"Do you remember anyone asking you "Are you looking for a store to burglarize?"

"No, sir."

Maunder stated that he had gone out with the prisoner early on Sunday morning and had walked west from the Oriental, but he stated that he was not familiar with the streets of Peterborough, and could not tell just where they had gone to.

Victor Fowler.

Victor Fowler, the next witness, testified that he lived in Peterborough and was employed by M. Pappas. He remembered being at the Oriental Hotel on Sunday night, Nov. 21. Maunder, Graham, and Larry Connors were there. Witness came there about 10.30 o'clock, and stayed until about two next morning, as nearly as he could remember. Witness had talked to Connors until he left for home shortly before twelve o'clock, and had then joined Maunder and Graham, and talked to them.

"Did you have a drink there that night?"

"I did not."

"Did you go into the passageway behind the bar?"

"No, sir."

"It has been said here by two police officers that Graham went into the bar and got a drink for Maunder and you. Is that true?"

"It is not true."

"Did Mr. Graham go into the bar at all?"

"I did not see him go in."

"Were you in his company all the time?"

"Yes."

"Then he couldn't have gone into the bar without you noticing it?"

"No, sir; he went back to the office once."

"Did he go elsewhere?"

"Not that I know of."

"Did you see Ernest Lawrence there that night "

"No, sir."

Could he have been there without you seeing him?"

"Not unless he came through the roof."

Mr. Wood examined the witness as to his occupation. Fowler replied that he was employed by Mr. Pappas and that he had worked at the C. G. E., at the water works dam, and at S. H. Knox and Company. He admitted that he made a practice of attending the fall exhibitions in the district.

"What do you do there?" asked Mr. Wood.

"I take your photo on a button for 30c."

"Have you any other schemes of roping in people?" asked the Crown Attorney.

Mr. O'Connell objected to the tone of the question.

"Of course you would not ask an offensive question," retorted Mr. Wood.

He was questioned closely as to playing games for money, and admitted that he did play billiards for money, and had played poker for money. "I am informed that you live by your wits"; said Mr. Wood; "that you make your livelihood by poker?"

"That is not so," replied the witness.

Fowler stated that he did not remember the travellers coming in off the bus from the midnight train that night.

"But you remember distinctly that Lawrence was not there that night and yet you can't remember the travellers, of whom it has been sworn that there were seven or eight?"

"I would be more likely to remember Lawrence because I know him," replied the witness.

Geo. N. Graham.

Geo. N. Graham was called to the box in his own behalf. He testified that he was proprietor of the Oriental Hotel and had been for seventeen years.

"Some of the witnesses here have been kind enough to say that it is the leading hotel in Peterborough," remarked Mr. O'Connell.

"Well, I have always thought it was until lately," replied the witness.

"You have heard the evidence about you selling drinks?"

"Yes, sir."

"It is said that you served drinks to Maunder and Fowler?"

"That is not true."

"Did you serve drinks to either of those two men?"

"Neither one."

"Did any one under your instructions serve them?"

"No, sir, they did not."

"Did you see Ernie Lawrence there that night?"

"I did not see him there on Sunday night or Monday morning."

The witness said that Maunder and he had been out for a walk on Sunday night at 8.30 o'clock and returned to the hotel at 10.30 o'clock, remaining with Maunder until about 5 o'clock the next morning. They were not out of the house afterwards except after Fowler had gone home, when they went out to the barn to look at some chickens that Maunder was to take home with him."

The witness testified that he could not have worked the cash register as the departments were locked by the two bartenders who took the keys away with them when they went on Saturday night. The witness knew nothing of the apparatus in the bar and stated that he would be unable with any certainty to get beer from the taps as he did not know which one contained beer. The taps were operated by water pressure and this was turned off when the bartenders left, so that it would be impossible to operate the taps unless the pressure was turned on again. He did not know how to do this and could not have operated the apparatus. He did not serve drinks to the travellers who came off the bus, simply assigning rooms to them as they registered.

"From the time you came back to the hotel on that Sunday night until you went to bed next morning, did you serve or sell a drink to anyone out of the bar?"

"I did not."

"What do you say to the statements that have been made by the police?"

"They are false."

The witness laughed at the statement made by P. C. Newhall that he had men on watch to prevent the police from coming in undetected.

The cross-examination by Crown Attorney Wood of the witness was a lengthy one, and a considerable part of it was taken up in discussing John Brown, the bell boy who was involved in the case. The witness stated that Brown had gone away because he had injured one of his, witness' horses and that he had been afraid that he would be punished. A letter was produced from the boy saying that he was sorry that he had acted as he did and asking to be taken back in Mr. Graham's employment.

"My learned friend seems to have been insinuating," remarked Mr. O'Connell, that you were instrumental in spiritin gthis boy away?"

The witness denied that there was anything whatever in such a statement.

Mr. T. J. McDonough, clerk of the Oriental Hotel, was called and gave evidence concerning the cash register. There were three keys to the apparatus he testified, one in possession of C. G. Graham, which opened the upper part of the register and the other two kept by the bartenders. These latter two were for the purpose of opening the lower compartment. The witness stated that the settee in the hotel was for the bell boys and that there were no arms on it.

Harry Stinson, bartender at the Oriental, corroborated the evidence given by previous witnesses as to the water pressure being turned off when the bartenders went away from the hotel and also as to the cash register being locked. He and the other bartender had a key and each locked his own apartment when he left.

To Mr. Wood the witness said that the water pressure was turned off by a tap in the cellar and could be operated by anyone who had access to it.

"It is only necessary to turn on a tap?" asked Mr. Wood.

"Yes."

At this point the court adjourned until this morning. The jurors were allowed to go to their homes, Judge Huycke warning them not to discuss the case with anyone.

A Few Doses Will Clean and Regulate the Kidneys and Make You Feel Fine.

A real surprise awaits every sufferer from kidney or bladder trouble who takes several doses of Pape's Diuretic. Misery in the back, sides or loins, sick headache, nervousness, rheumatism, pains, heart palpitations, dizziness, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelid, lack of energy, and all symptoms of out-of-order kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night), smarting, offensive and discoloured water and other bladder misery ends.

The moment you suspect kidney or urinary disorder, or feel any rheumatism, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

It is needless to feel miserable and worried, because this unusual preparation goes at once to the out-of-order kidneys and urinary system, distributing its cleansing, healing and strengthening influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realise it.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker, or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—any drug store—anywhere in the world.

THE MAN IN THE ORCHESTRA

By Cello.

The present theatrical season as far as Peterborough is concerned has been most satisfactory from the theatre-goers' standpoint in regard to the quality of the productions that have been presented at the Grand. The share of Shubert shows has been larger than might have been expected and without a single exception they have been thoroughly appreciated. Attractions brought here under this management have afforded the public the opportunity of seeing a number of prominent stars in our own city. Other productions have also received a warm welcome and on the whole the offerings have been most satisfactory. Lee Shubert in a recent interview gave his opinion that moving picture shows were killing one night stands insofar as the better class of legitimate attractions were concerned. This hardly applies to Peterborough. The city has its share of the nickel shows, but they have not usurped the place of the Opera House and are not likely to. Of course the management should know the situation and it is possible that considering all the one night stands together they may as a class be affected by the five cent shows, but Peterborough is not on the list. Mr. Shubert's statements in part are as follows:

"This class of entertainment already has wiped out the old form of popular price attractions," said Mr. Shubert yesterday, "and it looks as if the higher class may go too. As it is now, only companies headed by the famous stars presenting plays with an extended New York endorsement stand any chance to attract adequate patronage in the smaller towns.

"If the motion picture craze ever diminishes the one-night stands may be able to support good regular attractions once more. At present the real sufferers are the few people in those towns who really want to see high-class productions."

"The Time, the Place and the Girl," probably Jos. Howard's most successful musical comedy, comes to the Grand on Tuesday night with what is claimed to be a capable company. There is an amusing plot to this piece and many funny lines and amusing situations provide the comedy.

A feature of the production is the song numbers. Everyone is a hit, and Peterborough people will remember the potpourri of music from this show that the 57th band played during the summer. "The Waning Honeymoon," "It's Lonesome To-night," "Blow the Smoke Away," and "Don't You Tell" are a few of the real hits of the production. Arthur Deacon, who appeared in Peterborough in "Peggy From Paris," made a fine success of the role of Happy Johnny Hicks last year. It will likely be one of the best musical shows seen here this year.

Harry Lauder is the attraction at Massey Hall in Toronto next week and as on his former appearance last year, will likely appear before large houses every night. As an entertainer he was born to the art and rose from obscurity to one of the highest priced performers in modern vaudeville.

Knox Wilson who appeared at the Grand last season as April Fool in the Land of Nod is in another of Jos. Howard's musical shows in the west.

A few weeks ago Mme. Patti, celebrated her 50th appearance as an opera singer, her operatic debut having been made on Nov. 24, 1859, at the New York Academy of Music, when she appeared as Lucia. The future diva was then not 17, and even so, was scarcely a novice as she made her actual first appearance at a charity concert under Maretzek, as a child of seven, in 1850. It is interesting to compare the salaries Patti received with those paid to the great prima donna to-day. In the year of her operatic debut Strakosch paid her $100 a week; at her first London appearance in 1861 she received from Fredk. Lye $750 a month — and gave her first three performances for nothing. Previous to her marriage in 1869 her earnings never exceeded $600 a night, but later, when Nilsson was engaged for $1,600, Patti had $1,050. To-day there are many impressarios who would be glad to offer $5,000 and more for her services, for, it is said, the beautiful liquid notes, the perfect phrasing, and the wonderful magnetic charm of her voice have outlasted her 66 years—years which sit so lightly upon her that she still retains the slight girlish figure and the vivacious manner of the 17-year-old Amima who took London by storm half a century ago. Altogether it has been estimated that her voice has earned her something like $4,000,000.

Only successful remedies are ever imitated. It is evident that "D. & L." Menthol Plasters successfully relieve rheumatic pains, backache, pleurisy, etc. "The D. & L." have been so widely imitated Avoid disappointment. Get the genuine. Made only by the Davis & Lawrence Co.

Peterborough Merchants Have Many Fine Window Displays

Have Aimed at Many Suggestions to Christmas Buyers and Have Not Overlooked Artistic Designs —Some of the Stores That are in Holiday Array.

PEOPLE SHOPPING EARLY

The merchants of Peterborough report that the agitation for early Christmas shopping is bringing about the desired results, and a large number of people have already made the majority of their purchases. The merchants themselves have done their best to assist buyers and to induce them to get out of the old rut of waiting until the last minute, and then blindly buying anything to get through with it. During the past week the store windows have taken on the festive character, which, in its way, adds to the Christmas spirit. On every hand are reminders that are shown to good advantage, and from the wealth of display no one should be perplexed as to what they want to buy. The jewellery store windows are very attractive, and many of them have been attractively and artistically decorated to enhance the articles shown, and thereby to appeal to the passerby. It is a recognised fact that jewellery appeals to the feminine heart and no more pleasing gift can be selected for HER than one of the beautiful articles from the jeweller's show case. Clarke & Son, D. Milburn, F. S. Schneider & Co., Sanderson & Co., and S. C. Warne have given the decorating of their windows particular attention, and a great variety of suggestions are to be found on display and are but a small part of the wealth that is shown on the shelves, and in the show cases. Gifts of another character for Miladi are found in profusion in the drygoods stores, and the window dressers of some of these stores have worked out splendid designs for the Christmas season. A. W. Cressman & Son, Richard Hall & Son, The Bee Hive, Robert Fair & Co., Harry Adams, and Turnbull & Co. have not only fine holiday windows, but the stock that is found in their various departments is larger than ever, and a wide range of useful and beautiful articles are being selected from daily and will continue to solve the problem of Christmas buying during the remaining days that now intervene.

E. N. McWilliams has a display of furs that will surely be depleted by Christmas shoppers. Santa Claus has left a large number of the choicest furs for girls and the supply of fur coats, fur-lined coats, and other fur apparel awaits the inspection of those who have "the notion."

Wm. E. Lech's attractive windows convey to the purchaser an idea of the fine stock that is to be found in this splendidly equipped store. The clerks will only be too pleased to assist in any way those who are looking for articles in this line. W. Lech & Sons and Thos. Barrie are also well prepared for the Christmas trade.

The drug stores this year have given particular attention to their windows and many of them are receiving favorable comment upon the range of goods that enable selections for either him or her. McDermid & Jury, The Warne Drug Co., J. D. Tully and Wm. Madill are showing in their windows goods of quality particularly in ebony. Another popular line is that of fancy chocolates and bonbons in pretty boxes that are sure to meet the approval of the fair sex. In this respect James Haggis & Co. are making their first Christmas bow to the public of Peterborough, and have a delectable stock. Coleman Bros., as usual, are well provided for Christmas, and have a special line of fruit cake and English plum pudding that should find favour.

The grocers have been unusually careful in arranging holiday windows and many creditable ideas have been worked out. The grocers are carrying complete lines of fruit, nuts, candies, and the necessaries that go to complete the Christmas cheer. Among the windows deserving of recognition are those of White and Gillespie, R. A. Dutton, E. F. Mason, W. J. Routley, P. Connal and others.

The men's clothing stores are not to be overlooked. In fact, some of the nattiest windows in the city are shown by the clothiers. H. LeBrun & Co. have a fine showing of men's wear; Cressman & Son, A. M. Laidlaw, Merrell and Meredith, and several others have attractive window arrangements of the newest ideas in men's furnishings, offering easy solutions for those in search of little remembrances to HIM. The Peterborough Hardware Co. have one of the best windows on George street, and a feature is the wealth of articles that are on display. Men's smoking material, pipes, etc., constitute suitable gifts for men and Mr. M. Pappas has a very complete stock at reasonable prices.

The Knickerbocker Co. are spending their first Christmas in the city, and have not overlooked an attractive line of goods, some of which are shown in their window.

In leather goods Ben Shortly and R. F. McWhinnie have numerous distinctive lines that are considered among the most appropriate of gifts for the season that is near at hand. Stenson & Sons likewise are showing a classy window of shoes, which are always a necessity and particularly to complete a dressed appearance on Christmas.

For general suggestions A. H. Stratton & Co. have secured a line of goods that will simplify selections for everyone. The quality and class are outstanding and a large staff has been busy during the past week attending the wants of the early shopper. The Best Stove Co. have a distinctive window reminiscent of the season, and are also showing a fine display of cutlery and other articles that will be appreciated as gifts. In this class F. R. J. MacPherson & Co. have a well-stocked store, including all the goods of the ordinary hardware business. In the line of provisions and meats R. Cox and A. L. Talbot in his two stores, have an abundance of carefully selected beef. They have also arranged for a good supply of poultry and will be prepared for the Christmas rush.

One of the important features of the day will be the candy for the children and grown-up folk, too, for whom the occasion would be robbed of most of its pleasure if there was not a bountiful supply of sweetmeats. T. Hooper has not forgotten this fact, and has a choice line of creams, chocolates and bon bons. These are a few of the places where the person who is in doubt may easily have the difficulty relieved and instead of troubling over what he shall buy his or her Christmas shopping will be a profound pleasure.

You absolutely run no risk in buying Jewellery at Warne's, for quality is the best at reasonable prices.

POST CARD COLUMN.

Peterborough, Dec. 17, 1909

To the Editor, Post Card Column,

Dear Sir,—I notice by to-night's paper that Mr. Moore was knocked off the sidewalk by boys coasting on London street hill. I also know of several narrow escapes from similar "knock out blows," on this same and other hills in town. Coasting on a sidewalk is a dangerous and illegal practice which should be put a stop to by our police. Is it not time the proper authorities took a hand in and instructed our "force" as to their real duties and see that they fulfil them.

At present our policemen's time seems largely taken up in other directions to the neglect of (what the writer considers to be) their more legitimate and proper duties. Must some one be killed before this coasting practice is stopped?

Yours, etc.,

Citizen.

SHOULD ANSWER, SAYS CONSISTENCY

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I have read in your paper the letters from Mr. B. Lastar, in which he enclosed the questions submitted by him to the City Temperance and Moral Reform League. It seems to me not only that the letters are not offensive, but that they indicate a genuine desire on Mr. Lastar's part for some information on the points in question. It seems reasonable to me that the officers of the League should answer these questions either through the press or from the public platform.

Yours, etc.,

"CONSISTENCY."

DO IT NOW! AND AT STRATTON'S BOOKSTORE

No "beating about the bush" now—no running around any more, when gift-selecting can all be done at Stratton's. Cut out non-essentials. Begin at once. Start to-night! The sooner you come, the greater the pleasure. It's simply marvellous the thousands of things there are in this great bookstore to fascinae old and young on Christmas morning, and to make pleasure and education all the year round. It's far and away the handsomest gift shop in the Dominion. It contains twice, three times as much rare, costly and inexpensive, bright, new goods, right up to the colendar, than all the others put together. Prices are in the melting pot because ofthe change of business.—A. H. Stratton & Co., Peterborough Bookstore.

Meeting In East City In Support Of Local Option

In spite of the terrific and blinding snow storm, a most representative audience assembled in the Town Hall in Ashburnham, last night in support of local option.

Rev. C. H. Coon presided and expressed the delight that so many had braved the storm, and he knew that it would be the beginning of a more enthusiastic work in Ashburnham. He called upon Mr. Richard Lees, who had just made a thorough investigation of conditions in Owen Sound.

In dealing with the circulars that had been distributed and the Ontario Brewers' advertisement in the Examiner he showed that out of 85 charges for selling liquor this past year, 37 were convicted and out of 37, 35 were hotel keepers, which proves conclusively that instead of the blind pigs, it is the nefarious work of the old hotel men who are determined to put things on the rough, and it would be similar in Peterborough if tolerated. In every local option district there is a determined effort to discredit the law and to put poor drunks out on the street for stage effects.

Regarding the allegation that employees were less able for their work, Mr. Lees found the head of a large teamsters' company who declared with much emphasis that before local option he had always experienced untold difficulty in getting his men to work on Mondays, but since local option he had enjoyed the greatest ease, and his men had always been steady, and many of them became very worthy men.

Mr. Lees had called upon Mayor Harrison, and found that his worship who had never been in favour of local option had to admit that the figures scattered throughout Peterborough did not represent the true conditions of things in Owen Sound. As to the methods used in making the local option odious, Mr. Lees showed that during the visit of men who advertised their intention of getting the truth (?), they were taken to a cellar where a half a dozen boys were found sitting here and there near a keg of beer. The boys afterwards admitted that it had been prearranged and that they had not been in the habit of going to that place.

Mr. Lees contended that the strongest argument that could be used was the fact that Owen Sound after a good trial of local option for three years with all the forces against it sustained it with 400 majority.

Mr. H. S. Moore of Toronto, who has just returned from campaigning in the Far West, gave a capital address. He began by stating:

1. That the literature under the direction of the Brewers' Association put him in mind of the triumph of the Irishman who was on trial for stealing a hog. The jury decided "not guilty," and Pat explained that it was due to the fact that there was not a juryman but had a piece of the hog.

2. We are not fighting against men; we are fighting for men. The very men who to-day are selling liquor and will be better off and grateful because of what you do in removing the bar.

3. The apathy and cowardice of the Christian church leads us to believe that when Christian people arouse themselves the traffic cannot stand.

Mr. Magee then stated that all through Canada from Atlantic to Pacific wherever he had gone he found that local option had the right of way and was being generally adopted. In the Province of Quebec out of 1060 constituencies, 664 are under prohibition.

THIS SHOULD BRING YOU OUT TO-NIGHT

To-night from 6.30 to 9.30, at the Peterborough Bookstore, this extra special in Bibles is offered:

Oxford Teachers' Bibles, with Concordance, and References, solid Leather Binding, yapped, worth $1.50 each, to-night only 98c.—A. H. Stratton & Co.

Young Man of Means and Education Wants to Learn Farming in Canada

The following letter from the Old Country received by Mr. George Howson speaks for itself and any person who feels that he would like to secure the young man referred to is requested to write Mr. Howson or call at his office.

G. H. Howson, Esq.
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—A friend of one of our Directors wishes to place his son, a young man of 20, on a farm for the purpose of getting Canadian experience previous to his buying land or an improved farm. Naturally he is anxious to get him with good people and on an up-to-date farm. He has just passed through an Agricultural College course, is a strong, healthy lad and a willing worker.

His friends are prepared to pay his board (if necessary) for the winter months with the understanding that he is paid wages on the opening of the spring season. His friends insist upon his having a place to go direct to otherwise we should have adopted the ordinary course and given him a letter of introduction to you through the Ontario or Dominion office here.

If you know of a really good up-to-date farmer we shall be obliged if you will send us his address, or better still, and it would save time, if he would write full particulars of what he is able to do.

Thanking you in anticipation.

Your faithfully,

Turkeys In Abundance On The Market This Morning

Plentiful Supply of Everything But Eggs—Farmers' Wives State That To-day is the Real Christmas Market—Supply of Turkeys is Not Exhausted, However.

MARKET HALL CROWDED

Coming towards the centre of the city this morning between the hours of 8.3 and 10.30 o'clock a veritable stream of people wended their way in unbroken procession toward the market, the Mecca of the Christmas buyer. Gradually the change was noticeable and shortly after eleven these same crowds turned their way homeward. There was one particular difference. On their way to the heart of the city arms were swinging freely in accompaniment to the brisk walk enjoying the fine weather and baskets were thrown loosely over the arm or dangled loosely in from the hand. On the home trip, however, the basket was heavy with butter, eggs and other produce while the other hand was closed over the legs of a turkey or goose.

A BIG MARKET

It was assuredly most gratifying to witness the crowds as they surged through the market hall, up and down the stairs and around the walk on the outside. The farmers and their zealous wives were masters of the situation and some who have not been behind the long benches for months appeared this morning with baskets piled with poultry, particularly and butter and eggs were not forgotten. It was almost out of the question to move easily among the crowd and the ever present small boy had the time of his life trying to elude his comrades much to the annoyance of some of their elders. One old lady wearing a smart Persian lamb coat and altogether appearing dressy and almost "chic" was pushed to one side by a small boy and as the crowd seemed to be all converging toward her she reacted toward the boy, who with characteristic impudence of the day looked at her and said "Go easy Mabel," somewhat to the amusement of those who had noticed the incident.

TURKEYS WERE DEAR

Or course as would naturally be expected the turkey reigned supreme having come to its own after chickens and ducks and geese had been in the spot light on the other 50 Saturdays of the year. They were there in all sizes from the pigeon type to the American Eagle or Australian Ostrich dimensions. No they were not given away. The farmers have never yet held a fire sale or a Saturday morning special and as long as they are farmers they never will. But the prices did not seem exorbitant when it is understood that several grocers were offering 18 cents a pound for this favourite fowl of Christmas. The quotations ranged from $1.25 to $3.00 and it was a "cinch" to pick out the newly married people to those with a family of which they were justly proud. The lowest priced turkey was good enough for two and the other extreme appeared at first glance to be big enough for a hotel. The popular price was about $2.00 and a large number were bought up at that price.

TORONTO BEYER

It was not long after the market crowd arrived that a rumour was passed around to the effect that a stronger was buying up all the turkeys he could get at prices that were quoted from 18 to 20 cents a pound. Reference to this will be found in another column. An Examiner reporter enquiring among the women was informed that there would not likely be a big supply of poultry next week. They spoke only for themselves but remarked that they thought the same applied generally throughout the country. Mrs. Thos. Sisson of Otonabee from behind a pile of turkeys said she would not be back with poultry next Saturday. One of the birds in front of her weighed 25 pounds and was valued at $3.00. Mrs. Dean of North Smith was another who did not think there would be much of a poultry market during the coming week. Whatever the conditions are immediately before Christmas it is not expected that there will be anything like the display this morning.

OTHER PRICES

Butter sold at 25 cents and eggs at an even 35. Geese were rather plentiful at from $1.25 to $1.50.

Beef at 6 and 7 cents respectively for fronts and hind quarters, pork at 12 and 13 cents and lamb at 10 and 11 cents were found in sufficiency for the demand. The market also showed many loads of wood and in no one line was there an over supply but all the necessities were to be had in what might be called an abundance.

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN.

The matter appearing in this space from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform League of this City, who have arranged for its Publication.

Three Attempts to Discredit Local Option

The liquor interests in Peterborough have at last shown their hand. For eleven months the advocates of Local Option have invited the supporters of the Open Bar to come forward and discuss the question on its merits. This they have declined to do. Within the past few days, however, they have made three contributions to the discussion of the question. First, distributing a pamphlet entitled "A Thoughtful Article for Thoughtful People," on Local Option and prohibition. This article is written by the Rev. W. A. Wasson, whose address is not given. Second, they have distributed a bill entitled "Owen Sound's awful record," in which they have attempted to prove the drunkenness and crime in Owen Sound have increased since the adoption of Local Option. Third, they have distributed a pamphlet entitled "Where Local Option Fails." The author of this article is not given, it simply being that the facts were sifted by a Toronto newspaper man.

Only a brief examination of these various articles shows how weak the side of the liquor interests is. The fact that they do not give the post office address of the Rev. Dr. Wasson, indicates that they do not care to have this man's record examined and exposed to the people of Peterborough. The Temperance Workers of Peterborough, however, have been making investigations and have secured information that leads to the conclusion that the Rev. Mr. Wasson is a paid campaign worker for the liquor interests of the United States. Might we ask why the advocates of the Open Bar do not bring the Rev. Mr. Wasson to Peterborough to speak o nthis question. The Temperance Workers are bringing speakers not only from various points in Ontario, but from the United States as well. These men are prepared to argue the question on its merits. Their names and addresses are given. Rev. Mr. Wasson claims that prohibition has proved a failure in Georgia. As the arguments put forth in this pamphlet were effectively answered in the Opera House last Sunday afternoon by Mr. Irwin, K.C., of Toronto, and as many of them were answered in this clumn last week, further notice of this pamphlet seems unnecessary.

Next Wednesday night the Temperance League will have the Hon. Seaborn Wright, a well known public man of Georgia, address a mass meeting in the Opera House, here, on this question. This speaker will be prepared to demonstrate conclusively that prohibition has been a success in Georgia.

Only Part of the Facts Given

The dodger purporting to show an increase of crime in Owen Sound affords another indication of how the cause of the liquor interests has to be poultised up. It is significant that this dodger reports convictions for only six months in each year, instead of for the full year. Those are the six months of the year when sailors from distant points frequent the city. The fact also that this dodger is not signed by any person shows that no one cares to father it. The City Temperance League stand by anything that it publishes. Why are our opponents not willing to do the same. More extended reference is given to this dodger below in this article.

As regards the pamphelt entitled "Where Local Option Fails," it is significant that it also is not fathered by any person, not even the name of the Toronto newspaper man being given. What is wanted in this campaign is clear cut, definite statements made by men who are not afraid or ashamed to make their identity known.

What About Owen Sound?

The dodger entitled "Owen Sound's Awful Record," claimed that crime was three times greater under local option that under license, and that local option had debauched Owen Sound. In support of this are quoted some police court returns for a part of each year since 1903. Why were not the returns for the full year given in each case? If this had been done the story would have beensom ewhat different. But, admitting that the figores are correct as far as they go, does it necessarily follow that they prove the "shocking" condition that is claimed for them?

Testimony of Citizens

A representative of the Peterborough Temperance League in Owen Sound this week made an honest and vigorous effort to arrive at the truth. It was found that the testimony is almost unanimous that crime of every sort has greatly decreased under local option. This is especially the case in the class "Drunk and Disorderly," though it is there that the convictions seem to show the greatest increase. People of every class were consulted, including merchants, manufecturers, hotel-keepers, draymen, labourers, ministers and school teachers. The testimony as to the decrease of crime is so general that one is forced to the conclusion that everyone, who is honest and whose opinion is not wrapped by prejudice believes it. Many who were and still are opposed to local option on other grounds, admit that it is not true that crime has increased under the operation of the by-law.

The Explanation.

It is well known that before the abolition of the open bar, Owen Sound had a most unenviable reputation for drunkenness, so much so that it is admitted by the authorities that under the former order of things practically no attempt was made to suppress drunkenness. No man was arrested unless he was engaged in some violent disorder

The Chief of Police, wile not friendly to Local Option, does not believe that it has increased crime in any such way as is indicated by the number of convictions. Other members of the force, who were familiar with conditions both before and since the advent of Local Option, state freely that there is a marked decrease in the number of drunks to be seen on the streets.

Newspaper editors, business men, and others can be seen in Owen Sound who are emphatic in their statement that no more liquor is now sold illegally during prohibited hours under license, and this present law is being violated by the very same people who violated the license law. The statement was made by several people that had all the drunks been dun in dur.., the last week of license the number would be greater than for any whole year since.

Owen Sound's Answer.

Every ratepayer of Peterborough, when confronted with statements like those referred to, should remember that the men and women of Owen Sound ware given a year ago a chance to reply to such statements. Notwithstanding the fact that money was freely spent, cart loads of literature were distributed, the most eloquent advocates that money could procure were put on to exhibitate on the beauties of an open bar, and the evil and debauchery of Local Option, yet the people who were on the ground and knew the situation as we cannot hope to, declared by a large majority that the present condition was to be preferred to the former. That was their answer, most emphatically expressed, and it ought to convince every reasonable person that Local Option is proving a success in Owen Sound.

WHAT LABOUR LEADERS SAY.

"The damning curse to the labourer is that which gurgles from the neck of the bottle."—T. V. Powderly.

"Labour leaders are alive to the menace that the saloon is to the progress of working men. When the Toronto Labour Temple was founded a clause was put in its constitution totally excluding intoxicating liquor from the premises."—James Simpson, Delegate A.F.L.

"The destruction of the poor is their poverty, and the present licensing system is the chief cause of the present time poverty, debasement and weakness of the poor.—John Burns, M.P., English Labour Leader.

"So far as my observation goes, drunkenness was at the bottom of all misery (in workingmen's homes), and not the industrial system or the industrial conditions surrounding the men and their families."—Ex-U. S. Commissioner of Labour Carroll D. Wright.

"The use of liquor and its influences have done more to darken labour's homes, dwarf its energies and chain it hand and foot to the wheels of corporate aggression than all other influences combined."—R. F. Travelick, President of National Eight Hour League.

"If a brewery is closed down, in its place springs up a factory. If a saloon is closed, in its place comes a store. It is simply a process well known to union men, the same process as follows the introduction of machinery. It is a readjustment, a changed condition of society. Almost every disturbance in the ranks of organized labour can be traced back to some connection with the saloon."—John Mitchell, Vice-President A.F.L.

"The purpose of the trade union is to raise the standard of living. What about the saloon? Is there a man who will dare to say that there is any influence from the saloon except to lower this standard, and make man less manly and women less womanly? I don't know a solitary principle for which the labour movement stands but that the saloon is on the other side of the question."—John P. Lenbon, Treasurer A. F. L.

"The day will come when practically every labour leader will be a total abstainer. Why, just a little time ago across the line the bar-tenders in one town organized a total abstinence society. Why shouldn't labour leaders do the same? I would not have you conclude that I think there are no good labour leaders who drink. There are, some of the first in the ranks. Yet it seems to me, other things being equal, the man who is the total abstainer is the best man.—Rev. Charles Stelsle, Delegate A. F. L.

The Position of the Catholic Church.

Every now and then the insinuation is made that the Catholic Church is not in favour of attempts to regulate or vote out the liquor traffic. A pamphlet now being circulated in Peterborough by advocates of the open bar, makes such an attempt.

That this is not the case we have shown repeatedly in these columns. The subjoined paragraphs are taken from statements respectively made by His Eminence, Cardinal Manning, and Archbishop John Ireland:

I impeach the liquor traffic of high crimes and misdemeanours against the commonwealth, and I ask you, in the name of common sense and common justice, can you withhold from those entrusted with the high responsibility of the ballot the power of applying their votes in the form of a veto when it is proposed, without consulting them, to put in the midst of them these places for the sale of intoxicating drinks?

We thought we meant business years ago in this warfare, but I hope God will forgive us for our weakness, for we went into the battlefield without sufficient resolution. We laboured under the fatal mistake that we could argue out the question with the rum-sellers. We imagined that there was some power in moral suasion that when we would show them the evil of their ways they would abandon the traffic. We have seen that there is no hope of improving in any shape or form the liquor traffic. There is nothing now to be done but to wipe it out completely.

What Has The Bar Done For You?

THE ONWARD MARCH

Just as steadily and surely as the intelligent public opinion of Anglo-Saxon civilization wiped out feudalism, autocracy, slavery, privateering and other barbarities, that public opinion is steadily and surely moving on towards the complete suppression of the common traffic in intoxicating beverages. Every year requires a reconstruction of the maps of Canada, Great Britain, New Zealand, Australia and the United States, to show the enlargement of the area from which legalized temptations to drink indulgence have been removed.

The Year Book of the Anti-Saloon League of the United States has just been issued and is, as usual, packed full of useful information and records of progress that are gratifying and inspiring. We have pleasure in copying from it a map showing the proportions of "wet" and "dry" territory in the great Republic. This map represents the situation as it was on January 1st of the present year. The States shown in white have State-wide prohibitory laws. Those that are black have no Local Option legislation. Those partly shaded and partly white have large areas, brought under prohibition through Local Option. The shaded and and white parts represent, respectively, the areas in which licenses are not granted.

It will be noted that the State of Maryland is partly black and partly white. It has no Local Option law, but ten of its twenty-three counties are under prohibition by special legislative enactment. The Year Book sets out in detail, with a separate map, the situation in each State, and a summary of the whole, made up by Collier's Weekly, is subjoined for the information of our readers:

What Has The Bar Done For You?

THE TALE OF THE OLD GRAFTER

The following tale of the Old Grafter is from the Christmas number of the Bill Board:—

The old grafter had corns on his knuckles from holding greenbacks between his fingers.

He looked a trifle seedy about the costume, but his mustache was waxed—the mustache, too, was dyed, and you saw the reason when he took his hat off. The Old Grafter wore a celluloid collar and a polka-dotted dickey and when his vest was open it showed up the shyness of his linen.

The Concert Manager was springing gossip about the principal clown, who was having trouble with his wife, who did the front-jaw swing. He saw the Old Grafter coming across the ring, and he stopped, for it was pretty well known that the old-timer wouldn't stand for scandal.

The Old Grafter bit off enough tobacco from the canvasman's plug to make a comfortable quid and then sat down on the snake box. He was looking sad and there was silence. Presently he sent a splash of juice up against the centre pole and, after shifting the quid, he opened up.

"Say, fellers, I've been cuttin' the cards since old John Robinson had money in tent shows an' I've come to the verdict, it's this—when you've got the green in your pocket and the suckers is tipped off they'll crowd you as thick as flies on the popcorn pile, but when there ain't no coin to jingle you kin get so lonesome that you'll go to bed with a hot water bottle for company."

This bit of wisdom impressed the gang, for no one spoke, and the Old Grafter threw his reversing bar and chinned out this:

"The old days is gone an' they's left the circus graft on the weedy aidin', with no round trips back to the lan' of promise. Them was the one-ring days an' in them times there was always fodder for the hogs. Today it's one ring, two rings, three rings and a stage—the biggest tent on earth, but for the grafter—nothin', nothin'. Me, what used to turn the shank of the week with a bigger wad than the principal bareback gets, me makes to-day a dirty twenty on percentage an' sellin' reserved seats. I'm ashamed to look the old days in the face. Why, say, in them days, many a time, the proprietor of the Big Show was touchin' the grafter for cash when business was bad, an' today, so diff'rent, so diff'rent—if I gets a poker play on the train an' the ante's a nickel, I've got to reach twice to find the coin. If I'd had the good sense that's in Bill McGinnis' head I'd a bought a little road tavern like he did twenty years ago an' I'd a-had a bank took roostin' back of the bar. But I think there's still somethin' doin' my end I waits an' loses—an' what do I get? A couple of treasuries and some change at the pay-off durin' the season, with crackers an' cheese for me an the old woman in the winter. It's the diff'rence between horseradish an' sawdust an' it's got me slippin' back.

"I'll tell you fellows somethin' about the old days. 'Twas 'bout '76, an' we was graftin' with a one-ring outfit. We struck good crops an' sunny weather in the one-nighters in the Ohio Valley. The farmers had money an' there was peaches in the orchard for every boy with the troupe that had a bag of tricks. Everybody was standin' in on the graft an' we had a fixer two days ahead, so there'd be no call. We was carryin' a cat with the lay-out an' four tin-horns that was science on faro an' tunin' the wheel. The big game was invited to the car an' there was allus a set-out an' somethin' to drink. The little fish was worked on the lot an' there was days, many days, when the graft was mor'n the ticket wagon count-up and the rake-off was loafin' 'bout par, continuous. Good days, them, me boys, for everybody, from the boss of the outfit down to the stake driver. Money was coming easy, and when there was any protestin' on the part of the patrons and it got to fists, or guns play, we passed along the 'Hey Rube,' and there was fun-lyshurg till mornin, if they was looking for battle.

"The best burg we hit was a little settlement where we had a two-mile haul up the pike from the track to a lot. Everything was ripe for graftin' an' we was ready for the harvest. Seems like a reform committee had to hit down all the games an' the folks was hungry for gamblin'. The posters in No. 1 Car piped us off on conditions an' it was said that paste spreaders travelled off with a roll from stud poker in the car after the bills was on the stands.

"They was on the lots waitin' for us when the boss landed to lay off the pitch for the roun' top we wus only usin' one of them an' had no animals to speak of. The fakers got into the game early an' transparent cards from gay Paree was the first bait an' bitin' was good. 'Fore the parade started all hands was busy on the lot takin' care of the games an' say, the farmers had it with 'em in rolls. The foxy boy in the ticket wagon has all his bad coin ready an' the constable with the badge has been fixed with a ten to see there's no argument when short change is handed out.

"Oh, we worked systematic them days.

"Well, say, before the Land had struck up the grand march for the entree, gold bricks wus sellin' like codfish cakes at a nigger camp meetin' an' the boys whot was workin' the shells had to lay off to get the stiffness out'er their fingers.

"I hates to tell it. I hates to tell it in the days there's nothin' doin'.

"You see, I was cappin' for the boss of the show, an' say, that day keeps me busier than a man drivin' sheep. The outfit was gettin' thirty-five per cent. of the graft an' if the particular grafter who was gettin' the coin failed to come up we see's that he was properly turned over to the officers of the law an' we did the prosecution on the groun' that we was runnin' a strictly moral show. Say, while I was watchin', a farmer with a bunch of weeds under his chin and a face like a quince comes up to me an' makes a holler. Somebody had touched him for his wad 'fore he could get to the games an' he was dead sore. I see'd that he was goin' to make trouble, so I remembers that his wagon is standin' in the dirt road by the lot. I gives a stakeman the tip, he kicks the off bay in the flank an' there's a runaway. The corn-cutter chases after his team an' for the first he ever had a roll.

"An' say, at night, down in the car, the air was hot. The tin horns was busy an' coin was droppin' like rotten apples in a mill race. The boys what was dealin' the faro had monkeyed with the deck an' it was all to the bad for the spenders. 'Bout time to start hanlin' for the cars two hurly boys begins to talk fight an' it looks like Hey Rube all aroun'. One sticks his knuckles into me face an' I says to him, sort'er fierce, like: "Say, young feller, if you's lookin' for a fight I'll git one of the boys to stick his teeth in your neck an' you'll change your mind.'

"There was no gun playin, but there was a lot of chinnin' an' cussin', but we finally gets the tin horns out an 'starts 'em up to the first section. The gang is hot after us an' there was only one thing saved us. Jes' as the crowd was closin' in, I sees the tiger den with the two blacks pullin' it comin' over the hill. I chases forward to the trainer an' when the cage gits up close we jes' shoves them two tin horns gamblers in the den with the tigers an' saves their lives."

"Never could make a return date there, could you, Bill?" asked the boss canvasman, as he made one of the spotted coach dogs jump through his hands.

"Return date? well, I should reckon. Went back there in two months an' still foun' 'em ripe. But there was only one way to do it. The boss had to paint over all the cars an' waggons an 'change the name of the show. The hay boys thought it was a new outfit."

THE TRUTH ALWAYS

"When you are in doubt tell the truth." It was an experienced old diplomat who said this to a beginner in the work. It may pass in some things, but not in business. Fraud and deception are often profitable so long as concealed; yet detection is certain sooner or later; then comes the smash-up and the punishment. The best and safest way is to tell the truth all the time. Thus you make friends that stick by you, and a reputation that is always worth twenty shillings to the pound everywhere your goods are offered for sale. We are able modestly to affirm, that it is on this basis that the world-wide popularity of rests. The people have discovered that this medicine is exactly what it is said to be, and that it does what we have always declared it will do. Its nature also has been readily made known. It is palatable as honey, and contains all the curative properties of pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh Cod Livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. A combination of supreme excellence and medicinal merit. Nothing has been so successful in Anemia, Scrofula, Bronchitis, Influenza, Loss of Flesh, Wasting Diseases, Weakness and Low Nervous Tone, and complaints caused by Impure Blood. Dr. F———— of Canada, says: "I have used it in cases where cod liver oil was indicated, but could not be taken by the patient, and the results following were very gratifying." It is effective from the first dose and agrees with the most sensitive and nervous stomachs. It cannot deceive or disappoint you, and comes to the rescue of those who have received no benefit from any other treatment. "Do not accept a substitute." Sold by all chemists everywhere throughout the world.

THE LATEST NEWS OF SPORT — TOLD IN BRIEF FORM

TORONTO GETS DELEHANTY AND TWO OTHER PLAYERS

Toronto, Dec. 17.—In addition to Joe Delehanty, for whom a deal was closed last night, the Toronto management hopes by to-night to have two other players, one a young catcher who was drafted by half a dozen big league clubs and the other a major league outfielder of high class. The waiver time limit on the catcher will be purchased for a fat sum, providing that the club whose property he is agrees to sell.

"The selection of a training ground in the south has been left entirely in the hands of Manager Kelley," said President McCaffery, who returned yesterday from the big base-ball pow-wow in New York. "The Leafs will train either in Virginia or farther South. The lack of opposing teams is a great drawback at Chatham, although the training quarters there are ideal in all other respects. Then, too ,when a team is in the South, as the major leaguers are working their way North there is more opportunity for keeping in touch with the managers who have good material to dispose of."

It is the intention of the management to have several baseball dignitaries present at the opening of the new grounds at the Island. Mr. Solman is devoting a great deal of time to the new park and will call it "The Island Stadium."

CANADIAN ATHLETES ARE TO TAKE PART IN BUFFALO MEET

Toronto, December 17.—When Bobby Kerr goes to Buffalo to compete in the 74th Regiment indoor meet on New Year's Eve he will take with him Eddie Farrel and Charlie Morgan, two very promising Hamilton youngsters, Morgan was a sprint winner at the inter-scholastic meet here at Varsity field. Kerr, will of course, run from scratch in the handicaps. He is in active training and going like the wind.

The University of Toronto relay team, intercollegiate champions of Canada and winners over St. Thomas, London and Woodstock at the latter city, will all go to Buffalo.

Halbaus will run the first 220 yards, Lou Sebert the next 400 yards, Sheppard the next 664 yards and Wright finish the race by running the last half mile. The Buffalo team will have to go some to beat Varsity as every runner is a crack man at his distance. Sebert will meet Watson, the Pennsylvania student, who summers in this district and who has a victory over Fred Dent in the 220 to his credit.

Jack Tait, the Toronto middle-distance boy, is due to meet Paul, the University of Pennsylvania crack, in a special mile race and as Paul is the holder of the American intercollegiate record, Tait will have his hands full.

He is a magnetic speaker and no doubt the meetings which he is to address will be full of interest.

CHRISTMAS TREES ARE FROM CANADA

New York, Dec. 18.—Prices of Christmas trees and holly are going up. Several reasons are assigned by the "green goods" men, but their principal complaint is scarcity in the old fields, which are fast being cleared, and the fact that they had to send to Canada this year to obtain an adequate supply. There is an import duty of from $6 to $8 a carload on the Canadian trees, and the cost of transportation largely enters into final cost.

This is the first time Christmas trees were ever imported into New York. Heretofore a sufficient supply has been found in the Catskills and Adirondack mountains. From 100 to 120 carloads of trees are sold in this city each year, and on the last three or four days preceding Christmas.

In some places, it is said, the Forestry Bureau has put a ban on cutting small spruce trees for Christmas, as they make good lumber. The balsam trees, another variety used at Christmas, never grow to any large size and are worthless for any other use. Trees will be retailed this year in prices ranging from 25 cents to $25, the latter price for the large trees used in church entertainments.

THREE MONTHS

Young Weaver of Hiawath Was Found Guilty of Giving Tobico Whiskey.

Ernest Weaver was fined $50 this morning by Magistrate Dumble or the alternative of 3 months in gaol for giving Robert Tobico, of Hiawatha a flask of whiskey on September 26th, 1908. The magistrate preferred to believe that Tobico had obtained the "fire-water" from Weaver on this side of the river rather than that he stole it out of Weaver's pocket. The latter did not have the necessary lucre and chose to hibernate on the hill.

SPORT NOTES

It will answer several correspondents to say that there has been no change, directly or indirectly in the constitution and policy of the Ontario Hockey Association. Players who have taken part in games with or against professionals are not eligible to play in the O.H.A., nor is there any power to make them so. It is immaterial, under the rule, whether they were paid or not.—Toronto Globe.

"From Cabin t o Castle" is the "fetching" headline on the letter-paper use by Manager Sol Mints, who looks after the business arrangements of Tom Longboat. The cabin on the Grand River reserve, where the Onondaga runner was born, and his present-day mansion in Galley avenue are the points to which the line refers. Even the telephone in Tom's new house is a long-distance affair. The races that Longboat has been running at various places about the Province have fitted him for a hard contest Mr. Mints says, and he is now ready for any opponent.—Toronto Globe.

Mistake In the Bill.

A gentleman, says Modern Women, who recently returned from a tour in Spain tells this story:

I left Seville on foot after a stay of a week and was twenty miles away when I was overtaken by the landlord of the hotel in which I had stayed. The innkeeper rode beside me for nearly an hour before he found courage to make known his business.

"'F the senor and God please," he began apologetically, "I made a mistake in his bill yesterday."

"How?" I inquired.

"I forgot to make a charge for his candles to light him to bed."

"But it was moonlight, and I had no candles."

"Then, senor, with the help of God, I forgot to charge you with the moonlight."

The charge amounted to 2 cents in American money, and he had hired an ass and ridden twenty miles to collect it. I was amused and astonished. Then I accused him of being a robber and offered him a cent to settle the bill. He worked up a beautiful smile and held out his hand.

"I will take it, with thanks, senor," he said. "God will bless you for an honest man!"

First Mortgage Bonds.

By reason of the insistence of many investors that their bonds be of "first" mortgage it may be said that the importance of the word "first" is dependent upon the circumstances, says Moody's Magazine. A bond may be first in fact. It may be so only in a relative sense in that it indicates the order in which the bond was put out by the issuing company or the use of the term "first" in the name of a bond, undesirable and loose though it be in such instances, may be upon the slight ground that the mortgage is indeed first on some part of the property, while on other parts it may have but a third or fourth claim. It is therefore obvious that the mere presence of this term in a title does not necessarily make the bond an absolutely prior lien. It has been estimated that 95 per cent in number and 95 per cent in value of steam railroad "firsts" are first liens in name only.

The First Sleeping Car.

The first real sleeping car was built in 1864. It was called the Pioneer, and the builder further designated it by the letter "A," not dreaming that he would soon exhaust the letters of the alphabet. The Pioneer was built in a Chicago and Alton shop and cost the almost fabulous sum of $18,000. That was reckless extravagance in a year when the best of railroad coaches could be built at a cost not exceeding $4,500. But the Pioneer was blazing a new path in luxury. Without it was radiant in paint and varnish, in gay stripes and lettering. It was a giant compared with its fellows, for it was a foot wider and two and a half higher than any car ever built before. It had the hinged berths that are the distinctive feature of the American sleeping car today, and the porter and the passengers no longer had to drag the bedding from closets at the far end of the car.—Outing.

Cape of Good Hope.

In 1487 Bartholomew Dias sailed far enough south along the western coast of Africa not only to descry but to double the Cape of Storms, as it was then called, and as the coast was ascertained to run toward the northeast the prospect of success in the direction of India seemed now so clear that the Portuguese monarch renamed the cape "Cabo de Boa Esperausa," or Cape of Good Hope. The "good hope" was realised in 1498 by Vasco da Gama, who, doubling the southernmost point of Africa, sailed on to Calicut, thus opening up the long dreamed of route to India.

He Wasn't Glad.

Steve Long is noted for attending to his own business and saying very little about it. One morning an iquisitive neighbor met him returning from the woods with his gun over his shoulder.

"Hello, Steve! Where hev ye been—a-shootin'?"

"Yep."

"What ye been a-shootin'?"

"Dog."

"Yer dog? My! Was he mad?"

"Want, he didn't look so danged well pleased."—Everybody's Magazine.

The Blind Leading the Blind.

Neither Mabel nor Willie has quite mastered the intricacies of English pronunciation, but each delights in correcting the other's mistakes. Last Sunday, while the family was at dinner, Mabel said:

"Please pass the dravy."

Willie saw his chance and quickly exclaimed:

"Well, Mabel! If I couldn't say dravy I'd say drease."—Woman's Home Companion.

Pretty Ancient.

"Billinger has some very ancient airs in his new comic opera."

"Ancient! Say, I'll bet he has gone back for some of them to the time when the morning stars sang together!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Double Job.

"Tell me—ah—are you a—er—ah—a good, careful, excellent cook and a—er—a very superior laundress?"

"Ah-h-h! Wot d'ye take me fer—twins?"—Harper's Weekly.

Passing of the Organ Blower.

"The organ blower is passing. He will soon be, like the armorer, extinct," said a musician. "It's a pity. He was a quaint type.

"Most of my blowers were simple minded old chaps who firmly believed they must suit their blowing to the music. In soft, light passages they blew soft and light. When the crescendos thundered forth they worked frantically, blowing with all their might and main.

"Often a facetious reporter on the local paper would refer to 'the excellent blowing of the organist's assistant, Mr. Bellows.' Then the blower in his vanity would develop all the affectations of a Paderewski or a Sousa. Now he'd blow delicately, a dreamy smile on his lips, his eyes half closed. The music would change to a march, and he'd stamp his foot in time, while up, down, up, down, the old bellows, in time also, would be jerked. At a climax his face would redden, he'd bend to his task and blow so fast and furious that the organ would nearly burst."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Another Case of Faith.

"I wrote a medical friend of mine in London about a curious discovery which I made recently quite by chance, but which I shall never publish to the world through the scientific journals," said a Brooklyn doctor last week.

"Not long ago this friend sent me about fifty little dark colored pellets, and he wrote me that they were a new combination of drugs that he had found particularly good in cases of brain fag. He asked me to try them on my patients and report. During the next month or so I doled out the pellets to several of my patients who came around complaining of tired nerves. All of them said that the medicine did them a lot of good. Yesterday, however, I was going through my office desk and discovered those pellets from London intact in the plain envelope in which I had placed them. A hurried but anxious investigation disclosed that I had been administering to my nerve weary patients some wisteria seed that my wife had gathered, put in a plain envelope and laid inadvertently on my office table."—Exchange.

No Lie After All.

They were telling fish stories, and at last the tall, lank man on the cracker barrel said:

"I went down to the river this morning, and, although the water was high almost to a flood, I took a ten foot pike"—

"Stop there!" exclaimed the fat man with the corncob pipe. "Tell us you took an eight pound trout, and I'll sit idly by, but a ten foot pike—never! Ananias died for less than that."

"I took a ten foot pike pole," continued the unruffled tall, lank man on the cracker barrel, "and in less than five minutes I hooked out a fifteen foot bass"—

"See here! See here!" yelled the man who owned the grocery. "You'll have to go way from here to finish that lie. I hain't got no lightnin' rod on this store yit."

"I hooked out a fifteen foot bamwood log," persisted the tall, lank man, "and I want to ask how much you think I kin git for it."

Not Aptly Worded.

An absurdly worded statement of a fact which was not in itself remarkable recently tried the gravity of the listeners. It was on the occasion of the funeral of an elderly woman in a New England town. She had left an old mother, nearly ninety years of age, and an only son who was well on toward fifty.

The services were conducted by a timid young clergyman recently settled over the parish. After praying for many and various things he said:

"And two we especially pray that the Lord will comfort and sustain in their loss and sorrow. One is the orphan, who, although no longer young, is an orphan still and must so continue. The other is the mother, far advanced in years, who has survived her daughter, although considerably her senior."—Youth's Companion.

Physicians in Japan.

Medical students in Japan must have had eleven or twelve years of preliminary training in the lower schools. No one may practice medicine who has been convicted of a crime. All physicians for the first ten years during which they follow their calling must keep full written records of all their cases, and they must not issue boastful advertisements or claim the exclusive right to any healing invention with a secret formula.

The Best Proof.

Little Ted, seven years old, was sent to the bathroom for a "good scrub" before dinner, but returned so quickly that his mother declared he couldn't possibly have washed himself. He replied, "Truly I did, mother, and if you don't believe it you can just go to the bathroom and look at the towel."—Delineator.

What a Poet Writes.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a Columbia professor descanting upon the muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no; he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."—New York Herald.

The Southerner and Corn.

The southerner feeds himself, his pigs and his progeny upon corn. He slept in his frontiersman's cabin upon a mattress made of the husks. Today he contributes some of its pith to the manufacture of gun cotton with which to blow the enemy to Beelzebub and some more of it to the manufacture of cellulose to pack behind the armor of his country's battleships to prevent them from sinking when projectiles pierce their plates. He plants corn as early in the springtime as the season will permit and gets up at dawn to go into the fields and tickle its spreading roots with a double shovel plow. In midwinter he smokes his corncob pipe before a corncob fire. Looking into a bed of glowing embers through a blue haze of the smoke of incense burned to Mondamin, he returns thanks for the cornmeal in the cupboard and dreams happily of the "roas'n ear" of the golden summer to come. His appreciation of the value of Indian corn is high. His affection for it in its various forms is abiding.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Argyll and Longfellow.

The great Duke of Argyll was visiting his son, then governor general of Canada, and met Longfellow in the American poet's ancient colonial mansion at Cambridge, Mass. As they sat together on the veranda the duke persistently asked the names of the various birds he saw and heard singing in the poet's trees as well as of the flowers and bushes growing in his extensive and beautiful garden. Longfellow was neither botanist nor ornithologist and did not know.

"I was surprised to find your Longfellow such an ignorant person," said the duke subsequently to an American acquaintance.

"Indeed! Pray, on what subject?"

"Why, he could not tell me the names of the birds and flowers to be heard and seen in his own garden."

"May I ask how many languages you speak?" the American asked.

"Certainly—but one."

"Mr. Longfellow," was the answer, "speaks six and translates freely from almost all the languages of Europe."

Rise of Russia.

In the history of Europe down to the middle of the eighteenth century Russia is a blank. The foundation of the kingdom was laid by Ruric the Norseman in the ninth century. In the tenth century the Russians were Christianized, adopting the Greek form of Christianity. In the thirteenth century the Russians were completely overrun by the Tartars under Genghis Khan. From the Tartars Russia was delivered by Ivan, who became czar in the time of Elizabeth. It was Peter the Great (1672-1725) who gave Russia for the first time a place in the states system of Europe.—New York American.

The Mistletoe.

The mistletoe is a Druidical contribution to Christmas. It was held in great veneration by the Druids in ancient England, and the cutting of it was attended by sacrificing and feasting. With weird incantations the priest climbed the tree on which the mistletoe grew and cut it away with a knife of purest gold, no base metal being allowed to touch it. As the twigs fell they were received below in a mantle of spotless whiteness.

Modest Greatness.

Reporter—Senator, to what do you chiefly attribute your successful career? Eminent Statesman—Entirely to heredity, young man. I deserve no credit for it whatever. My father had ambition, and my mother had talent, and I happened to inherit both those qualifications.—Chicago Tribune.

From Experience.

Mrs. Enpeck—I learned today that Bob Smith and Mary Jones were secretly married two months ago. Just think of it! Married nearly a year and nobody the wiser! Mr. Enpeck—Ca, I don't know! I'll bet Smith was a whole lot wiser before he had been married a month.

GRAHAM CASE WENT TO JURY

ings was a waste of time, as there could only be one result.

The Crown Attorney wanted the Graham case finished to-day, and whether the others would be proceeded with would largely depend on the outcome of it. If a verdict of "guilty" was reached then he would like the remaining three cases left over until the next sessions. This Mr. O'Connell would not agree to. His Honour ruled that the trial should proceed.

Patrick Carroll, sworn, stated that he had been at the Oriental nineteen years ago, and had been away twice in that time. There was a cash register in the bar, each bartender having a key and Mr. Chris Graham having one for the top. Mr. Geo. Graham did not have one and he had never seen him use any. There were five beer taps. There was no beer pump. The beer was brought up by water pressure. It was always shut off when the bar closed. He did not know what occurred there on Sunday night. The settee in the rotunda was where the bell boys sat.

Mr. Chris. Graham, manager of the Oriental, was next called. He said that his father was the proprietor, but had very little to do with the management. He had very little to do with the bar. The cash register was always locked when the bar-tenders left. Witness had a key for the lid. He checked over the receipts every morning. It was impossible to work the register when it was locked. If the bartenders had their keys with them his father could not have worked the register on Sunday, November 21st. There was no money put in the register from Saturday night until Monday morning. There were five beer taps worked by hydraulic pressure. The pressure was always turned off when the bar closed. The bar was about 45 feet long. The bell boys sat on the settee right opposite the office. Witness denied ever having two men watching for the police. They would have to pay for them and no one was paid for such a purpose.

Character Evidence.

Mr. Al. Haskill said that he had been in business for some years. He knew Newhall by his general reputation. From that reputation he would not believe him on his oath.

Inspector Stewart called, stated that he was on the police force nineteen years before taking his present position. The Oriental, he said, was a first-class hotel. He watched this hotel several times with P. C. Newhall. He inspected the bar regularly. There were no beer pumps in it. Regarding P. C. Newhall, witness said that his reputation was that he did not speak the truth. He said he wouldn't believe him.

To Mr. Wood, Inspector Stewart said that he always spoke to Newhall when he met him. He was at the Oriental on Saturday and Sunday nights.

Chief Howard of the Fire Department said that P. C. Newhall was considered a very efficient officer, but that his veracity was a little "shady."

Richard Sheehy said that P. C. Newhall's reputation for veracity was not very good. He would not believe him on his oath.

A minister of the city stated that he had believed that P. C. Newhall was a very ambitious man and wanted to establish a reputation as an efficient officer, and in his endeavour overstepped the mark. He would not care to believe his testimony unless it was corroborated by some person independent of the police force.

Mr. J. H. Burnham swore that he knew P. C. Meharry. He would not believe him on his oath. He considered him a first-class liar.

Ernest Bartlett said that he had lived in Peterborough for some time. He knew P. C. Meharry and would not believe him on oath. He told of meeting the officer on the street, and of his threatening him if he gave evidence against him.

Jas. Kennedy swore that P. C. Meharry's reputation for veracity was very bad.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, sworn, stated that P. C. Ntwhall did not state the whole truth in reference to what took place yesterday morning. P. C. Newhall invited the attack. He said that P. C. Newhall said: "You're beaten again." Then witness told him that he would lay a charge of perjury against him.

Mr. O'Connell's Address.

Mr. O'Connell, counsel for the defence, in addressing the jury, spoke of the seriousness of the charge and the penalty that followed if it was proven. He urged the jury to be sure that those testifying for the prosecution were men against whom there was not a breath of suspicion. The accused he said, was the proprietor of the best and most respectable hotel in the city. Reviewing the evidence, the counsel stated that it was most unlikely that the defendant would go into his bar, leaving every means of observation open. The police officers say that they could see through the window sufficiently everything that transpired and see the proprietor, they say, had to light a match to see. "I that not absurd?" the counsel asked. He referred to the evidence and termed it as being flimsy. There was not one jot of evidence but the uncorroborated stories of two police officers. He believed that many ambitious policemen honestly tried for convictions and coloured their evidence in order to secure them. Then what in the case of these two men.

"Why didn't P. C. Newhall do what any sensible man would have done? Mr. O'Connell asked. He should have gone in and got the names of these travellers. The counsel referred to the story of Lawrence, drawing the attention of the jury to points wherein it differed from P. C. Newhall. The question was "which one was telling the truth. Lawrence told several persons out of the box that he did not have liquor there. He then states that he had the 21st, confused with the 14th, but after looking up the records he told Mr. O'Connell that he was not there on the 21st. "A liar is a liar at all times," the counsel added.

In direct contradiction to the policeman Mr. Maunder, a respected hotelkeeper of Lindsay, and Victor Fowler and Mr. Graham all stated that Lawrence was never in the hotel. Mr. Graham honestly and frankly swore in the court that if any man could say that he (Graham) ever served a glass of beer from the taps, he should come forward and say it.

In strict and liberal truth, Sunday ends at 12 o'clock the counsel contended. There was no evidence that there was liquor sold before twelve on Sunday. Mr. O'Connell referred in eulogistic terms to Mr. Graham's character, his large heartedness, and his never failing kindness to people. In proof of this, a letter was read from a poor, little immigrant boy who wrote asking to be taken back in his employment and speaking of Mr. Graham's kindness to him.

Then attention was drawn to the character evidence against the police officers, showing that these men's veracity was doubted by the public. He spoke in strong terms of the action of P. C. Meharry who tried to intimidate the witness Bartlett.

HE WANTS TO MEET MR. HALES

Mr. B. Lastar has received two somewhat mysterious letters from a writer who signs himself "E Hales." There is no clue to this person's identity, and Mr. Lastar wishes an opportunity to reply to his letters, or to talk the matter over with "Mr. Hales." He therefore requests that gentleman to call at Mr. Lastar's store on Simcoe street, or at one of the newspaper offices, so that Mr. Lastar may have a chance to go into the matter with him.

Two Hundred Million Feet Of Lumber In Year

Mammoth Plant of Fraser River Lumber Company is Second Largest Saw Mill in the World and Forms a Great Advertisement for Westminster---Canadian Mill Holds the World's Record.

The following from the Vancouver Providence has been handed to the Examiner for publication. It should be read with interest by the many lumbermen of the vicinity, hence its appearance here:

"Yes, sir, this is the second largest sawmill in the world," comments the proud citizen of New Westminster as he points out the Fraser River Lumber company's mills to the visitor and the Royal city has just cause for pride in the huge industry which with its townsite covers 500 acres between the foothills and the Fraser.

The present fine manufacturing property was begun January, 1908, and, exactly a year after, the first cargo of lumber from the mill left for Valparaiso on the Chilian bark Ivanhoe. Since January of this year the mills have been turning out an average of 800,000 feet in a double shift day of 20 hours and by the end of this month it is expected that the output will exceed 200,000,000 feet. The yards have a storing capacity of 50,000,000 feet and still the 500 hands employed keep turning out more lumber as the ceaseless and veritable river of logs continues to enter the mill.

In any of British Columbia's 240 lumber mills something like this can be seen but not in a single mill in this country is the work carried out on such a gigantic scale and there is only one larger mill in the world.

A Record Cut.

On June 3 last in a ten-hour run the mill cut 473,000 feet, the world's record for that period. On the day previous the mill cut 418,000 feet and on the day following 411,000 feet, a total of 1,286,000 feet in three days. The year's cut of 200,000,000 feet would build 10,000 houses using the safe estimate of 20,000 feet for the average house of seven rooms.

Although the company has vast timber holdings yet the wonderful wealth of B. C. timber is estimated at 200,000,000 acres. The average vessel which loads at the mill takes 2,000,000 feet or about 44 acres away to various parts of the world.

Down below the log slip you see the men with pike poles walking the rolling logs of fir, spruce, hemlock and cedar which have come down river from the storage booms four miles away at Pitt river which have a capacity of 30,000,000 feet.

Here from the entrance to the mill proper to the end there is a deck space of 38,000 feet, while the wing at the end adds an area of 12,500 square feet, or in all an area of 40,500 square feet.

On this great long wide floor is seen the all new and right up to date machinery that is responsible for the results of each day's enormous run, whatever that may be in the hours of operation. The tested capacity is the enormous run of 750,000 feet in 20 hours easily exceeding that of any other single mill in the world.

The "bull chain" with its steel saddles which every log must climb, however large or small, is 600 feet in length. The next that catches the eye are the steam log kickers. These kick the log from this chain to Kline log loaders.

Great Machine.

Then comes the "head rig," the first machine in the order of merit, judging from dimensions. This is an 11-foot Allis-Chalmers single cutting band-mill, the saws of which are 16 inches wide and capable of cutting a log 96 inches in diameter and up to 120 feet long. The carriage is what is known as a 72-inch four-block one, with two-block trailers, and all running on four 90lpound steel rails, two "V" shaped and two flat.

In conjunction with this machine is a Simondson log-turner with 14-inch cylinders and a "Hill nigger," all operated by the sawyer in charge with less exertion than a sportive kitten with a lively mouse, the little animal in this case weighing something like eight tons, from which timber 120 feet long can be turned in this machine.

Parallel with this, and in the centre of the building is a newly designed 9-foot Allis-Chalmers double cutting band-saw with what is termed a 48-inch opening flellance carriage built of white oak and cast steel throughout, while on its right and also running parallel, is another 9-foot Allis-Chalmers double-cutting band-saw with 60-inch four-block, three-track carriage.

Attached to each of these are "Hill niggers," used for the easy turning of the logs. These are not intended for the logs of the larger dimensions and the Simondson turner here is therefore not necessary.

The Edging Process.

Beyond these are two "edgers," through which the boards pass after leaving the band saw at the discretion of the operating sawyers. These machines cut the board into narrow ones according to their contents and to standard for special sizes required. Both are of Allis-Chalmers make, one being a 60 by 10 six-saw machine, the other an 84 by 10 ten-saw broken roll double edger.

The automatic trimmers, seemingly the most vicious of all the machines, are capable of trimming lumber of any length from two feet to 46 feet. There are two of these, each operated by levers controlled by an operator on a platform above the chains and in sight of the feed.

At the further end of the floor is a 60-inch Wickes gang-saw, capable of cutting 56 pieces of boards from one or more cants at the same time. The three hand-saws cant for and keep this machine going for it has an insatiable appetite.

Throughout the floor are the rollers and chains controlled from the various machines for transferring timber, cants, boards or dimension timber from one machine to another and further on to the wharf, to the trimmers, to the sorting tables or, if slabs, to the slasher, until that dripping log rolling on to industrial decency, seems to acquire intelligence enough to know and submit to its happy or unhappy fate.

At intervals along its course are the jump saws, so arranged that timber, cants or boards may be trimmed or cut at desired lengths.

World of Shafting.

Descending to the floor below you see a world of shafting and belting, so removing, from the operators above, the greatest element of danger in plants of this magnitude and kind. The amount of belting staggers you.

Leading from one corner of the log deck are the sorting chains, some 750 feet in length, on which is located two 72-inch band resaws and two Stetson-Ross ready "saizers." The chain is in eight sections, each of which can be operated or stopped by itself for removing lumber.

Also on a level with the log deck and running parallel and at right angles with the sorting chains, are cars on steel rails, each capable of carrying from 2,000 to 3,000 feet. By these lumber for cargo shipment is conveyed to whatever part of the wharf it may be required for ships on one side and trains on the other.

The great wharf is 1,200 feet long and 112 feet deep, substantially constructed upon the firmest piling, and has a minimum depth of 40 feet throughout its whole length. Like the mill itself, it is provided with arc lights, to facilitate loading at night. The wharf has a capacity of 12,000,000 feet of lumber, while allowing at the same time ample room for those superintending the handling of the lumber for shipment.

Under the railway system, already referred to, is a roadway permitting ingress and egress of vehicular traffic to any part of the wharf or to the spacious warehouse, constructed for the sorting of goods received by vessel at the west end of the wharf.

The engine room is 81 feet by 44 feet, constructed of brick, concrete and steel and equipped with one pair of Reliance twin Corliss engines 22 by 42, and one pair 18 by 42, and one Hamilton slide valve, 24 by 30, with combined nominal 2,400 horsepower.

The motive power is derived from four batteries of four boilers each contained within a well designed boiler house built of concrete, brick and steel, 81 feet long by 70 feet wide. The boilers are capable of maintaining a working pressure of 160 pounds. Heat is generated from sawdust, the firing being done by the induced draft from a fan 144 inches in diameter, while the fuel is conveyed automatically to the furnace from a shaving and sawdust vault close by.

CHRISTMAS TRIPS MEAN A MILLION

Big Traffic to Old Country Puts Big Sum Into Circulation.

The past week has been the biggest for overseas Christmas holiday traffic for the season, and it marks a record, for a C. P. R. official who counted the heads declares they number 2,500. Last week the number was 2,000, and next week it is expected there will be about 500 belated ones who will probably get across the ocean in time for New Year's Day celebrations, which is the principal feature of Scottish observance.

Practically the whole of this traffic comes from the Canadian and American Northwest, and it means, said an official, that almost everyone has paid $100 for his return ticket, and will spend at least another $100 on his travelling expenses and entertainment on the other side.

These Christmas holiday trips really represent about $1,000,000, which is put in circulation by those visiting friends and relations in the countres they came from. Both the Allan steamer Victorian and the C. P. R. boat, Lake Manitoba, have been thoroughly filled up with this week's traffic.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Copyright 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle.

They listened, and as they did so a rustle came from behind them. For a minute they paused and then resumed their journey through the dark. It seemed a long, long way, though in truth it was but a few hundred yards before they came to a door with a glimmer of yellow light around it, which barred their passage. Nigel struck upon it with his hand.

There was the rasping of a bolt and then a loud voice: "Is that you, priest?"

"Yes, it is I," said the prisoner in a quavering voice. "Open, Arnold!"

The voice was enough. There was no question of passwords. The door swung inward, and in an instant the janitor was cut down by Nigel and Simon. So sudden and so fierce was the attack that save for the thud of his body no sound was heard. A flood of light burst outward into the passage, and the Englishmen stood with blinking eyes in its glare.

In front of them lay a stone-flagged corridor, across which lay the dead body of the janitor. It had doors on either side of it, and another grated door at the farther end. A strange hubbub, a kind of low droning and whining filled the air. The four men were standing listening, full of wonder as to what this might mean, when a sharp cry came from behind them. The priest lay in a shapeless heap upon the ground, and the blood was rushing from his gaping throat. Down the passage, a black shadow in the yellow light, there fled a crouching man, who clattered with a stick as he went.

"It is Andreas," cried West-country Will. "He has slain him."

"Then it was he that I heard behind us," said Nigel. "Doubtless he was at our very heels in the darkness. I fear that the priest's cry has been heard."

"Nay," said Simon, "there are so many cries that one more may well pass. Let us take this lamp from the wall and see what sort of devil's den we have around us."

They opened the door upon the right, and so horrible a smell issued from it that they were driven back from it. The lamp which Simon held forward showed a monkey-like creature mowing and grimacing in the corner, man or woman none could tell, but driven crazy by loneliness and horror. In the other cell was a gray-bearded man fettered to the wall, looking blankly before him, a body without a soul, yet with life still in him, for his dull eyes turned slowly in their direction. But it was from behind the central door at the end of the passage that the chorus of sad cries came which filled the air.

"Simon," said Nigel, "before we go farther we will take this outer door from its hinges. With it we will block this passage so that at the worst we may hold our ground here until help comes. Do you back to the camp as fast as your feet can bear you. The peasants will draw you upward through the hole. Give my greetings to Sir Robert and tell that the castle is taken without fail if he comes this way with fifty men. Say that we have made a lodgment within the walls. And tell him also, Simon, that I would counsel him to make a stir before the gateway so that the guard may be held there whilst we make good our footing behind them. Go, good Simon, and lose not a moment!"

But the man-at-arms shook his head. "It is I who have brought you here, fair sir, and here I bide through fair and foul. But you speak wisely and well, for Sir Robert should indeed be told what is going forward now that we have gone so far. Harding, do you go with all speed and bear the gentle Nigel's message."

Reluctantly the man-at-arms sped upon his errand. They could hear the racing of his feet and the low jingle of his harness until they died away in the tunnel. Then the three companions approached the door at the end. It was their intention to wait where they were until help should come, but suddenly amid the babel of cries within there broke forth an English voice, shouting in torment.

"My God!" it cried, "I pray you, comrades, for a cup of water, as you hope for Christ's mercy!"

A shout of laughter and the thud of a heavy blow followed the appeal.

All the hot blood rushed to Nigel's head at the sound, buzzing in his ears and throbbing in his temples. There are times when the fiery heart of a man must overbear the cold brain of a soldier. With one bound he was at the door, with another he was through it, the men-at-arms at his heel. So strange was the scene before them that for an instant all three stood motionless with horror and surprise.

It was a great vaulted chamber, brightly lit by many torches. At the farther end roared a great fire. In front of it three naked men were chained to post in such a way that flinch as they might they could never get beyond the range of its scorching heat. Yet they were so far from it that no actual burn would be inflicted if they could but keep turning and shifting so as continually to present some fresh portion of their flesh to the flames. Hence they danced and whirled in front of the fire, tossing ceaselessly this way and that within the compass of their chains, wearied to death, their protruding tongues cracked and blackened with thirst, but unable for one instant to rest from their writhings and contortions.

Even stranger was the sight at each side of the room, whence came that chorus of groans which had first struck upon the ears of Nigel and his companions. A line of great hogsheads were placed alongside the walls, and within each sat a man, his head protruding from the top. As they moved within there was a constant splashing and washing of water. The white wan faces all turned together as the door flew open, and a cry of amazement and of hope took the place of those long-drawn moans of despair.

At the same instant two fellows clad in black, who had been seated with a flagon of wine between them at a table near the fire, sprang wildly to their feet, staring with blank amazement at this sudden inrush. That instant of delay deprived them of their last chance of safety. Midway down the room was a flight of stone steps which led to the main door.

Swift as a wildcat Nigel bounded toward it and gained the steps a stride or two before the jailers. They turned and made for the other which led to the passage, but Simon and his comrades were nearer to it than they. Two sweeping blows, two dagger thrusts into writhing figures, and the ruffians who worked the will of the Butcher lay dead upon the floor of their slaughter-house.

Oh, the buzz of joy and of prayer from all those white lips! Oh, the light of returning hope in all those sunken weary eyes! One wild shout would have gone up had not Nigel's outstretched hands and warning voice hushed them to silence.

He opened the door behind him. A curving newel staircase wound upward into the darkness. He listened, but no sound came down. There was a key in the outer lock of the iron door. He whipped it out and turned it on the inner side. The ground that they had gained was safe. Now they could turn to the relief of these poor fellows beside them. A few strong blows struck off the irons and freed the three dancers before the fire. With a husky croak of joy, they rushed across to their comrades' water-barrels, plunged their heads in like horses, and drank and drank and drank. Then in turn the poor shivering wretches were taken out of the barrels, their skins bleached and wrinkled with long soaking. Their bonds were torn from them; but, cramped and fixed, their limbs refused to act, and they tumbled and twisted upon the floor in their efforts to reach Nigel and to kiss his hand.

In a corner lay Aylward, dripping from his barrel and exhausted with cold and hunger. Nigel ran to his side and raised his head. The jug of wine from which the two jailers had drunk still stood upon their table. The Squire placed it to the archer's lips and he took a hearty pull at it.

"How is it with you now, Aylward?"

"Better, Squire, better, but may I never touch water again as long as I live! Alas! poor Dicon has gone, and Stephen also—the life chilled out of them. The cold is in the very marrow of my bones. I pray you, let me lean upon your arm as far as the fire, that I may warm the frozen blood and set it running in my veins once more."

A strange sight it was to see these twenty naked men crouching in a half-circle round the fire with their trembling hands extended to the blaze. Soon their tongues at least were thawed, and they poured out the story of their troubles with many a prayer and ejaculation to the saints for their safe delivery. No food had crossed their lips since they had been taken. The Butcher had commanded them to join his garrison and to shoot upon their comrades from the wall. When they refused he had set aside three of them for execution.

The others had been dragged to the cellar, whither the leering tyrant had followed them. Only one question he had asked them, whether they were of a hot-blooded nature or of a cold. Blows were showered upon them until they answered. Three had said cold, and had been condemned to the torment of the fire. The rest who had said hot were delivered up to the torture of the water-cask. Every few hours this man or fiend had come down to exult over their sufferings and to ask them whether they were ready yet to enter his service. Three had consented, and were gone. But the others had all of them stood firm, two of them even to their death.

Such was the tale to which Nigel and his comrades listened whilst they waited impatiently for the coming of Knolles and his men. Many an anxious look did they cast down the black tunnel, but no glimmer of light and no clash of steel came from its depths. Suddenly, however, a loud and measured sound broke upon their ears. It was a dull metallic clang, ponderous and slow, growing louder and ever louder—the tread of an armored man. The poor wretches round the fire, all unnerved by hunger and suffering, huddled together with wan, scared faces, their eyes fixed in terror on the door.

"It is he!" they whispered. "It is the Butcher himself!"

Nigel had darted to the door and listened intently. There were no footfalls save those of one man. Once sure of that, he softly turned the key in the lock. At the same instant there came a bull's bellow from without.

"Ives! Bertrand!" cried the voice. "Can you not hear me coming, you drunken varlets? You shall cool your own heads in the water-casks, you lazy rascals! What, not even now! Open, you dogs. Open, I say!"

He had thrust down the latch, and with a kick he flung the door wide and rushed inward. For an instant he stood motionless, a statue of dull yellow metal, his eyes fixed upon the empty casks and the huddle of naked men. Then with the roar of a trapped lion, he turned, but the door had slammed behind him, and Black Simon, with grim figure and sardonic face, stood between.

The Butcher looked round him helplessly, for he was unarmed save for his dagger. Then his eyes fell upon Nigel's roses.

"You are a gentleman of coat-armor," he cried. "I surrender myself to you."

"I will not take your surrender, you black villain," said Nigel. "Draw and defend yourself. Simon, give him your sword."

"Nay, this is madness," said the blunt man-at-arms. "Why should I give the wasp a sting?"

"Give it him, I say. I cannot kill him in cold blood."

"But I can!" yelled Aylward, who had crept up from the fire. "Come, comrades! By these ten finger-bones! has he not taught us how cold blood should be warmed?"

Like a pack of wolves they were on him, and he clanged upon the floor with a dozen frenzied naked figures clutching and clinging above him. In vain Nigel tried to pull them off. They were mad with rage, these tortured starving men, their eyes fixed and glaring, their hair on end, their teeth gnashing with fury, while they tore at the howling, writhing man. Then with a rattle and clatter they pulled him across the room by his two ankles and dragged him into the fire.

Nigel shuddered and turned away his eyes as he saw the brazen figure roll out and stagger to his knees, only to be hurled once more into the heart of the blaze. His prisoners screamed with joy and clapped their hands as they pushed him back with their feet until the armor was too hot for them to touch. Then at last he lay still and glowed darkly red, whilst the naked men danced in a wild half-circle round the fire.

But now at last the supports had come. Lights flashed and armor gleamed down the tunnel. The cellar filled with armed men, while from above came the cries and turmoil of the feigned assault upon the gate. Led by Knolles and Nigel, the storming party rushed upward and seized the courtyard. The guard of the gate taken in the rear threw down their weapons and cried for mercy. The gate was thrown open and the assailants rushed in, with hundreds of furious peasants at their heels. Some of the robbers died in hot blood, many in cold; but all died, for Knolles had vowed to give no quarter. Day was breaking when the last fugitive had been hunted out and slain. From all sides came the yells and whoops of the soldiers with the rending and riving of doors, as they burst into the store-rooms and treasure-chambers. There was a joyous scramble amongst them, for the plunder of eleven years, gold and jewels, satins and velvets, rich plate and some hangings were all to be had for the taking.

The rescued prisoners, their hunger appeased and their clothes restored, led the search for booty. Nigel, leaning on his sword by the gateway, saw Aylward totter past, a huge bundle under each arm, another slung over his back and a smaller packet hanging from his mouth. He dropped it for a moment as he passed his young master.

"By these ten finger-bones! I am right glad that I came to the war, and no man could ask for a more goodly life," said he. "I have a present for every girl in Tilford, and my father need never fear the frown of the sacrist of Waverley again. But how of you, Squire Loring? It standeth not aright that we should gather the harvest whilst you, who soweth it, go forth empty-handed. Come, gentle sir, take these things that I have gathered, and I will go back and find more."

But Nigel smiled and shook his head. "You have gained what your heart desired, and perchance I have done so also," said he.

An instant later Knolles strode up to him with outstretched hand. "I ask your pardon, Nigel," said he. "I have spoken too hotly in my wrath."

"Nay, fair sir, I was at fault."

"If we stand here now within this castle, it is to you that I owe it. The King shall know of it, and Chandos also. Can I do aught else, Nigel, to prove to you the high esteem in which I hold you?"

The Squire flushed with pleasure. "Do you send a messenger home to England, fair sir, with news of these doings?"

"Sure, I must do so. But do not tell me, Nigel, that you would be that messenger. Ask me some other favor, for indeed I cannot let you go."

"Now God forbid!" cried Nigel. "By Saint Paul! I would not be so caitiff and so thrall as to leave you, when some small deed might still be done. But I would fain send a message by your messenger."

"To whom?"

"It is to the Lady Mary, daughter of old Sir John Butteshorn who dwells near Guildford."

"But you will write the message, Nigel. Such greetings as a cavalier sends to his lady-love should be under seal."

"Nay, he can carry my message by word of mouth."

"Then I shall tell him for he goes this morning. What message, then, shall he say to the lady?"

"He will give her my very humble greeting, and he will say to her that for the second time Saint Catharine has been our friend."

CHAPTER XXII.

Sir Robert Knolles and his men passed onward that day, looking back many a time to see the two dark columns of smoke, one thicker and one more slender, which arose from the castle and from the fort of La Brohiniere. There was not an archer nor man-at-arms who did not bear a great bundle of spoil upon his back, and Knolles frowned darkly as he looked upon them. Gladly would he have thrown it all down by the roadside, but he had tried such matters before, and he knew that it was as safe to tear a half-gnawed bone from a bear as their blood-won plunder from such men as these. In any case it was but two days' march to Ploermel, where he hoped to bring his journey to an end.

That night they camped at Mauron, where a small English and Breton garrison held the castle. Right glad were the bowmen to see some of their own countrymen once more, and they spent the night over wine and dice, a crowd of Breton girls assisting, so that next morning their bundles were much lighter, and most of the plunder of La Brohiniere was left with the men and women of Mauron. Next day their march lay with a fair sluggish river upon their right, and a rolling forest upon their left which covered the whole country. At last toward evening the towers of Ploermel rose before them and they saw against a darkening sky the Red Cross of England waving in the wind. So blue was the river Duc which skirted the road, and so green its banks, that they might indeed have been back beside their own homely streams, the Oxford Thames or the Midland Trent, but ever as the darkness deepened there came in wild gusts the howling of wolves from the forest to remind them that they were in a land of war. So busy had men been for many years in hunting one another that the beasts of the chase had grown to a monstrous degree, until the streets of the towns were no longer safe from the wild inroads of the fierce creatures, the wolves and the bears, who swarmed around them.

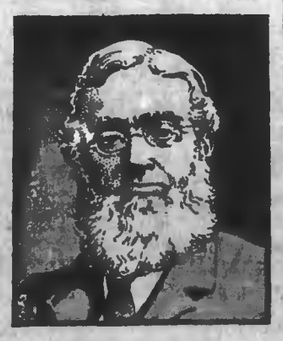
Kidney Disease For Years

This Well Known Gentleman Strongly Recommends "Fruit-a-tives" to all Sufferers.



JAMES DINGWALL, Esq.

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the almost marvellous benefit I have derived from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I was a lifelong sufferer from Chronic Constipation, and the only medicine I ever secured to do me any real good was "Fruit-a-tives." This medicine cured me when everything else failed. Also, last spring I had a severe ATTACK OF BLADDER TROUBLE WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE, and "Fruit-a-tives" cured these complaints for me, when the physician attending me had practically given me up.

I am now over eighty years of age and I can strongly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" for chronic constipation and bladder and kidney trouble. This medicine is very mild like fruit, is easy to take, but most effective in action."

The Rollerman Remarks Wisely Anent Good Grinding

"Sure, this is the most important part of the whole shooting match," earnestly observed the rollerman as we watched the hard wheat berries accepting their first squeeze.

(En passant, Madam, when we were at Keewatin mills last summer, it impressed us significantly to hear every man engaged in the milling of FIVE ROSES flour confidently insist that his part of the work is the most important—speaks well for the finished product.

"After those other fellows get the wheat in perfect condition, I have to make FIVE ROSES out of it. If I don't do my work just right, there'll be a hot time in the old town to-night.

"See here (with a grunt of grudging approval he showed us a handful of kernels wonderfully bright and clear), these here rolls split them right along that crease and each roll (of which there may be half a dozen) breaks up the berries, just a little stronger squeeze each time.

"Why not break them up at once by closer grinding the first or second time? Might save machinery—and money? we advanced quite innocently.

"Why? Because this isn't merely a money-making plant; it's a flour-making plant. Some small rollers, I know, break up their wheat with only two rolls, maybe—what they call the sudden "death" system. Sudden death for the man who tries it in this mill.

* * * *

"Now, we can make clean, pure flour (meaning FIVE ROSES, no doubt) only by gradual reduction. If I squeeze the berries too severely at first, it's sure to break the skin of the wheat, thus pulverising the bran to a certain extent, producing what we call "break flour."

Here we nodded very understandingly, like the wise ones we were—not.

He went on, for he was in the talking vein.

"Break flour is the most pernicious agent there is in spoiling the color and flavor of flour. A high-browed Wiseheimer who once called here said the bran, if too heavily pressed, yields a moisture which is really a dye spoiling the latter runs of flour—if it gets past me.

But it doesn't, you bet.

* * * *

"Yes, sirree, if I don't watch my work right and think more of it than of my pay envelope, the flour's bound to suffer. 'Twould mean more or less dirt and pulverized branny fibre in the housewife's flour sack and—no more FIVE ROSES for hers.

Yes, sirree," he confidently repeated as we moved away, this is the most important part of it all.

* * * *

Madam, there was something more to his head than hair.

The man who believes in the importance of his work always does the best that's in him. This seems the general failing (?) at Keewatin.

In milling, like most things worth while, the workmanship of the miller is stamped on the flour. A good thing for FIVE ROSES—and for YOU.

You can so easily be flour-wise, Madam, if you really want to.

MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES

MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES. MAIN BUILDING FOR PATIENTS.

A national institution that accepts patients from all parts of Canada. Here is one of hundreds of letters being received daily:—

John J. McNaughton, New Liskeard, Ont.: A young man not belonging here, and suffering from, it is believed, consumption, is being kept by one of the hotels here. He has no means and has been refused admission to our hospital. The conditions where he is offer him no chance. Could he be admitted to your Free Hospital for Consumptives? If not, could you inform me where he can be sent, and what steps are necessary to secure prompt admittance?

NOT A SINGLE PATIENT HAS EVER BEEN REFUSED ADMISSION TO THE MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL BECAUSE OF HIS OR HER INABILITY TO PAY.

Since the hospital was opened in April, 1903, one thousand five hundred and twenty-four patients have been treated in this one institution, representing people from every province in the Dominion.

For the week ending November 20th, 1909, one hundred and twenty-five patients were in residence. Ninety-six of these are not paying a copper for their maintenance—absolutely free. The other twenty-nine paid from $2.00 to $4.90 a week. No one pays more than $4.90.

Suitable cases are admitted promptly on completion of application papers.

A GRATEFUL PATIENT

Norah P. Canham: Enclosed you will find receipt for my ticket from Gravenhurst, hoping that you will be able to oblige me with the fare. I was at your Sanatorium ten months, and I was sent away from there as an apparent cure. I am now working in the city, and I am feeling fine. I was most thankful for the care I got from the doctors and staff, and I must say that I spent the time of my life while I was there.

TAKING THE CURE IN WINTER AT MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

The Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives is dependent on the good-will and gifts of the Canadian public. Money is urgently needed at the present time to make it possible to care for the large and increasing number of patients that are entering the institution.

Will you help ?

WHAT SHOOTING COSTS.

Huge Prices English Gentlemen Spend on Sport.

Right through the month of August in Great Britain the great stretches of eternal hill, emurpled with heather, tinselled with swift-running streams, and fringed with coppices of birch and alder, are overran with companies of men in coarse homespun and thick-soled boots—barristers, members of Parliament, men of wealth and title, all of whom are wholly given over to the worship of St. Grouse.

Sport is the keynote of life in the North, and with the close of the Goodwood race meeting in the dying days of July the "Land of Cakes" becomes the land of dukes, for a large majority of the wearers of strawberry leaves settle in their castles and baronial mansions for the shooting season.

The art of making money out of the game on his estate was unknown to the Highland laird of sixty or seventy years ago. It was not until the late Earl of Dalhousie, who owned some 162,000 acres of land in Forfarshire, had planted 1,800,000 trees at a cost of $350,000, with the result that the thirteen shootings they provided yielded a revenue of $65,000 a year, that the Highland landowners made haste to follow his example.

This season Mr. Harry Payne Whitney, the American millionaire, who derives his wealth from banking and railway enterprises, has laid out about $50,000 upon the Holwick Hall grouse moor, Upper Teesdale, and has engaged more than 100 beaters. This is probably the largest sum ever spent by one man on a season's shooting.

How much money is spent by sportsmen on grouse shooting every year cannot be totalled to a penny, but it has been estimated that at least a million birds are shot between August and December at a cost of something like half a million pounds.

The Highlands possess to-day between 2,000 and 3,000 grouse moors, or shootings, Perthshire being par excellence the home of "the little bird of the red wing."

Some years ago the Duke of Sutherland cut the county of Sutherland, of which he is the virtual owner, into fifty-one shootings, with a gross rental of about $150,000 a year. The Duke of Westminster rented 116,000 acres from the Duke of Sutherland, for which he paid over $60,000 a year, in addition to another $1,000 for the right of fishing in the river Laxford.

While the lordly grouse is paying tribute on a thousand hilltops to the rich sportsman for the care and expense lavished upon him during the close season, the pretty deer are called upon to satisfy that bloodthirsty passion the French profess to abhor so much in the Britisher.

Shooting grouse is a costly pastime, but it is not half so costly as deer-stalking. In the third week of August the wealthy go after the deer and continue to do so until October the 12th. During the few weeks deer-stalking is permissible the money spent by the gunners for their sport runs into hundreds of thousands of pounds. Each stag costs the sportsmen anything from $150 to $250.

Barons de Clifford.

One of the Ancestors of Baron de Clifford, who was fatally injured in a motor accident near Brighton, and who made a romantic marriage with the charming lady known on the stage as Miss Eva Carrington, and was playing the part of a Gibson Girl in "The Catch of the Season" at the time of her wedding—was Walter de Clifford, the father of "Fair Rosamond." The first Baron de Clifford was killed at Bannockburn, and the second was executed at York eight years after. Roger de Clifford, the fifth baron, distinguished himself on the battlefield. The seventh baron married a daughter of Hotspur, and their son, the eighth baron, fell at the battle of St. Albans, in 1455. The ninth baron was slain in 1461. The tenth baron was brought up by his mother in seclusion, and became known later as the "Shepherd Lord." He died a natural death, and, in the words of the poet, "Ages after he was laid in earth, The 'Good Lord Clifford' was the name he bore."

U. S. Money In Canada.

That United States capital is interested in Canadian industries to the extent of at least $226,000,000 is a statement made in an article in last week's Monetary Times, which has just completed a four months' investigation into the matter.

The article is supplemented with a list of 168 United States firms with branch factories in Canada.

Commenting on the oft-repeated criticism that British capital does not participate in this industrial development, it is noted that the British investor hitherto has been content to invest in Canadian securities which bring him a small return, give him little risk and secure him no control. Last year, Canada's bond business with Great Britain amounted to only $61,000,000 less than the total United States industrial investment in this country.

One hundred and sixty-eight companies, average capital $600,000, $100,800,000.

U. S. investment in B.C. mills and timber, $40,000,000.

U. S. investment in B.C. mines, $50,000,000.

Land deals in British Columbia, $2,000,000.

Packing plants, $5,000,000.

U. S. investment in lumber and mines, prairie provinces, $5,000,000.

Implement distributing houses, $4,000,000.

Land deals, prairie provinces, $10,000,000.

Total, $226,800,000.

Where Nature Cooks the Food.

In certain parts of New Zealand both native and white women use the natural hot springs to do their cooking. In the Rotorua region, it matters not whether the cook wishes to roast a piece of meat, boil potatoes or steam pudding, all she has to do is to step out of doors and place the cooking utensil in a steam hole. The cover is then put on, and a piece of coarse sacking over the whole completes the operation. In a short time dinner is ready. At Whakarewarewa the entire earth just beneath the surface is a mass of boiling springs. Millions of gallons of hot water hiss and steam, sending vapors skyward in great white clouds. Strike the ground almost anywhere with a stick and the hole thus formed fills with hot water. Hot water for baths, the week's washing and for the ordinary purposes of the household is always on hand.

Hard on the Chairs.

Among the ancestors of Wendell Phillips were several Puritan clergymen. Perhaps it was a push of heredity which made him at five years of age a preacher.

His congregation was composed of circles of chairs arranged in his father's parlor, while a taller chair, with a Bible on it, served him for a pulpit. He would harangue these wooden auditors by the hour.

"Wendell," said his father to him one day, "don't you get tired of this?"

"No, papa," wittily replied the boy preacher, "I don't get tired, but it is rather hard on the chairs."

Obeyed Him.

"Whatty's old Four Fingered Pete?" asked Alkali Ike. "I ain't seen him around since I got back."

"Pete?" said the bartender. "Oh, he went up to Hyena Tongue and got jagged. Went up to a hotel window, stuck his head in and hollered 'Fire!' an' everybody did."—Everybody's Magazine.

Canada at A.Y.P.

Near to the heart of the Seattle Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition just ended, stood the Canadian building, holding the finest exhibit of the fair. It was 93 by 200 feet on the grounds and the walls some 30 feet high. The side walls and huge pillars from the roof and even spreading over or rather under it, down to the top of a high wainscoting, made from a great variety of highly finished Canadian woods, were plainly covered with red bunting, over which were grouped or trailed bunches of various grains, mingled with autumn toned maple leaves (which Edward VII., then Prince of Wales, during a visit to Canada in 1860, adopted as our national emblem) arranged in a multiplicity of fanciful and artistic designs.

To describe in detail the endless varieties of fish, living and dead, the taxidemy in birds and wild animals, the richness of the several mineral ores, the huge painted panoramic farm scenes, the luscious fruits and wholesome cereals, the wines and liquors, biscuits and maple syrup, the oils and petroleum, the well-furnished resting rooms, lined with splendid pictures, and the hundred and one other items meriting notice, would be quite impossible in smaller space than a book.

She Meant Professionally.

As the young man caressed the cheek of his ladylove she drew away hastily.

"I think" she said indignantly, "you had better see father first."

"Why, what do you mean?" asked the perplexed lover.

"Father," she replied as she nursed her cheek, "is a barber."—Success Magazine.

THE DARK OF THE MOON.

A Result That Is Produced by the Light From the Earth.

Many people have wondered why the part of the moon that receives no sunlight is often visible to us, the term being the "old moon in the young moon's arms." The dark part is easily seen as a copper colored globe reposing in the bright crescent. This that we see is nothing more or less than the earth shine on the moon. We appear the same way to the moon when we are in that phase, and our dark part is where the moonshine appears and the bright part of the sunshine.

The reason the copper color appears is because light has to traverse the atmosphere of the earth three times—once on coming from the sun to the earth, once when reflected to the moon and again on being reflected back to us. Our atmosphere possesses the peculiar property of absorbing the blue rays of this white light and allowing only the red and orange to go through, thus causing the appearance of copper color by the triple absorption.

An odd thing connected with this phenomenon, though having nothing to do with it, is this: That part of the moon which appears dark to us is the same part of the earth that appears light to the moon at any specified time, and that part of the moon which appears bright to us corresponds to the portion of the earth appearing dark to the moon.

Of course it is well known that the moon gives out no light whatever itself, the moonshine being merely the light of the sun on the moon reflected to us. The same applies with the earth in its shine on the moon, save that we do give out glows, no doubt, around great cities at night, on account of the enormous number of lights. One thing, however, in which moonshine excels the earth shine is its constant character. Where the earth possesses varying clouds the old moon never has any at all.

A PUNJAB CIRCUS.

Program, in "Punch and Jab" English, as Good as the Show.

The sun never sets on the English language. This overdose of sunshine sometimes warps it out of shape. In the Malaya it becomes "pigeon," in the south seas it is either "sandalwood" or "beche de mer," and among the erudite along the water front at Yokohama it is "bansai." Here is a sample of a brand sometimes called "punch and jab" English. It was captured alive by a Calcutta exchange editor armed with his scissors in the jungle of advertising literature that threw its shadow ahead of a native Punjab circus:

Lost Temper.

"Lost temper does great harm," said a politician. "I once knew a man who held thirteen trumps at whist, and on account of his partner's temper he took only one trick with that ideal hand."

"Impossible!" sneered a reporter who conducted a weekly bridge column.

"Impossible? Not at all," was the politician's reply. "You see, as soon as this man trumped his partner's ace on the first play his partner in a rage jumped up and kicked him out of the room."

Young Folks

CHILDREN OF JAPAN.

Good Tempered Little Folks Who Take Care of the Babies.

The children of Japan are very pleasant little fellows, they are so gentle and polite to one another and to their parents. Jap boys do not fight among themselves, as so many boys in other lands do. Their fighting is done in sham battles, where they play that they are in a war for their country.

Little Jap girls—often boys, too—are obliged to take care of their baby brothers and sisters while their mothers are at work. The boys and girls are always gentle and sweet tempered with infants. The Jap baby hangs in a sort of hood or bag at its nurse's back, its legs parted around her waist, its head sticking up over her shoulder. Often a little girl nurse with a baby upon her back runs and jumps in her play, shaking the child up in a lively way, but it does not seem to mind.

The Value of His Time.

Young physicians in the smaller towns have an idea that appearing very busy will help them greatly in starting a practice. The following was told by an ex-senator. Dr. Godfrey Hunter of Kentucky. Dr. Hunter had a call the afternoon following the hanging out of his "shingle" and started through town in his buggy at terrific speed. A policeman stopped the enterprising physician.

"Doctor," he said, "it is against the city ordinance to drive at the speed you are going. You must accompany me to the judge and pay your fine."

"What is the fine?" inquired the doctor.

"Five dollars."

The doctor's hand flew to his pocket. "Here's $10. I have to come back just as fast as I am going."—Success Magazine.

Fixed Stars.

There are no fixed stars. When we look up at the stars they appear to be very still and peaceful, but astronomers know that such is not the case, but that each one is moving, some with incredible speed, invisible to the unaided eye, yet visible to the instruments at their disposal. Our sun, for instance, which is nothing more or less than one of the "stars" supposed to be "fixed," is moving along, with the entire solar system, toward a point in the constellation Hercules. In nature, from the most insignificant germ to the largest world, everything is in perpetual motion.

Wanted—An Interpreter.

It was a case of assault, and the literally downtrodden wife was laying her grievances before the magistrate.

"He started by giving me a biff on the nut," explained the angry complainant.

"My good woman," rebuked the magistrate, "you mustn't talk like that here. I suppose you mean he gave you a blow upon the head."

"Yus, yer washup. An' then 'e tried ter do me in by chuckin' 'is 'buccy box at me."

"By which I presume you mean," interposed the justice of the peace severely, "that he tried to injure you by precipitating his box of tobacco at you. Pray proceed and avoid slang and inform the court what other injuries he inflicted upon you."

"Well, then, he—er—he"—

"Come, come!" snapped the magistrate, really beginning to lose his temper. "Don't waste the time of the court."

The ill used wife looked about her helplessly.

"Excuse me, yer washup," she exclaimed at length, "but I was wonderin' what was the per name in this 'ere court for a biff on the jib!"—London Answers.

Woman—and Her Master.

The philosopher and his friend sat far into the night discoursing on things in general and smoking strong shag.

"Woman," said the former oracularly, "was meant to fill a subordinate position in the scheme of creation. Man is naturally her master. She cannot rationally oppose his will. He is instinctively and by the law of natural selection the dominant animal. Woman may learn to revolt, but she can never learn to rule. She has one mission in life—that of obedience. Man is born to lead, woman to follow. Man is born to command, woman to comply. She is secure only in her weakness. It is at once her duty and delight to obey her superior and"—

Then the door opened, and there appeared the head of a female thereat.

"Theophilus," said a stern voice, "how often have I told you not to smoke your horrid tobacco in the library? It's half past 2, sir. Come to bed instantly."

And the philosopher sighed, shook his friend silently by the hand and went.—London Sketch.

A Tempest in a Teapot.

What war was caused by a clay teapot?

For an answer to this question we must go, as might be supposed, to the land of pigtails and porcelain. The story goes that a Chinese emperor in olden days gave as a mark of special favor a magnificent clay teapot of rare design to Lo Hung Chang, his favorite mandarin. This was laid up as a priceless possession among the treasures of Lo Hung or borne at his side by two attendants at all high public festivals and functions. A rival mandarin saw these signs of distinction with the green eyes of jealousy and hired a man to break the obnoxious pot. The clumsy fellow was caught in the act and betrayed his master. War followed between the two mandarins and their respective followers, which resulted in the overthrow and death of Lo Hung Chang and the reception of his rival into royal favor in his place.

Soot on His Suit.

They were having a spelling lesson at a certain district school the other day, and the little scholars were all arranged in front of the teacher, spelling away for dear life, trying to see how near they could get to the head.

The word "chimney" was given out to a little black eyed girl who had been spelling words correctly throughout the morning, but she missed this one by inadvertently leaving out the "h."

Quick as a wink the little boy next her pounced on the word and spelled it correctly.

"You may go up one, Johnnie," said the teacher.

"I don't want to," whined Johnnie, getting ready to cry. "My mother would whip me if I did, because I'd get all over soot."—London Fun.

Might Have Been Put Differently.

We cut the announcement below from a New Zealand paper: "Notice.—The Maoris who are breeding pigs in Takahue, such as Mrs. Peter and Mr. Sam Yates, are supposed to look after their pigs and keep them away from rooting my paddocks, or else if they do not I shall shoot every pig I come across. Secretary L. Howell."

This is decidedly one of the things that might have been put differently.—Westminster Gazette.

On the Road to Learning.

"You say you know nothing at all about our railway?" said the official.

"Nothing whatever," answered the applicant for employment.

"Well, you come highly recommended. I suppose we'll have to put you in the bureau of information and let the traveling public educate you."—Washington Star.

Chinese Laws.

An lemon colored silk a Chinese diplomat talked about Chinese laws.

"Some of our laws, you know, are very stimulating," he said. "For example, Chi owed money to a money lender. Chi would not pay, and the money lender hanged himself on Chi's doorpost. Chi was condemned to death. You see, he was really responsible for the money lender's death.

"A son able to support his parents is imprisoned for life if he won't do so. A son unable to support them is imprisoned for three years, as we hold—and quite rightly—that there must be something wrong with a young man who can't support his parents.

"Our police are excellent, thanks to the stimulus of our law. When a crime is committed a sleuth is put upon the case and given, say, thirty days to land the criminal. If the sleuth fails he himself pays the penalty of the crime, less two degrees. That, too, is a just and stimulating law, for if the police can neither prevent nor punish crime then they should be themselves punished for their rank incapacity."—New York Press.

Superstitious Remedies.

For whooping cough a cooked dormouse is good. In the eighteenth century this remedy was employed in Scotland. Here is another medicament for the same complaint: "Watercress is a very good thing, sir, with a little bit of that brown sugar what you uses to put on to bacon and some honey mixed with it. And I'll tell you what's a good thing for croup but a riesty bacon fat fried down and afore it resolves add some pepper and vinegar. It opens the pipes of the lungs, d'ye see." And if you are adventurous you may try this for "phlegm on to the chest:" Catch a "dear little dotty frog" and tie a bit of string to one of its back legs. Then you "keep on letting it go down your throat and pulling it up again." The narrator of this added to T. W. Thompson, who sets down these stories: "It's the truth, young fellow, and it cleared the phlegm out of his throat bootiful, but we wouldn't do such a thing as that."—London Chronicle.

Boomerang Kinks.

There are a good many "kinks" to be learned to throw the boomerang skillfully. One is always to throw against the wind if you want it to come back to you. It is a miniature aeroplane, for it literally sails against the wind and is borne upward and onward by the breeze. If the player wants to make a long distance straightaway record he can throw with the wind, but he must take care to select a boomerang which is heavy—so heavy that it will not be too much affected by the air currents. By pointing the boomerang at a certain angle he can make it soar aloft in circles like a hawk until it may be as high as 100 feet above the earth. As in golf playing, it is not so much mere strength that makes a long thrower, but the skill in aiming, the direction and in boomerang throwing the way in which advantage may be taken of the air currents.—St. Nicholas.

The Maid's Chance.

"Do you ever lose that umbrella of yours?" asked the maiden.

"No; I don't," replied the man sternly. "The person who takes that umbrella will have to take me."

"Do I understand that to be a proposal of marriage or a threat?" inquired the miss sweetly.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Accounting For Patrick Henry.

It is related that Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase on stopping at the birthplace of Patrick Henry in Virginia exclaimed: "What an atmosphere! What a view! What glorious mountains! No wonder that Patrick Henry grew here!" Whereupon an honest native dryly remarked that the atmosphere, the view and the mountains had been there for ages, but that only one Patrick Henry had been produced.

AT THE JUNCTION.

The Situation That Grew Out of a Long Wait.

By DONALD ALLEN.
(Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

Miss Carrie Mayberry had made a journey of seventy miles up the state to pay a month's visit to her aunt. She had had to change cars at a junction en route, but the conductor had been so courteous and there had been so many passengers changing with her that she had not minded the ten minutes wait. In returning after her visit was up things were different. The conductor was a crossgrained old chap who had no good looking daughter of his own, and then the only other passenger to get off and take the G. and B. road was a young man, who proceeded to saunter up and down the platform without giving Miss Carrie a second look.

As if these three or four things were not bad enough, she learned that the train she had to wait for was three hours behind time. She did not learn this from the young man—oh, no! He found out for himself and then kept the information to himself, though he must have known what a hurry she was in to get back home and see pa and ma. He just didn't care whether she got home that day or the week after.

Miss Carrie learned about the lateness of the train from the red headed depot agent. It was a country junction. The depot and his house were the only two buildings there. The only landscape for three miles around was made up of a spotted cow, a swamp, a haystack and a water tank. It took the red headed man just one hour to get ready to come out on the platform and say:

"Your train was three hours late an hour ago; now it's only two hours."

"What—my train late?" was the exclamation. "Why didn't you tell me so when I got off?"

"No good. You'd have had to stay just the same."

The young man saw her look of chagrin, disappointment and anger from the flour barrel on which he was sitting, but did not come forward and take the red headed man by the neck or speak words of consolation to her. She looked at him and mentally called him names—real hard names.

The agent had a home, a wife and two children. The home was quite near, and the right thing would have been to invite Miss Carrie to tarry there. He didn't do the right thing. He didn't care whether she walked the platform or roosted on the haystack.

And that young man—a nice specimen he was! Of course Miss Carrie had made up her mind when she first got off that if he tried to scrape acquaintance she would promptly freeze him out, but that was on the understanding that the G. and B. train was on time. Now it was hours late, and that made all the difference in the world. He ought to know that it did.

Just after the red headed man had told Miss Carrie that she still had two hours to wait she looked at her watch and found that it had stopped. There was no clock in the depot. The young man had a watch, which he frequently consulted in a somewhat ostentatious way, but would the girl humble herself to ask him what time it was? Never in this world! There were some yellow flowers growing alongside the tracks twenty rods away, and he could have jumped down and culled her a bouquet.

The two hours were about up when the red headed man went out to Miss Carrie to say:

"Your train is another two hours late, making five hours in all. Mebbe it will be six, but I'll say five to you."

"And I—I've got to wait two or three hours more?" she almost screeched.

"Unless you want to walk."

The young man was at the far end of the platform inspecting a patent washing machine that had arrived by freight, and yet he must have heard the message and known her feelings. If not, why did he grin? For a minute Miss Carrie looked around for dynamite to blow him off the face of the earth, but then it began to rain, and she had to seek shelter. The young man also sought shelter.

The sitting room was about twelve feet square. It contained a rusty stove and a single bench. Its windows had not been washed since the surrender of Lord Cornwallis, and the only picture on the walls was that of a young lady with long hair and holding in her hand a bottle of the stuff that did the trick. Miss Carrie took one end of the bench and the young man the other. For twenty minutes she gazed at her toes and he at his. Then they gazed at the rusty stove. Then they raised their eyes as high as the long haired girl and kept them there a long time. She could have grown another foot of hair while they looked.

Then the red headed man came in and said he guessed it was going to rain and went out again. As it had been pouring for half an hour his observation struck home. The young man wished to himself that he had such a father-in-law, and Miss Carrie wished to herself that he would come to the Boston weather bureau and run the weather for a while.

Then the young man consulted his watch. The girl wished it would stop with a bang, and she walked over to one of the windows to see if the cow still stood out on the marsh. He walked over to the other to see if the haystack still stood upright or had a Pisa tower lean to it. Silence for twenty minutes. The two could almost hear more rust gathering on the stove. Then, all of a sudden, Miss Carrie gave way. She had been wanting to cry about something for three weeks past. The something had come. There were tears and sobs.

"What's—what's the matter?" asked the young man.

"You are!" she answered fiercely.

"How am I—I"—

"You know. Here I've been for a whole week, and you haven't—haven't even spoken to me! No, you haven't, and I'm ready to tell you what I think of you!"

"But, you know—you know!—he faltered.

"Of course I know! Was it my business to come up and speak to you first? You knew I was impatient. You knew I was lonesome. You knew I had nowhere to go. And—and you just walked and walked and walked, and you wouldn't even look at me. Where are your manners, sir? Are you a stick of wood or a young man?"

"But I flirted with a girl once, and she froze me," lamely protested the young man.

"But am I that girl? Are all girls alike? Did that girl have to wait five or six weeks at an old junction? I—I don't want to flirt. I want to talk—just talk. I want to know when that old train is coming, when it's going to stop raining, what time it is, if the rain has come out of my hair in this dampness and lots and lots more. Why, if you hadn't been a chump—I mean if you had been a talker—we might have had a real long visit, and I could have told you all about my Aunt Sarah."

It wasn't too late to make amends. The young man hitched nearer and began to talk, and half an hour later, when the red headed man came in to say that the train had concluded to be two additional hours late, the couple gave him no attention, and he went to the house and said to his wife:

"Well, they've took to each other at last, and I just heard him ask her if she would correspond. If it ain't a marriage within a year, then I'll dye my hair and grow chin whiskers."

I may say that a person in conversation with me now would never imagine that I ever stuttered, and I owe my present condition wholly to your instructions. I sincerely believe that any person, no matter how badly afflicted, may be cured in a very short time if they will but follow your instructions, and I will certainly recommend you to any stammerer that I may come in contact with.

Reached the Limit.

An old sailor noticed something suspicious about a sack of meal that was being swung by a crane at Port Nolloth on to his hip. The sailor told the captain there seemed to be something moving in that particular sack, and captain said:

"Aha, a stowaway, I guess! Keep it till the last. Then sling it to the yard and let it hang there."

The sailor kept the sack till the last. Then he swung it up over the hold, and as the winchman was going to lower it he shouted:

"No, no! Don't lower down! Let her hang!"

And there the sack hung in midair. The ship put out to sea. The sack swung this way and that with the rolling of the waves. Now it spun like a top. Now it bumped against the mast. And for nearly three hours this swaying and banging, this bumping and spinning, went on, but never a sound came from the sack.

Finally the captain winked and shouted:

"That sack's damp. Drop it overboard."

There was a muffled aerial shriek, and the sailor lowered the sack with a great splash into the sea; then he hauled it up again at once.

"Lemme out! Lemme out!" spluttered a terrified voice, and the sack was opened, and out rolled a gigantic Kaffir, his superb endurance at last broken.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Liberty Versus Greens.

A colored man from Georgia had lived in Washington but a few days when he was arrested for some slight violation of the city ordinances. Upon hearing that the negro was in jail the secretary of the colored Y. M. C. A. secured the services of a minister to go with him and sign the prisoner's bail bond. They reached the jail shortly before noon and told the negro the object of their visit. In response to the proffered kindness he said:

"Mistah Johnsing, I sho is glad you all is gwine jab git me out, but I wants you all to fix it so I can't git out tell late dis ebenin'."

Of course the two Samaritans were somewhat taken aback by the unusual request. But a moment later they lost their breath when in answer to the secretary's question the Georgia negro replied in a whisper:

"Well, sah, dey's a-gittin' dinnah ready, an' dey's cookin' greens, an' I sho would like to git some o' dem greens befo' I leabes dis place!"—Lippincott's.

John Strange Winter's 100th Book.

For thirty-six years John Strange Winter (Mrs. Arthur Stannard), who is about to publish her hundredth book, has been writing. She is now fifty-three, and at seventeen years of age wrote her first story. Her curious pseudonym was chosen on the advice of her publishers, who thought it better that the public should assume that her military books, such as "Cavalry Life," and "Regimental Legends," were written by a man. It was not until she wrote "Bootle's Baby" that her identity was revealed. As a matter of fact, it was a long time before it was believed that the books were written by a woman.

Literary Men From the Postoffice.

Mr. W. W. Jacobs, who attained his forty-sixth birthday recently, is one of a long list of literary men who have been employed in the General Postoffice—a list which includes such names as Anthony Trollope, Edmund Yates, Sir Spencer Walpole, A. B. Walkley, and H. Buxton Forman, the editor of Keats. Mr. Jacobs' father was manager of a wharf at Wapping—a circumstance which in all probability accounts for the large part which river life plays in the sea's novels and stories.

THE POSTAGE STAMP.

Much Labor and Care Expended in Gumming Its Back.

We take so many things for granted that at times when we learn of the amount of trouble a simple appearing thing has cost we are amazed. For instance, how many, when they glibly stick a postage stamp on a letter, think of the trouble that has been taken to put just the right amount of mucilage on the stamp? And yet the labor and care expended on the backs of stamps are considerable. It is a most delicate operation.

After the printing great sheets of stamps are passed under a roller, from which they receive a thin coating of gum. Then they are gradually dried over steam pipes. Of course care is taken to make the coating even. Tests are hourly made to see that the heat and humidity are exactly right. Then for each season of the year allowance must be made—a harder gum for summer, a thinner one for winter. In winter the gum is apt to crack, and care must be taken to prevent that. A third grade for spring and fall gum is known as "intermediate." So, you see, even so small a thing as a postage stamp is an item of interest in the country's workshop.—Chicago News.

The Witch and the Broom.

The following is a Halloween game out of which much fun can be got: Purchase a yard of black and a yard of white paper muslin. On the white muslin draw or paint a broomstick. Out of the black muslin cut small witches, one for each guest. The object of the game is to see who can pin the witch to the broom in the most natural position. Each player is of course blindfolded. The most successful one receives a prize suggestive of Halloween. The various positions in which the witches are placed indicate the future of the different players. If the witch be placed at the right of the broom it indicates a life of travel, at the left a quiet country life, above success in great undertakings and below a musical career.

A Game For Halloween.

An amusing pastime for a Halloween frolic is a bundle auction. When all the little guests have arrived the lights are turned low and a witch appears, with a basketful of small bundles on her arm. The bundles vary in shape and size and are tied with bright ribbons. Inside of each is a souvenir, like a little witch, a red devil, a pumpkin or any pretty novelty, and also a prophecy. The witch then auctions off the bundles, and no one bids again after a bundle is knocked down to him. When the auction is over and the souvenirs are examined they are pinned to coats and dresses, and then each one reads aloud his prophecy of fortune.

A Purist.

Most persons believe Stevenson's verses for children may, without correction of amendment, safely be placed in the hands of the impressionable youngster without corrupting either his morals or his English. But there are some who think otherwise, says an exchange.

Little Alice's mother, having taught the child to say, "Time to rise," in which "the birdie with a yellow bill" figures, the child announced that she meant to recite it to her teacher.

"Well, and what did Miss Prim say to 'the birdie with a yellow bill?'" asked Alice's mother when the little girl returned from school.

"She says it is quite a pretty thought. But this is the way she makes me say it now, mamma:

"A birdie with a yellow bill
Hopped upon the window sill,
Cocked his shining eye and said,
'Are you not ashamed, you sleepyhead?'"

"But that was not the way the birdie said it, Alice," the mother remonstrated.

"No, mamma; I know. But teacher says it isn't good English to say, 'Ain't you 'shamed, you sleepyhead?'"

Sixteenth Century Meals.

Judging from a passage in Harrison's "Description of Britain," breakfast eating in the sixteenth century was held to denote effeminacy. "Heretofore," he writes, "there hath been more time spent in eating and drinking than commonly is in these days, for, whereas of old we had breakfasts in the forenoon, beverages or suction after dinner and thereto reare suppers when it was time to go to rest, now these old repasts, thanked be Gods, are verie well left, and each one (except here and there some young hungrie stomach that cannot fast till dinner time) contenteth himself with dinner and supper onlie. • • • The nobilitie, gentrie and students ordinarilie go to dinner at 11 before noon and to supper at 5 or between 5 and 6 at afternoon. The merchants dine and sup seldom before 12 at noon and 6 at night, especiallie in London. The husbandmen dine also at high noon and sup at 7 or 8, but out of the tearme in our universities the scholars dine at 10."

A Curious Trail.

All sorts of devices have been used to mark a line of march. A unique method of "blazing the trail" is still to be seen in Africa, and a recent publication prints a picture of one of these memorials of the dervish raid. Arthur J. Hayes mentions the subject in his "Source of the Blue Nile."

In 1899, after a fierce battle with the Abyssinians, the dervishes pursued their foes as far as the lake district. The mahdi's men had small knowledge of geography and little topographical intelligence. So the advance party, in order to mark the route for those who came after and also to guide the force on their return journey, twisted the saplings along the way into living knots. The war ended, but the tied up trees grew and flourished, but uncouthly twisted and distorted, and are now the only reminders of that uprising of the dervishes.

FERROZONE CURES

"For years I had been rheumatic. I tried various forms of relief without success. The disease increased, settled in my joints and muscles; these swelled, caused excruciating pains, and kept me from sleeping. My limbs and arms stiffened, my shoulders were lame, and prevented me from working. Week by week I was losing strength, and despaired of finding a cure. It was a happy day I heard of Ferrozone. Every day I took Ferrozone I felt better; it eased the painful joints, gave me energy, and a feeling of new life. Ferrozone cured my rheumatism, cured it so that not an ache has ever returned. The DAY of CONFLICT

THE DAY OF THE DUEL
(A True Story)

"AND when we pulled him out of the thicket he was as thick with burrs as a cushion with pins," laughed Merrick. "Seldom have I seen a sorrier sight. He stood there ruefully plucking the clinging things from him. But it would have taken half a day to get them all loose. He looked for all the world like a fat countryman clad in a rusty plough coat."

The company laughed loud and long. It was in a condition for easy laughter and the picture summoned up by the speaker was much to its liking in the prevailing mood.

"There is a catastrophe for a horseman such as Hook would have us believe he is," remarked Barrow. "Why, since he came on furlough a week ago we have heard nothing but how he clung to the saddle during sore mischance or rode so many leagues without dismounting, or tamed a fiery mount that had been despaired of by the most masterful."

"Oh, 'tis naught to the discredit of the gallant Major," said Merrick. "Who has not been unhorsed at some time on a hot chase? I did but say that he cut a most laughable figure."

"And well it serves him," persisted Barrow, while smile and murmur applauded. "No doubt Major Hook is a most fearless and worthy officer. But it strikes me as most fitting that pat upon his easy boasts he should have had a fall. Right well would I have liked to see it."

"It was well worth the viewing, so neatly and completely was he transformed," said Dick North. "What did not add to his peace of mind was that Elizabeth Winn rode close behind him and was a witness to his discomfiture. Elizabeth asked him politely if he was hurt and in making answer he fussed and fumed like a man with a hundred bee stings upon him."

Another shout greeted this additional bit of color.

"There you have given his real wound," said Barrow. "Elizabeth saw the fall? I'll wager he was in fighting temper at that. It is hard enough that he should plunge into a thicket of thorns, but that he should suffer such misfortune under his lady's eye was the very maliciousness of evil fate."

"Let us call him Sir Burr or My Lord Thistle, or some such title that shall serve to remind him of the matter," broke in Clinton Wright. "For myself, I have found his large mouthfuls of self-praise most difficult to endure."

"It would not be well to carry the joke too far," said Merrick, who was some years older than the rest of the company. "He is, after all, a man well respected and reported. Moreover, he is the guest of the Merriwells, and I would not have him say that the folk of Queen Anne county lack in hospitality."

But Wright pounded his pewter mug upon the table. "It has never been said, nor should it ever be, that the folk of Queen Anne county lack in spirit, either," he said. "He comes here, a salon soldier, and swings the high head above us mightily. I have no quarrel with the man, but I must confess that I should like to lower his pride a bit."

Barrow led the applause at this assertion, and it was plain that no great love for Major Hook held the hearts of the young, hard riding, harder drinking aristocrats of the neighborhood.

Merrick, who was more cautious, already regretted the success of his tale and sought to turn the current aside.

Elizabeth Winn.

"Come, Master Clinton, I think I see where the shoe pinches. Perhaps, now, Miss Elizabeth has given the brave Major a trifle too much of her attention to suit you, eh?"

"What Miss Elizabeth chooses to give ear or time to is none of my interest," said Clinton, stoutly, flushing a little at the ready laugh that went around the table at his expense. "If she prefers," he added, with a sneer, "to ride each morning with an escort who may be dropped into any wayside bush it is her privilege. The point is that the fellow has proved himself empty and ridiculous in his speech and that we need no longer swallow it."

Such was his statement, but as he was riding over to town the following morning it gave apparent proof of a more complicated attitude toward the matter. For on the road he passed Major Hook on his bay mare cantering by the side of Elizabeth Winn, and he frowned angrily. Hook answered his stiff salute quite as stiffly and the girl responded with a pleasant nod.

The brevity of her greeting spurred some thought in him, for a short distance beyond them he pulled up sharply in a cloud of dust, wheeled and charged in pursuit. "Oh, Miss Winn," he called, with another and still stiffer acknowledgment of the claims of Hook, "may I have a word with you?"

She glanced at him in some surprise at the request, but Major Hook instantly drew off to one side. "What is it, Clinton?" she asked, with asperity.

"I am desirous to know whether you are willing to accompany me to the Parlons' dance to-night?" he answered, switching his boot uneasily.

"Why, truly, boy you are, Clinton," she answered, with reddened cheek, "to stop me on the road and intrude such a question. I said I would go with you full two weeks ago."

"I—I thought you might have changed your mind," he answered, sullenly, looking away.

"Did you? Well, had you made many such exhibitions as this in the meanwhile I might very well have done so. However, I suppose it is too late now." With a quick turn she deftly brought her back to him and a moment later was once more at the side of Major Hook, leaving Clinton in a very unpleasant [illegible] with comfort he might from the accepted and favored cavalier of Elizabeth Winn. In some mysterious way quite beyond his power of analysis he seemed to have lost all his ground within the last week. Love had suffered and pride had been struck a shrewd cut but a moment before. All this was intensely galling, and but one fact was now clear before him. Major Hook was the sole cause of it all. He had decided that during the recent incident.

Elizabeth had her own version of the situation which she confided to her sister while they were preparing for the dance that evening.

"I hope Clinton will wear that new black suit of his," said Hetty, pensively, after important matters of rosettes and slippers and lace had been settled. "It adds three years to his age, I declare, and adds wonderfully in distinction and dignity."

"I am not greatly interested in what Clinton wears," returned Elizabeth, tartly.

A Presumptuous Boy.

"Well! Here is news indeed!" exclaimed the elder. "What is wrong now between you and Clinton?"

"I know of nothing that is right," said Elizabeth. "He is an ill-natured and a most presumptuous boy. I regret that I should have allowed myself to be seen so much in his company. He has become quite unbearable."

"Marvels and marvels! What has he been up to?"

"Why, it is his manner since Major Hook has been here. I am in no way bound to Clinton Wright. I can recall no authority that he holds upon my actions. In some fond and stupid mood he took a bitter dislike to the Major and has been most rude in treatment of him whenever we have chanced to be together.

"Nor is that all. Last night, while sitting in an inn with certain companions he uttered most discourteous remarks concerning Major Hook. There was a mishap in the hunt, as you may have heard; such a one as any rider is likely to have, and Clinton made it the basis for slurring comment." It was all repeated to me."

"Then it was true that the gallant Major went scrambling in a brier bush?" asked Hetty, slyly.

Elizabeth's clear blue eyes snapped. "What then? An accident in the field is nothing for horsemen, or horsewomen either, to laugh at."

"Perhaps he never had time to acquire skill in handling horses, being occupied with military matters," suggested Hetty, with an artless air.

"I have never known you so ill natured, Hetty," said her sister, with some warmth. "Major Hook is a man and a soldier. He saw service during the late war with Great Britain, and if he never took part in an engagement it was not because he did not do his duty and follow orders. He surely proved his courage as truly as most of our friends who stayed at home."

"But what has this to do with Clinton? He was too young to make even a picture soldier, so you cannot hold him at a disadvantage there."

"Too young! There is the phrase. Hetty, he is a wilful and a wayward child. He lacks true restraint and polish. I wonder at myself that I should have been so long in discovering it. He talks ill behind the back of a gentleman who is eminently his superior in all things that make for merit. That argues that he is not only a boor, but something cowardly. I am determined to call our friendship to an end."

"Elizabeth, you are wrong," said Hetty, decisively, turning her dark eyes upon her sister with a resolution as great as the younger had shown. "I know nothing to the discredit of Major Hook, but Clinton is a spirited and a lovable and a mettlesome boy. Boy he is, I grant, and he is a boy with whom we have grown up. He loves you and I am not ready to say you do not love him. Surely, a week ago there was little doubt of it. You have allowed the attentions of an older man, a stranger to our people and our community, to turn your head. I can see the trace of his own suggestions in your words. You will be sorry if you allow this new fancy to interpose a permanent obstacle between you and Clinton."

"Heigh-ho," said Elizabeth, who had suddenly regained her composure. "That is quite enough for once, Hetty."

"Very well," answered Hetty. "But unless this affair has gone further than I think I am fairly sure how you would choose if instant choice lay between them."

"You may be sure of one thing. I should never choose one who was not manly and courageous and worthy," said Elizabeth. "And I'll leave you to guess who that may be."

The Lash of Words.

If Clinton had been bewildered and hurt by the change in Elizabeth, he was rendered quite desperate and hopeless by her treatment of him while they were together in the coach on the way to the dance. She answered him shortly, and when he strove to overcome her capriciousness she opposed so many startling defences to his overtures that he found his sole safety in retreat and silence.

"I take this most unkindly of you, Elizabeth," he said, as the swaying vehicle was tacking up to the Parton door.

"Take it as you like, Clinton," she answered, "and if there is any matter I particularly detest it is to hear a whine."

He jumped at the lash of words and said no more. Once inside he kept out of her way as much as possible, nursing his bitterness. In courtesy he could do no less than go through a minuet with her and he paced the steps in some fashion. After that, though he was conscious that his new black suit became him remarkably, he sulked in the background and would not accept the coy comfort offered him by kindlier maids. Meanwhile she danced frequently with Hook.

It was worse when he took her home. He sought his own corner of the coach and gloomed, trying to banish from his mind the insistent thought of her soft, filmy draperies that touched his hand, the pressure of her shoulder when a lurch threw her toward him. For a moment, before they reached her home, he thought she had relented. She made some casual remark and he answered eagerly. But his tone seemed to bring back all her irritation and he subsided in despair.

One of his negro servants had ridden his favorite horse as an escort, and after the Winn mansion was reached he ordered the coach home empty and flung himself into the saddle. He made the distance to the inn at a reckless pace and set himself to a bout with the brown ale in petulant resolve to drown his troubles.

But even here, it seemed, his evil genius must follow. He was no more than well settled with a group of congenial youngsters than Major Hook entered the place with Merrick. He arose immediately and left the inn. Out in the cool night air once more, he was undecided whether to bewail his lot to the stars or err at random with his sorrow. Starting off through a field, he forced through a growth of dried and crackling bushes. Smoothing his stockings after the encounter, he discovered that he had accumulated a number of burrs that clung tenaciously to the silk. As he began to remove them a madcap notion seized him, a humor such as an underbred schoolboy might fall in with. His present store of temper found a sudden relief and he gathered the burrs until he held a ball of them as large as his fist. Then he returned to the inn.

The company was seated as usual about the huge round table, where pipes and tankards were served. Clinton took up his stand at the fireplace, where he leaned carelessly. In this position he was directly back of Major Hook, who was holding forth eloquently on some subject of politics and had taken no notice of his entrance. Feeling off one of the burrs from the ball, Clinton shot it with a flick of his forefinger and it lodged on Hook's back. No one was watching and the Major was unconscious of the tiny impact. Clinton continued to shoot his harmless missiles until they had gathered like a swarm of insects between Hook's shoulders. He took much satisfaction from the result, but it was necessary that the victim should be informed.

"Oh, Major Hook, he said carelessly, "your servant has neglected to remove all the traces of your misadventure from your clothing, I perceive."

Hook turned around with a frown.

"Did you address me, sir?"

"I did," rejoined Clinton. "I said it was evident your servant took small pains with your attire. You still bear with you the marks of your late accident on the hunting field."

A Lesson in Breeding.

In turning the gallant Major had brought his back to the company so that the layer of burrs was presented to general view. No open comment upon his mishap had yet been made, but those who bore some little ill will against him found an opportunity here to let him know that they understood the full value of the joke. The ripple of laughter left Hook white and furious. Putting up a hand, he discovered the malicious trick that had been played upon him. He left the table and walked over to Clinton, riding whip in hand.

"There are some pranks that call for a lesson in breeding," he said tensely, and reaching out a hand he caught Clinton by the shoulder.

The company fell instantly silent and Merrick and others started from their places. "By your leave, Major," said Merrick hastily, with a courteous and deprecatory gesture. "I trust you will not allow your very natural indignation to run to extremes. Clinton has been guilty of a most thoughtless and unworthy offence. I am certain that he will render all necessary apologies."

The falling of Hook's hand upon his shoulder had an effect upon Clinton's petulant passion as sudden as the sweep of an icy shower upon a heated runner. He stood erect, facing Hook quietly, aware of the childishness and bad taste of his affront. He saw immediately that it should be his part as a gentleman to make full apology. But while Merrick was speaking Hook's whip was curling in the air. "The boy needs a switching," cried the Major.

"Stop! Don't strike!" shouted several, and Merrick leaped forward just too late to intercept the stinging blow about Clinton's neck and shoulders.

"Now he's done it," breathed North, for he had a swift glimpse of Clinton's blazing eyes. The last minute had wrought its transformation in the immature youth. Under that stroke the years of boyhood fell away and he felt and knew the power of manhood, ready, controlled and firm. He threw off Hook's grasp with a slight effort and stepped back, speaking in low, even tones.

"That will do, Major Hook," he said. "I was quite ready to make the proper reparation. Your response to my heedlessness is, of course, such as makes any further discussion unnecessary. It is now my turn to demand satisfaction."

Hook looked the figure of his opponent up and down scornfully. "What?" he cried. "You have the assurance to consider yourself entitled to a meeting?" He laughed. "Here's a crowing cockerel. Count yourself lucky, my youthful friend, that I did not dust your jacket more thoroughly."

"Will you fight?" asked Clinton, steadily.

"I do not fight with children," said Hook.

"Then perhaps that will make you," said Clinton. Before any member of the surprised group could make a move he picked up a tankard half full of ale from the table and threw the contents into Hook's face. The next instant the company had divided, half swarming about each belligerent. Hook, spluttering and wrathful, was forced from the inn and Clinton was held there until the other had been escorted to a safe distance.

"You'll have your hands full, Clinton," said Barrow, shaking his head.

The Day of Conflict.

"I sincerely hope so," returned Clinton. "Will you act for me, Tom?"

And Barrow, who had not quite adjusted himself to this new Clinton Wright, made haste to consent.

The mutual feeling of the adversaries would not permit the matter to rest over night. Within an hour Merrick came riding back as Hook's representative, bearing a formal challenge and personally most chagrined over the affair. He, too, had failed to gauge the full importance of the change in Clinton and undertook to berate him for his impetuosity. Clinton stopped him sharply.

"I will ask you to remember, Mr. Merrick," he said, "that your business is to confer with Mr. North. I am quite capable of censoring my own actions whenever occasion arises." Merrick stared at him a moment and then decided that he had best hold his peace.

Just at daybreak on November 15, 1816, Clinton and his second left the inn and rode to a clearing at the top of a low hill some two miles distant, which had been chosen as the place of meeting. They arrived to find Hook, Merrick and a surgeon of the neighborhood waiting for them. The ground was quickly paced and marked, the pistols loaded and the two men took up their positions.

They were placed ten feet apart. Hook had donned his uniform and made a handsome martial figure as he stood waiting for the word. Clinton still wore the black suit in which he had attended the dance, as it seemed to him, ages ago. He was perfectly calm, his brain was abnormally clear and he concentrated his thought with purposeful intensity upon the right breast of his enemy. To Barrow and Merrick he was a total stranger. To Hook he was an impudent, presuming lad who must be taught his manners. Within himself he rejoiced in his new found strength.

"I am ready," said Clinton.

"Ready," said Hook.

"Present!" Both duellists raised their weapons to a level. There was nothing to choose between them in steadiness and deliberation of aim.

"Fire! One!"——

The pistols spoke with a single voice. Clinton held his arm extended a moment, then dropped it with a groan and sank limply to the ground. Hook, folding his arms, remained erect at his mark.

Barrow and the surgeon hurried to the wounded man and found that the bullet had passed through his side. He was in great pain, but retained full possession of his faculties.

"Barrow," he said, faintly, "I demand another shot."

"Impossible, Clinton," returned his second, bending over him. "You are not able to go further with the affair."

"I demand another shot, Barrow," repeated Clinton fiercely. "Carry that message to Hook. My proposal is that we be placed side by side on the ground while we fire again."

Barrow had no choice but to carry the request of his principal to Merrick, who communicated it to Hook. After some minutes Barrow came back with the answer.

"Hook is willing to give you another shot if you are able to stand. Very properly, I think, he refuses to fall in with your suggestion of fighting a prostrate foe."

"Barrow," said Clinton, "feel in my coat pocket." Barrow obeyed and drew out a large handsome handkerchief. "There is a stout sapling just back of us," continued Clinton. "You and the surgeon must prop me against it and secure me in an upright position with that handkerchief. I'll have another shot at any cost."

"But, Clinton," said Barrow, aghast, "this is unheard of. You are mad."

"Damn you," said Clinton, weakly, "have I got to fight you too? Do what I tell you."

Barrow dared offer no further objection and, with the assistance of the surgeon, dragged his principal to the tree. By passing the handkerchief under Clinton's arms they were able to support him, half leaning, half hanging so that his feet touched the ground. Hook watched these preparations with a frown. He had given his answer with the full belief that his adversary would be unable to meet the conditions. But it was too late to draw back now.

Hook's position was changed so that he stood ten feet from the tree and the weapons were loaded once more. Clinton was not a reassuring figure to face. Pale, with drawn, distorted features and blazing eyes, he glared upon his opponent with a terrible look of hate and deadly resolve. They eyed each other a moment with lowered pistols. Then the signal came again.

"Are you ready, gentlemen?"

"Ready," they answered.

"Present!" Up came the pistols, barrels flashing in the newly risen sun.

"Fire!" There was no delay this time. Merrick had no more than started the word when a sharp double explosion rang out. Hook spun on his heel and dropped instantly. Clinton, peering eagerly through the smoke, caught a glimpse of the fallen man. Then his limbs relaxed, the pistol slipped from his grasp and he sank fainting against his support.

At that instant a shrill cry startled the three spectators. They looked to see a horsewoman dash out of the woods and into the open space. It was Elizabeth Winn. She threw herself from her horse and stood, wide eyed and panting, looking from one to other of the adversaries. The surgeon had just secured Clinton's handkerchief and was lowering him, limp and unconscious, to the ground. Elizabeth hesitated a moment, then, with another cry, ran forward, caught Clinton in her arms and pillowed his head against her breast.

The lives of both men hung in the balance for days. Ultimately both recovered. Major Hook returned to the army as soon as he was able to travel. About a month after his departure Clinton Wright and Elizabeth Winn were married.

The DAY of CONFLICT

THE DAY OF THE DUEL
(A True Story)

"AND when we pulled him out of the thicket he was as thick with burrs as a cushion with pins," laughed Merrick. "Seldom have I seen a sorrier sight. He stood there ruefully plucking the clinging things from him. But it would have taken half a day to get them all loose. He looked for all the world like a fat countryman clad in a rusty plough coat."

The company laughed loud and long. It was in a condition for easy laughter and the picture summoned up by the speaker was much to its liking in the prevailing mood.

"There is a catastrophe for a horseman such as Hook would have us believe he is," remarked Barrow. "Why, since he came on furlough a week ago we have heard nothing but how he clung to the saddle during sore mischance or rode so many leagues without dismounting, or tamed a fiery mount that had been despaired of by the most masterful."

"Oh, 'tis naught to the discredit of the gallant Major," said Merrick. "Who has not been unhorsed at some time on a hot chase? I did but say that he cut a most laughable figure."

"And well it serves him," persisted Barrow, while smile and murmur applauded. "No doubt Major Hook is a most fearless and worthy officer. But it strikes me as most fitting that pat upon his easy boasts he should have had a fall. Right well would I have liked to see it."

"It was well worth the viewing, so neatly and completely was he transformed," said Dick North. "What did not add to his peace of mind was that Elizabeth Winn rode close behind him and was a witness to his discomfiture. Elizabeth asked him politely if he was hurt and in making answer he fussed and fumed like a man with a hundred bee stings upon him."

Another shout greeted this additional bit of color.

"There you have given his real wound," said Barrow. "Elizabeth saw the fall? I'll wager he was in fighting temper at that. It is hard enough that he should plunge into a thicket of thorns, but that he should suffer such misfortune under his lady's eye was the very maliciousness of evil fate."

"Let us call him Sir Burr or My Lord Thistle, or some such title that shall serve to remind him of the matter," broke in Clinton Wright. "For myself, I have found his large mouthfuls of self-praise most difficult to endure."

"It would not be well to carry the joke too far," said Merrick, who was some years older than the rest of the company. "He is, after all, a man well respected and reported. Moreover, he is the guest of the Merriwells, and I would not have him say that the folk of Queen Anne county lack in hospitality."

But Wright pounded his pewter mug upon the table. "It has never been said, nor should it ever be, that the folk of Queen Anne county lack in spirit, either," he said. "He comes here, a salon soldier, and swings the high head above us mightily. I have no quarrel with the man, but I must confess that I should like to lower his pride a bit."

Barrow led the applause at this assertion, and it was plain that no great love for Major Hook held the hearts of the young, hard riding, harder drinking aristocrats of the neighborhood.

Merrick, who was more cautious, already regretted the success of his tale and sought to turn the current aside.

Elizabeth Winn.

"Come, Master Clinton, I think I see where the shoe pinches. Perhaps now, Miss Elizabeth has given the brave Major a trifle too much of her attention to suit you, eh?"

"What Miss Elizabeth chooses to give ear or time to is none of my interest," said Clinton, stoutly, flushing a little at the ready laugh that went around the table at his expense. "If she prefers,' he added, with a sneer, "to ride each morning with an escort who may be dropped into any wayside bush it is her privilege. The point is that the fellow has proved himself empty and ridiculous in his speech and that we need no longer swallow it."

Such was his statement, but as he was riding over to town the following morning he gave apparent proof of a more complicated attitude toward the visitor. For on the road he passed Major Hook on his bay mare cantering by the side of Elizabeth Winn, and he frowned angrily. Hook answered his stiff salute quite as stiffly and the girl responded with a pleasant nod.

The brevity of her greeting spurred some thought in him, for a short distance beyond them he pulled up sharply in a cloud of dust, wheeled and charged in pursuit. "Oh, Miss Winn," he called, with another and still stiffer acknowledgment of the claims of Hook, "may I have a word with you?"

She glanced at him in some surprise at the request, but Major Hook instantly drew off to one side. "What is it, Clinton?" she asked, with asperity.

"I only wanted to know whether you are willing to accompany me to the Partons' dance to-night?" he answered, switching his boot uneasily.

"What a silly boy you are, Clinton," she answered, with reassured sheen, "to stop me on the road and intrude such a question. I said I would go with you full two weeks ago."

"—I thought you might have changed your mind," he answered, sullenly, looking away.

"Did you? Well, had you made many such exhibitions as this in the meanwhile I might very well have done so. However, I suppose it is too late now."

With a quick turn she deftly brought her back to him and a moment later was once more at the side of Major Hook, leaving Clinton in a very unpleasant [illegible] comfort he might from the accepted and favored cavalier of Elizabeth Winn. In some mysterious way quite beyond his power of analysis he seemed to have lost all his ground within the last week. Love had suffered and pride had been struck a shrewd cut but a moment before. All this was intensely galling, and but one fact was now clear before him. Major Hook was the sole cause of it all. He had decided that during the recent incident.

Elizabeth had her own version of the situation which she confided to her sister while they were preparing for the dance that evening.

"I hope Clinton will wear that new black suit of his," said Hetty, pensively, after important matters of rosettes and slippers and lace had been settled. "It adds three years to his age, I declare, and adds wonderfully in distinction and dignity."

"I am not greatly interested in what Clinton wears," returned Elizabeth, tartly.

A Presumptuous Boy.

"Well! Here is news indeed!" exclaimed the elder. "What is wrong now between you and Clinton?"

"I know of nothing that is right," said Elizabeth. "He is an ill-natured and a most presumptuous boy. I regret that I should have allowed myself to be seen so much in his company. He has become quite unbearable."

"Marvels and marvels! What has he been up to?"

"Why, it is his manner since Major Hook has been here. I am in no way bound to Clinton Wright. I can recall no authority that he holds upon my actions. In some fond and stupid mood he took a bitter dislike to the Major and has been most rude in treatment of him whenever we have chanced to be together.

"Nor is that all. Last night, while sitting in an inn with certain companions he uttered most discourteous remarks concerning Major Hook. There was a mishap in the hunt, as you may have heard; such a one as any rider is likely to have, and Clinton made it the basis for slurring comment." It was all repeated to me."

"Then it was true that the gallant Major went scrambling in a brier bush?" asked Hetty, slyly.

Elizabeth's clear blue eyes snapped. "What then? An accident in the field is nothing for horsemen, or horsewomen either, to laugh at."

"Perhaps he never had time to acquire skill in handling horses, being occupied with military matters," suggested Hetty, with an artless air.

"I have never known you so ill natured, Hetty," said her sister, with some warmth. "Major Hook is a man and a soldier. He saw service during the late war with Great Britain, and if he never took part in an engagement it was not because he did not do his duty and follow orders. He surely proved his courage as truly as most of our friends who stayed at home."

"But what has this to do with Clinton? He was too young to make even a picture soldier, so you cannot hold him at a disadvantage there."

"Too young! There is the phrase. Hetty, he is a wilful and a wayward child. He lacks true restraint and polish. I wonder at myself that I should have been so long in discovering it. He talks ill behind the back of a gentleman who is eminently his superior in all things that make for merit. That argues that he is not only a boor, but something cowardly. I am determined to call our friendship to an end."

"Elizabeth, you are wrong," said Hetty, decisively, turning her dark eyes upon her sister with a resolution as great as the younger had shown. "Ready," they answered.

"Present!" Up came the pistols, barrels flashing in the newly risen sun.

"Fire!" There was no delay this time. Merrick had no more than started the word when a sharp double explosion rang out. Hook spun on his heel and dropped instantly. Clinton, peering eagerly through the smoke, caught a glimpse of the fallen man. Then his limbs relaxed, the pistol slipped from his grasp and he sank fainting against his support.

At that instant a shrill cry startled the three spectators. They looked to see a horsewoman dash out of the woods and into the open space. It was Elizabeth Winn. She threw herself from her horse and stood, wide eyed and panting, looking from one to other of the adversaries. The surgeon had just secured Clinton's handkerchief and was lowering him, limp as unconscious, to the ground. Elizabeth hesitated a moment, then, with another cry, ran forward, caught Clinton in her arms and pillowed his head against her breast.

The lives of both men hung in the balance for days. Ultimately both recovered. Major Hook returned to the army as soon as he was able to travel. About a month after his departure Clinton Wright and Elizabeth Winn were married.

SAYS POET IS INSANE

Robinson Watson Says His Brother Broke Down When He First Became Famous and Present Outbreak is a Return of His Malady Thinks His Mission is to Attack Some Great Person.

New York, Dec. 20.—Robinson Watson, in an interview wired to The New York Evening Mail Saturday from Montreal, Que.; declares that his brother, William Watson, the poet, is insane.

He believes that the poet came to the United States on a "mission of hostility" against the family of Asquith, the British Premier, and that his implications against the wife and daughter of the Premier are the result of hallucinations in a disordered brain.

He attributes his brother's alleged mental condition to the joy of sudden success after a long period of literary struggle.

William Watson and his pretty Irish bride have disappeared and, beyond the fact that they have left the hotel where they registered upon their arrival here a few weeks ago, none of their friends here knows what has become of them.

"I, who alone have the right to speak out," says Robinson Watson, "declare deliberately, in full knowledge, that the terrible things lightly hurled by my brother against a certain distinguished family are in no sense the responsible utterances of the poet, William Watson. They are the outcome of a mental malady alien to himself, and when he returns to himself, the William Watson we know will condemn them with burning words and bitter tears."

Robinson Watson goes on to explain how his brother came to enter on "what is perhaps the saddest experience that can be endured in the life of any man—a mental aberration."

On the death of Lord Alfred Tennyson, William Watson, he says, labored 50 hours without rest and almost without food to produce what was originally intended to be a brief commemorative poem, but, under the impulse of burning ambition, became "Lachrymae Musarum," a poem of which Robinson Watson quotes Gladstone as having said that "it is greater than Tennyson's own ode on the death of the Duke of Wellington."

The poem won its author immediate fame and a grant of $1,000 from the royal bounty fund.

William Watson's delusions, says his brother, assumed the form of a belief that he had a mission to perform against certain exalted personages. That belief, the brother is convinced, has returned.

Another Wreck In Lake Erie.

Port Colborne, Ont., Dec. 20.—Lake Erie found another victim Saturday night when floating ice is supposed to have been the cause of the foundering of the steamer F. A. Myers of Buffalo, about 25 miles northeast of the Southeast Shoal Light. The Myers was bound from Boyne City, Mich., to Buffalo with about 600,000 feet of maple lumber. The Myers was valued at $30,000. There is no insurance.

The crew of 15 men and one woman were taken off by the steamer Mapleton, Captain A. E. Stinson, which left Sandwich coal dock with her on Saturday afternoon. About nine o'clock Saturday night, when the Mapleton was about half a mile away, the Myers gave a signal of distress, and the Mapleton lay alongside. The Myers' crew saved nothing, the steamer going under about half an hour after. The steamer Haddington was also near by at the time. The Mapleton reached here yesterday afternoon and left for Thorold last night to tie up for the winter.

The Myers was about 260 feet long and 36 feet beam, and was owned by Adam Hartman of North Tonawanda, New York.

Struck By Motor Car

Head of the Widely-Known Firm of Gunn's Limited Meets His Death on Saturday While Crossing Yonge Street—He Had Spent Recent Years in Breeding Experiments on His Stock Farm.

Toronto, Dec. 20.—Donald Gunn, president of Gunn's Limited, wholesale pork packers, was struck by an automobile on Saturday afternoon at Yonge street and Wilton avenue and fatally injured. He died Sunday morning.

Mr. Gunn was taking his daughter-in-law and her child to the Union Station on a street car, when he decided to alight at Wilton avenue to buy some Christmas toys. As he stepped from the car, an automobile, driven by Roy F. Brintnell, of 419 West Queen street, was coming down the street. Mrs. Gunn and child crossed the street to the sidewalk, but they had hardly reached there when Mr. Gunn, who was following them, was struck by the car with sufficient force to throw him on the ground and fracture the base of his skull.

He was immediately driven by Mr. Brintnell to St. Michael's Hospital, where he was attended to by Dr. Herbert A. Bruce and Dr. Mallock. They found it necessary to operate to remove the pressure from his brain, but the injury was so serious that no hope of recovery was entertained and Mr. Gunn died yesterday morning at 9 o'clock.

Roy F. Britnell, who was driving the car, is a son of Geo. S. Britnell, manager of the Brintnell Motor Car Co. He is a traveler for the Blundall Piano Co., and was driving one of his father's cars.

Donald Gunn was in his 67th year. He was born in Thorah, near Beaverton, Ont., on Sept. 3, 1843, and was the second son of James Gunn and Christiana Grant, who were natives of Sutherlandshire, Scotland, and came to Canada in 1831. They had a family of seven sons and two daughters, of whom there are now living: Dr. John Gunn of Ailsa Craig; Alex. Gunn, Jamesville; Hector Gunn, Toronto; Dr. Wm. Gunn, Clinton; Andrew Gunn, managing director Gunn's Limited, and Mrs. (Rev.) J. Rose, of Glasgow, Scotland. When Donald Gunn was 29, he came to Toronto, where he bought out the firm of Morse & Taylor, and began business under the name of D. Gunn & Co. Under his guidance the firm has grown to be one of the largest pork packing industries in Canada, and has branches throughout Ontario and Quebec. In recent years, though, he has not taken a very active interest in the business. Most of his time has been spent on the Dunrobin Stock Farm, where he was interested in agricultural experiments and cattle and horse breeding. He is survived by his widow, Jane Fraser Gunn, and a family of four, Trena at home; John, of the Gunn-Langlois & Co., Montreal; Mrs. (Rev.) E. W. Mackey of Smith's Falls, and Ernest, manager, Dunrobin Stock Farm.

Mr. Gunn was a Presbyterian and a member of Westminster Church, where he was an elder for many years. He was a Liberal in politics. The funeral will take place from his late town residence, 3 Rosedale road, to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 to Mount Pleasant. The service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Neil of Westminster Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. Prof. McFayden of Knox College.

Coroner A. J. Johnson is investigating the case, but there will likely be no inquest.

Mexico Is Neutral.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Mexico's policy of peace and har monious relations with the United States concerning the Nicaraguan and all other international subjects was the subject Saturday of a statement by Enrique C. Creel, confidential agent of the Mexican Government. Mr. Creel made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"Mexico has no intention of having any war with Guatemala or with any other country. Our policy is one of peace and our relations with every country are most cordial, harmonious and agreeable.

"Mexico has not made representations to the State Department, to uphold the Zelaya administration.

"The relations of Mexico and the United States have never been to a higher cordial standard, and this issue of Nicaragua is too small an affair to change either the policy or the feelings of the Governments and the people of the two great republics."

Young Man Shoots Himself.

Toronto, Dec. 20.—Gordon Banks, 18 years, employed in the shipping department of the Salada Tea Co., committed suicide Sunday morning by shooting himself in the head with a 22-calibre rifle.

The young man lived with his parents in 10 Florence street, and the shot was fired in his own bedroom. It is said he had had some words with his father just before the shooting. He was reported to have a violent temper.

His father summoned Drs. Griffith and Spence immediately after the shot was fired, but the victim lived only a few minutes. Coroner George W. Graham visited the place and decided an inquest was unnecessary.

BLESSED JUDGMENTS

PASTOR RUSSELL PREACHES ON GOD'S PURPOSE.

With My Soul Have I Desired Thee In the Night; Yea, With My Spirit Within Me, Will I Seek Thee Early: For When Thy Judgments Are Abroad In the Earth, the Inhabitants of the World Will Learn Righteousness" (Isaiah xxvi, 9).

Sunday, December 19.—Pastor Russell spoke to-day from the text, "With my soul have I desired thee in the night; yea, with my spirit within me, will I seek thee early; for when thy judgments are abroad in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness" (Isaiah xxvi, 9). Brooklyn Tabernacle was crowded with an attentive audience, as usual. We report the discourse, as follows:

Only those who come to an advanced degree of knowledge of God's Word can realize how Divine judgments are all good—all blessed. Under the influence of the fog of superstition, not understanding aright the teachings of the Scriptures, supposing that they taught eternal torment for the great majority of our race, we feared God, rather than loved him. We dared not say that such a judgment was wrong, malicious, devilish, yet we were unable to see it in any other light; hence the general perplexity of Christendom, and the general alienation of heart, and many intelligent minds driven to infidelity, and the dislike to think about God and his supposedly terrible purposes respecting our race and the general awe respecting the Bible and the fear of its misunderstood teachings.

But now in the dawning of the New Dispensation the Word of God is shining as never before; one passage illuminating another, our fear gives place to reverential love and filial awe. We begin to understand that the torment doctrines which we received are wholly foreign to the Divine character, which, on the contrary, is distinctly marked by Wisdom, Justice, Mercy and Love toward all. We find ourselves now in agreement with the Scriptural declaration that God's judgments are "righteous altogether," and we delight in them. Instead of a judgment of eternal torment as a penalty for sin, we find a judgment or sentence of death. We agree to the righteousness of that verdict or judgment. God had the right to demand of his creature the obedience he was able to render. He had a perfect right to destroy him in death when he refused the blessing of life eternal on the terms of obedience. Seeing this, how rejoiced we are to note the Divine Mercy in the Plan of Redemption for the sinner and his offspring through the sacrifice of Christ! As a result we have good hope in his judgments; for him who once judged us worthy of death has with equal Justice redeemed us and granted us the opportunity of eternal life through the resurrection.

It was another part of the Divine Judgment against our race that, instead of the death penalty coming instantly upon Adam and Eve, it came gradually, that through the processes of gradual dying they might the better learn the lesson of "the exceeding sinfulness of sin"—to the intent that, when granted the new trial secured by the merit of Christ's sacrifice, they might profit by it the more. The same principles apply to all of Adam's posterity. "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now * * * waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God" (Romans viii, 19, 22). They are waiting for the establishment of Christ's Millennial Kingdom under which they shall have a full opportunity of coming to a knowledge of the Truth.

This is God's provision for the world in general. What God did for the little nation of Israel during the Jewish Age, and what he has been doing for Spiritual Israel since Pentecost, in this Gospel Age, are matters separate and apart entirely from his general dealing with the world of mankind. The natural and the spiritual Seed of Abraham are exceptions to the rule. They have been granted special privileges and blessings not granted to the world in general—natural Israel under the Law Covenant and spiritual Israel under the Abrahamic Covenant. From these two nominal Israels special "overcomers" have been chosen or elected. These shortly, in association with the Redeemer, will constitute the Kingdom of God. The overcomers of spiritual Israel, becoming the Bride of Christ by resurrection "change" to the heavenly nature, will be like him and share his glory and constitute the Kingdom class in the highest sense. The overcomers of natural Israel, resurrected to the perfection of earthly nature, will constitute the earthly phase of the Millennial Kingdom. Mankind may see and have intercourse with these, but will not see nor have direct intercourse with the glorified Christ, Head and Body—the King of Glory.

So far as the world is concerned, it has been under the one general sentence of Divine Justice, "dying thou shalt die." But so far as natural and spiritual Israel are concerned, they have been dealt with as freed from the original sentence and on trial for life or death afresh under God's judgments or disciplines. Thus it is written, "Jehovah will judge his people." Not all under these judgments have understood them—not all were in the condition of heart to receive their instructions. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him; and he will show them his Covenant" (Psalm xxv, 14). Thus, during the Jewish Age, Israel often lapsed into more or less of darkness and idolatry and failed to see their special privileges and relationship to God under their Covenant. But amongst them were the few faithful who with the eye of faith discerned the righteousness of God's dealing with them. Of these were the prophets who rehearsed the Divine dealings and rewards and punishments, that they were true and righteous altogether and merciful in the extreme.

We have seen that God's judgments in the past have been merely with those who shall constitute the Seed of Abraham (natural and spiritual), through whom, according to the promise, "all the families of the earth shall be blessed" (Genesis xxviii, 14). We now note the fact that our text does not relate to either of these, for their judgments could be discerned only by the eye of faith. Our text refers to the world's judgments during the Millennial Age. "Then God's judgments will be abroad in the earth—not merely confined to one nation or specially called class, but will include every member of Adam's race. And while these are declared to be the Lord's judgments, note the fact that they will be administered by The Christ, of which our glorified Redeemer shall be the Head, and his "members," when glorified, shall be the Body—the Church. The judgments of the Lord abroad in the earth will not mean havoc and dismay to mankind in general, but the very reverse—relief, assistance to all who come into line with the righteous arrangements of that Kingdom designed for their uplifting from sin and death condtions. The judgments of that Millennial Day of a thousand years will be severe—even to destruction—only against the willfully, the deliberately rebellious, after they shall have been brought to a clear appreciation of right and wrong, good and evil, and their penalties, life and death.

Mark the statement of the Prophet David when prophetically referring to the Millennial Age; he points out that the judgments of that time will be a cause of gladness. He says:

"Let the heavens be glad,
And let the earth rejoice;
Let men say among the nations, Jehovah reigneth.
Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof;
Let the fields rejoice, and all that are therein.
Then shall the trees of the wood sing aloud
At the presence of Jehovah,
Because he cometh to judge the earth.
O give thanks unto Jehovah, for he is good;
For his mercy endureth forever."
I. Chronicles xvi, 31-34.

Mark the words of St. Paul respecting what God has in reservation for the world. He says God "hath appointed a day (the thousand-year day of Christ) in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained" (Acts xvii, 31).

In this work ordained for our Lord he is to have associates—the "elect" Church, his "members," of whom the Apostle writes, saying, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?" (1. Corinthians vi, 2.) And the Ancient Worthies enumerated by St. Paul (Hebrews ix, 39-40) will also be judges, but on the earthly plane as representatives of the heavenly Kingdom. As it is written, "I will restore thy judges as at the first and thy counsellors as at the beginning" (Isaiah i, 26).

Our All-Wise Creator, who has thus made provision, both for the heavenly and the earthly judges of the world in the election from Israel and the election of the Gospel Age, has thus demonstrated to the few who understand "the secret of the Lord" "the mystery" hidden from ages and dispensations past. It is evident that there will be no disappointment, no failure, in respect to God's great oath-bound Covenant made with Abraham—"In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." The basis of the blessing is the redemptive work of Christ finished at Calvary. The outworking of that blessing will come through the glorified Lord and his Church, "his Body." The first work will be the establishment of a righteous government in the hands of those already proven absolutely loyal to God and to his righteousness — "faithful even unto death." We may have full confidence that in that Kingdom "righteousness will be laid to the line and justice to the plummet," as God has promised (Isaiah xxviii, 17). Not only so, but we may have a free hand there to do all for mankind that would be reasonable and possible. The combination of a strong government with merciful assistants is represented by the fact that our Lord will be, not only the great King, but also the great Priest and Prophet and Teacher. Even so, also, the Church shall be "kings and priests"—their office, their service, will be a combination of ruling and healing, instructing and uplifting.

Everything done will come under the head of judgment—righteous dealing. Every good deed, yea, every good effort, will be rewarded — its judgment will be a blessing, an increase of harmony with the Lord and with a character development and restitutional physical experiences (Acts iii, 19-21). Instead of the ways of darkness will be the way of light. Instead of the broad road leading to destruction with the masses going down thereon—to the tomb—will be "the highway of holiness." Instead of stones of stumbling we are assured that all the stumbling stones shall be gathered out of the way. Instead of beastly violence, overmastering temptations and besetments, devouring mankind because of their weakness to resist the Adversary, the Bible assures us that Satan will be bound and that the wild beasts of vice and degeneracy will all be brought into subjection. Thus "nothing shall hurt nor destroy in all God's holy Kingdom." "And an highway shall be there, and it shall be called, The way of holiness" (Isaiah xi, 9; xxxv, 8).

The Messianic Psalm (seventy-second) finds its application to that glorious Millennial epoch. Thus we read, "Give the King thy judgments, O God, and thy righteousness unto the King's Son. He shall judge thy people with righteousness and thy poor with judgment (justice). * * * He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy and shall break in pieces the oppressor. * * * He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass, as showers that water the earth. In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth."

As already shown, God's dealings in the past have been with the world only in the sense of executing a general sentence for Adamic sin — a death sentence with all that that involves of mental, moral and physical degeneracy—dying. All of God's special judgments have been with those who were justified to special relationship through faith. If we were to judge of the number who will be blessed during the Millennium by the "little flock" of natural Israel and the "little flock" of spiritual Israel, saved under God's judgments in advance of the millennium, the outcome of the world's judgment would not appear favorable. But these would not be fair criterions. Present conditions are permitted in order to test and to prove the faith, as well as the obedience of those who are under trial or judgment and who, by reason of the fall, have such a faith as permits them to grasp the glorious features of the present call. Consequently, "few" there will be who will find the great reward now offered (Matthew vii, 14).

This is as God designs it, because he is selecting a special class. But the arrangements made for mankind in general are that the darkness and sin of the present time shall flee away. The dawning of the Millennium morning, with the rising of the Sun of Righteousness with healing in his beams (The Christ in glory to enlighten the world), will mean that knowledge will be granted the world—facts, evidences, proofs. The world will not be required to "walk by faith and not by sight," as are the "elect" of this present time. Instead of the eye of faith of the present time will be the eye of understanding (knowledge), then. Instead of the secret of the Lord being kept from the world, all of his gracious purposes will then stand fully revealed. "The knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the great deep" (Habakkuk ii, 14). As a result none shall need to say unto his neighbor and to his brother, Know thou the Lord, for all shall know Him, from the least to the greatest of them. Every knee shall bow and every tongue confess to the glory of God (Romans xiv, 11). When every good deed shall receive promptly and manifestly its reward, and every evil deed shall receive promptly its punishment, the world will speedily learn to avoid the punishments and to win the rewards by obedience to the laws of the Kingdom.

The Prophet in our text personifies The Christ, Jesus the Head and the Church his Body. Note the statement, "With my soul have I desired thee in the night" (Isaiah xxvi, 9). The "night" of sin has been upon the world for centuries. The "morning" is at hand, but not yet fully come. During the night time the faithful of the Church are represented as walking in the light of God's Word. "Thy Word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lantern unto my footsteps" (Psalm cxix, 105). St. Peter says, "We have a more sure word of prophecy, to which we do well to take heed as unto a light shining in a dark place—until the day dawn and the day star arise" (II. Peter i, 19). In this night time the "elect" are different from the majority of those around them—they desire God's righteousness and they pray, "Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done on earth even as it is done in heaven."

Those who now are able to "sing in the night" because of their appreciation of the Divine Plan are prophetically declared to "sing the song of Moses, the servant of God and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints. Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy: for all nations shall come and worship before thee, because of the manifestation of thy righteous dealings" (Revelation xv, 3, 4).

A Cruel Jest.

Samuel Rogers, the poet, resided with Lady Holland, and amused himself by exacerbating her fears of illness and death. During the cholera epidemic Lady Holland was a prey to indescribable terrors. She could think of nothing but precautionary measures, and on one occasion was describing to Rogers all that she had done. She numerated the remedies she had placed in the next room—the baths, the apparatus for fumigation, the blankets, the mustard plasters, the drugs of every sort. 'You have forgotten the only thing that would be of any use," observed Mr. Rogers. "And what is that?" "A coffin," replied the poet. Lady Holland fainted.

Sir Frederick Macmillan.

From England comes the announcement that King Edward has knighted Frederick Macmillan, the present head of the English publishing house of Macmillan & Co., of New York and Toronto. Mr. Macmillan is the son of the original founder, Daniel Macmillan. In 1843 there appeared a little volume, "The Philosophy of Training," by A. R. Craig, bearing this imprint: "Published by D. and A. Macmillan, 57 Aldersgate street." That was the first the reading public heard of a name which has since become familiar in England and America.

Royal Billiard Players.

King Edward is a very fair billiard player, and occasionally indulges in an evening game with the Prince of Wales. His Majesty was taught billiards in his youth by Dufton, then a noted player. The Queen and her daughters play a fair ladies' game, Queen Maud being especially good at winning hazards. The Kaiser has also played with the King, and is an excellent player, though somewhat nervous.

How Local Option Hurts Owen Sound

Creates Discord
Increases Drunkenness
Harms Business
Promotes Disorder

"I CONSIDER Local Option detrimental to the best interests of the town from a business point of view, as it has created discord and set up one portion of the town against the other. From a moral or temperance standpoint, I consider it the worst blow the temperance cause ever had in the town. I believe it will take a great many years before the sympathy of the people as a whole can again be secured through temperance movements, such as we had before Local Option was carried. It has created more drinking among young men than there ever was in town under a good license system. The arguments advanced when Local Option was advocated that the working classes would have more money to spend in foodstuffs have been proven to be absolutely wrong, as it has not been the case at all.

THE BROKEN DEADLOCK.

And a Telephone Call That Was Canceled.

By ANNIE HINRICHSEN.

(Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

The man looked across the table at her. In his eyes were surprise and amusement.

"I don't know you," he smiled. "Haven't the slightest idea who you are. But you are the most charming young woman I have ever met."

The girl laughed softly and delightedly. "It's good not to hear the inanity. 'You haven't changed a bit in the last five years; you're just the same.'"

She held her slender, straight, young figure with military rigidity.

"You're not the same," he insisted. "You're altogether different. The young woman journalist dining with me tonight is a brand new person, bearing, as a means of attracting my attention in a proper manner, the name of a girl I used to take to picnics in a little fresh water town."

HE LAUGHED HAPPILY AND DREW HER HANDS UP TO HIS LIPS.

"Middleford—dear little old town. I n't been back to it— Bob, look—fourth table to your right."

"A distinguished party."

"A most amazing combination—three official enemies dining together a hundred miles from where they are supposed to be. It means something."

"The election of a United States senator."

"Probably."

"Can you pick the winner?"

"If I can talk to Dick an hour I'll know the winner."

"We are not interested in United States senators and legislative deadlocks and political bosses tonight."

She spoke impatiently. "I want to know why those three men are together. The legislature meets again tomorrow after a week's adjournment. Something is being planned by that party which will break the long deadlock. They are not together for social purposes. Dick hasn't seen us. We'll go into the hotel lobby, and you must leave me. Go upstairs to the parlor and wait for me."

"But, Marion"—

"This is business, Bob. Will you do as I say? We'll talk later."

For an hour and a half he waited. Then she came, hurrying.

"I have it. It's done. Come into the alcove, and I'll tell you about it.

"If their plans don't miscarry the next senator will be—guess—Governor Greenwood.

"He told me everything. I've put in a long distance call for our office. It's a big story, and our paper will have it in time for the early edition.

"Dick says the deadlock will be broken tomorrow. For seven weeks Judge Allerton has been within ten votes of an election. Small controls the men who are supporting Allerton. Edwards controls fifteen votes, which he has refused to give to Allerton or any other man whom Small favors. But both want Governor Greenwood out of the state. The internal improvement commission is to be appointed, and there will be a lot of graft in it for whoever the governor appoints. Governor Greenwood hates both Small and Edwards and won't give them or their friends a chance at the money the commission will have to disburse. Small and Edwards have agreed to bury their differences and secure for themselves the control of the commission. They will unite their votes, elect Governor Greenwood to the senate, remove him from state to federal politics and have as governor a man whom they can control. Dick Huston, the lieutenant governor, will succeed Greenwood, and Small and Edwards will have the spending of the commission funds.

"And I've secured the story for my paper. It's the biggest surprise in the political history of the state."

"Dick gave you permission, I suppose, to use this story."

"No. He does not know I am working on a paper. I have not seen him for years. He was enthusiastically glad to see me and a little excited with egotistic and prospective greatness."

"If this story is published tomorrow morning what effect will it have?"

"There will be no election. Small, Edwards and Dick will abandon their scheme and deny the story; public opinion would be too strong against them. Our paper is fighting for Judge Allerton. He is its heaviest stockholder."

"If you telephone your editor, Dick will not be governor, will he? He will lose, as many a man has lost, because he trusted a woman."

"But my paper"—

"What about yourself?"

"This is my work—my profession"—

"When you were a little girl you were the prettiest, sweetest little girl in Middleford. Dick Huston was the worst boy in town. Do you remember? There was only one person who ever had a good influence over him, and that was you. Little as you were, you made him quit swearing and beating small boys. He has not forgotten what you were to him then. A man holds in his heart always through the cruelest of life's disillusions the pure, innocent child he first loved. She belongs to the time of dreams, a state of idealism we once lived in, but from which most of us have departed. Dick had a lot of sentiment. He is about to attain the highest place in the state, and he is feeling very deeply. He talked to you tonight because you were the dream girl"—

"Dick has no conscience, no political honor. He is a bribe giver and a grafter. I have my fight to make—a hard, unfair one. Why shouldn't I use this opportunity to make good? No mercy and little justice has been shown to me. I'm feeling things, too—more things than Dick is. I'm feeling five years of poverty and loneliness and hurts and disillusionments and slavish hard work. I look successful. I wear the clothes, and I've learned the manner. But it's a bluff. Some day it won't be; some day it will be real. I want success. I intend to have it. I'm only an assistant society reporter, sent down here to write up a state meeting of woman's clubs because the regular reporter is ill. This story will throw me ahead—years beyond assistant society scribbling"—

She stopped abruptly, then went on in a gentler tone:

"Bob, I used to envy you, and now I do more than ever. You always had the best of everything—new shoes and such nice bobbyhorses. Life has gone on so easily for you. You inherited your father's money and prestige, and success came ready made, gilt edged and tied up with a pink ribbon."

"Dick has never married. You can be the wife of the governor of the state."

"The wife of a moral degenerate—a boodler"—

He laughed happily and drew her hands up to his lips. "Oh, sweet souled, contradictory child, cut it out and come home with me! I want you"—

"I won't. The hardest part of my struggle is past, or will be when this story reaches our editor. You think I'm doing wrong in taking this opportunity. If I give it up you will assume the responsibility of my future. Is that what you mean? You were always a sentimentalist, Dick, and the truest, best— But I shall stay and fight it out and succeed. I shall use Dick's story and take the benefit. I won't go home with you to be lazy and comfortable and good and happy."

"Happy," he remarked to the hands he still held against his face. "Happy."

The curtains of the alcove parted.

"Lady," announced a bellboy, "central has your party on the line."

"Tell central—tell central," she began, "the call is—the call is canceled."

RHEUMATISM IN THE SYSTEM

SIX YEARS CURED IN SIX DAYS

TO MFRS. "NERVILINE."

"The suffering I endured for six years with Rheumatism is beyond description. Every time I was exposed to cold or dampness meant that I had to go to bed. My muscles stiffened, my joints swelled, and any attempt at exertion brought on excruciating twinges. The pain shifted from one part to another and I was scarcely ever free from misery and sleeplessness. I took all kinds of liquid medicines, but they nearly all depressed my heart and I had to stop them. Then I was told of the wonderful power of Nerviline.

Nerviline

"If Nerviline had been made specially for my case it couldn't have been more successful. It sank right into the core of the painful part, gave me ease, allowed me to sleep, gave me the use of my arms and limbs—in fact, made a new man of me. I urge all Rheumatics to use 'Nerviline.'

A. E. TRAYONER.
"Justice of the Peace, Lancaster."

The most wonderful pain-subduing substances in the world are in Nerviline—that's why it penetrates so quickly, why it instantly cures pain that other remedies can't even relieve. You'll be surprised how quickly sciatica, lumbago, or rheumatism are cured by Nerviline—seems almost magical the way it will cure a cold or sore throat. When the chest is sore and it hurts to draw a long breath, one rubbing with Nerviline is sufficient. So highly valued is Nerviline by those who use it, that many families consider it quite as good as a doctor for aches, pains, and minor ailments of every kind. Large 25c bottles are sold by all dealers.

Shaking a Carpet.

"There's nothing the matter with this carpet, my dear," remarked Niggard to his wife, who was cleaning house and said she couldn't make the place look nice unless there was a new floor covering to the front room. "All it needs is a good beating," he continued.

After beating a merry tattoo on the carpet with a stick out in the back yard for half an hour Niggard, with an exultant expression on his face, called to his wife:

"Come here, my dear. Why, it looks just as good as a new one."

"I don't see how you can say such a thing," replied his wife, with tears in her eyes. "It's just as faded as it ever was, and you've only made more holes in it."

"Do you mean to say I don't know how to shake a carpet?" demanded Niggard, his vanity touched.

"I do," replied his better half in a tone that left no doubt what the result would be. "You are going to shake that old carpet for a new one."

The Bishopstrow Belle.

The famous Beau Nash was at one time extremely fond of a beautiful girl called Juliana Popjoy, sometimes known as the Bishopstrow belle. She used to ride about the streets of Bath on a fine gray horse, carrying a whip with many thongs, a fad which gained for her the title of Lady Betty Besom. Juliana was very kind hearted, and during the last five years of the beau's life she nursed him devotedly. After his death she vowed that she would never again sleep in a bed and took up her abode in a large hollow tree, where she lived for many years, earning a scanty livelihood by selling herb medicines and fetching and carrying. At last Juliana became very ill, and, knowing she could not possibly recover, she felt an intense longing to die in her old cottage home at Bishopstrow. More dead than alive, she set out on this last journey and managed to reach the house where she was born in time to die there.

Does Local Option do the Work?

What a Toronto Newspaper Reporter saw in Owen Sound—

1. Illegal selling over the bars.
2. Drug stores doing a rushing business in intoxicating liquor.
3. Blind pigs at work,
4. Eleven drunks pass a given point in half an hour on Saturday night. Six drunks taking dinner at the same time in the same hotel.
5. More drunkards in proportion to its size than in any licensed town in Ontario.

Question of Following Up Montreal Grafters Is In Doubt.

Montreal, Dec. 20.—Saturday afternoon, printed copies of Judge Cannon's complete report on the civic investigation were placed in the hands of aldermen and of others interested.

The aldermen and the others interested, it goes without saying, will devote a considerable portion of their Sabbath leisure to reading, and digesting the report.

On Monday, when the council meets, it is expected the aldermen will take some action on the report.

Some of the city fathers are in favor of a resolution calling upon those aldermen censured by Judge Cannon to resign their seats.

It is hardly probable, however, that such action will be taken.

Others want the council to wait the announcement of the apportionment of costs against the aldermen named by Judge Cannon, as it has been announced that several of the accused aldermen will contest payment through the courts, and will thereby bring the question of their culpability indirectly before a legal tribunal.

It is a pretty safe guess that if action is left to the present council, nothing decisive will be undertaken in regard to giving Judge Cannon's findings and recommendation force and effect.

The question of punishing the grafters whom Judge Cannon accuses of looting the civic treasury of twenty-five per cent. of its income for the past six years is still a mooted one.

The Citizens' Association has informally talked the matter over, and decided to postpone action until its executive has had a chance to study Judge Cannon's report.

There is not much doubt, however, that unless action is taken in another quarter, the association will stand the move that will result in prosecutions.

Grand Duke Nicholaievitch Dead.

Cannes, France, Dec. 20.—Grand Duke Michael Nicholaievitch, grand uncle of Emperor Nicholas, died Saturday. He was the oldest representative of the imperial house, having been born in 1832, the fourth son of Emperor Nicholas I.

He entered active military service at fourteen as a lieutenant and at 20 had attained the rank of general, in nominal command of the ordinance department of the empire. He fought in the Crimean war, and in 1863 was appointed viceroy of the Caucasus, with instructions to bring the tribes of this region under the Russian aegis. This task he accomplished successfully, receiving a sword of honor and the cross of St. George for personal bravery under fire. In the Turkish war of 1877-83 the grand duke commanded the Russian army operating against the Turks in the Caucasian theatre of the war, and was finally able to force the surrender of a large part of the Turkish forces at Ardahan and Kars.

In 1881 he became president of the Council of State, and played an active role until the organization of the Douma, when he was named its honorary president.

Wagon Crushes His Head.

Toronto, Dec. 20.—Willie Ashby, 15 years, 6 Clinton street, while driving a wagon for Patrick Martin, expressman, 100 Claremont street, was fatally injured when the wagon, skidding on the slippery pavement, struck a post in West Front street Saturday morning, was overturned and fell upon his head. The horse did not stop, and the lad was dragged along with the heavy wagon resting upon his head. When the horse was stopped, the lad was taken to St. Michael's Hospital, where he died while being carried to the operating table.

Government and Unions.

Montreal, Dec. 20.—At the Builders' Exchange dinner at the Windsor on Saturday night, the chief speakers were Hon. Mackenzie King, Hon. Charles Marcil, and F. D. Monk, M.P. The Minister of Labor said the Government had no intention of restraining the influences of trade unions in the Dominion. The duty of Parliament would be, however, to see that all parties, both labor and capital, should get fair play.

Derailed by Split Rail.

St. Paul, Dec. 20.—The northbound Winnipeg flyer, on the Great Northern Railway went into the ditch four miles east of Monticello, Minn., at 7.30 Saturday night. The fireman was crushed to death. No passengers were hurt. The wreck was due to a split rail.

Burns to Death In His Chair.

Media, Pa., Dec. 20.—Thomas Valentine Cooper, a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature and former collector of the port of Philadelphia, was burned to death at his home. While smoking a cigar he either fell asleep or suffered a paralytic stroke, and his bathrobe became ignited.

Cardinal Satolli Very Ill.

Rome, Dec. 20.—Cardinal Satolli, who recently suffered a relapse from nephritis, was slightly improved yesterday morning and insisted upon a chaplain celebrating mass in the sick room. In the afternoon his condition was very much worse, and there was some delirium.

Nervous Prostration For Three Years

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine cured me of a period of nervous prostration of over three years duration, and the Anti-Pain Pills are as necessary to us as the roof of our house. They have been household remedies with us for many years."

WM. J. LOUGHMAN,

Philadelphia, Penna.

Much sickness is due to nervous troubles. Headache, dizziness, epilepsy and insanity are nervous troubles. Then there is a large class of disorders which arise from a weakness of the nerves of an organ or part, as weak lungs, heart, stomach, kidney, bladder, eyes, etc. Dyspepsia and indigestion are usually the result of nervous disorders.

O'Brien on a street car Saturday night, are under arrest to-day. The negroes were captured by citizens.

The thug sought for obtained $40 from O'Brien Saturday night by cutting out his pockets and taking the money. The car, after the negro left it, ran uncontrolled for four miles into the centre of East St. Louis.

—Catholic Standard and Times.

Mind Justice.

We meet our philosophical friend and observe that he is smiling contentedly.

"What has gone wrong now?" we ask.

"Nothing has gone wrong," he explains. "Something went right. Spriggins owed Hennett $10,000 and put his property in his wife's name so that Hennett couldn't collect."

"But that isn't anything unusual."

"And last night Mrs. Spriggins eloped with Hennett!"—Life.

Near the End.

"Hello, Thoirty-nine," said the first messenger boy to the other, who was just starting out with a message. "How fur have yer got ter go?"

"Oh," replied Thirty-nine, pulling out his book, "on'y about six chapters! I'm just where Handsome Harry gits on the villain's trail."—Catholic Standard and Times.

A Hit.

I tacked a bullseye on my heart
And told the girls to shoot.
They borrowed each a Cupid's dart
And Cupid's wiles to boot.

Belle pulled the coed with eager care,
But did not hit a thing.

When pretty Julia bent the bow—

She shut her eyes and let her go.
And—well, she rang the bell.

First Lesson.

Father—Well, Carolyn, how do you like school?

Carolyn (aged six)—Oh, so much, papa!

Father—That's right, daughter. And now what have you learned today?

Carolyn—I've learned the names of all the little boys.—Harper's Bazar.

"Nowt Never Happened."

No one is fonder of a good story, or can tell one with greater effect, than Dr. Clifford, who will lead the Nonconformist Emergency League against the Lords, should necessity arise. Both his father and mother worked in a Lancashire lace factory, and when the preacher was ten years old he too entered the factory, and often worked twelve or fourteen hours at a stretch. Of these days Dr. Clifford has an amusing reminiscence. A piece of new machinery was being hoisted to the top room of the factory, when the rope broke and the machinery got a damaging fall. "Well, I never!" exclaimed the manager. "To think I've hoisted with that rope for fifteen years and nowt never happened."

DYSPEPTIC

Food Does You No Good

Half the time you're afraid to eat; your tongue is coated, mouth tastes bad, stomach is bloated. If you want to get well, stop using dyspepsia tablets, and go to the source of the trouble before it is too late. Strengthen your stomach, cast out the bile, regulate the bowels—do this, and dyspepsia will be no more.

For your condition the best prescription is Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are made specially for the stomach, kidneys and liver. No better remedy will be devised, for Dr. Hamilton's Pills are perfect.

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS A SURE CURE

"No one could realize my sufferings from stomach trouble and indigestion. For five years I have not been well. My food did me no good, because I couldn't digest or assimilate. My doctor said constipation was at the root of my trouble, so I got Dr. Hamilton's Pills. My appetite improved, pain after eating ceased, and my food digested quickly. I am delighted with the thorough cure I derived from Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"(Signed) MARTIN E. WALKER.
"Bridgewater."

Quick results attend the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills; this medicine cures all trouble in the stomach and digestive organs by removing the cause.

Fortune Telling

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health.

The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross.

Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indelicate questionings and offensively repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as sacredly confidential. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. PIERCE'S GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR BOOK, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—1000 pages, answers in Plain English hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know about. Sent free, in plain wrapper to any address on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only, or in cloth binding for 50 stamps.

HOLIDAY ADVERTISING

THE HOLIDAYS are the harvest time for the Merchants, and they bend their energies towards inducing the largest possible volume of trade at this season of the year.

In most cases, enterprising merchants who are Regular Newspaper Advertisers increase their space before Christmas, and non-regular advertisers get into the papers about that time and drop out entirely after the Holidays.

Business Hypnotism.

You Have Heard It Said :

"I Don't Need To Advertise"

"I don't need advertising. My business was never better". This is th e erchant we would like to convince of the weakness of the position he is assuming.

The advertising solicitor has seen many a man go under who for years had been hypnotised with this idea. Business was good and continued good with these men until such time as a more enterprising rival sprang like a bolt from the blue, and through a wise use of Printers' Ink and other up-to-date methods, had, in a few years, succeeded in focussing the attention of the Public on the Newcomer's Goods, to the dismay and ruin of the old firm.

JOHN WANAMAKER

Once said to a young business man who sought his service :—

"I owe my success to Newspaper Advertising. I know that, because I can reach a larger number of best buyers that way". : : : : : : : : : : : : : :

"But It Costs Too Much"

says another merchant. That depends upon how you use it and where you place your advertising. Let us see :—THE DAILY EXAMINER print this week an average of over 3000 copies every day. It's fair to assume that in the 3000 homes in this City and District into which THE DAILY EXAMINER is received, an average of at least three readers in each home read it.

THE WEEKLY EXAMINER has an average Weekly Circulation of 2650 copies. It's fair to assume that in the 2650 homes into which the WEEKLY EXAMINER is received, an average of at least three readers in each home read it.

The Total Approximated Number of Readers of the Daily and Weekly Examiner Each Week is 16,950

The Total Cost for Twelve Months of each one inch of Advertising in The Daily and Weekly Examiner per 1000 Readers is 15c.

The Daily Examiner covers the city from one end to the other and,—The Weekly Examiner covers Seventy-Five different Post Offices in the County. Judged by this test, The Examiner is in a class by itself as far as the City and County of Peterborough are concerned.

Strong Help For Weak Kidneys

"Fruit-a-tives" Is the Best Kidney Medicine In the World.

If people only realized the danger of Weak Kidneys, and the value of "Fruit-a-tives", there would be practically no Kidney Disease in Canada.

When the kidneys become congested (too full of blood) or strained from overwork, they can quickly be made well and strong again by taking a box or two of "Fruit-a-tives".

Pain in the back, frequent headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, coated tongue, constant desire to urinate—these are the common symptoms of congestion of the kidneys.

The only possible way to relieve this congestion, is to force the bowels and skin to rid the system of more waste matter and thus allow the inflamed kidneys to rest and grow strong again.

"Fruit-a-tives", being fruit juices, intensified, soothes and stimulates the kidneys, and at the same time rouses the bowels and skin to healthy action.

"Fruit-a-tives", by their prompt action on bowels and skin, almost instantly relieves the intense pain in back and promptly takes away every trace of Kidney Disease.

If you are suffering with your kidneys, begin at once to take "Fruit-a-tives" and you will quickly realize the value of these tablets.

At dealers—50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c—or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

STRUGGLES ARE HARD

Asquith and Balfour Will Be Out Again This Week, and the Members of the Cabinet Have All Busy Days Ahead of Them — First Election Takes Place Jan. 13 —Milner No Scaremonger.

London, Dec. 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It has been finally decided that the writ for the new elections will be issued Jan. 8, allowing the first election on the 13th.

There will again be heavy broadsides of oratory this week. Balfour, who has recovered from a cold, speaks at Edinburgh to-night, and Asquith at Birkenhead on Tuesday, and half a dozen Ministers will be on the platform every night, led by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The most novel feature of the election is the campaign of the peers. They have addressed 73 meetings and 70 more are already arranged.

It is now impossible to indicate how the parties stand in the matter of candidatures. The uncontested constituencies will be smaller in number than for a long time past, at the outside there will probably be 17, whereof 15 are represented by Unionists. The triangular contests will also be few. The Chronicle estimates they will not exceed 20. In thirty constituencies the Laborites and Unionists have a straight fight.

Lord Milner, speaking at Bridport on Saturday, said he had never been a scaremonger, but the great position won by England was being menaced more and more every day. The future demanded the energies not only of the United Kingdom, but of the Empire. Imperial unity was the great issue, before which all others sank into insignificance. What trace of this issue was there in the speeches of the Liberals? The Unionist policy was at least constructive, remedial, national and imperial. The Liberals were agreed on nothing except predatory taxation and hostility to the Lords.

Churchill, speaking at Warrington, laid stress on the unemployment, for which palliations were to be found in the development of the scheme of insurance under consideration by the Board of Trade.

Mallamann, in London, denounced the cordite scare as ridiculous.

The Earl of Cawdor at Leeds asked if home rule was granted to Ireland, what was there to prevent Belfast becoming a base for a German fleet?

Another Cobalt Arrest.

Cobalt, Dec. 20.—The latest arrest—the eleventh—in connection with the big ore stealing cases, is that of G. C. Barber, of "Ye Olde Countrie Inn," one of the best saloons in town.

Barber has been prominent in sporting circles in Cobalt for years.

It is alleged he figures on Wilkinson's books in Toronto as Neilson, and that he took ore to Toronto under that name. Barber is an Englishman, a South African veteran, with Ladysmith and Kimberley bars, and one of the best amateur boxers in town.

A computation that the four tons of ore on Wilkinson's books was a month's haul, leads mine owners to calculate that $960,000 has been stolen each year, or approximately a million dollars since the camp started.

Cannon Defiant.

Port Arthur, Dec. 20.—Answering a statement made on the authority of Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General of Ontario, to the effect that the Ontario & Michigan Power Co. had been given no lease or rights on the Nepigon or Pigeon Rivers, James Conmee said:

"We have rights on the Nepigon River and when we are ready will go ahead and develop. I defy the Ontario Government or any one else to lay a finger on us."

Fishing Tug Burned.

Lorain, Ohio, Dec. 20.—The fishing tug Penelope of Cleveland burned yesterday afternoon four miles off shore. The crew of three escaped in a small yawl. Their ears and beards were crusted with ice before they had gone a mile. Two miles off shore they encountered shore ice, too thin to bear their weight, but thick enough to impede the progress of the boat. Through this they were compelled to break their way. When they reached shore they collapsed.

Three Theatre Fires In One Day.

New York, Dec. 20.—There were fires in three New York theatres on Saturday. In the early morning the offices of the Broadway Theatre were scorched $2,000 worth. In the late afternoon a dressing room of the Murray Hill and the gallery of the old Windsor Theatre on the Bowery were damaged by flames that drove two audiences to the street.

Sat For Eighty-Six Hours.

Vienna, Dec. 20.—The Reichsrath rose Saturday after a continuous sitting of 86 hours, and after passing a bill modifying the rules of procedure. The lengthy sitting was due to obstruction by the members of the Slav union in order to support their demand that the Cabinet be reconstructed.

Former Ottawa Woman Sentenced.

Utica, N.Y., Dec. 20.—A jury found Mrs. Lillian Rick of Ottawa, Ont., guilty of bringing into the United States for immoral purposes, Jannie Valiancourt, a young French girl, who had been a waitress in an Ottawa restaurant. She was sentenced to a year and nine months' imprisonment at Auburn Prison.

LINER STRANDED.

Corinthian Goes Aground on Sand-Bank at Halifax.

Halifax, Dec. 20.—Stranded on the sandy ledge of George's Island, in the centre of Halifax harbor, one of the strongest fortifications on the Atlantic seaboard, lies the big Allan liner Corinthian, which ran ashore late on Saturday night, while outward bound for Glasgow, with a full cargo and passenger list.

The Corinthian left her dock at Deep Water Terminus at 11 o'clock Saturday night, and suddenly when opposite the island, and within the rays of George's Island lighthouse, Captain Rennie, who was on the bridge, noticed a dark object looming up through the mist straight ahead. There were no lights showing, but he noticed the sails and realized it was a schooner.

Quick action was necessary to avert a collision. There were only two things to do, run the schooner down or shift his course to dangerous water. Captain Rennie saved the schooner and crew by porting the helm. He ran towards the island, cleared the schooner by a few yards and was in the act of taking the regular course again, when the ship struck on the sandy ledge.

Several attempts were made during the night and yesterday to get her off, and it has been decided that the cargo will have to be lightered. No blame is attached to Captain Rennie. He is one of the oldest captains in the Allan service, having been coming to this port for thirty-one years.

The Corinthian has sixty passengers and 7,000 tons of cargo, made up mostly of lumber and grain.

The extension of railroads in Newfoundland will be the principal business to come before the next Legislature. Parliament will convene on January 20, under Premier Morris.

The National Assembly at Belgrade was the scene of an uproar on Saturday, when a nationalist deputy presented a motion calling upon the King to abdicate, because it was not likely that he could be received by foreign courts.

Judgment was handed down at Quebec on Saturday afternoon by Wreck Commissioner L. A. Demers, in which the court finds that no one man be blamed for the accident to the C.P.R. steamship Empress of Ireland last October.

A special train of seven cars left last night for the west loaded with over two million letters and packages containing Christmas mail. Most of it came from Great Britain, Europe, and the parcels included several tons of English plum puddings.

An enormous crowd from all classes of society besieged the Steinheil house in the Impasse Rons, Paris, France, where an auction of household effects was held Saturday. The prices secured were low, the murdered artist's paintings bringing from $4 to $40.

Why Vote at All.

Brockville, Dec. 20.—For six years the municipal legislators of Brockville have been chosen without regard to party affiliation leading Conservatives and Liberals having picked the best men on both sides, equally divided, to abolish the party spirit as far as possible.

It is proposed this year to enlarge upon the scheme by having the ratepayers as a whole meet next Tuesday night and pick out men they want to serve for mayor, councillors and commissioners. There is liable to be a clash with the labor element, who favor two candidates of their own class for aldermanic honors. There will be two bylaws, one for the reduction of liquor licenses by three and another to increase license fees by $950.

Mail Robbers Sentenced.

Winnipeg, Dec. 20.—Police Magistrate Daly, Saturday morning sentenced the two self-confessed mail robbers, Barnett getting seven years and Rowe three years.

Barnett broke down Friday and confessed he was the author of the plot, and Rowe was only an accomplice.

E. L. Howell for the crown, asked for a severe sentence on Barnett who was a postoffice employe, and a shorter term for Rowe, who was not in the postoffice service, having been discharged after one month.

It was on his homestead in Springside district, near Yorkton, that some of the money was hidden.

Membership of St. Peter's T. A. S. Has Reached 990, Just 10 Less Than 1000 Which Society Set Out to Secure—Officers Elected.

JOS. J. DUFFUS, PRESIDENT

The last regular meeting of St. Peter's T.A.S., for the present year was held yesterday afternoon with the assembly hall taxed to the limit of its capacity. A number of candidates were initiated and the roll showed a membership of 990, ten short of the 1,000 members which the society desires to secure before their anniversary on the 10th of January. It is understood that there are a number of initiations for the next meeting on the 2nd of January and the campaign will be brought to a successful close by securing the one thousand membership. One of the features of yesterday's meeting was the election of officers. Ald. J. J. Duffus won out for the presidency over a rather large field. Mr. Jos. Maher, Alf Lehane and oJs. Primeau were appointed by acclamation to their respective positions, and is sufficient testimony of the regard the members of the society have for the efficiency with which these men have fulfilled their duties. The officers elected were as follows:

Spiritual Advisr—Rev. W. J. McColl.
President—J. J. Duffus.
1st Vice-Pres—John Deannard.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Jas. Grisdale.
Recording Sec.—Jos. Maher.

Marshall—Geo. Ahearn.
Assist Marshall—D. Keegan.
Trustees—Geo. Ball, G. McDonnell, Jas. O'Brien, N. Bibby, J. L. Piccard, the recording secretary, financial secretary and the treasurer.

A large number of the tickets for the anniversary concert have been called for, and those who have not obtained them are reminded of the fact that they can secure the tickets at the T. A.S. rooms in the evenings.

BIRTH ON TRAIN

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—When the Boston train arrived at the Grand Trunk station on Saturday morning it contained an extra passenger, for whom no ticket had been procured. The passenger was a nine-pound baby, which was born on the train at an early hour on Saturday morning. The mother of the child is twenty three years of age and was on her way to this city to enter the Maternity Hospital. A message was sent ahead to the next station and a doctor was summoned. The mother and child were removed to the Pullman car, where they were made comfortable. On the arrival of the train in this city they were driven to the Maternity Hospital. Both mother and child are doing well.

GUN ACCIDENTALLY DISCHARGED BOY WAS SHOT WHILE HUNTING

Roy Elmhirst, Son of the Post Master at Clanricade the Victim of a Distressing Fatality Last Week—Died Soon After.

NO INQUEST TO BE HELD

Special to The Examiner.

Apsley, Dec. 25.—A sad accident occurred at Clanricade, eight miles north of here, last week, by which Roy Elmhirst, aged 14, son of the Postmaster at Clanricade, lost his life.

It seems, as the day was stormy, young Elmhirst and three companions, did not care to work, so decided to go for a hunt, taking an old hound with them, they went out on the burn, some two miles east of Eel's Creek. Elmhirst took his place on a runway, while the others went on. A young fellow, named Crawford, took the next place, some 300 yards from Elmhirst ;the others going to other stations. In a few minutes a report was heard, followed by cries of distress from Elmhirst.

Crawford was the first to arrive, and found the wounded lad lying on his side at the foot of a knoll, and blood pouring from a wound in the groin. The other two arrived a minute later and the three proceeded to do the best they could for the fast-dying boy. Crawford, who wore a white shirt, tore it off and tore it up and made bandages, etc. Saplings were cut down with their knives, and with the aid of moose wood throngs a litter was constructed and covered with thei rcoats, the wounded boy laid on this and the boys started on their journey—over a mile to the nearest point where a horse and sleigh could be got. The poor lad passed away some time during the journey.

On arrival of the body home, a messenger was dispatched to notify Dr. Bell, Coroner, of the occurrence. The doctor drove out, and after hearing the story of the boys, decided an inquest was unnecessary, as it was no doubt purely accidental. After his companions left him, young Elmhirst it seems, sat down on a bare knoll, and laid the gun by his side, and it must havealid down the knoll, striking against some object and exploded, the ground being clear of brush, while the body and gun were several feet apart. The charge (9 buchshat) entered the left groin, taking an upward and inward direction. Death was due to hemmhorage.

FARMERS' CLUB

Newly Formed Central Smith Organization Held its First Meeting on Friday Last.

The recently organized Central Smith Farmers' Club held its first meeting on Friday night of last week in the Temperance Hall. It was most successful, about fifty farmers being in attendance. The chair was occupied by the president, Mr. T. H. Graham, and the feature of the meeting was a paper on "The Winter Feeding of the Dairy Cow" by Mr. J. A. McGregor. Mr. McGregor went into the subject in a very thorough manner and his address was followed with deep interest. Following the paper there was an interesting discussion on the subject, in which many points in connection with the winter feeding of dairy cows were brought out. After a short intermission an interesting address was given by Mr. H. C. Duff, of Norwood, the representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in this part of the province.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on the 25th of January when the speakers will be two of the college professors who will be in attendance at the short course judging to be held in Peterborough. This meeting will be open to both ladies and gentlemen.

Mr. Chas. Moore is secretary of the club.

The Wednesday evening service has been withdrawn to enable the congregation to attend the address by Hon. Seaborn Wright in the opera house.

MOVING PICTURE SHOWS IN PETERBOROUGH

In another column of the Examiner to-day will be seen a letter from Mr. H. B. Collier in regard to what he considers objectionable features in connection with the local moving picture theatres. A representative of this paper has spoken to the proprietors of the theatriums about this objection and was informed that every effort was being made to give the citizens pictures that would not offend the most fastidious. "The moving picture managers," says this gentleman, "do everything in their power to give pictures at which no offense can be taken ,and speaking for myself I may say that there has been little or no complaint, and I am sure that this has been the case with the other proprietors. We realize that the people do not want objectionable pictures and it seems to me that there has been small grounds for complaint. It may have been that a picture has escaped the notice of the censor against which there might be registered an objection, but such cases are few and far between and they are carefully guarded against. On the other hand the moving picture theatres have devoted considerable of their programme time to semi-religious and religious pictures that cannot fail to have a good effect morally. Many such films have been shown in Peterborough and have been commended by every one who has seen them. It seems to me that the manner in which the shows are patronized and the class of people who attend our theatres are the best answers possible to the objection. However we are glad to have our attention drawn to objectionable features, and the public can rest assured their views on the subject will be the first consideration.

Crown Would Not Proceed With Cases Against John T. Maunder and Victor Fowler, Therefore Jury Returned Verdicts of "Not Guilty."

HONOURABLY ACQUITTED

When the verdict of "not guilty" was returned by the jury in the case against G. N. Graham, and the accused had been honourably acquitted, Crown Attorney Wood stated that it was not his intention to submit any evidence in either the case of John T. Maunder of Lindsay or in that of Victor Fowler. However a jury was impanelled and the indictments read to the defendants, they pleading not guilty. No witnesses being called, verdicts of "not guilty" were returned and the accused left the courtroom.

NO SKATING AT RINK YET

Will Not be Any To-morrow Either, Unless the Weatherman Comes Across With a Much Colder Brand.

HOCKEYISTS ARE READY

"Will there be skating at Brock St. rink to-night?"

That question or others like it has been shot over the telephone wires into the Examiner office so often to-day that the staff were wearied answering the 'phones.

It may be stated for the benefit of those who have been inquiring that there will be no skating to-night or to-morrow night, either unless the weatherman sends along a decidedly more frigid brand than the present. The king of ice makers, Jac. Thirnbeck, has been on the job for some days and the rink has been flooded several times, but so far nothing that looks like a skatin gsurface has been developed. The floor of the roller rink had to be covered with a preparation to prevent it being damaged by the ice and this has interefred to a considerable extent with the ice making.

"You can tell that there will be no ice to-night or to-morrow night unless the weather gets very much colder," Mr. Thirnbeck told the Examiner this afternoon.

Meantime there is a big squad of hockey players and a bigger squad of skaters with everything ready for the ice.

EX-ALD. JOHNSTON CORROBORATES POLICE

The last of the perjury cases arising out of the alleged illicit sale of liquor at the Oriental hotel was commenced late Saturday afternoon, when P. J. Carroll, a bartender, was charged with having sworn falsely in the police court before David Wm. Dumble, police magistrate, on Tuesday, Nov. 30th that he did not serve any drinks from the bar on Friday night, the nineteenth, after eleven o'clock. Mr. D. O'Connell, counsel for the defendant, renewed his motion to have the indictment quashed on the grounds that the word "knowingly" had been omitted, and pleaded not guilty. The following jurors were then empanelled, Messrs. John Simpson, Wm. J. Condon, Wm. J. Fitz, Wm. McCauly, Jas. Guerin, James Gilbert, G. H. Hunter, Robt. G. Clifford, R. Miller, Richard Fell, J. A. McIntyre, and John Scott.

The court then adjourned until ten o'clock this morning.

Crown Attorney Wood, to the jury, said that as the offence of perjury had been gone over closely before, he did not think it necessary to do so again. He reviewed the circumstances of the case, pointing out that P. J. Carroll, a bartender, was alleged to have handed out drinks on the night of November 19th. In addition to the testimony of the policemen, there would be evidence of ex-Ald. Johnston.

Ex-Alderman Johnston.

Wm. J. Johnston said that he had lived here all his life. He had served five years in the Council of Peterborough. He was in the vicinity of the Oriental on Friday, November 19th, shortly after midnight. He saw P. C's. Newhall and Meharry there. The bar of the hotel was well lighted. In the bar he saw the defendant Carroll. He was preparing drinks of some kind, which he put on a tray and handed to a boy. Witness said that he saw it occur three times.

"You're an ex-alderman aren't you?" Mr. O'Connell asked.

"And you are likely to remain one?"

"That is for the people to say."

"You were watching at the Oriental?"

"Yes."

"A nice job for an ex-alderman!" Mr. O'Connell remarked.

Mr. Johnston explained that he went there to watch Fire Chief Howard. He had said to P. C. Newhall that he would like to catch Chief Howard in a bar after hours and the officer told him that he could get him any time. He denied having any "quarrel" with the Chief.

He returned home that night about 2 o'clock, but before going he rang up Chief Howard at the fire hall from the police station to find if he was there. As an excuse, he told him that there was a light out at George

POLICE COMMISSIONERS TO MAKE AN INVESTIGATION

Into the Charges Against the Veracity of P. C. Newhall and P. C. Meharry as Made by Witnesses in Court on Saturday

HAVE NOT RESIGNED

"Is there any truth in the rumour that is current in the city that Police Constables Newhall and Meharry have resigned from the force as a result of the character evidence given aginst them on Saturday?" asked a reporter of His Honour Judge Huycke at the Court House this morning.

"There is no truth in it," was the reply.

"Will there be an investigation?" was the next question.

His Honour informed the representative of the Examiner that he intended bringing the matter before the board of Pocile Commissioners, of which Commission he is the chairman. He did not contemplate doing so, however, until after the New Year, as he did not think Mayor Rush would care to say anything in the last hours of his office, but he would wait until the new Mayor had been elected.

THE MESSIAH MUSIC

surprise of a pleasant nature awaited the congregation of St. John's church last night when on the last of the Advent services a small but beautiful selection of music from Handel's Messiah was given during the offertory. "Comfort Ye," tenor solo by Mr. George Chandler. "Come Ye to Me,' 'soprano solo by Miss Florence Hargreaves, of New York. Chorus, "And the Glory of the Lord,' "the choir. Chorus, "O, Thou That Tellest," organ voluntasy, Mr. R. J. Devey.

That a purely voluntary choir should be able to produce such music is highly complimentary to both choir and leader, and is in itself evidence that not only have they an exceptional body of voices, but solid work must be put in at rehearsal. Mr. R. J. Devey is most happy in the choir he directs, and an average attendance of 35 at regular services shows that the choristers take a real interest in their unselfish duty.

NO DYSPEPSIA OR UNDIGESTED FOOD

Heartburn, Gas, Headache and All Stomach Distress Vanishes.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest, acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odours from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent. case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and besides, one can is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

He came from Ireland about eight years ago and has been studying at Quebec, finishing his studies. It is understood that Rev. Mr. Toner, when ordained, will be attached to the staff at the Cathedral.

JAIL FOR JOHN LEE

Has Been a Regular Nightly Visitor at the Police Station But Will, for the Next Two Months, Board at Castle Nesbitt.

OTHER GRIST TO-DAY

John Curry was relieved of a two dollar bill this morning as retribution for a Sunday drunk. He was found stranded in a public place and required one of the lusty policemen to assist him to the cells where he was able to recuperate in time to talk intelligently this morning.

John Lee admitted that the world was him home but unlike the birds he was unable to go south with the swallows. Result was that the blue dome of heaven was not exectaly a sheltering roof and he was willing to try two months on the hill and give Peterborough's hospitality a test. John hails from Toronto but not agreeing with the principles of the labour unions working is not one of his strong points. Peterborough people will therefore help to keep John' body and soul together during the next two months. During the past week he has been spending the nights in the police station hugging that little unpadded board in cell No. 1, as if it were a couch of feathers.

Mggistrate Dumble had a third case to consider in a charge of theft laid by Harold Fowler against Charles Deline. The accused was found guilty but allowed to go on suspended sentence. He must report to Chief Rossel every three months. Fowler stated that on Monday, Nov. 8th, he was coming to Peterboro wit ha team of horses from the old depot at Gull Lake when the team ran away at Scott's Landing and did a four-mile marathon in the direction of Buckhorn. The seat, blankets, etc., were thrown out at intervals alon gthe road. Fowler picked up Deline, who assisted him to gather up some of the things. They came on to Peterboro and on the way Fowler offered Deline one of the overcoats he had. This was not returned although Fowler said he had reminded Deline of the fact that he still had use for the coat. Deline stated in defense that the coat had been given to him for the assistance he had rendered in picking up the goods. He had not heard Fowler tell him that he had to give it back. When the men approached the Auburn Mills Deline and another man that had been with him got out near the mills. The coat was valued at $12.

W. B. ARCHER DEAD

Postmaster at Campbellford and a Leading Citizen.

Campbellford, Dec. 19.—After an illness extending over the past year the death occurred to-day of Wm. B. Archer, aged 65 years. Deceased was probably the most prominent man in town, being for many years Chairman of the School Board, Reeve of the town, and postmaster since 1874. He was in J. M. Ferris & Co.'s mercantile business for 50 years. He leaves a wife and three sons, one of whom is Rev. Dr. Archer, now in India; Mr. Fred Archer, with W. R. Brock Co., Calgary, and Jas. P. Archer, with J. B. Ferris & Co., Campbellford; also three daughters, Miss Alice, a nurse in New York city; Miss Edith, at home, and Mrs. J. F. Gowan of Toronto.

PURSE RETURNED

Woman Lost It on the Market and Advertised in The Examiner.

There are few market days in the year which do not bring reports of the loss of purses, wraps and other goods. Women are the heaviest losers and for some reason or other they do not seem able to "hang tight" to their wealth and belongings. One woman on Saturday lost her purse containing $13. She had gone to the market intending to buy a turkey and had bought butter and eggs. In the meantime she lost her purse and had to return home without her Christmas poultry. However, she placed an ad. in the Examiner and that evening the purse was returned to her by a Mr. Torrance. His wife had found the purse on the market and had seen a number of people walk over it. They looked in the lost and found column of The Examiner and recognized the purse they had in their possession.

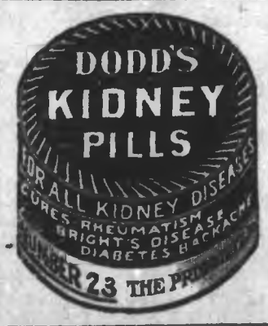
A CHEERFUL OPTIMIST.

The editorial press gallery representative of the Montreal Herald at Ottawa, writes under the paragraph heading "A Cheerful Optimist," as follows:—

There was some hope that the debate might finish by Friday night, but there is a hint that from twenty to thirty members have intimated a desire to speak, so it may be some time after the recess before the House passes to the bill for setting up a naval force. Following Mr. Maclean came Mr. Stratton, whose rising was marked with considerable interest, regard being had to his career in local politics and the fight not long ago waged before the courts to retain possession of his seat. Mr. Stratton's view is that of a confirmed optimist. He rejoices that the Government is in possession of a large revenue because it warrants an aggressive policy of development. For him the big things in the country are the things that have still to be done. He is very proud of having helped on, when at the Legislature, the work of opening up the north country, which resulted in the discovery and exploitation of the Cobalt silver district. He sees away up there in the north, where the country is taking chances on a tremendous investment, nothing so interesting as two hudred million acres of arable land which will soon be opened up to settlement, with incalculable advantage to the strength of the country and the security of its Government. Far from being frightened by what has been undertaken, he wants nothing so much as to see the great works undertaken by which the rounding out of the nation will be accomplished. It was a virile, practical speech, and the force of it was not apparently lessened by the remark that up to now he had not observed the presence of any angels in the fighting ranks of the Opposition, however free they might be of their criticism of others. This touch of the Stratton known of old was enjoyed by both sides.

THE OPEN DOOR.

The Toronto Star, a generally level-headed journal, has adopted abolition of the property qualification—the open door—for candidates for aldermanic honours. The Star points out that there are no qualifications of race or creed and it might have gone further and made good the assertion that in many cases there are no other qualifications required, fitting the candidates for the discharge of the duties of a most important position. Of all representative positions that of alderman come a most closely to the popular interest, affects most directly the welfare of the elector. A parliamentary representative occupies a broader and more general relation to his constituents; the representation is more communal than specific, but in a very real sense the relation of alderman to his constituency is a personal one. Thus the matter of selecting a municipal representative is of a most important nature; and, as is practice, this selection must be made from the candidates that voluntarily offer themselves, the matter of candidature becomes of equal importance. While, under our democracy the freedom of access to positions of trust and especially representative positions is of the most generous nature, sight should not be lost of the necessity of the matter of qualification being given some weight. A very interesting debate took place in Parliament recently, over a proposal to abolish the $200 deposit in the case of parliamentary candidates. The argument was presented that this deposit shut out candidates who were not bona fide candidates, who could not hope for success, but who came into the field merely to give opposition and prevent a candidate of the opposing side being re-elected by acclamation; or to satisfy a personal ambition, thus entailing the expense of a contested election. It is not always wise to make the path to office too easy. We have found it advisable to demand some other qualification for aldermanic office that the "guid consait o' himsel'," furnished by the aspirant, and a nominal property qualification is the only barrier to unrestrained ambition. This is simply deference to the principle that obtains in all commercial and financial operatons, that a man to have a voice is the management of a business or finncial corporation, must possess some material stake. Is it, therefore, unreasonable that, in the case of an aldermanic candidate, the requirement is made that he have some slight material interest in the municipality whose affairs he seeks power to manage. This consideration becomes of more weight when, under the unique system in force in Peterborough we elect half our aldermen for two years and if we make a mistake the consequences are more serious, a circumstance which gives force to the requirement of the best possible qualifications in a candidate. We can't have, as is had, in the civil service, competitive examination to determine the fitness of candidates, but we have something that takes its place, and we should not be too anxious to dispense with it. As things are now, in all municipal matters there is a tendency on the part of the ambitious to make experiments upon corporations in the matter of representation, and we should use greater effort in regard to securing the best possible municipal representativess.



A MOST WORTHY CITIZEN.

(Montreal Star.)

Mr. Richard White's golden wedding brings to the remembrance of our citizens the name of a man who, now retired, has been not only a most worthy citizen but one whose activities and patriotism stamp him as a remarkable man. Mr. White came from Hamilton to Montreal in company with his brother, Thomas, whose death in 1898, was felt as a great national loss. During the many years in which they worked together in their enterprises there always existed the most touching fondness for each other producing ideal personal relations and resulting in a very marked way in a striking example of success from cordial co-operation. The wish of one was law with the other and needless to say the best of which they were capable was produced.

After Mr. Thomas White's death Mr. Richard White assumed full control of his own and his brother's interests and assumed many new civic responsibilities. He was active in all projects for the good of the city of Montreal. There were few public meetings in those days at which Mr. White was not present to contribute by advice and action, to the furthering of its aims. Any project for the good of the city had his approval and active support. His intimate knowledge of public business always designated him for a prominent position and at public meetings of all kinds, whether for business, political, philanthropic, or religious ends, he was nearly always selected spontaneously as chairman. At the time of the smallpox epidemic, Mr. White was for months a most active member of the Board of Health and afterwards became an alderman for West Ward. It is known that recently there was a very strong desire on the part of prominent citizens to tender him a complimentary banquet or to otherwise give expression of esteem for him as a useful citizen, but for personal reasons he felt compelled to decline.

During his retirement occasioned by ill-health, Mr. White is missed in many circles, but his well-wishers hope for a speedy recovery, and in the meantime wish him and Mrs. White many happy returns of the day.

Mr. White was at one time a citizen of Peterborough and will be remembered by the older residents of the city who will be glad to read the above tribute to his talents and patriotism.

AN UNWORTHY GAME.

The Mail and Empire and the lesser journalistic fry seem to think that they will be heard for their much speaking. It and they insist upon declaring that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is disloyal, that he is seeking to dismember the Empire—to bring about the political independence of Canada. The Mail even harks back a dozen years to find what it presents as evidence to sustain the charge of "disloyalty." It says that in 1896 Sir Wilfrid opposed the expenditure for the militia. The Mail, however, has not the fairness to quote the conclusion of Sir Wilfrid's speech on that occasion, for the very good reason that it would have nullified the slander it was trying to make. These words, in which Sir Wilfrid demonstrated his loyalty to the flag and the Empire, were as follows:

"If the day should come—which God forbid—if the day should ever come—which I again say, God forbid—when England should have to repel foes, I am quite sure that all British subjects all over the world, would be only too glad to give to her what help they could—all British subjects all over the world, not only British subjects of her own blood, but British subjects who are not of her own blood, but who have received from her the inestimable blessing of freedom."

Sir Wilfrid's loyalty is not confined to words either. It is charged that he is "disloyal," because he opposed in matters of detail certain expenditure for militia proposed by the Conservative Government, possibly because it was too petty—but, he has since given practical evidence of his interest in the militia. The annual expenditure upon the militia, which averaged a million and a half in the days of Conservative rule, has grown under Sir Wilfrid Laurier's administration to about six millions per year. This is practical loyalty, loyalty like that of which the Mail and Empire stands convicted. It was the Mail which met the statement that "protection' might imperil British connection with the retort: "so much the worse for British connection." He is not a good citizen who seeks to elevate himself or his party, at the expense of slandering his opponents. The Mail and Empire is playing an unworthy game, acting upon the principle that if it throws enough mud some of it will stick.

A SILLY SAYING.

"It is a common, but silly opinion prevailing among a certain class of people that the worse a remedy tastes, smells or hurts, the more efficacious it is." So says a well-known English physician. He further adds: "For example, let us consider cod liver oil. As it is extracted from the fish this oil is so offensive to the taste and smell that almost everybody abhors it, and many cannot use it at all, no matter how badly they need it. Yet Cod Liver Oil is one of the most valuable drugs in the world, and it is the greatest pity that we have not thus far been able to free it from those peculiarities which so seriously interfere with its usefulness." This was written years ago; the work of civilizing and redeeming it, however, has since been triumphantly accomplished; and as a leading ingredient in the effective remedy called the oil retains all its wonderful curative properties with no bad smell, or taste, whatever. It is palatable as honey, and contains all the nutritive and curative properties of pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosites and extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry; creating a medicine of unequalled power for the diseases most prevalent and fatal among men, women and children. There is no other remedy to compare with it. It increases the digestive power of the stomach and in Blood Impurities, Weakness, Loss of Flesh, Throat and Lung Troubles, Nervous Dyspepsia, Scrofulous Affections, Thinness and slow development in the young, it gives quick and certain relief and cure. Dr. R. K. —— of Canada, says: "I shall continue its use with, I am sure, great advantage to my patients and satisfaction to myself." Has all the virtues of Cod Liver Oil; none of its faults. You may trust it fully; it cannot disappoint or fail. One bottle convinces. Sold by all chemists. —Warne Drug Co.

UNCLE WALT--THE POET PHILOSOPHER

Do your Christmas shopping early, do it early, mother dear, buy those gift cigars for father ere the cabbage leaves are sere; get the fancy ties for brother, all hand painted nice and sweet, while the holly's in the windows and the jumcracks fill the street. Buy the cook an inlaid poker, lift the milkman from the dumps, get him, mother dear, some ribbons—pale pink ribbons for his pumps Let us then be up and doing, bright and early, mother dear; we must buy cut glass and china for our brothers' Christmas cheer; we must do our shopping early, buy the toys with pisened paint, so that dearest little Willie may curl up and be a saint. Hook me up, my dearest mother, put my stale wide hat on straight; we must hasten, we must hurry, or we'll be—alas—too late; ere the celluloid cuff boxes and the plush-bound tomes of lore, and the four-cent Christmas greeting, all are gone for ever more. So let's hustle, dearest mother, let us swiftly hit the pike; to our Christmas shopping early let us make a gentle hike.

Revenue This Year One Hundred Millions With Surplus $16,500,000

The Finance Minister's Fourteenth Consecutive Budget Announced the Biggest Revenue Since Confederation ---Total Trade and Bank Deposits Reach Record, While the National Debt is Less Per Capita Than in 1891 in Spite of Large Expenditure on Grand Trunk Pacific.

Revenue this year will reach the hundred million dollar mark, being the highest in the history of the Dominion.

Surplus is placed at $16,500,000, and may easily climb up to $19,000,000 before 31 March, 1910.

Liberal Government is in sympathy with Labour legislation, assistance to fight tuberculosis, and is willing that the North Atlantic Trading Company shall go into court to prove claims.

The presentation of the budget, and the accompanying speech of Hon. Mr. Fielding, Finance Minister, was by far the most interesting feature of the week in Parliament.

This is the fourteenth consecutive budget speech delivered by Mr. Fielding, and was by far the most satisfactory financial statement ever presented to the House by any Finance Minister since Confederation.

Estimated Revenue for Year.

The financial year does not terminate until 31st March next, so that for four months the figures are estimated. While they are not likely to be lower they may well be higher.

"Estimated revenue for the current fiscal year is placed by the Finance Minister at $97,500,000. Estimated expenditure for the current fiscal year, $81,000,000.

Estimated surplus for the fiscal year ending 31 March, 1910, $16,500,000.

In presenting these figures to the House, Mr. Fielding stated that he would not be surprised if the expenditure proved to be less, and the revenue more, in which case the surplus would be correspondingly increased.

Revenue for Eight Months.

For the eight months ending November 3, the revenue amounted to $64,656,509, which exceeded that of the previous year for the same period by $9,541,282, or a sum equal to $1,200,000 a month or eight months.

Estimates for Four Months.

As to the four months yet to come, allowing for the same revenue as received last year, the total revenue would be $94,634,687.

Will Reach Hundred Millions.

However, as there has been an average increase every month for the past eight months of $1,200,000, it is reasonable to assume that this rate of increase will be continued; but allowing only $2,800,000 or $700,000 a month increase for the next four months, the total revenue will be $97,500,000. This would be $1,500,000 greater than the banner year of 1907-8. The fact is that there is very little doubt but that the revenue for the year will reach the hundred million dollar mark.

Reduced Expenditure.

Parliament voted last year the sum of 30,484,739 of which $20,000,000 was assigned to the National Transcontinental Railway. Adding railway subsidies, bounties, and other special charges amounting together to the sum of $5,500,000, the total capital and special expenditure will probably amount to $35,500,000. From these figures it appears that the total expenditures for the year, compared with those of the previous year, show a reduction of $16,486,393.

Analysis of National Debt.

Much has been said about the increase in the national debt. The questions are—How much has the debt been increased? What has been done with the money?

Since coming into power in 1896, the Liberals have increased the public debt by $65,432,846. Of this sum $58,391,263 has been expended on the National Transcontinental and the Quebec Bridge. The balance, $7,041,000, represents the increase in the public debt which may be accounted for by the fact that last year there was a falling off in revenue of $11,000,000.

Good Financial Methods.

Since 1896 the Liberal Government have spent in capital and special expenditure $212,602,818. Of this sum $147,000,000 was provided for out of revenue. In other words, since 1896 the Liberals provided for their ordinary expenditure out of current revenue and 69 per cent. of capital and special charges as well, without resorting to borrowing or going into debt.

Compare With Tory Days.

Compare this with the showing under Conservative Government from 1878 to 1896.

In the period from 1878 to 1896 the Conservative Government spent on capital and special expenditure $167,162,252, and during this period they added to the public debt $118,000,000 providing only 29 per cent. of these expenditures out of revenue.

Putting it in another form, the Conservatives had to add 70 per cent. of their special expenditures to the public debt, whereas the Liberals only added 30 per cent. of theirs to the public debt, and of this 30 per cent. the greater part is invested in the National Transcontinental Railway, one of Canada's most valuable assets.

Leaving out of the calculations the expenditures on the Transcontinental and Quebec bridge, the Liberal Government have provided more than 95 per cent. of their expenditures on capital and special account out of the ordinary revenue of the country.

Public Expenditure Necessary.

Canada is growing fast, and to keep pace with the necessities of the people, public works of many kinds must be constructed. Under these circumstances it becomes necessary to borrow money. The borrowings of the Liberal Government have been necessary, first, to pay off loans made years ago, now maturing, and for the construction of great public works. Has the debt of the country increased unduly, and is it a greater burden to carry now than formerly? These are interesting questions.

Per Capita Debt is Less.

The public debt of Canada is less per capita to-day than it was in 1891. In 1891 the per capita debt was $49.09, and it gradually increased under Conservative administration until in 1896 it amounted to $50.82. To-day the per capita debt is $45.85, notwithstanding that it had become necessary to increase the debt $45,000,000 last year, and this year $17,000,000 more will be added in consequence of the National Transcontinental Railway.

Having regard then to the growth of Canada and the development of national resources, they grow faster than the public debt. The above figures are based upon an estimated population on March 31, 1910, of 7,450,990.

Total Trade was Record.

Trade figures also show a great improvement over last year. The latest available returns are up to October 31 last, and they indicate an improvement in total trade for the seven months of $48,400,000 over the same period last year. If this rate of improvement is maintained the total trade this year will exceed $650,000,000, which was the record year of 1907-08.

Deposits in Chartered Banks.

Another evidence of prosperity is found in the amount of deposits in the chartered banks of Canada. Ten years ago they amounted to $250,000,000, and on October 31, 1909, they had reached the sum of, $731,806,006, or nearly three times greater than was the case ten years ago.

Developing Canadian Trade.

Mr. Fielding mentioned that a royal Commission had been appointed to devise the best methods of improving the trade relations between the British West Indies and Canada. Upon the commission had been placed the Canadian Minister of Finance and the Canadian Ministerof Customs. The object aimed at is to secure a preference in the markets of the West Indies for Canadian prducts in exchange for the benefits of the Canadian preferential tariff. The Canadian Ministers hope to join the Commissioners in the Island of Barbadoes some time about the 15th of February next year if their Parliamentary duties are sufficiently advanced.

Liberals Friendly to Labour.

An interesting discussion on the Labour question arose out of a bill introduced by Mr. Verville, described as "An Act respecting hours of Labour in public works." Hon. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labour, expressed himself as quite in sympathy with the principle of the bill. He referred to a resolution introduced in the House by Hon. Mr. Mulock, in 1900, in favour of payment of fair rates of wages to men engaged on public works, and enforcing the hours of labour current in the district where the work is carried on.

Since that time the minister pointed out that the Government had endeavoured to see that the resolution had been faithfully and fully carried out.

Must Pay Fair Wages.

In all Government contracts there was a clause requiring the contractor to pay fair rates of wages, and to give the workmen employed by him, the hours of labour current in the district where the work is carried on. The Government has gone so far as to appoint fair-wage officers, whose duty it is to visit the locality where public works are in progress, and prepare a schedule of wages and hours of labour to which the contractor is required to agree before the contract is awarded.

Government Protected Men.

The minister referred to cases where three contractors had failed to live up to this provision, and the Government had stepped in and protected the men by causing the money due the contractor to be held back, and paid to the men.

Not Friend of Labour.

Col. Hughes, M.P., stated that in his town of Lindsay, men working on a public work were paid less than ordinary street wages.

Hon. Mr. King asked him why he had not reported the case to the department, and the Col. replied that he was not a fair-wage officer.

Good Advice from Minister.

Hon. Mr. King made it clear that the bill went further than its title suggested. In this regard he pointed out that if any member of the House would introduce a measure which will make possible the eight-hour day to the advantage of the working people of this country, a bill which it will be within the jurisdiction of this House to pass, he would find the Government ready to support any such measure. He emphasized the fact that while the Dominion Government had the power to deal with the hours of labour on Government work, the provincial legislatures alone had the power to deal with the question of the hours of labour generally.

Send Bill to Committee.

Mr. King concluded by expressing the opinion that it would be advisable to refer the bill to a select committee in order that the fair-wage officers might be consulted and the working men and employees have an opportunity of being heard. The result would be that the House might then act intelligently and do something that would prove beneficial to the working man.

After a powerful address in the interests of the labouring man by Mr. Ralph Smith, of Nanaimo, B.C., who expressed himself as in favour of what the bill was intended to do, but did not accomplish, and the suggestion that the bill go to a committee, it was decided to refer the bill to a special committee consisting of Messrs Mackenzie King, Smith (Nanaimo), Macdonnell, Prouse, Staples, Marshall and Miller, with power to send for persons, papers, and records, and examine witnesses under oath.

Will He Resign?

A curious incident occurred when the Minister of Justice was speaking on a bill to amend the Elections Act. The Minister stated that the Durham election of 1900 was voided on account of corrupt practice by an agent. Mr. Thornton, the present member, the party in the case, replied that such was not the case, but that the election was voided because a marked cheque had been handed instead of cash for the deposit.

Mr. Aylesworth replied that he was the counsel in the case, and it was precisely as he stated it. To which Mr. Thornton retorted that if what the Minister said was true he would resign his seat.

Read the Judgment.

Shortly afterwards Mr. Aylesworth secured the record of the transaction and read the judgment to the House, and it stated in express terms that the election had been voided in consequence of corrupt practices by an agent.

To this the Minister made no reply the Minister was mistaken, but that he would produce to the House a copy of the judgment, and if he was found to be wrong in his contention he would resign his seat; but, on the contrary, if he was right, the Minister of Justice would resign his seat.

To this the Minister made no riply and there the matter rests.

To Prevent Tuberculosis.

An interesting discussion on the prevention of tuberculosis occurred, in which most of the medical men in the House engaged, and several laymen. The object of the resolution was to convince the Government of the desirability of increasing the annual grant of $5,000 and making it $10,000 this year. Hon. Mr. Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, was very friendly to the idea and paid a tribute to the members who discussed the subject for the high character of the debate. It is not unlikely that a more generous grant will be given this year for the very laudable purpose of preventing the spread of the white plague.

Dead Issue Revived.

Under the cloak of a motion to secure certain papers, an attempt was made by members of the Opposition to revive the dead and gone alleged scandal of the North Atlantic Trading Company.

It will be remembered that this company undertook to procure immigrants from certain portions of Continental Europe in exchange for an extra grant from the Government to enable them to do so. The Government was not satisfied that this had been done, and under the terms of the contract notice of cancellation was sent. The company now seeks to recover damages from the Government for cancellation of the contract.

A noticeable feature of the case is that the Opposition formerly taunted the Government and said they were afraid to cancel the contract, and they urged their demand that the contract be cancelled.

Opposition Helping Company.

No sooner had the Government cancelled the contract and removed from the grasp of the Opposition this alleged grievance than the Opposition turned about face and defended the contract and criticised the Government for cancelling it. Mr. Borden, in distinct terms, stated to the House that the reasons given by the Minister of the Interior for cancelling the contract did not exist, and he did all in his power to provoke the North Atlantic Trading Company to sue the Government for damages. This policy has succeeded, and the Government is now to stand suit for some $70,000 damages in consequence of the cancellation of the contract. If the country has to pay, they may thank the Opposition.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM MR. LASTAR

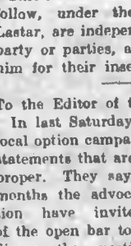
This letter and any others that may follow, under the signature of Mr. Lastar, are independent of any other party or parties, and are paid for by him for their insertion.

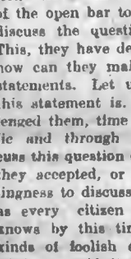
To the Editor of the Examiner.

In last Saturday's literature of the local option campaign there was again statements that are incorrect, and improper. They say again that for 11 months the advocates of local option have invited the supporters of the open bar to come forward and discuss the question on its merits. This, they have declined to do. Now, how can they make such misleading statements. Let us see how correct this statement is. Have I not challenged them, time and again, in public and through the press, to discuss this question on its merits. Have they accepted, or even shown a willingness to discuss it publicly. I say, as every citizen here in the city knows by this time, that under all kinds of foolish excuses, they have tried to avoid it up to this present time. How dare they, in the face of this, try and blindfold the people by such statements. Do they really think that the people of Peterborough are so ignorant or foolish, as not to see these mis-statements.

Then, a little further, they say, that the City Temperance League stands by anything that is published, and why are all opponents not willing to do the same. Now, this is absurd. As I have already said, they are not standing by what they say, nor what they are writing. Has not the Rev. Potter, at their open meetings, stated publicly that those questions that I have given them, would be answered publicly. Have they answered them? "No." They also stated in last week's paper that they would answer them. Now, can they answer them? A little further they say again, that what is wanted in this campaign, is a clear-cut, definite statement, made by a man, or men, who are not afraid nor ashamed to make known their identity. Now, let us see if this is correct. Have I not given you a clear and definite statement Have I not given my own name? I have dunks and disorderlies in 1908 were 134, and in 1909 down to Dec. 4th, 141. But the supporters of local option say, frankly that is only for one quarter of the year. Now, I don't know where they had their information from. But that makes their cause still worse. In order to give some answer they are getting themselves into it deeper. Now, I am only arguing against their own literature. What do they say, further? That it is only six months in the year that the sailors come into that town, and that it is in those six months that the crimes happen. Well, take that for granted. Only six months for the record. Where do those sailors get all their drinks? In the few public hotels, where the town would get a revenue, and make less taxation for the general public; or was it raining with all kinds of liquors when those sailors came to town? Now, here is where you put your foot in it, and acknowledge that all those intoxicating liquors were supplied by hundreds of blindpigs, where no authorities con reach them. Supplied by men, women and girls, who are tempted to make a living by breaking the law; to demoralize not only their own boys, but the strangers, who visit the town. The strangers can find those places; then, the boys of the town can surely find them; and the authorities are powerless. Or, if they should enforce the law; then they have to arrest half the town. Do you want to bring to such a degree and position the City of Peterborough?

Oh, you "moral" worker, if you will only think over your own statements, you will be convinced that it is the biggest crime to pass local option





they say, that they secured information to the effect that Rev. Dr. Wasson is a paid campaign worker for the liquor interests. Well, even so. Is there anything wrong in it? Why all your speakers that you bring here, only private men, who have no more right to name themselves Reverend, than any ordinary man; but still you blindfold the people by calling them such as Rev. Small, etc. Do they come here and speak or preach for you for the benefit of their health. You find fault with the other side, when, at the same time, you bring all kinds of professional speakers here, at a great expense, (as high as $100 and more, for one address). Now, is this your own money you are paying out to bring them here? Have you done one day's work for this money to pay this big expense. No, you solicit donations, to help you out, and you have succeeded in inducing some people, and especially ladies, to give you money, by telling them all kinds of stories. It is very easy for you to go and say to the few men who are interested in the liquor business, "Why don't you bring some important speakers to argue the matter." In the first place, let me tell you, that those men work for their money, and the majority of them work very hard, and are not in a position to spend thousands of dollars on speakers to defend the cause; and, then, I think they are not bringing any speakers here, because there is no necessity for it. They think by this time, the people of Peterborough are intelligent enough to see that this campaign is brought on unnecessarily, with no foundation whatever, and they see that there is no reasonable reason why they should support them, and that the supporters of local option cannot defend their case, when asked a few simple questions; nor will they come on the open platform and discuss the matter with a private citizen of the city. They are trying by all possible means to slip through a public discussion. There is no use in bringing a speaker from outside, when it can be seen that no support is necessary in such an unjust campaign as there is here. What would they say to Owen Sound's awful record since local option, which has been taken direct from the Police Court records for three years before local option, and three years after. The total number of all kinds of offenders that have been convicted through liquor directly, and indirectly.

Before local option was passed:

and Crescent streets. He did not know of his own knowledge whether there was or not, but P. C. Newhall had said there was. It was merely he admitted, to find out if the Chief was at the hall, that he rang him up.

"Then you would send that man away down there when you weren't sure that the light was out?" Counsel asked.

"That was his business."

"Did you see certain prominent men there?"

"I saw a couple. They went into the hotel, and into a passage way. I saw Chief Howard, but did not see him drink. I stood in a doorway across the street and could see half way down the bar. I saw the defendant prepare drinks and carry them out. A man standing on the same side of the street as the bar could not see in the bar without standing on the ledge."

P. C. Newhall.

P. C. Newhall was next called. He said: "I have been a policeman since 1906. I have been here four years. On the night of November 19th I was at the Oriental under instructions. I had watched this hotel on the previous night. I went there Friday, about 11 o'clock and was there alone until 11.45, when P. C. Meharry came. When Meharry arrived we got a packing box and, standing on it, looked through the fanlight. I saw, previous to that, two men go in the passage way at the rear of the bar. I saw Carroll prepare drinks and hand them on a tray to the bell boy. We only used the box about fifteen minutes. I saw the bell boy receive the tray once.

To Mr. O'Connell, witness said that he had a conversation with Johnston on the same afternoon. He was talking to him about storm windows. He didn't think he told him that he could catch the Fire Chief any night he wanted. Mr. Johnston, he said, regarded him as a great friend of Chief Howard's, and he thought he looked upon him (Newhall) with a little suspicion. The box he stood on that Friday night was about two feet in width and five feet high.

"You said in the police court it was only four feet high?" Mr. O'Connell remarked.

"No I didn't."

Upon inspection of the deposition it was learned that the officer had said five feet in the police court. On two occasions, when persons came along the box was removed into the barber's door adjoining. He saw three men go in about 11.45, and he saw them drinking at 12.10. He saw drinks passed out three or four times. Carroll worked the beer pumps several times. The bar was fully lighted. He admitted that the charges against Graham had been dismissed. Witness denied that he ever made threats to Graham or to Carroll that he would get them yet.

Mr. D. W. Dumble.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate, gave evidence as to the deposition taken in the police court, which was signed by the defendant. He read the evidence as was given by the accused, wherein he denied having given drinks to the bell boy.

P. C. Meharry.

P. C. Meharry stated that he went to the Oriental on Friday night, November 19th, on the receipt of a telephone message from P. C. Newhall. He told of having seen Carroll serve out drinks two or three times, once to the bell boy.

To Mr. O'Connell, witness said that he read over the notes of evidence, to refresh his memory.

"You are the man who telephoned Johnston to come down?"

"Yes."

"Who told you to?"

"Newhall told me. I don't know what for."

Witness saw E. Lawrence come to the hotel, but he did not see Chief Howard. Carroll served a drink to Lawrence. Lawrence was standing in front of a glass door. The light in the bar went out, but not in the passage way."

"It is wonderful how convenient things happen for police officers, isn't it?" Mr. O'Connell asked.

"It is," witness replied.

"You stated in police court you saw Chief Howard in the passage way."

"I said I saw him coming out."

This concluded the case for the Crown, and the court then adjourned until two o'clock.

SOME WAYS IN WHICH TO AVOID DREAD PNEUMONIA

Chicago, December 20.—Read this, Mr. Man, from the weekly bulletin of the Chicago health department, based upon the fact that of the deaths from pneumonia in the last week, the majority were of adult males, and then reflect:

"Chief among the reasons for an excessive mortality among adult males from the impure air diseases are the following:

"Men more commonly frequent vilely ventilated and therefore grossly unsanitary places, than women—such as smoking cars, the air of which is reeking with tobacco smoke and the floors are soaked with sputum that swarms with the germs of disease."

"Men are more prone to insist upon 'nice, warm, sleeping quarters,' at the expense of proper ventilation and pure air.

"Men have the habit of over-eating to a greater extent than women, and of then going into the cold air with their systems choked in an effort to dispose of overloaded stomachs. Congestions that arise after overeating are fertile soil for the development of the germs of pneumonia.

"Men much more frequently suffer from the ill effects of over indulgence in alcoholic drinks. The harmful effects are much the same as come from over indulgence in food.

"Men are more generally exposed to the dangers of employment than women—employment that subjects the worker to sudden and pronounced changes of temperature.

"Men—more often than women—are 'draught cranks.' They demand warm quarters and insist upon having them at the expense of pure air to breathe. In other words men coddle themselves more than women do.

"The rules of health that males must follow more generally than they do now are:

"1. Avoid ill ventilated and foul smoking cars.
"2. Keep your bedroom windows open at night.
"3. Don't over eat. This is a particularly dangerous practice in winter.
"4. Avoid over indulgence in alcoholic drinks.
"5. Don't go into the cold air in an overheated condition.
"6. Don't be a draught crank. You need all the pure air you can get. If you wouldn't coddle yourself so much you would get purer air to breathe and your chances of avoiding pneumonia would be much better."

Objects To Some Motion Pictures Shown Here

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—Some time ago attention was called to the five cent theatres with particular reference to the questionable pictures that sometimes are presented there.

Observation on the part of a number of our citizens has since verified the statements made on that occasion. A number of these observations have been related to the writer presumably as a result of the former letter, and in each case the eye-witness expressed hearty disapproval.

No one will question the value of the five cent theatre as an educative influence A child will learn more there in 20 minutes sometimes than in weeks at school. And certainly no one disputes the entertaining nature of the pictures; the hundreds of children thronging there daily give ample testimony as to that. And grant that nine out of ten pictures presented to the public are good and wholesome, laughable and elevating, does such justify the admission of the 10 per cent of the demoralizing and debasing?

Recently pictures were presented which were questionable. This should not be, and I am of the opinion, sir, that if the city authorities take steps to prevent the appearance of such questionable and offending scenes that the managers of these entertainments will gladly assist, realizing that business success comes only with pleased patrons.

Hoping, sir, that you will use the influence of your paper to this desirable end, I am,

Yours truly,
H. B. COLLIER.

OBITUARY

MRS. S. J. KILPATRICK.

On Friday night Mrs. S. J. Kilpatrick of Kingston, died at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. E. S. Goodwill, 309 Boswell avenue. Mrs. Kilpatrick has been in Peterborough for the past six or seven months, and her chronic ailment gave little hope of cure, and death was not unexpected. The deceased lady was a native of Belleville, her maiden name having been Miss Harold. The remains were taken to Kingston this morning for interment.

WOMEN'S WOES

Peterborough Women are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. John Wallace, of 323 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., says: "I have suffered with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble for over two years and could find nothing that would benefit my condition. My back was weak and a dull, heavy pain settled across the small of it, extending into my sides and shoulders. I could not sleep at night as the kidney secretions were so frequent and irregular that I would have to leave my bed number of timesa. I was dizzy and would usually awake with a dull headache. Booth's Kidney Pills procured at McDermid and Jury's Drug Store cured me when all else failed. I am stronger and feel better generally. I can conscientiously recommend Booth's Kidney Pills and I would not be without a box in the house."

Sold by Dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T. Booth Co., Limited, Fort Erie, Ont., Sole Canadian Agents.

HANDSOME CHRISTMAS NUMBER

The Christmas number of the Canadian Sportsman and Live Stock Journal has been received at the Examiner office and is a most creditable number, full of bright news of the horse kingdom and embellished with photographs of famous horses, well known drivers and scenes of the sporting world. There is an especially interesting article on "Winter Ice Racing in Canada." The frontispiece is of special interest to Peterborough people as it consists of a photograph of John McEwen, Nat Ray's famous harness horse with the well known steeple chase jockey, who by the way is a nephew of Mr. Sam Ray, city, handling the reins.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

Did you ever realize what a very good thing it is to speak well of your enemies and rivals?

From a utilitarian, not a moral, standpoint I mean.

When you say a kind thing about a man whom the listener knows you have reason to dislike, you may incidentally do him some good, but do yourself infinitely more.

Bring it home to yourself. When you hear a man speak well of his rival don't you feel a glow of admiration for him, out of all proportion to your feelings for the man he eulogizes?

In the same way, speaking ill of an enemy is apt to hurt you more than it does him. It does not matter whether you are right or not. Nobody loves a mud-slinger whether the object at which he flings the mud deserved to be muddied or not.

Talk with half a dozen people about the Cook-Peary controversy, for instance. Five out of the six will say, "I don't know who is right, but my sympathies are with Cook. I don't like the way Peary talked."

And if any one of the six is particularly well informed about the controversy he may add, "Did you know what Cook said when he was told that Peary had been to the Pole? He said, 'If Commander Peary says he has been to the Pole he has been there.' That's the right way for a man to talk about his rival, instead of calling him names the way Peary did."

Even in Peary's home city, where I went to interview the commander's wife, that's the way the people talked.

Myself, though I do not like Cook personally as well as I do Peary, I cannot even write down that sentence of Cook's without feeling a thrill of admiration—the same kind of delightful quiver that you feel up and down your spine when after the big game is over the rival teams cheer each other.

Peary may be in the right, but I doubt if he ever gets the sympathy of the general public.

Cook may be entirely wrong, but I doubt if anything will ever make the general public believe it.

And all because one man spoke against his rival and the other either spoke good things or held his tongue.

No man who wants to win a woman's love should ever say anything but good of his rival.

I do not think that women as a rule are chivalrous enough to stick to such a course themselves. If they do not say unkind things they are pretty apt to insinuate them. But I do think that they admire the men who are honourable haters.

"From utilitarian, not a moral, standpoint," I said above.

But that doesn't mean that I deprecate the moral motive by any means.

If you can speak well of your enemies and rivals because you know it is right that is very splendid.

But if you can't—well, try to remember that it pays.

CANDLES AT BIER CAUSE A TRAGEDY

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 17.—A tragedy occurred at 8 o'clock this morning at the residence of Hon. Joseph Prefontaine, ex-M.P.P. for Assiniboia, four miles north of Eli, when his residence was destroyed by fire. His 7-year-old son perished, his son, George was frightfully burned, and may die, and the body of his aged mother, which was awaiting burial in the house, was cremated. Eighteen neighbours, who were asleep in the residence at the time, narrawly escaped death in the flames.

Mrs. Prefontaine, one of the very early pioneers of Manitoba, nearly 80 years of age, expired yesterday. The body was prepared for burial. The ceremony was to have occurred today. Candles surrounded the bier and it was from one of these that the flames were communicated to the mourning articles around the casket.

COUGHING BURST

BLOOD VESSEL

Says Danger Avoided and Cures Coughs in Five Hours.

A writer for the medical press states that coughing is responsible for the bursting of blood vessels quite frequently. A cough or cold means inflammation (fever) and congestion, and these in turn indicate that the body is full of poisons and waste matter. Simple relief, as found in patent cough medicines, and whiskey, often result in more harm than good; as they cause more congestion A tonic-laxative cough syrup will work marvels and here follows a prescription which is becoming famous for its prompt relief and thorough cures. It rids the system of the Don't wait for consumption to grasp cause, except it be consumption, its victim, but begin this treatment, which cures some in five hours. Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark,, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age.

LOGICAL ADDRESS ON LOCAL OPTION AT THE OPERA HOUSE

James Gibson, President of the Dominion Alliance, Declares That Local Option is Maintained in Municipalities Where it is Once Adopted---Great Improvement on Scott Act.

DENOUNCED TREATING

During his address at the Grand Opera House last night, Mr. Jas. Gibson, of Ingersoll, who spoke in support of local option to one of the largest assemblies that have marked these meetings represented by a simple device the effect of the treating system which he said was the result of present conditions. On the table in front of him he placed his watch in one corner to represent a factory and on the opposite side a glass of water merely to represent a home which he remarked should be as pure as the best water. Between these two objects he placed a book representing a saloon or hotel bar. A workman called Jim had to pass this bar on his way to and from his home and place of employment. Mr. Gibson chose pay night when Jim, who had never tasted liquor in his life, was on his way home with a friend Jack. When they arrived in front of the bar Jack invited Jim to come in and have a drink with him. Jim replied that he did not drink and did not care to accept the invitation. His friend appealed to him on their long friendship and finally persuaded Jim to go in with him. Jack merely wanted a little "nip" and both would then proceed homeward. Inside they found three other men who were having a drink and who invited them to have the drink on one of them. This, Mr. Gibson said, was the custom. No refusal was made and as a matter of course the next drink was on another of the party. Jim then had two drinks and had paid for neither. He did not want to appear a sponger and Mr. Gibson said he would be more than the ordinary decent fellow if he did not ask the men to have a drink at his expense and so it went. The speaker drew the line here. Three drinks on the empty stomach of a man who had never tasted liquor was bound to intoxicate him. His next picture was of the home where Jim finally arrived several hours later, still in a shaky condition, and his wife realized as soon as he entered that it was not extra work that had detained him beyond the usual hour.

With local option it might be said that a blind pig would be in his path instead of the open bar. Reverting to the two men Jack would ask him on the quiet to come in. "I know the people and they know me," he would probably say, which meant that if they were caught there and summoned to court they would swear they did not know what kind of a drink was furnished them. Jim would not go in, however, because he knew he would be breaking the law and did not want to stoop to dodging into a blind pig.

"In licensed territory we have to watch the licensed fellow and the blind pig," Mr. Gibson said, "but in the local option district we have only to watch the blind pig."

One Hotelkeeper.

The above is one passage from the address of the evening. In commencing Mr. Gibson stated that there was nothing elevating about the bar. It does not make a drunkard of every-body that enters it, but it does make drunkards enough. He hated the liquor because his father had been a hotelkeeper and the traffic had ploughed many a deep furrow in his mother's face. He told of one hotelkeeper whom he had known to be an exception. He had boasted to him that he had worked behind his bar for ten years and had then sufficient money to engage a barkeeper who had worked for fifteen years for him and throughout the entire 25 years this man had never tasted liquor of any kind. Mr. Gibson suggested to him this antithesis: "I have been a baker 25 years and have turned out a big batch every day but 1 have never been foolish enough to taste of it myself."

Mr. Gibson then asked him "How long would you have stood behind the bar if the men on the other side had been as wise as you."

The drink bill of Great Britain last year amounted to 800 million dollars, that of the United States one billion two hundred million dollars and Canada's bill totalled 175 millions. Mr. Gibson pointed out that the man behind the bar is put there by the electors who vote for the license law. Speaking in regard to the local option law he states that it would not stop all the drinking in Peterborough, but it would materially reduce it. If anyone prates that because a law is broken it is no good he hopelessly condemns the present license law. During one year there had been 567 informations and of these 430 led to conviction and 10 men absconded.

Not the Scott Act.

Mr. Gibson cited figures to show that Local Option is a great improvement on the Scott Act. Three years ago in the 34 municipalities in which it had been in force only seven were contested for a repeal and other data were given to show that local option has proven a success and meets with the approval of the people in places where it has been in force. Last year in every municipality where the conditions were the same when the by-law was originally passed it was sustained. Out of 22 contests two were lost and this as on account of the change of the polling district.

Mr. Gibson spoke in reference to the standpoint of capital and labour and read a clipping from the Toronto Globe in which the liquor traffic was condemned by the labour convention recently held in Toronto. The fellowship between the saloon and labour was denounced in no uncertain manner. Mr. Gibson concluded by stating that local option had proved itself to be what is desired. It is no flitting movement and has not experienced a receding wave. It has been maintained in those places where it was carried and he hoped the day would not be far distant when North America would be entirely dry.

PREVENTION IS WORTH WHILE.

When you consider the risk to life, the expense, the anxiety which is involved in an attack of appendicitis and a surgical operation, it is certainly worth while to avoid it by keeping the liver and bowels regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Doctors are now unanimously of the opinion that appendicitis comes from a neglect to keep the liver and bowels in a healthful condition.

CITIZENS RESPOND TO CALL FOR GIFTS FOR CHILDREN AT SHELTER

The citizens of Peterborough are responding liberally to the appeal made by the papers last week for a happy Christmastide for the nine little ones in the Childrens' Aid Society Shelter. The Examiner has received a number of parcels for the Christmas tree and Mr. Geo. Cochrane, agent for the Society, acknowledges the receipt of $2 for the same purpose from a friend of the Society. The intention is to have a Christmas tree on Friday night and to present the gifts then, and the citizens are again reminded of the opportunity they have in this case to do a work that will be genuinely appreciated.

Remember there are nine youngsters that will have to go without any of the joys that childhood usually associates with this season unless you can do something for them. That picture book that your children have tired of will be received with rapture by one of those children up there in the Shelter and those toys or games that have been laid aside will be a source of unqualified pleasure. Books, toys, candies, dolls, are the things that are asked for.

The Examiner and Review offices will receive donations for the Christmas tree or they may be sent direct to the Shelter. Parcels left at the newspaper offices should be addressed "For the Christmas tree at the Shelter."

WEDDING BELLS

McCLELLAND—MORRIS.

The home of Mrs. H. E. Morris, Churchill avenue, Toronto, was the scene of a pretty wedding last week, when her youngest daughter, Eva Lingen Seager, became the wife of Mr. Alex Bailby McClelland, of Winnipeg, eldest son of the late Rev. Dr. A. M. McClelland. The drawing room, where Rev. J. D. Fitzpatrick conducted the service, was lovely with hyacinths and carnations, and Mr. H. O. Morris gave his sister away. Her handsome gown was of ivory satin with pearls and silver sequins. Over it fell a tulle veil draped over orange blossoms, and her boquet was of roses and lilies. Miss Mary Morris, as her sister's bridesmaid was in a silver grey frock with bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. R. Guiton played the wedding march, and Mr. Donald McClelland, of Chicago, supported his brother. After the wedding breakfast the newly wedded pair left for New York, but will return to Toronto before going to Winnipeg. The bride travelled in a wisteria broadcloth gown with large hat of ottoman silk, and velvet, and Persian lamb coat, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. W. J. Cox, of Peterborough, who is a cousin of Mr. McClelland, was present at the wedding.

HOOK—BARRETT.

On Thursday, December 9th, the marriage was solemnized in Rainy River, Ont., of Miss Martha Barrett, daughter of Mr. Cole Barrett, of Peterborough, to Mr. Mary A. Hook. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. Heatherfield.

BAGS OF LETTERS

People Were Busy Letter Writing Yesterday, Judging From the Mail Collection To-day.

"A whole pile of people broke the Lord's Day yesterday,' remarked one of the mail collector's assistants this morning as he opened a letter box to find it almost filled with letters. He meant, of course, that the usual Sunday afternoon letters had been doubled or tripled and instead of the regular correspondence there were missives to friends and relatives who are only occasionally remembered. The amount of mail taken out of this particular box was astounding, and the parcel box alongside it had received equal attention since Saturday. The mails are one of the greatest mediums of spreading good cheer and the old time Christmas spirit.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

Did you ever realise what a very good thing it is to speak well of your enemies and rivals?

From a utilitarian, not a moral, standpoint I mean.

When you say a kind thing about a man whom the listener knows you have reason to dialike, you may incidentally do him some good, but do yourself infinitely more.

Bring it home to yourself. When you hear a man speak well of his rival don't you feel a glow of admiration for him, out of all proportion to your feelings for the man he eulogizes?

In the same way, speaking ill of an enemy is apt to hurt you more than it does him. It does not matter whether you are right or not. Nobody loves a mud-slinger whether the object at which he flings the mud deserved to be muddied or not.

Talk with half a dozen people about the Cook-Peary controversy, for instance. Five out of the six will say, "I don't know who is right, but my sympathies are with Cook. I don't like the way Peary talked."

And if any one of the six is particularly well informed about the controversy he may add, "Did you know what Cook said when he was told that Peary had been to the Pole? He said, 'If Commander Peary says he has been to the Pole he has been there.' That's the right way for a man to talk about his rival, instead of calling him names the way Peary did."

Even in Peary's home city, where I went to interview the commander's wife, that's the way the people talked.

Myself, though I do not like Cook personally as well as I do Peary, I cannot even write down that sentence of Cook's without feeling a thrill of admiration—the same kind of delightful quiver that you feel up and down your spine when after the big game is over the rival teams cheer each other.

Peary may be in the right, but I doubt if he ever gets the sympathy of the general public.

Cook may be entirely wrong, but I doubt if anything will ever make the general public believe it.

And all because one man spoke against his rival and the other either spoke good things or held his tongue.

No man who wants to win a woman's love should ever say anything but good of his rival.

I do not think that women as a rule are chivalrous enough to stick to such a course themselves. If they do not say unkind things they are pretty apt to insinuate them. But I do think that they admire the men who are honourable haters.

"From utilitarian, not a moral, standpoint," I said above.

But that doesn't mean that I deprecate the moral motive by any means.

If you can speak well of your enemies and rivals because you know it is right that is very splendid.

But if you can't—well, try to remember that it pays.

CANDLES AT BIER CAUSE A TRAGEDY

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 17.—A tragedy occurred at 8 o'clock this morning at the residence of Hon. Joseph Prefontaine, ex-M.P.P. for Assiniboia, four miles north of Eli, when his residence was destroyed by fire. His 7-year-old son perished, his son, George was frightfully burned, and may die, and the body of his aged mother, which was awaiting burial in the house, was cremated. Eighteen neighbours, who were asleep in the residence at the time, narrawly escaped death in the flames.

Mrs. Prefontaine, one of the very early pioneers of Manitoba, nearly 90 years of age, expired yesterday. The body was prepared for burial. The ceremony was to have occurred today. Candles surrounded the bier and it was from one of these that the flames were communicated to the mourning articles around the casket.

COUGHING BURST

BLOOD VESSEL

Says Danger Avoided and Cures Coughs in Five Hours.

A writer for the medical press states that coughing is responsible for the bursting of blood vessels quite frequently. A cough or cold means inflammation (fever) and congestion, and these in turn indicate that the body is full of poisons and waste matter. Simple relief, as found in patent cough medicines, and whiskey, often result in more harm than good; as they cause more congestion A tonic-laxative cough syrup will work marvels and here follows a prescription which is becoming famous for its prompt relief and thorough cures. It rids the system of the Don't wait for consumption to grasp cause, except it be consumption, its victim, but begin this treatment, which cures some in five hours. Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark,, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age.

LOGICAL ADDRESS ON LOCAL OPTION AT THE OPERA HOUSE

James Gibson, President of the Dominion Alliance, Declares That Local Option is Maintained in Municipalities Where it is Once Adopted---Great Improvement on Scott Act.

DENOUNCED TREATING

During his address at the Grand Opera House last night, Mr. Jas. Gibson, of Ingersoll, who spoke in support of local option to one of the largest assemblies that have marked these meetings represented by a simple device the effect of the treating system which he said was the result of present conditions. On the table in front of him he placed his watch in one corner to represent a factory and on the opposite side a glass of water merely to represent a home which he remarked should be as pure as the best water. Between these two objects he placed a book representing a saloon or hotel bar. A workman called Jim had to pass this bar on his way to and from his home and place of employment. Mr. Gibson chose pay night when Jim, who had never tasted liquor in his life, was on his way home with a friend Jack. When they arrived in front of the bar Jack invited Jim to come in and have a drink with him. Jim replied that he did not drink and did not care to accept the invitation. His friend appealed to him on their long friendship and finally persuaded Jim to go in with him. Jack merely wanted a little "nip" and both would then proceed homeward. Inside they found three other men who were having a drink and who invited them to have the drink on one of them. This, Mr. Gibson said, was the custom. No refusal was made and as a matter of course the next drink was on another of the party. Jim then had two drinks and had paid for neither. He did not want to appear a sponger and Mr. Gibson said he would be more than the ordinary decent fellow if he did not ask the men to have a drink at his expense and so it went. The speaker drew the line here. Three drinks on the empty stomach of a man who had never tasted liquor was bound to intoxicate him. His next picture was of the home where Jim finally arrived several hours later, still in a shaky condition, and his wife realized as soon as he entered that it was not extra work that had detained him beyond the usual hour.

With local option it might be said that a blind pig would be in his path instead of the open bar. Reverting to the two men Jack would ask him on the quiet to come in. "I know the people and they know me," he would probably say, which meant that if they were caught there and summoned to court they would swear they did not know what kind of a drink was furnished them. Jim would not go in, however, because he knew he would be breaking the law and did not want to stoop to dodging into a blind pig.

"In licensed territory we have to watch the licensed fellow and the blind pig," Mr. Gibson said, "but in the local option district we have only to watch the blind pig."

One Hotelkeeper.

The above is one passage from the address of the evening. In commencing Mr. Gibson stated that there was nothing elevating about the bar. It does not make a drunkard of every-body that enters it, but it does make drunkards enough. He hated the liquor because his father had been a hotelkeeper and the traffic had ploughed many a deep furrow in his mother's face. He told of one hotelkeeper whom he had known to be an exception. He had boasted to him that he had worked behind his bar for ten years and had then sufficient money to engage a barkeeper who had worked for fifteen years for him and throughout the entire 25 years this man had never tasted liquor of any kind. Mr. Gibson suggested to him this antithesis: "I have been a baker 25 years and have turned out a big batch every day but I have never been foolish enough to taste of it myself."

Mr. Gibson then asked him "How long would you have stood behind the bar if the men on the other side had been as wise as you."

The drink bill of Great Britain last year amounted to 800 million dollars, that of the United States one billion two hundred million dollars and Canada's bill totalled 175 millions. Mr. Gibson pointed out that the man behind the bar is put there by the electors who vote for the license law. Speaking in regard to the local option law he states that it would not stop all the drinking in Peterborough, but it would materially reduce it. If anyone prates that because a law is broken it is no good he hopelessly condemns the present license law. During one year there had been 567 informations and of these 430 led to conviction and 10 men absconded.

Not the Scott Act.

Mr. Gibson cited figures to show that Local Option is a great improvement on the Scott Act. Three years ago in the 34 municipalities in which it had been in force only seven were contested for a repeal and other data were given to show that local option has proven a success and meets with the approval of the people in places where it has been in force. Last year in every municipality where the conditions were the same when the by-law was originally passed it was sustained. Out of 29 contests two were lost and this as on account of the change of the polling district.

Mr. Gibson spoke in reference to the standpoint of capital and labour and read a clipping from the Toronto Globe in which the liquor traffic was condemned by the labour convention recently held in Toronto. The fellowship between the saloon and labour was denounced in no uncertain manner. Mr. Gibson concluded by stating that local option had proved itself to be what is desired. It is no flitting movement and has not experienced a receding wave. It has been maintained in those places where it was carried and he hoped the day would not be far distant when North America would be entirely dry.

PREVENTION IS WORTH WHILE.

When you consider the risk to life, the expense, the anxiety which is involved in an attack of appendicitis and a surgical operation, it is certainly worth while to avoid it by keeping the liver and bowels regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Doctors are now unanimously of the opinion that appendicitis comes from a neglect to keep the liver and bowels in a healthful condition.

CITIZENS RESPOND TO CALL FOR GIFTS FOR CHILDREN AT SHELTER

The citizens of Peterborough are responding liberally to the appeal made by the papers last week for a happy Christmastide for the nine little ones in the Childrens' Aid Society Shelter. The Examiner has received a number of parcels for the Christmas tree and Mr. Geo. Cochrane, agent for the Society, acknowledges the receipt of $2 for the same purpose from a friend of the Society. The intention is to have a Christmas tree on Friday night and to present the gifts then, and the citizens are again reminded of the opportunity they have in this case to do a work that will be genuinely appreciated.

Remember there are nine youngsters that will have to go without any of the joys that childhood usually associates with this season unless you can do something for them. That picture book that your children have tired of will be received with rapture by one of those children up there in the Shelter and those toys or games that have been laid aside will be a source of unqualified pleasure. Books, toys, candies, dolls, are the things that are asked for.

The Examiner and Review offices will receive donations for the Christmas tree or they may be sent direct to the Shelter. Parcels left at the newspaper offices should be addressed "For the Christmas tree at the Shelter."

WEDDING BELLS

McCLELLAND—MORRIS.

The home of Mrs. H. E. Morris, Churchill avenue, Toronto, was the scene of a pretty wedding last week, when her youngest daughter, Eva Lingen Seager, became the wife of Mr. Alex Bailley McClelland, of Winnipeg, eldest son of the late Rev. Dr. A. M. McClelland. The drawing room, where Rev. J. D. Fitzpatrick conducted the service, was lovely with hyacinths and carnations, and Mr. H. O. Morris gave his sister away. Her handsome gown was of ivory satin with pearls and silver sequins. Over it fell a tulle veil draped over orange blossoms, and her boquet was of roses and lilies. Miss Mary Morris, as her sister's bridesmaid was in a silver grey frock with bouquet of pink roses, Mrs. R. Guiton played the wedding march, and Mr. Donald McClelland, of Chicago, supported his brother. After the wedding breakfast the newly wedded pair left for New York, but will return to Toronto before going to Winnipeg. The bride travelled in a wisteria broadcloth gown with large hat of ottoman silk, and velvet, and Persian lamb coat, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. W. J. Cox, of Peterborough, who is a cousin of Mr. McClelland, was present at the wedding.

HOOK—BARRETT.

On Thursday, December 9th, the marriage was solemnized in Rainy River, Ont., of Miss Martha Barrett, daughter of Mr. Cole Barrett, of Peterborough, to Mr. Mary A. Hook. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. Heatherfield.

The sooner you come, the greater the pleasure. It's simply marvellous the thousands of things there are in this great bookstore to fascinae old and young on Christmas morning, and to make pleasure and education all the year round. It's far and away the handsomest gift shop in the Dominion. It contains twice, three times as much rare, costly and inexpensive, bright, new goods, right up to the colendar, than all the others put together. Prices are in the melting pot because of the change of business.—A. H. Stratton & Co., Peterborough Bookstore.

BAGS OF LETTERS

People Were Busy Letter Writing Yesterday, Judging From the Mail Collection To-day.

"A whole pile of people broke the Lord's Day yesterday,' remarked one of the mail collector's assistants this morning as he opened a letter box to find it almost filled with letters. He meant, of course, that the usual Sunday afternoon letters had been doubled or tripled and instead of the regular correspondence there were missives to friends and relatives who are only occasionally remembered. The amount of mail taken out of this particular box was astounding, and the parcel box alongside it had received equal attention since Saturday. The mails are one of the greatest mediums of spreading good cheer and the old time Christmas spirit.

BEST FIGHT OF MY CAREER WAS AGAINST FITZSIMMONS

—JAS. J. JEFFRIES

(By Jas. J. Jeffries.)

To my mind, the best fight I ever made was against Bob Fitzsimmons, on June 9, 1899, when I knocked him out in eleven rounds at the Coney Island Athletic Club, and became champion of the world.

Previous to this fight I had met Bob Armstrong, the giant negro in the East, and had been criticised because I did not knock him out in a hurry. When I trained for the battle with Fitzsimmons I determined to go into the ring faster and better than I had ever been in my life, so I could do myself justice. I had never been in perfect shape, as I had carried too much weight.

When I faced Fitzsimmons I believe I was in the best condition I could possibly reach. For 30 days previous to June 9 I did not drink a drop of water so anxious was I take off weight. When my throat became parched I simply gargled.

The conditions under which I fought were discouraging. I felt that some of my backers did not think I could defeat the champion and incidents of my training had been discouraging. As a matter of fact, however, I regard my battle with Fitzsimmons as one of the easiest of my career. At the end I was not even breathing deeply.

The impression has prevailed in the minds of some that my stomach was invulnerable but if this was true that blow Fitzsimmons landed under my heart in the fourth round would have shown the weakness. It was a right hand blow, delivered with every ounce of strength that Fitzsimmons possessed, but I can honestly say it did not bother me.

Only once during the fight did Fitzsimmons hurt me and that was when he split my eyelid. His body blows did not hurt a bit. I think, however, that those who witnessed that fight realized I could take punishment, for Fitzsimmons hit me hard and often, and he could hit as hard as any man in the ring at that time.

I outgeneraled Fitzsimmons in this battle by forcing him to lead. His strong hold had always been countering but as I kept after him continually he had to lead or back away, and when thus forced he was non-plussed.

I knocked Fitzsimmons down in the second round with a straight left to the mouth and he actually looked surprised. He did his best work in the fifth round, for his heaviest blows failed to prove as effective as they had against other men. In the eighth round, after I had knocked him down, Fitzsimmons came up looking scared. He realized then, I think, for the first time, that he was a beaten man. I knocked him out in the eleventh with a right hand swing to the chin.

I went into that fight a rank outsider and when it was over was champion of the world, a title I have held to this day untarnished and which I will continue to hold thus until I again retire this time forever, from the ring.

TORONTO'S 1910 BALL TEAM IS RAPIDLY BEING COMPLETED

Pitchers—Rudolph, Newton, McGinley, Lee, Thompson and one other.

Catchers—Vandergrift and one other.

First base—Deal.

Second base—Mullen or Fitzpatrick.

Shortstop—Frick or Vaughan.

Third base—McDonald.

Outfield—Grimshaw, Delahanty and Kelley or one other.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Manager Joe Kelly of the Toronto Baseball Club returned home last night from the big league meeting in New York. He is pleased with his prospects for next year ,and said tonight: "Give me another pitcher, a catcher and an outfielder and I will be fully equipped for next year."

In New York he bought a catcher, whose name he is not ready to divulge, from a big league club. Waivers will be asked for the backstop, who Joe says, is a good man. Kelley also put in his bid for the other men needed, and as he stands high with the managers with whom he talked business he has the inside chance of getting the players if they are let out and waivers can be secured.

If the season opened to-morrow Kelley could put on his infield and outfield and show a staff of pitchers hard to beat, he is after he will put Weidensaul on the catcher, but if he secures the big leaguer he is after he will put Weidensaul on the market. The Denver club, his home town, has already made an offer for the latter.

At present he has secured four new players. They are: Outfielder Joe Delahanty, Firstbaseman Deal, Secondbaseman Fitzpatrick and Pitcher Thompson. Delahanty was secured last week from St. Louis. He is a left fielder, and, like his famous brothers, is a good man with the club. He can also play second base.

Johnny Deal and Fitzpatrick were bought from the champion Lancaster team of the Tri-State League. Deal is a tall, rangy fellow and clouted the ball to a .305 tune last year. He has a world of speed and has been in the big waggon playing for Ned Hanlon when the Baltimore man was manager of Cincinnati. Fitzpatrick was highly recommended by Gene McCann. Arthur Irwin and several other baseball scouts.

Deal will be at first base, Jimmy Mullen or Fitzpatrick at second, Vaughn or Frick at shortstop and McDonald at third base. Delahanty, Grimshaw and either Kelley or a new man will be the outfielders. Rudolph, Doc Newton and McGinley, all twirlers who have shown their class, and Lee and Thompson are the box men in line. Kelley will take his team south to train next season and is now dickering for a trainng camp. It is Joe's intentions to have the men report in March, work in their training quarters for a couple of weeks and then play a series of exhibition games in Virginia and the Carolinas.

O. R. F. U. HAD A GOOD YEAR ANNUAL MEETING ON SATURDAY

Toronto, Dec. 20.—The annual meeting of the O. R. F. U. was held in the King Edward Saturday afternoon, with President A. R. Dennison in the chair.

The Secretary, E. J. Livingstone, in presenting his report, commended the clubs for the activity and good sportmanship they have shown during the past year, and deplired the infringement of the rules of the Aura Lee club. The financial statement showed a balance of $79.77, while the following officers were elected: President, A. R. Dennison; First Vice-President, Father Carr; Second Vice-President, B. McGillivray; Secretary, E. J. Livingstone; Junior representatives, Percy Scott (London), James Brydon, Y.M.C.A.; Senior representatives, Dr. A. W. McPherson (Peterborough), E. Ray Clarke (T.A.A.C.), Dr. S. A. Weisnniller (Parkdale).

President Denison thanked the union for doing him the honour of re-electing him to office. He said he had played the game himself in his younger days, but there has been a great change in the style of play since then. He congratulated the clubs on the good sporting spirit displayed in all the matches. The showing made by Parkdale against the great Varsity team was a tribute to the strength of the union, besides furnishing a big surprise to the side-line critics. He also referred in the highest terms of praise to the St. Michael's College team, whose win of the Canadian junior championship was most creditable. He prophesied great things for the union next year.

The following amendments were passed:

That the union's share of gater receipts be $30 only, when the gate is over $160.

That when the receipts are not sufficient to cover the expenses of the competing teams, which shall be computed on a basis of six cents per mile one way per man for 18 men, the expenses shall be pooled and shared equally between the two clubs.

It was also decided to send three representatives to the Canadian Rugby Union meet in Montreal next month ,and that they be chosen from the following: Dr. Weismiller, Ed. Livingstone, W. A. Hewitt, Father Carr, Dr. Wood, and A. R. Clark. These repersentatives will be allowed $15 each for expenses.

SPORT NOTES

There will be a meeting of the Junior City League in the Examiner office on Thursday night at 7.30 o'clock for the purpose of reorganising for the season. A large number of teams have signified their intention of joining the league and a successful season is looked forward to. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance at this meeting. Every club that intends to enter a team in the league should be represented at this meeting, when the age limit will be arranged and the schedule drawn up.

The sporting editor of The Examiner is indebted to Percy Le Sueur, the star goalkeeper of the Ottawa Hockey Club for a copy of a neat little book entitled, "How to Play Hockey," containing an abundance of good advice to hockeyists in a pithy and attractive form. Mr. LeSueur is the author of the book, which fills a long felt want for his experience in the fast hockey struggles in the history of the game in Canada has given him a training in inside hockey that makes his instructions most valuable to players. The book is embellished with many photographs and no doubt will be eagerly snapped up when it is placed on sale.

The City League Clubs are reminded of the meeting in the Oriental Hotel to-night, when the schedule for the season will be drawn up and other matters of importance will be discussed. It is imperative that every team that intends to play in the league this season should be present to-night and only those on hand will be included in the schedule.

As announced some weeks ago in The Examiner the Collegiate club have decided to withdraw their team from the City League in view of their getting a franchise in the junior O.H.A. and they will do so at to-night's meeting. The garnet and gray will devote all their attention to the junior O.H.A. race.

The attention of the teams in the Senior City League is called to the clause in the constitution that provides for the payment of the $20 deposit from each club before the 25th of December. Such clubs as do not comply with this condition will be dropped from the League and the schedule re-arranged. While it is not necessary according to the constitution it would be much more convenient to the officers of the League if the clubs would pay their deposit at to-night's meeting. They may do so if they wish, but in any case it must be in the hands of the secretary before Saturday.

THE RING

Jack Johnson is giving away to Philadelphia reporters why he expects to defeat Jeffries:

"First, I have a good pair of hands," grinned the big heavyweight with his golden smile. "I will jolt him harder than he has ever been struck before. It matters not whether the fight will be at long or short range I can outbox him, and as a mixer at close quarters I will dare him to swap punches with me. There is no doubt as to the result. I am big, healthy, never was sick in my life, and the strongest man that Jeffries ever attempted to grapple with. I can already see the bacon coming to my home."

BASKETBALL

The game in the Y.M.C.A. Basketball League last Saturday was somewhat of a surprise to the spectators as the last time that these two teams met the Blues didn't do a thing but trim the Greens. It was very much the other way on Saturday night.

The Greens have secured some new men on their team and it has turned out that things are looking very much their own way. The other teams of the League are also beginning to look the field over for some new men. The game started with a flash and they played hard for three minutes. Then [illegible] started his usual game and there was nothing around that seemed to [illegible] in his reach. He scored three goals in the first half. Wallace played an excellent game, as usual.

Although the Blues lost the game they didn't get the blues as might be expected. But kept on playing as if they were in the lead. Stratton played the game for the Blues, shooting five field goals for his team. Line-up:—

Blues		Greens
Pearson	R.F.	Phelan
Stratton	L.F.	Hogan
Scott	C.	Wallace
Lees	R.G.	Morrow
Hill	L.G.	Harper

Officials—Referee, H. A. McLaughlin. Timer—Hol Hill Scorer—Ross Laing.

To-night the Reds and Whites will play.

TWO JOURNALISTIC SIGNS OF PROGRESS

The Examiner has received copies of the special holiday numbers of our esteemed contemporary, The Review and the Times. While these editions are creditable to the enterprise and typographical skill at the resources of our journalistic competitors, their pages show by their liberal advertising patronage that Peterborough is regarded as a most attractive purchasing field—a commercial centre to which merchants can justify to themselves liberal outlays calling advertising attention in order to meet the demands of a wide area of the purchasing public. One can almost see Peterborough grow in commercial importance especially.

FORESEES VICTORY

Dundee Manufacturer Contributes Ten Thousand Pounds to Liberals to Assist Them in Carrying on the Fight For Free Trade — Balfour and Haldane Are Too Ill to Speak at Meetings Yesterday.

London, Dec. 21.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Liberal campaign fund was yesterday augmented by a contribution of $50,000, a gift to Winston Churchill by a Dundee jute manufacturer for the defence of free trade.

Speakers last night included Augustine Birrell and Sir Edward Grey. The Secretary for Ireland said the present House of Lord was "Jerry built." The second chamber must be differently composed in future. "We are in a joyous mood," he declared. "With customary cheerfulness, we scent victory."

The Secretary of Foreign Affairs at Sunderland replied severely to a personal attack by the Duke of Northumberland, and also declared the House of Lords to be the only permanent opposition to the Liberal party.

Lord Charles Beresford at Pembroke dock reiterated his determination to speak out unless things in the navy were put right. The public had been misled by the Admiralty press bureau, which had done away with good feeling and comradeship in the navy.

F. S. Smith to a Salford audience emphasized the danger of a German challenge of the empire's naval supremacy.

Keir Hardie, at Glasgow, referred to the fact that the House of Lords, to-day gives judgment on the question whether trades unions possess the right to levy for the salaries of members of Parliament, and said that if judgment was adverse, the party had everything in order for carrying on its financial work for at least two years.

Lloyd-George had a remarkably enthusiastic reception while motoring through the streets at Newport. A crowd of several thousand compelled him to make a speech.

Both sides are conducting campaign with utmost vigor in every corner of the land.

Balfour's indisposition necessitating his retirement from the platform will be a serious handicap to the Unionists, if prolonged after Christmas.

Mr. Haldane, Secretary of War, is also sick.

Lord Rosebery writes The Times asking for definite declarations of policy on the question of reform of the House of Lords from both sides. He says: "I can pledge no faith in Balfour's manifesto that his party will undertake to reform the House of Lords, and yet, unless such a pledge be given thoroughly and unmistakably, we may see a Conservative Government come into office and repeat once more the fatal error of letting an opportunity pass."

FATAL FIRE IN LONDON

President of Local Government Board Assists In Fighting the Flames—Unconfirmed Report Says That Fifty Lives Were Lost—Damage is Estimated at Two Million Five Hundred Thousand.

London, Dec. 21.—A disastrous fire, involving the loss of many lives and the destruction of the big drapers' store of Arding & Hobbs, at Clapham, a southwestern quarter of London, occurred yesterday. An estimate, which cannot be confirmed, places the loss of life in the fire at close to 50.

The breaking of an electric bulb started a blaze among celluloid articles beneath, about 4.30 p.m., when the store, covering an acre of ground, and having five floors and a hundred departments, were crowded with customers. In little more than an hour the building was in ruins. The damage is estimated at 2,500,000.

All the customers got out in safety and over 300 employes followed. The fire was so rapid that some of the employes were caught in the upper floors. Two men brought a couple of girls to one of the windows. One of the girls descended the fire escape in safety. While the second was trying to reach the ground the ladder took fire and she fell and was killed. The two men then jumped and were killed also. Several were seriously injured, a few possibly fatally. At midnight some of the employers are also accounted for.

President John Burns of the local Government, assisted the firemen. He remained at the scene for three hours and then attended a meeting of the electors of Battersea, with his hand done up in a bandage, his clothes saturated with water and his face begrimmed with smoke. He related his experience and asked the meeting to excuse him from making a speech.

The audience, after standing uncovered as a mark of condolence for the victims of the fire, dispersed with cheers for "Honest John."

Big Blaze at Sudbury.

Sudbury, Dec. 21.—S. Johnson's large business block was burned here early Sunday morning at a total loss of $125,000, with about 25 per cent. insurance. Mayor Leckie lost a valuable law library and had to be rescued by firemen with ladders.

Losses include: S. Johnson, building, loss $50,000, insurance $20,000; Bank of Toronto $2,000, covered; Manager L. Lambe $700, covered; Downey & Moyle, furniture, $5,000; P. L. Parker, groceries, $12,000, insurance $4,500; Dr. Switzer $2,000, insurance $1,800; Mayor Leckie $10,000, insurance $1,800; F. N. Andrews, tailor, $2,000, insurance $1,100; Manitoulin & North Shore Railway $1,000, covered; Major Smith, broker, $1,000; J. Henry, furniture, $3,000; Canadian customs office, all records and express parcels destroyed.

C.P.R. Revenue Goes Up.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—The controller of the Canadian Pacific Railway gave out a statement yesterday to the effect that the gross revenue for the year 1909 would be $100,000,000, beating Mr. Fielding's estimated revenue by 5,000,000.

Of this amount, it is understood that eighty-five millions will come from the railway, and fifteen millions from the steamers, hotels, etc.

Killed In Peculiar Way.

Little Falls, N.Y., Dec. 21.—Water scooped by the locomotive of the New York Central's Boston & Chicago Limited from a trough between the tracks near Herkimer yesterday, washed two unknown men from the front platform of the first car, where they were stealing a ride. They fell under the train and were killed.

New Lake Freighter.

Detroit, Dec. 21.—Negotiations have been closed between the Anchor Line and the Detroit Shipbuilding Co. for a big package freighter to take the place of the Clarion, burned off Pelee Island two weeks ago. The new steamer will be 374 feet long, 46 feet beam and 28 feet deep and will cost $300,000.

Held Up by Armed Men.

Chatham, Dec. 21.—John Commode, a farmer on the third concession, Chatham Township, yesterday told the police that he was held up by two highwaymen just outside the city limits Saturday night. They made him turn out his pockets at the points of revolvers and made off with 65 cents.

422 Accidents to Workers.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—Industrial accidents occurred to 422 individual workpeople in Canada during November were reported to the Labor Department. Of these 143 were fatal and 279 resulted in serious injuries. In the preceding month there were 146 killed on railways.

Not One Voted Nay.

Welland, Dec. 21.—A bylaw granting a fixed rate of assessment for the Electro Steel Co., was passed yesterday in Crowland Township by a vote of 328 for and 0 against. The company commenced the construction of their buildings some time ago.

A Heavy Fine.

Say Barge Canal Will Beat River.

New York, Dec. 21.—New Yorkers who have read the recent address of G. W. Stephens, chairman of the Montreal harbor board, declaring the superiority of the St. Lawrence water route over the Erie Canal, say that when the new barge canal is completed the water rate to New York will be as cheap as to Montreal, and that this port has many advantages that Montreal does not possess.

Wanted to Work Fifty Years.

Philadelphia, Dec. 21.—After being employed by the one company for 49 years, Albert Heald, 69 years old, a conductor on the Pennsylvania Railroad, was struck and killed yesterday by an engine. Though entitled to go on the company's pension list, he had asked to be permitted to continue his work until February, to round out fifty years' continuous service.

Not In Favor of Naval Display.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—The Premier and Earl Grey were waited upon by Mayor Oliver of Toronto, W. K. George and Dr. Orr, in regard to the desire of the exhibition authorities to have a submarine and torpedo flotilla at the next Toronto Exhibition.

It is understood that the Ottawa authorities did not give the project much encouragement.

U. S. and Technical Education.

Washington, Dec. 21.—Industrial education probably will be made the subject of a general investigation under the supervision of the Bureau of Labor. Secretary Nagel and Commissioner Neil both favor it. They so told a committee of the American Federation of Labor yesterday.

Fear a Race War.

Selma, Ala., Dec. 21.—A race war is threatened at Magnolia, in Marengo County, as the result of the murder of Algernon Lewis, a young white man, Saturday night by four negro brothers named Montgomery. The negroes have not been captured. Troops have been asked for.

Ottawa's Next Archbishop.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—It is rumored now that Mgr. Oliver Mathieu of Laval University is likely to be the new Archbishop of Ottawa diocese.

"Truth Above All Things"

"Above all things, George," she cooed on the way to the train for the wedding journey, "let us be truthful with each other—is everything. It means so much to a woman, you know—absolute and perfect confidence in her husband."

"Oh, to be sure," George replied, moving the end of her hat quill out of his ear. "There can be no such confidence between man and wife as there should be without entire truth and frankness."

"I'm awfully glad you agree with me," she said. "Do you think I look bridey, George, dear?"

He drank her in with his eyes. "You couldn't look any more so if your hat was trimmed with rice and old shoes. You look like a going-away gown in a fashion book."

"Oh, George!" she exclaimed with disappointment. "I so hope nobody would know. They make such fun of people—on trains."

"I don't see how you'd expect anything else when you swish along with a typical bride's outfit—all new, and you blushing like a ripe peach every time anybody looks at you," George declared.

"But I thought I looked—well, different," she urged.

"Pooh!" said George coolly. "They all look alike. Hats, suits, shoes—everything is the same with a bride. They'll pipe us off the minute we get out of the carriage."

"But they said I looked so calm and cool and self-possessed when we left the house," she insisted.

"Oh, they just said that to ease your feeling of self-consciousness," he explained. "I've seen a hundred brides, and I can't see that you look one bit different from any one of them."

"Don't—don't I look different to you, George? You don't mean that I look the same to you as other brides you've seen?"

"Why, I can't say you look any different," he replied. "Of course, you are different, but you look about the same as most brides—pretty ones, of course," he added.

She had been very happy, but a little mist came in her eyes. She so wanted him to say no other woman in the world could ever look like her—to him.

"We'll have a jolly trip, won't we, George?" she ventured after a moment in which she mastered her disappointment.

"Oh, it'll be stupid enough, I presume. I don't think much of wedding trips, anyway. Stuffy cars, gaping people, highly advertised scenery that doesn't come up to the bills, soot, smoke, dust, and all that. I'd rather stay home myself. You'll be cross about half the time, and so will I, and in all probability we'll quarrel before we've gone a hundred miles."

"Why, George Wilkinson!" she cried in amazement. "What can you be thinking of? To talk of quarreling on our wedding trip!"

"They all do," he explained calmly. "They think they won't, but they do. There hasn't been a wedding trip without a quarrel in the whole history of wedding trips. People are human, you know."

She was too astonished to reply for a few minutes. Could this be the George Wilkinson who had builded all those rosy castles of dreams during their courtship? At length she said:

"Has—has anything happened to make you disappointed in me, George?" she ventured timidly.

"Why certainly not," he said quickly. "What ever made you think that?"

"Oh, I don't know," she answered him."

They neared the station now. The blessed minutes they would be entirely alone were slipping away.

"George," she ventured softly, putting her little hand on his big, strong one. "No matter what happens I'll always be everything to you, won't I?" and she looked up at him pleadingly.

"A woman can't be everything to a man, Nellie," he replied, looking at her and then out of the cab window. "A man must have other things in his life, his business, his club, his friends—all these things go to make life full and complete. A man must develop all phases of his character, not his affections alone. He must want to be a public-spirited citizen, to take his place in the affairs of life, to meet other men and women—on the proper basis, of course—and naturally he can't devote all of his time and inspiration to his wife. She should not expect that. She ought to be reasonable, and then she won't be disappointed, don't you see?"

The door was opened for them and they stepped out of the cab. The sunlight was very bright, and the brightness of it must have brought the water to her eyes.

Then she said:

"George."

"Yes, dear."

"We're going off on our wedding trip, aren't we?"

"Surely we are," he agreed, wondering.

"Well," and she looked in his eye with much fondness, "I want you to tell me as many fibs as you like every day, whenever you think they will make me as happy as I was—yesterday. You understand?"

He nodded, and a little later whispered to her that they should never, never, never be anything but all the world to each other.

Which was not at all true, of course.

MUSIC APPEALS TO ESKIMOS.

Voices Good and They Sing in Tune, According to Traveler in Regions of the North.

Music is one of the chief pleasures and accomplishments of the Eskimos. At the Labrador missions violins are used by them in the church choir, and brass bands are organized. In "Along the Labrador Coast" Dr. Townsend tells of an evening's entertainment with the Eskimos at Nain.

"For over an hour these natives sing to us," he says, "familiar music with Eskimo words—'Rock of Ages,' 'Holy Night,' interspersed with what I take to be secular songs. Their voices are harmonious and the singing is of a superior order. We return the compliment in the only way we can with a graphophone. It is indeed a terrible come-down to 'The Old Apple Tree' and 'Everybody Works But Father,' but the Eskimos seem to enjoy it, and greet the songs and their explanation by the interpreter with peals of laughter.

"A song in which a man beats his wife seems especially to amuse them. A Moravian brother told me that they had been unable to win the Eskimo from the wife-beating habit. Even the wives resent any interference on this score.

"An Irish jig makes them shake with joy, and I am sure they would dance were there room to stir."

Terms for Inebriety.

According to Hotten, some of the terms denoting inebriety are as follows: Beery, bemused, boosy, bosky, corned, foggy, fou, fresh, hazy, elevated, kisky, lushy, moony, muggy, muzzy, on, screwed, stewed, tight and winy. In an intermediate class stand podgy, beargared, blued, cut, primed, lumpy, plowed, muddled, obfuscated, swipey, three sheets in the wind and topheavy. "But the acme," says the same authority, "is only obtained when the disguised individual 'can't see a hole in the ladder,' or when he is 'all mops and brooms,' or 'off his nut,' or 'with his main-brace well spliced,' or 'with the sun in his eyes,' or when he has 'lapped the gutter' and 'got the gravel rash,' or 'on the rantan,' or 'on the re-raw,' or when he is 'sewed up,' or 'regularly scammered.'"

Getting Into Practice.

It is often pleasanter to theorize than to perform. A young law student, says a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer, was making a study of certain processes of his future profession. He showed an inclination to sit in the house and speculate idly, instead of doing some of the domestic tasks which stood waiting.

"Deduction is an interesting process," declared the youth to his father. "For example, there is a heap of ashes in the yard. That is evidence that the family has recently had fires."

"Well, John," interrupted his father, "suppose you pursue your studies a little farther by going out and sifting that pile of ashes."—Youth's Companion.

ROSE AND BLUE.

ONE woman thus soliloquized,
"It always makes me blue
To look out over this back porch:
It is a wretched view:
That worn old fence; that vacant lot,
Blank houses; trees all bare.
It seems to me I'd rather live—
Oh, well, 'most anywhere!

Another smiled: "I like rear views,
"And alleys-ways and such;
They interest me; they supply
The real 'human touch.'
I wonder who that mother is
Who croons so like a linnet!
And see the cunning window-box,
There must be flowers in it?"

Thrice-blest imagination!
Like alchemist of old,
Thou turnest humdrum things of life
To beauty and to gold!
In all the world, indoors and out,
Be vistas rose or blue,
Eyes are the windows of the soul:
All's in the point of view!

Really Reliable.

Reliable and worth while are the following recipes, and all for simple, every-day dishes.

This German meat sauce is guaranteed to be excellent, and now, while tomatoes are cheap (for there are sales on the canned goods at many grocers' this time of year), it is well worth considering.

Four quarts chopped, ripe tomatoes; one cup chopped green pepper, and one of onions, one and a half of sugar, one-half cup salt, one and a half teaspoons each cloves, and cinnamon, a little less of nutmeg and celery seed, each. Boil three hours, and seal in small quantities.

Potatoes a la Sligo.—To a quart of diced, cooked potatoes, add a tablespoon each of chopped onion, parsley, two of sweet, red peppers and salt and pepper to taste. Fry in hot butter, garnish with parsley and serve very hot.

Caution—Fried potatoes are not any too digestible at best, but they are much better if served and eaten immediately after cooking.

Sponge cake: To a cup of yeast sponge add one cup of sugar and a half cup lard; one egg, two teaspoons soda and two baking powder. One teaspoon each of any spices desired, one cup raisins, a little water and flour to make a stiff batter.

This is excellent served with a lemon sauce for cottage pudding.

Dickens' Method of Speaking.

Before making a speech Charles Dickens would decide on his various heads and then in his mind's eye liken the whole subject to the tire of a cart wheel—he being the hub. From the hub to the tire he would run as many spokes as there were subjects to be treated and during the progress of the speech he would deal with each spoke separately, elaborating them as he went round the wheel; and when all the spokes dropped out one by one and nothing but the tire and space remained he would know that he had accomplished his task and that his speech was at an end.

NASAL CATARRH

Responsible for Much Deafness, Hoarseness, Bronchitis and Stomach Trouble.

Medicated Air Will Cure.

These are common diseases, but not less dangerous and difficult to cure on that account. In our climate the weather changes quickly. We are careless. Disease attacks us before we know it. A large majority of our people have nose, lung, or throat troubles, and find it hard to get cured.

It's remarkable with what tenacity both the medical profession and the laity adhere to the old theory that these diseases can be reached and combated by dosing. And this despite the fact that failure to cure in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred attends this mode of treatment.

STOMACH MEDICINE CAN'T CURE.

At best it is a roundabout way of trying to reach the disease which is in the air passages of the throat, nose, bronchial tubes and lungs. Leave the stomach alone—use a remedy that air will carry into the minutest air cells, into the tiniest cavities of the affected organs.

LIQUID REMEDIES DANGEROUS.

Doctors say only "Catarrhozone" can cure—you inhale it along with the air you breath—it goes where the living disease germs are gnawing into your system—it kills these germs—it heals, soothes. it CURES.

CATARRHOZONE GUARANTEED.

Wouldn't it be wise to use Catarrhozone now—to-day—and be cured permanently?

You can send the soothing vapor of the pine woods, the richest balsams and healing essences, right to the cause of your trouble by inhaling Catarrhozone.

Little drops of wonderful curative power are distributed through the whole breathing apparatus in two seconds.

Like a miracle, that's how Catarrhozone works in bronchitis, catarrh colds, and irritable throat. You simply breath its oily, fragrant vapor and every trace of congestion and disease flees as before fire.

So safe, infants can use it; so sure to cure, doctors prescribe it, so beneficial in preventing winter ills, no person can afford to do without Catarrhozone. Used in thousands of cases without failure. Try it yourself. 25c, 50c, $1.00 sizes. Sold by all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Living Up to One's Features

The girl with the inquiring nose took a good look at her profile, surmounted by a new hat, in the mirror with the aid of a handglass. Then she sat down suddenly and despairingly.

"It's no use," she said to her best friend, who, in the role of millinery adviser, sat at a critical distance and and gazed at her. "It's never been any use since my nose decided to take after mamma's family and turn up instead of papa's family and keep to the straight and narrow way.

"You don't know how terribly hard it has always been for me, Belinda, to live up to my features. Now, what kind of a disposition should you say goes with a nose like mine?"

"Flippancy, irrelevancy, flirtatiousness, gayety, insouciance," said her friend, checking off each unredeeming fault on her fingers. "Exactly, and do you think any of them fits me? Not at all. They only fit my nose. I tell you truly, Belinda, I've never dared be myself for one moment on account of my nose. All my yearning to be literary has been nipped by my nose. Whoever saw a literary person with a turn-up nose? I was dying to be musical and practiced furiously, until one day I found out, glancing up at myself in a mirror opposite while I was playing a Chopin nocturne, that my nose struck a false note. There was nothing to do but give up my music after that.

"The only thing I am fit for is to keep a tea room, and even then I don't believe my patrons could be hoodwinked into the belief that my nose was financially sound. To accomplish anything worth while in this life, Belinda, you must first have the features for it.

"The worst part of it all," she added, taking off the offending hat and poking it into the bandbox, "is that you must dress for the part your features call upon you to play. Here, I am, with a sober, sedate mushroom hat, of the most conservative order, on my hands, and I don't dare put it on my head. I look like a guy in it. Internally I am sober, sedate, and conservative. Externally I am flippant, pert and saucy. The internal qualities don't count in the purchase of headgear. You must buy hats to match the externals. Here, try it on yourself, Belinda. It looks charming on you. Why don't you buy it?"

"Because I am so tired of it," murmured her friend.

"Tired of it? Why it's brand new. It's only just come. What are you talking about?"

"Tired of that style," explained Belinda wearily. "All my life I've had to wear that style. I long for something that turns up and turns down in an irresponsible sort of way; something—something saucy, in fact."

"You!" exclaimed her friend. "Why, Belinda, what's come over you?" "I, too, am beset by my features," confessed Belinda. "I can't get away from them. My outer husk shows me a reposeful creature of brooding serenity. I am at heart positively rakish. There's a Bohemian streak in me one yard wide. Of course you don't believe it of me, and I've never confessed it before to any one, but I'm fairly bubbling over with the spirit of adventure. I long to do and say outrageous things, to defy the community, and set it by the ears. The primrose path beckons me, and Pan's pipes lure me on."

"And yet there's no more sober an individual among my friends than you," cried her astounded chum.

"Yes, I know," Belinda said defiantly, "and there's no one who suffers more from repressed individuality than I. We are both overruled by a set of features which were not intended for us at all. We are both living under assumed personalities, assumed purely to back our features. You wish to be literary with an upturned nose, and I, with a nose that rivals Dante's, and the thin lips of Cornelia, mother of the Gracchi, am bacchanalian at heart. If we could only change temperaments; but we can't. My friends would be as horrified as yours."

"Providence must certainly have been absent-minded when we were created," said the girl with the inquiring nose sadly.

"Yes," agreed Belinda, "and I suppose Bernard Shaw understood us a little when he said: 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. Their tastes may not be the same.' You can't judge a person by his features. What are we going to do about it?"

"Let's have tea," said her friend lucidly. "Maybe that will clear our brains and help us decide upon a plan of action that will only astonish the world by degrees."

TRIALS OF OLGA

For a quiet little girl Olga Gilgourski caused the officers of her school a good deal of thought. She was good and obedient and seemed interested in her studies, but the teacher said she was very slow to learn. As she seemed to try and was not stupid, this was surprising. Still, Olga was out of school a good deal, so perhaps she lost the thread of the lessons.

When the teacher asked the meaning of so many absences Olga would only say that she "had to stay home." The teacher reported the matter to the principal, who, after some warnings and notes, sent the truant officer to investigate.

The truant officer entered Mrs. Gilgourski's home with a fierceness that was meant to be jocose. However, Mrs. Gilgourski did not care for that kind of humor and threatened him with a carving knife.

"You go quick," she commanded. "My Olga stay home when I say so."

The truant officer retired and told the principal that he would bring the family into court at once. But the principal asked for delay. Being much puzzled, he suggested that the teacher herself call.

Olga smiled faintly at the teacher when she appeared and Mrs. Gilgourski regarded her with an impassive though not unfriendly countenance. "Teacher" had secured a "yob" for Olga's brother some months before.

"I want to know why Olga stays at home so much," said the teacher. "She does not learn as fast as she ought."

"Oh, she not like go all time," explained Mrs. Gilgourski. "She say she feel silliee, foolish."

"But, Mrs. Gilgourski, why does she feel that way? She is a nice little girl. She does not act silly. Besides, if she stays away too much, unless the doctor says so, the judge may send for you and her father to come to court."

"So?" Said Mrs. Gilgourski.

"Olga, she say," explained Mrs. Gilgourski, "that oder girls call her silee because she not always see things right. You put three on the—what you call it?—yes, board, but she say eight. Then girls laugh."

"Oh!" said the teacher. "Perhaps we can help that. To-morrow I shall ask the nurse to come to see you. You know the nurse?"

"Oh, yaas," assented Mrs. Gilgourski. "She nice lady, but she like too much 'fresh air, fresh air.'"

The teacher smiled, for she remembered the nurse's ineffectual struggles with Mrs. Gilgourski on the subject of proper ventilation.

"She will come to-morrow and take Olga to see a kind gentleman who knows all about the eyes of little girls. Perhaps he can help her to see better. Then, if Olga does just as he tells her she can read as well as the other little girls and they won't laugh any more."

"So?" said Mrs. Gilgourski.

The teacher withdrew, not knowing what sort of impression she had made. Later she telephoned the nurse.

The nurse appeared the next day and took Olga to the oculist's. He carefully inspected the child's eyes and then told Olga if she would wear glasses like those he showed her she could see as well as any one. To his conditions she joyfully assented. Then he gave her a pair of dark glasses to wear for several days and sent her home with the nurse.

A few days later the nurse called again to see how Olga's glasses suited the child. She found Olga in the street without the glasses on. Nor would she say why she was not wearing them. She only mubbed when questioned.

Mrs. Gilgourski was more explicit. "Glasses for childrens vas foolish," she declared. "When Olga puts on them she looks bad. I not like glasses. I gives her a good licking. And ven she vould vear them again I gives her another licking and I breaks the glasses."

As Mrs. Gilgourski would not listen to the nurse's arguments the truant officer had his way and Mrs. Gilgourski was taken into court to explain matters after her own unusual fashion.

CARPET SWEEPER TOO NOISY.

Dealer Left with Memory of Good Joke to Compensate Him for Loss of Sale.

A hardware dealer in town tells a story about a prim old lady who came into his store the other day to purchase a carpet sweeper. She gazed here and there about the store as she entered, and finally going up to the dealer she looked at him quizzically over her glasses and asked: "Do you keep carpet sweepers?"

"Yes, madam," replied the dealer, and naming the two kinds which he had in stock, asked which she desired.

"Well," said the lady, "you may show me both kinds, if you will."

"Just a moment, madam, until I get them from the rear of the store." And with that he went to an obscure corner and took down the carpet-sweepers from their hooks upon the wall.

It happened that in front of one of the makes which he desired there was a lawn mower so hung that he had to move it. He took it down from the hook and as he did so it rolled along the floor with a grinding rattle.

Before he had time to turn around he heard the old lady shout from the front of the store: "That makes more noise than my old one, and I don't care to look at it," and so saying, she whisked out to the door, leaving the dealer to wonder whether the joke was worth the loss of the sale.—Portland Express.

MERE INCIDENT IN FOOTBALL.

Broken Collar Bone, Supposed to Be Enemy's, Considered a Detail of the Game.

There had been a hotly contested football game between the Steam Rollers of the Benjamin Franklin school and the Avalanches of the George Washington school. After the game was over and the contestants had returned to their various homes one of the heroes of the winning team complained of a feeling of soreness in the lower part of his neck.

"I didn't feel it until just now," he said; "but it hurts like sixty!"

His father examined it. It began to swell, and was very sore to the touch.

"I believe your collar bone is broken, my boy," said his father.

A surgeon was hastily summoned, and made an examination.

"Yes," he said, "the bone is fractured. How did it happen, Walter? Do you remember anything about it?"

"Why, yes," answered the boy. "I remember that when I tackled Skinny Morgan I fell on top of him, and I heard something crack, but I thought it was his collar bone."—Youth's Companion.

Not One of His Studies.

Miss Blank's second grade was notorious throughout the school for a lamentable lack of discipline. It was in this grade that printed reports were first issued to the children. One day Tom came home, proudly bearing the first formal record of his progress in scholastic lines. His mother, having been a teacher, was pleased to note that her offspring's ratings were of high order, but his lawyer father, having scanned the minutely, said gravely:

"I don't see any record of deportment here, Thomas."

For a moment Tom looked blank, revolving the possible significance of the unknown term, then his face cleared.

"Oh," he said, "we don't have that in our room."—Delineator.

NEVER A MAN TO BE ENVIED.

Philadelphia Writer's Idea of Status to Be Accorded Bachelor in Society.

The bachelor is punished already, not only in losing the joys of a home, but being an object of contumely. So long as bachelors are willing to put up with all the losses they sustain in celibacy far be it from the majesty of the law to impose farther penalties. It was Cicero or a man of his day who remarked that it was onerous for a man to get along with a wife, but impossible to get along without one. The bachelor is not a man—only a more or less imitation of one—sometimes a very poor one. He thinks he has a good time in escaping all the major responsibilities of life, but he is deceiving no one but himself. As an example and a warning he has his uses in society. As an individual he is apt to find that he is eating only apples of Sodom. The man who deliberately remains a bachelor is already punished enough. Let him alone in his misery until some nice girl comes along and carries him off. And we may remark that no man is a bachelor of his own initiative—no matter how much he may think so. He is simply a human derelict whom the women have examined and passed by. The bachelors are the disjecta membra of society whom no woman will have. That is awful and it is enough. —Philadelphia Inquirer.

Nervous, Tired, Anxious, Thin

What causes nervous collapse? Most people say worry, anxiety, brooding, but these are simply the outcomes of a lowered physical condition. When strong we throw them off, but when run down they hold us if by chains.

The true cause of nervous collapse is in the blood. When thin and watery it contains no nourishment for the nerves, no support for the muscles—result is collapse.

The truest food for the nerves is the nourishing blood that Ferrozone forms. Ferrozone builds up the nervous and depressed, not by stimulation, but by the surer way of adding flesh, blood, and sinew. The whole system is vitalized; the nerves are fortified—you can sleep, work hard, and be free from brooding anxiety.

FERROZONE Makes Health

No health winner as certain as Ferrozone, no nerve strengthener more potent, no system tonic so well adapted to the wants of the run down, nervous, or sleepless. Ferrozone is certain to cure if you give it a chance. 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50 at all dealers.

MARMADUKE'S EPIGRAMS

It is much easier to tell a woman you love her when you do not than when you do.

It is not our bitter enemies that do us the most harm; it is our own bitter friends.

Superior knowledge is a mistake; that which rules the world is superior ignorance.

The men who love woman seldom love women; those who love women seldom love woman.

Life is like walking through Paradise with peas in your shoes.

No woman is so good as she looks; to know that is the first step toward the attainment of knowledge of the world. The next, to know that few men are so bad as they seem.

Those who have humour we laugh at and like; those who have wit we laugh with and fear.

All is possible to woman, for woman alone may make herself impossible.

Bringing home a heart is a great joy; we call that love. Some look upon it as a form of sport; we call that flirting.

You must talk to a man's intelligence; to a woman's inclination.

There is none that suspects her husband more than the wife who is not above suspicion herself.

Woman wants to conquer the world that sees her; man, the world he sees.

When a man gives to a woman because it pleases her to receive, he is not necessarily in love; when he gives because it pleases him to give, he is.

If man had less sense of consequences he could do much; if woman had more sense of consequence she could do little.

In England all are educated now, except the educated classes.

The ordinary Englishman is a man of few words; and these are generally disagreeable.

It would appear that to be a "gentleman consists not so much in behaving as a gentleman should, but in misbehaving as a "gentleman" does.

Touch an American, and there is an outburst; touch an Englishman, there is an official correspondence.

There is the old and the new vulgarity. The old was the worship of the established; the new is the struggle to establish oneself.

The most barbarous punishment of the time is to be torn to pieces by wild editors.

Were it not for the misfortunes of our neighbours, life would be positively unbearable.

—Marmaduke in London Truth.

MAKE THE BLOOD RICH AND RED

Miss Cynthia Hutchinson, Hanceville, B. C., writes: "My system was so completely run down that my friends as well as myself thought I could never get better. All medicines failed to help me. A trial of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food benefitted me and at the end of a month people scarcely knew me I had improved so much. The blood was enriched, colour improved, new flesh was added, and I got strong and well."

RULES TO FOLLOW FOR HUSBAND AND WIFE

The following are a few rules for a husband and wife as propounded by several persons who have passed beneath the yoke of the fair god Hymen. First there is the ten commandments as prepared by Frank Root, of Anne Arbor, Michigan, and against which his wife rebelled:—

I.—Thou shalt wed none but thine own true love, neither for money nor social position, nor because thou art lazy.

II.—Thou shalt look with 100 eyes upon a man before thou marriest him but thou shalt wear blinders after marriage.

III.—Thou shalt accept thy husband as he is, and add not to him nor take away from him by vain imaginings, for behold, the man thou didst marry is a good fellow and the one thou dreamest of does not exist.

IV.—Thou shalt beat upon the cymbals and proclaim thy husband "Master."

V.—Thou shalt not covet they neighbour's costly gowns, nor her diamond earrings, nor her sable coat, nor her silk stockings, nor her complexion, nor her husband, nor anything which is thy neighbour's.

VI.—Thou shalt not run up bills.

VII.—Thou shalt not waste kisses and affection upon a cat nor take to thy bosom a ki-yi.

VIII.—Thou shalt not commit thyself to such follies as the festive cocktail and the insidious cigarette.

IX.—Remember wash day—but send the clothes to a laundry.

X.—Honour thy husband so that thou shalt not dishonour thyself.

Here is another set for a wife as formulated by Charles F. Brandt, of Brooklyn, N.Y.

1—Arise every morning at 6.30 o'clock.

2—Breakfast must be on the table at 7.20 a.m., and not a minute earlier or a minute later.

3—Coffee must be prepared by the cook book rule.

4—Not more than $16 a month shall be paid for a maid.

5—No maid shall be hired unless approved by me.

6—The smell of cooking shall not permeate the house.

7—The wife shall not be out of the house after 8 p.m.

8—All cooking shall be done by the authorized recipes.

9—Washing, sweeping and the care of the furniture shall follow the rules laid down.

Rules For Both.

These were written by Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Stone, of New York:

1—Think a little.

2—Have no foolish illusions.

3—Try to understand each other and be chums.

4—Let your life be a partnership which equalizes all joys as well as sorrows.

5—Do not, like children, when you have purchased one thing, repine that you do not possess another which you did not purchase.

6—Do not look away from yourselves for happiness; it is in you.

Does Local Option do the Work?

What a Toronto Newspaper Reporter heard in Owen Sound—

1. That retired farmers were going into the blind pig business because there was so much easy money in it.

2. That a factory hand, who had gone into the blind pig business, had made four hundred dollars in a month, selling whiskey to his fellow workmen.

3. That employers of labor had had more trouble with their men since local option went into force than they had in fifteen years before.

4. That there is a system of signals, lights and bells, to warn the illegal vendor of the approach of the police. Also that there is a recognized vocabulary for the contraband.

5. That debts are thirty per cent. harder to collect under local option than they were before, as the records of the division court show.

6. That crime has increased thirty-three and a third per cent. as the police records show.

Local option is class legislation. No community would consent to be ruled entirely by any one religious denomination. Why then should it be obliged to submit to the opinions and restrictions of the total abstainer.

Liberty of Conscience and Liberty of Conduct should go hand in hand.

VOTE AGAINST LOCAL OPTION, IT WILL NOT SUIT YOU.

7—Do not marry on impulse.

8—Seeks to please your husband or your wife and make reasonable sacrifices. He or she will then do the same, and true happiness will result.

9—Lead the simple life.

For the Husband.

Mrs. Fannie Zollmen, of Williamsburg, N.Y., has listed the following rules for a husband.

1—He must make a solemn promise never to love any woman but me.

2—He must promise to support me in a way a wife should be supported.

3—He must come home at night as soon as his day's business is over.

4—He must take me to the theatre at least once a week.

5—He must stay at home at night instead of going to his club.

6—He must solemnly promise never to elope.

SPLENDID ADDRESS GIVEN LAST NIGHT

Mr. N. A. Howard Moore was present at the literary meeting of the Knox Church Young People's Society last night and after the devotional exercises and other business had been transacted was called upon by the chairman, Mr. Robt. Thompson, to give an address on the subject of Amateur Photography.

Mr. Moore's lecture was interesting, not only to those who take an interest in this pastime, but also to those who do not. Many valuable pointers were given as to what to do and what not to do in the process of printing and developing.

At the close of the address a vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Moore for the pleasant and able way in which the hobby had been explained, on motion of Mr. Roy, seconded by Mr. A. Donaldson.

Next Monday night, December 27, will be missionary night and Miss Menzies will be in charge of the meeting.

LOOK OUT FOR PNEUMONIA

Your system is in a run-down condition. You catch cold. You think it will soon pass off. It doesn't. You neglect taking any special care of yourself. Bronchitis develops and then comes pneumonia and a fight for life. A fight which is too often unsuccessful. Why not take every cold seriously and cure it promptly by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Watson Once Sent to Asylum.

New York, Dec. 21.—The American yesterday reprints an item from The St. James' Gazette (London, Eng.) of Dec. 2, 1892, which chronicled the appearance in public court there of William Watson, the poet, on a charge of being a dangerous lunatic. The Gazette story says "about 12 years ago Mr. Watson met with a disappointment in a love affair, and this induced for a time a strong suicidal mania. The care and attention of his friends, combined with a visit to Algiers, restored his reason."

He was arrested because he had rushed forward and tried to stop the horses in the carriage in which the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh and one of the princesses were driving. He gave as his reason that he wanted to see if one of the two leading royal personages was in it. He was committed to an asylum by the magistrate.

Labrador to Export Meat.

Sydney, N.S., Dec. 21.—That Labrador may soon become an important source of food supply, exporting large quantities of meat, cereals, etc., is the opinion of Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, missionary, author and lecturer. Dr. Grenfell and his bride, formerly Miss Hanahan of Chicago, are on their way to Labrador. The doctor is enthusiastic over the outlook for extending his herds of reindeer, imported from Lapland, to all parts of Labrador.

"There are excellent prospects of this try,' he said. "The flesh of the reindeer makes splendid food, and I look forward to the time when large quantities will be exported to supply the meat markets of the world."

LONDON, Dec. 20.—London cables for cattle are steady at 12c to 14½c per lb. for live cattle, dressed weight; Liverpool, 12½c to 13½c; refrigerator beef steady, at 10½c to 11½c per lb.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Dec. 20.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 40 carloads, consisting of 568 cattle, 40 hogs, 833 sheep and lambs and 15 calves.

Butchers.

Picked lots of prime cattle sold up to $6; loads of good, $5.25 to $5.60; medium, $4.75 to $5.25; common, $4 to $4.50; cows, $3.50 to $4.50.

Milkers and Springers.

A moderate supply of medium quality cows sold at lower prices, owing to no eastern demand. Prices ranged at from $35 to $65 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts light, prices firm, at $8 to $9 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep and lambs were again higher, selling at better prices than have been paid this season. Lambs sold at from $6 to $7.10 per cwt.; export ewes sold at $4.75 per cwt.; culls and rams at $3 to $3.25 per cwt.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 20.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts for last week were 2580 cattle, 1878 sheep and lambs, 2100 hogs and 600 calves, while offerings this morning consisted of 1200 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 400 calves. Altho the supply of cattle was much larger than a week ago, prices were firm, but with no advances. The supply of really good, useful cattle was none too large for requirements. There were a large number of cows and bulls on the market, for which the demand was active from local packers for canning purposes. Sales of extra choice Christmas steers were made at 6c; choice at 5¾c to 5¾c; good at 5c to 5½c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c; medium at 3¾c to 4c; common at 3c to 3½c; canning cows at 1½c to 2c, and bulls at 2½c to 3c per pound. A strong feeling still continues to characterize the market for lambs, owing to limited supplies, and prices scored a further advance of ½c per pound, with sales to-day at 6¾c to 7c per pound. The market for sheep was weaker on account of limited demand and excess offerings. Sales of some small lots were made at 4c to 4½c per pound. The demand for choice calves was good at 5c to 6c per pound. The market for hogs was stronger, and prices advanced 10c to 15c per cwt., owing to the increased demand from packers and smaller receipts, and sales of selected lots from west of Toronto were made at $8.75, and from east of Toronto at $8.65, weighed off cars.

Alien Labor Law Dismissed.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—A charge of breach of the alien labor act, laid by the striking leather workers against Hugh Carson, Limited, was dismissed by Magistrate O'Keefe yesterday.

It was shown that a member of the firm wrote to a man named Heath, at Salem, N.Y., offering him a job. Heath came over, but did not have his tools and before he got them, learned a strike was on. He declined the job.

The court held there was no evidence of a binding contract to give Heath work, and that therefore there was no importation.

Committee Told Off to Report on the Legality of Lectures In Bible Knowledge at Toronto University Decides That Messrs. Blake and Hains Are Wrong — Father Teefy Dissents From Finding

Toronto, Dec. 21.—Hon. S. H. Blake, K.C., Rev. Elmore Harris and the others who startled the public last spring with their assault on the teaching of "higher criticism" in connection with the department of "religious knowledge" at University College of the Provincial University have now their answer in the report of the special committee of the board of governors appointed to consider the charges in question.

The verdict on almost every count is "not guilty," though it is almost too much to expect that Mr. Blake will accept the finding.

The kernel of the matter is summed up in the first sentence of section 13 of the report:

"Your committee begs to report that, in its opinion, the university act does not exclude all interpretation of the Bible in University College, and that every discussion of any of its books in the college would not be a teaching of 'theology' contrary to the statute."

The correlation of all branches of learning is well emphasized in the same section, where it is pointed out that a strict barring of all discussion of the sacred writings would cripple the teaching of almost the entire arts curriculum.

The term used in the statutory prohibition, the committee points out, is "theology" and not "religious knowledge."

Appended to the report is a letter from Rev. Father J. R. Teefy, explaining why he finds it necessary to withdraw his concurrence from certain phases of the finding.

As the legal questions involved depended upon the construction and effect of the provisions of the University act, 1906, a sub-committee, consisting of Sir Charles Moss, Sir William Meredith, Dr. Hoskin, K.C., and Dr. Z. A. Lash, K.C., was requested to consider and report upon these provisions, and the report of the sub-committee forms part of this report.

Negro Outlaw's Finish.

His body was then tied to a buggy and dragged to Abbeville and placed in the court house, where it lay for several hours.

Washington, Dec. 21.—"Peace in this country can only be assured by the complete exclusion of Zelaya and his followers. We will continue fighting until this is secured. In the name of liberty and justice on our side we ask you to recognise my Government."

'QUAKE IN CAPE BRITAIN.

Communication With Some Parts Is Still Interrupted.

Halifax, Dec. 21.—Northern Cape Breton was shaken by an earthquake Sunday afternoon, the effects of which were felt from Mabou, on the western coast of the island, to St Ann's on the east. Communication with Inverness was wholly cut off Sunday night. The shock was felt there more severely than in any other section of the island, and after three o'clock Monday afternoon it was impossible to get in communication with that section of the island. While it was not thought there has been serious damage, there was some anxiety felt last night over the interruption of communication The first news of the disturbance came from Baddeck The telephone central there reported that between 3 and 3.30 o'clock the town was rocked by a seismic disturbance of considerable force. St Ann's, on the eastern coast, also reported severe shocks.

Reports came in next from Orangedale of a disturbance there The telephone central at that point stated that shortly after 3 o'clock the village was startled by a heavy rumbling sound. At first it was thought to be an express train running at high speed, but in a moment the ground began to sway and tremble Dishes and light articles danced around on the shelves and houses were badly shaken. No damage was reported along the line of the Intercolonial. The operator at the Grand Narrows station stated that the earthquake had not been felt there, but Orangedale station, before it closed for the night, stated that, in addition to the shock there, West Bay Mabou and Margaree had also been visited by the tremors. No news could be secured from Inverness or Port Hood last night. All evening the long-distance operators in the Sydney central endeavored to establish communication with these points, but every attempt proved futile. The wires all failed to respond, and about 11 o'clock the Sydney office concluded that the earthquake was responsible for the derangement of communication. Judging from the force of the disturbance in other sections of the country it is not thought that the 'quake could have been severe enough in Inverness to have caused any damage, but the fact that no word could be got from there during the night caused some anxiety.

KNIFE WAS DRAWN BY THE IRATE PROPRIETOR

Nicola Renzetti is Charged With Having Assaulted Nicola Lamorgia in the Italian Boarding House Near Water Works Dam---Renzetti Said to Have Used a Long Knife

A warrant was sworn out this morning for the arrest of Nicola Renzetti, the proprietor of a boarding house, near the Waterworks dam, as the result of an alleged assault upon Nicola Lamorgia, one of his boarders. The affair, according to the information, took place last night and Renzetti is said to have used a long knife, although he did not get within striking distance, thanks to some of the other boarders, who intervened.

Lamorgia returned to the boarding house from work and after a while Renzetti informed him that the bed he had been occupying was taken last night and he would have to sleep on another. Renzetti showed him the bed he intended for him and an old man was then sleeping on it. Lamorgia refused to use it if the old man was to be a bedfellow and Renzetti, it is claimed, became angry and told him he could get out of the house. Lamorgia suggested that he might as well keep cool, as he would pay his bill and leave the place. Renzetti is said to have become enraged and picked up a long knife and started toward Lamorgia. Fortunately several of the boarders took hold of Renzetti and prevented the possibility of what the information stated might have been a serious occurrence.

County Constable Cochrane left with the warrant this afternoon to apprehend Renzetti and to bring him before Magistrate Edmison for a preliminary hearing.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE GIVEN TO MAN FOUND GUILTY OF PERJURY

Geo. W. Martin Came Up Before His Honour Judge Huycke This Morning---Was Allowed to Go---Will be Brought up on Any Report of Misbehaviour.

George W. Martin, found guilty of having committed perjury, by a jury in the December sessions of the County Court on Wednesday last, came before His Honour Judge Huycke, for sentence this morning. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood and Mr. D. O'Connell on behalf of Mr. W. A. Henderson, of Toronto, counsel for the defendant, were present. Martin was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

In passing this sentence, His Honour's remarks to the prisoner were in part:

"You have been tried on two charges of perjury. In one you were found "not guilty" and in the other you were convicted. Many representations have been made to me on behalf of you. I understand you have been very sober during the past few months, although your previous conduct was not of the best. Your crime is a serious one and I hope you realize the enormity of it. No good object is to be served in shutting you up in gaol. I am taking a very merciful view of your case and allowing you to go on suspended sentence. However, if you misbehave, you will be brought before me and sentenced on this charge. You may go."

RECORDS FAILED TO PROVE COOK REACHED THE POLE

Special to The Examiner.

Copenhagen, Dec. 21.—The University of Copenhagen as the result of the report of the committee appointed to examine Dr. Cooks' records today formally declared that the alleged records submitted by Dr. Cook for examination had failed to prove the explorer's claim that he reached the pole. The committee's report states that Cook's papers are without any value. The copies of his note books submitted contain no original calculation of observations but only results thereof.

THE POLICE AND THE INSPECTOR

The police force, having been somewhat criticised, and their efficiency questioned in certain quarters, it may be of interest to compare the police record in the matter of enforcement of the license law with that of the official whose sole duty is to see to its enforcement.

During the present calendar year up to this date, License Inspector Stewart has prosecuted nine charges under the License Law, with six convictions.

During the same period, the police force has prosecuted 41 charges, under the License Law, with 23 convictions.

Inspector B. R. Poole, V.S., Home From The West For Christmas

Dr. Bernard R. Poole, V.S., Inspector for the Dominion Veterinary Department in south eastern Saskatchewan, with headquarters at Regina, arrived in Peterborough on Saturday, and will spend Christmas at his home here. Inspector Poole speaks very highly of the west and particularly of Saskatchewan, and is delighted with the country and the people. In his position of Inspector he has to cover a large section of country, with Regina as the central point, and is thereby enabled to secure a close acquaintanceship with the conditions. He and another inspector have been appointed to safeguard the live stock of the district allotted to them against contagious diseases. Among the settlers are a large number of German Americans who Dr. Poole states are very fine people, good farmers, and apparently are promising citizens. They are highly pleased with the country and the climate, stating that the cold is not as intense as in Dakota and the adjoining states. They are an open-hearted people, liberal, and very businesslike. Dr. Poole was impressed with the geniality and goodwill that is apparent on every hand. The hospitality of the people is much more marked than in the east, and altogether Dr. Poole considers the farmers of South East Saskatchewan a credit to the country.

In speaking of the livestock he pays a special compliment to the horses of that province. Fine, big Percherons that are second to none that are produced in the east. They also possess the advantage of being thoroughly acclimatized and are well adapted to the country. The range bred horses are as fine as any he had ever seen. A striking feature of the West is the manner in which towns spring up. Eighteen months ago the town of Melville began its existence, and it now has five banks and one big hotel, besides granolithic sidewalks and everything that goes to make a progressive place. In the summer and fall the roads over the prairie are hard and level as if they were of cement and would make ideal motoring highways, stretching out over the plain as far as the eye can see, but in the Spring the mud is nearly a foot deep and possesses a peculiar adhesive qualities, sticking to one's boots worse than the mud of a town not many miles from Peterborough. Dr. Poole expects to leave for Regina again about Jan. 12.

THE PERJURY CASE HAS BEEN DISMISSED

Jury Returned Verdict of "Not Guilty" in the Case of Patrick Carroll, Charged With Having Sworn Falsely in the Police Court Before Magistrate Dumble---Jury Was Out Forty Minutes---Case Occupied the Entire Day Until 11 o'clock Last Night---The Address to the Jurymen by Counsel for the Defence and Crown Attorney.

MORE CHARACTER EVIDENCE AGAINST THE POLICE AGAIN GIVEN.

After forty minutes' deliberation, the jury in the case of Patrick J. Carroll, returned a verdict of "not guilty" last evening. The trial of Carroll who was charged with having sworn falsely in connection with a case against G. N. Graham for illicit liquor selling, lasted all day yesterday and it was nearly eleven o'clock when the jury brought in their verdict. This is the last of the cases arising out of the alleged breaches of the liquor license act on the part of the Oriental Hotel. The witnesses for the defence were heard yesterday afternoon and the addresses to the jury were made last night.

The Defence.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, manager of the C.G.E., called, stated that he remembered Friday night, November 19th. He was on his way home with Messrs. Denham and Mellroy. They dropped into the Oriental to talk to Mr. Graham. "If Johnston says that we disappeared from view, he stated a deliberate lie," Mr. Patterson said emphatically.

"Such evidence is outrageous?" Mr. Wood put in.

"We remained there only about five minutes, and did not go farther than the office," witness added.

Do you usually say that a man swears to a deliberate lie, when he disagrees with you? Mr. Wood asked.

"I do when a man is watching you and says what isn't true."

Mr. W. McIlroy stated that he was with Mr. Patterson and Mr. Denham on the night in question. They were never farther than the counter of the Oriental. He said that they shifted their position and that might have hindered Johnston's view, but they were never out of the rotunda.

Mr. W. H. Denham, also denied having been out of the rotunda of the Oriental that night. They were passing the hotel and witness remarked, "Let us go in and jolly George." They were only in there about five minutes. He characterised Mr. Johnston's statement about their disappearing into a passage way as an unqualified lie. He repeated his evidence of Saturday in regard to P. C. Newhall's veracity.

Ernest Lawrence stated that he was in the Oriental on Friday night. November 19th. He denied having anything to drink.

Chief Howard testified to having been at the Oriental on Friday, November 19th. He was there on two occasions, first at 10.45 and then again at 12.15. He saw Lawrence come in. Witness went into the lavatory which is at the rear of the office. He went alone and not with Lawrence or anyone else. He denied having stayed back of the bar for twenty-five minutes. He knew ex-Ald. Johnston. He knew he opposed his appointment. Chief Howard stated that he was in bed when ex-Ald. Johnston rang him up at that time. He repeated what he said on Saturday regarding Newhall's reputation.

Geo. N. Graham was next called. The accused, he said, was a man of the very best veracity. He stated that the transom over the bar was closed by him on the night in question. It was closed every night by him. He got some drinks that night for his family. Carroll mixed them. Witness also got some to drink himself. There were three ways to get upstairs.

To Mr. O'Connell he said that change was made in the bar that night for the office. The bell boys always collected empty glasses from the rooms after 11 o'clock and might have come downstairs with them.

"Why don't they get them earlier?" Crown Attorney asked.

"You would think I had a lot of nerve if I told a guest to hustle up and get the drink down. so I could have the glass," he answered.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth, manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., called, stated that the Oriental was lighted by the above company. The bar light could not get dimmer. It could only be turned right out.

Harry Stinson, bartender at the Oriental, stated that the transom was shut that night, because he opened it next morning. Two samples of beer taps were produced, and the kind in use at the Oriental was identified.

More Character Evidence.

Inspector Stewart was called. He bore testimony to the good character of the accused, and that from his own personal opinion he wouldn't believe P. C. Newhall on oath.

When the pickpockets were first arrested, witness said that P. C. Meharry came to his place and said that he could not get along with Newhall. Meharry said that Newhall wanted him to swear to a whole book of notes that he knew nothing about.

His Honour would not permit the inspector to tell anything farther of that nature.

Mesrs. J. H. Burnham, Al. Haskill, R. Sheehy, Ernest Bartlett and Jas. Kennedy repeated their evidence of

NEWSPAPERS FOR CANDY STORES

When Coleman Bros., the local candy men, started to advertise in The Examiner only a few years ago, the largest space they could afford was a two-inch advertisement.

They had a small stock, not much money, but both brothers had pluck, energy and ability.

They kept that two-inch advertisement running as steadily as the ticking of a clock.

And, above all, they had the good sense to reiterate: "Good, pure candy and cakes at a reasonable price per pound."

The business grew rapidly. The advertising space increased slowly, but steadily. They never splurged or used sensational advertising.

It was a constant reiteration of qualities and price backed up with the goods. People who read Coleman's advertising believed them, and, believing, bought.

And their business still grows.

The point about this story is that there a dozen or two merchants in Peterborough who can commence advertising as the Colemans did and make a success of it, if they will also do as the Colemans did—back it up with the goods.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY WILL MAKE AN APPEAL FOR ASSISTANCE THROUGH CHURCHES

On Sunday, January 2nd, a Special Collection Will be Taken Up in the City Churches in Aid of the Society and a Hearty Response is Urged---Funds are Badly Needed Just Now and There Have Been Extra Expenses Owing to the Recent Outbreak of Scarlet Fever.

With the consent and active sympathy of the Ministerial Association a special offertory will be collected in all the Protestant churches of the city on Sunday, January 2nd, for the benefit of the funds of the Children's Aid Society. This is to be regarded as a simple, comprehensive, and effective means of appealig to the support of the public of the most commendable organized charity in existence today. The appeal, made through the medium of the churches, should be especially heeded. No special appeal has been made to the public in the past three years, and the increasing needs of the society make the present appeal necessary. At the Children's Shelter there are at present ten inmates. That has been the average number for about a year past, and the recent epidemic of scarlet fever has thrown an unusual burden upon the resources at the disposal of the management.

The public are requested to keep in mind the appeal to be made to them through the churches on January 2nd.

Appeal is also to be made to the ministers of all the country churches to permit a collection to be made at the same time.

In apportioning the expenditure of private means for the holiday season every one is urged to remember that in them is included a donation to the Children's Aid Society.

REV. FATHER TONER ORDAINED TO THE PRIESTHOOD

Impressive and Interesting Ceremony Took Place at St. Peter's Cathedral This Morning.

LARGE CONGREGATION

A most impressive and interesting ceremony took place at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning when Rev. Father Toner, of Aghameen, Parish of Lordship, County Louth, Ireland, was ordained into the priesthood by His Lordship Right Reverend Bishop O'Connor. The church was filled to overflowing and the spirit of the occasion was entered into by the very large congregation as they followed the solemn proceedings of the ceremony. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor was assisted by Rev. Father McColl and Rev. Father P. J. Kelly, while Rev. M. J O'Brien, D.D, of the Church of the Sacred Heart, was master of ceremonies In addition there were other members of the clergy of the district including Rev. Father V. G. McFadden, and Rev. Father W. P. Meagher, curates of St Peter's Cathedral. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Lindsmore, Rev Father Scanlan, of Grafton and Rev. Father Quinn, of Tweed.

After the ceremony of ordination took place at 8 o'clock His Lordship exhorted the congregation to pray for the success of the young priest, and then asked the faithful to come forward and receive Rev. Father Toner's first blessing. It is usually the custom for a newly ordained priest to give his first blessing to his father and mother, but Rev. Father Toner's parents are in Aghameen, Ireland. His first blessing was given to Rev. Dr. O'Brien, rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Immediately after the ceremony, however, Rev. Father Toner sent a cablegram to his parents in Ireland, telling them of his ordination.

Rev. Father Toner received his early education in the National School in Aghameen, Ireland, and pursued his classical studies in Buffalo, N. Y. Coming to Canada his philosophical and theological training was completed in Montreal, and he received his orders as far as deaconship in Quebec.

Rev. Father Toner will celebrate his first mass in St. Peter's Cathedral tomorrow morning, and his first solemn High Mass in St. Peter's on Sunday morning next.

It is probable that the young priest will be attached to the staff of St. Peter's Cathedral, and if so he will undoubtedly be most popular in the diocese.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Mr. Chamberlain, General Manager, Tells of the Progress of Construction.

E. J. Chamberlain, general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, made a statement regarding the general situation of construction work and the completion of the Yorkton branch Rails are now being laid between Melville and Regina, and it is anticipated that at the present rate of progress Regina will be reached in the early fall of 1910. Less difficulties are being met with than on the Edmonton line to the coast. The road is completed for 126 miles beyond Edmonton and 336 miles has been graded and under contract from the coast terminal inland, and it is expected that trains will be in operation within three years. In a year's time travellers will be able to travel from Regina to Winnipeg by three routes and make practically the same time over each.

The Hon. Seaborn Wright of Georgia will address the Mass Meeting to-morrow night in the Grand Opera House at 8 o'clock. The Grand Opera House Orchestra will supply the Musical Programme. Everybody invited. ad

DOES NOT WISH INTERFERENCE IN CASES THAT COME BEFORE HIM

His Honour Judge Huycke's Remarks in Open Court Yesterday---Has Received Many Times, Letters Regarding Cases---Such a Course on Part of People is Very Improper.

At the opening of the court yesterday morning, His Honour Judge Huycke made some remarks, which are given below in full, in reference to being approached both personally and by letter in regard to different cases. He deemed such a course on the part of the people who followed it, as highly improper.

His remarks were as follows:

"There is one matter, after some consideration, I have decided to refer to, and it is not with reference particularly to what has been taking place during the past week, or it is not particularly referable to any one case, or any one person; but I wish to make a statement publicly in open Court. During the term of my residence in Peterborough, some four months or more, not once, but many times, comparatively a good number of times, I have been approached, either personally or by letter, by not one person, but different persons, regarding not one case, but different cases. I have answered none of them and ignored them all. I simply wish to state here in open Court, that in my opinion such a course is highly improper, whether the people who do it are well meaning or ill meaning, or, as in my judgment, mostly, people with no meaning at all. I consider it highly improper, and some Judges have said it is an unwarranted impertinence. I wish to have it publicly known I do not wish such interference. If such takes place, as it has taken place, I desire to say it does not influence my attitude. If it would influence me at all, it would rather influence me against the people who made these efforts, with reference either to prisoners, litigants, or witnesses. Therefore, I do not want anything of this kind to occur from any person or persons, or any body of persons in the future. That, however, does not apply with respect to people who have been already convicted. As to them I am always glad to have any representations or information regarding the antecedents, character or circumstances of the persons convicted."

More Gifts Are Needed For The Shelter Christmas Tree

There are only a few days left until Christmas, and so far the gifts received for the ten children in the Children's Aid Society Shelter are not as abundant as they should be under the circumstances. The Examiner has to acknowledge the receipt of several more parcels for the children, and also one dollar from "A Friend," to be devoted towards making Christmas happy for these little waifs. There is, however, room for many more such offerings, and the Examiner once more appeals to the generosity of Peterborough citizens to do what they can to make this laudable effort a success. Parcels sent to the Examiner or Review offices addressed "For the children at the Shelter" will be carefully looked after, and forwarded to their destination, while, if citizens desire to make cash contributions they may do so by sending the money to any of the officers of the Society, or to the newspaper offices. Remember these little people are looking forward to the joys of Christmas Day just the same as your little ones are doing. You can imagine the disappointment in your household if Santa Claus failed to make his appearance at the scheduled moment. See that he has an opportunity to call at the Shelter.

A New Concrete Dam Has Been Built On Horse Lake

The Department of Railways and Canals has just completed a splendid new concrete dam on Horseshoe Lake, in the County of Victoria. This new dam will prove to be of substantial benefit in conserving the waters on the Gull River, for reservoir purposes. Horseshoe Lake is a fine large body of water and is situated in the Township of Minden. The lake has an area of 778 acres and a nine foot head will be maintained at this dam, so that it is evident that the completion of the new dam will substantially enhance the reservoir value of the Gull River waters.

The building of the new dam at Horseshoe Lake was a piece of ork of no mean proportion. It has four 20-foot weirs, and the structure being of concrete, necessitated the hauling of concrete for some distance from the nearest railway station. Mr. Alex. Richardson was the foreman on this work, which was supervised by Overseer Mr. Clegg.

Lamented Death Of Mr. Harry Neil Yesterday Afternoon

The news of the death of Mr. Harry Neil, which occurred yesterday afternoon about four o'clock at his late residence, 333 Burnham St., came as a great shock to a host of friends and was received with the profoundest regret. While Mr. Neil had been in poor health since the summer, it is only a week and a half ago that he was taken to bed, but he sank rpidly until the end came as stated above. HHis death was due to cancer of the stomach and all tht the best medical skill could do was unavailing. The deceased was forty-eight years of age and had been a resident of Peterborough all his life. The late Mr. Neil was up to the time of his death, President and Manager of the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Company. He was a man highly respected and esteemed by all who knew him and his death is a distinct loss to the community. He took a keen interest in clean, manly sport and was prominently identified with athletic organizations, having at one time been president and playing member of the old Peterborough Lacrosse Club. He was also president for some years of the Baseball Club and occupied a similar position with the Gun Club. He was a member of St. Luke's Anglican church and did much for its welfare and progress. He was also a member of Peterborough Lodge, A.F. and A.M., and of the Sons of England, and of the Woodmen of the World.

He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife, one son, Percy, and one daughter, Miss Alice Neil. Mrs. J. M. Geranel, of this city, is a step-daughter.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon. A private service for the family will be held at the late residence, 333 Burnham St., at 2 o'clock, followed by a service in St. Luke's cemetery at half past two. Interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery.

"Collegiate Echoes" Is A Credit To Its Staff

The Christmas number of "Collegiate Echoes," the official organ of the Philomathean Society of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, is just out, and has been warmly received by the subscribers. It is a bright, newsy, well-written little publication with its different departments well looked after, and of interest not only to the student body, but to citizens generally. As might be expected from the splendid showing of the Collegiate Rugby team, considerable space is devoted to athletics, and this department is bright and interesting. Marjorie Mann contributes an essay on "Some Canadian Authors" that is well worth reading, and Frankie Smith has a clever Christmas story—"Mida's Salvation." The edition is a credit to the editor-in-chief, Miss Edith Connor, and to the other members of the staff.

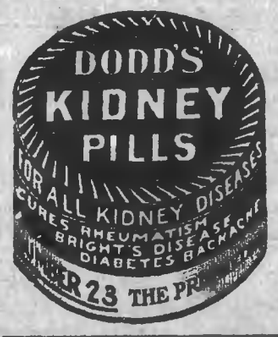
A DIFFERENCE.

Our good neighbours to the south of us are fond of boasting loudly of the superior freedom existing under what they consider the model democracy of the world. But in practice there is more real freedom, more real privilege under British and Canadian conditions. Neither in the United States Congress nor the Senate is there a single elected representative of labour, while in the British parliament there are several, as well as in the Canadian Parliament, and in the provincial legislatures. Speaking of liberty and freedom under any government, the situation is expressed in the homely proverb, "the proof of the pudding is in the eating."

RONDEAU PARK.

There is a miniature rebellion in Kent County over the proposal of the Ontario Government to turn over Rondeau Park to the lumberman. The decision to cut the matured timber which has reached the stage of deterioration, if not utilized, is in accordance with one of the true principles of forestry. But it is objected by the residents of the vicinity that too many trees have been marked for cutting, trees not yet at their prime, and capable of improvement by growth. It is very important that the greatest care should be exercised. Rondeau Park is one of the smallest of the Provincial forest reserves and a veritable beauty spot. It is otherwise peculiar in its character. It is, unlike the other reserves, in the midst of a fertile, highly-cultivated, and improved country. It was set apart by the Liberal Government, under Hon. A. S. Hardy, in 1894; the portion at the head of the harbour has became a popular summer resort and the site of many summer cottages. It is not unnatural that local interest should be aroused over the possible consequences of the advent of the lumberman. This class has, in the past been responsible for terrible waste of our forest wealth, by careless and indiscriminate cutting, and by providing conditions that invite forest fires, whose destruction has even been greater than that represented by the reckless removal of timber in lumbering operations. If the Government adheres to its intention to permit lumbering operations in Rondeau Park, these operations should be surrounded with the most rigid restrictions, having in view the preservation of the beauty and permanence of the timber growth of the park. While it may be proper to remove ripe trees, there is a right way and a wrong way of going about it. Conditions in regard to felling should be imposed in order to produce the minimum of injury to thrifty standing timber, and in regard to the disposal or removal of resulting rubbish, limbs, twigs, etc., so as to prevent it becoming an element in the production and spread of forest fires. It would also be in line with good forestry to provide that for every standing tree removed there should be planted from one to a dozen young trees in parts of the park where this is possible. By some such procedure to the growth of the park can be made everlasting. The interest shown by the people of Kent County is encouraging. It will tend to arouse the people generally from their apathetic attitude towards the general question of the value of forests in our agricultural, industrial, and climatic economy, and give countenance to the awakening interest of our people and governments in the grand question of conservation of our national natural resources of all kinds.



STILL THEY COME.

The rush of farmers from the United States to the Canadian West continues in unabated, and even increasing volume. During the first ten months of the present calendar year, ten thousand homestead entries were made in western Canada by United States citizens. One feature of this inflow is worth noting. At first the United States exodus was chiefly from the middle western States. This year the newcomers represent every state of the union. The chief supply, however, came from the following states: North Dakota, 3,464; Minnesota, 1,741; South Dakota, 522; Michigan, 514; Washington, 510; Wisconsin, 477; Iowa, 430; Illinois, 296; Montana, 184; Indiana, 152; Missouri, 151; New York, 150; Oregon, 150; Idaho, 144; Kansas, 401; Nebraska, 134. This means that ten thousand 160-acre farms will come under tillage—an addition to the crop-producing area of a million and a half acres. If this is devoted to wheat growing it means at 20 bushels per acre an addition of 33 millions to the wheat production of the West. When it is remembered that there are at least 150 million acres in the Canadian West still unoccupied and untilled, one can see dimly the tremendous wheat growing capabilities of Canada and how speedily at the present rate of progress it will come to occupy a foremost position among the great wheat growing countries of the world.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

In another column of this issue is printed an appeal to public generosity towards the Children's Aid Society. Through the Ministerial Association's thoughtfulness, the offertory in the Protestant churches of the city on Sunday, January 2nd, will be added to the funds of the society. It is hoped that it will be liberal. It can hardly be applied to a more worthy cause. It will be in keeping with the spirit of the season, the season when the Son of Man came to earth as a child, and made children the objects of his especial attention. It is felt by some that the date fixed for the offertory is an unfortunate one in the regard that the people generally will have exhausted their available means in holiday-giving and entertainment. But the public being forwarned that their offerings for the society will be solicited, will, no doubt, reserve something generous for that occasion. No gift could be more acceptable to the Friend of little children, no gift can be more worthily bestowed, having regard to the merits of the cause, the rescue of tender children from the environment of vice in degraded homes, from an otherwise certain growth into vicious citizenship, and from physical suffering, hunger, beating, neglect and unnamed misery. Such rescue is the grand function of the society, and appeal in its interests will not be made in vain. We can all be divine ministers in helping on the truly divine work of the Children's Aid Society. He that saveth a soul from death shall hide a multitude of sins.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Cook's claim to the Pole, the Globe thinks, is beginning to resemble a mining title under the Whitney administration.

The cotton mills in New England have, many of them, been closed and one thousand are thrown out of employment. The highest protection tariff in the world doesn't seem to always protect the workingman and assure his employment. Owners easily avoid running their mills at a loss—the loss falls on the employees.

In Michigan a practical joker telephoned a man that his wife had died suddenly, the man quit his work and, hatless and coatless, ran half a mile through the cold to his home to find that he had been made the victim of a cruel hoax, his wife being in good health. The victim now lies at the point of death from a congestive chill caught by his exposure. The law may not provide adequate punishment for a man who would perpetuate a deception. Hanging would be too good for him were it not that lack of sense suggests his confinement in an idiot asylum.

UNCLE WALT---THE POET PHILOSOPHER

Ere he sailed away from home Willie Watson wrote a pome. Warbled he, with punctured lung, something of a serpent's tongue, which, he said, a high-placed dame, used to injure and defame.

WILLI WATSON

People cried: "O, hully gee! Who's the dame of high degree? Give her name and station, pray!" Willie Watson sailed away. 'Twas the scandal of the age; guessing contests were the rage; people wondered who the bard smote, with fountain pen, so hard; and the papers pawed the air, speculating in despair: "'Twixt whose jawbones is it hung — that outrageous serpent's tongue? Tell, O tell the truth to-day!" Willie Watson sailed away. Then the poet reached this shore, where our native bardlets roar, and he stepped on Freedom's ground, and reporters rallied 'round, asking: "Who's the dame or maid, that our little Willie flayed?" To the crowd the name he flung, of the girl with serpent's tongue. O the brethren of the press see the depths of sordidness, know what malice can achieve, see the webs that hate can weave; and they size up maids and lads, noblemen and kings and cads; and they sing this simple lay: "Willie Watson, sail away!"

KILLED IN A FIRE

Blaze in Metropole Hotel, Winnipeg, Early To-day Resulted in a Fatality.

Special to The Examiner.

Winnipeg, Dec. 21.—As a result of a fire this morning in the Metropole Hotel, St. John, Alcock, a local clerk in the freight department of the C. P. WHEEZER OR SNEEZER?

Have You Heard of Hyomei for Catarrh, Asthma and Hay Fever.

If you wheeze or sneeze, hawk or spit, snuffle or blow, something is the matter with the membrane of your respiratory tract, and you need Hyomei.

And you need Hyomei because it will cure you of any catarrhal or inflammatory condition that exists.

It isn't a stomach medicine, or spray, or douche, but a very pleasant, healing antiseptic balsam, from the eucalyptus forests of Australia. You breathe this balsamic air through a small, hard rubber inhaler, and it reaches every nook, corner and crevice of the membrane, and promptly kills the catarrh germs.

Wm. Madill will sell you a complete Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) outfit for $1.00, on the money back plan.

"I have been a victim of catarrh for many months, the glands around my eyes and nose being sore and swollen. My head felt dead and stuffy. Pains in the front and back of my head, also across my eyes were frequent and I had trouble in breathing, especially at night when trying to rest. I had doctored but got no relief until after using Hyomei. This relieved me in the first twenty-four hours and in less than two weeks I was practically cured. I cannot give too much praise to Hyomei." Mrs. Mary Philips, 153 McNab St., Hamilton, Ont.

"THE ARRIVAL OF KITTY"

It is refreshing to note that a good, clean, wholesome American comedy, absolutely free from that French "nastiness," which has characterized so many late comedy productions, can succeed. The public has grown heartily sick and tired of this nauseating French adaptions, which have been forced upon the theatregoing public for a number of years, and they turn with pleasurable relief to a play that is genuinely funny, absolutely free from suggestive lines or action, and which has the faculty of thoroughly entertaining and amusing an audience. Such a play is the three-act comedy, "The Arrival of Kitty," which the Magill Company will present at the Grand Opera House on Christmas Day, matinee and evening. Everywhere this delightful comedy has been seen this season both press and public have gone into ecstacies over it, and not once has it received an adverse criticism from either newspaper critics or spectator. The management takes pleasure in boasting of such an accomplishment for there are few plays, no matter how good, but what can find something to pick a flaw in. "The Arrival of Kitty" has escaped all this, however, and there is not a moment in the entire performance when the audience is not laughing at the good-natured comedy which permeates the entire production. The laughter starts a few moments after the rise of the curtain and it continues steadily during the three acts. Norman Lee Swartout is the author of this latest success and he is to be congratulated upon having given to the stage a play that is bright, clean, and well worth witnessing a number of times. Every manager, wherever "The Arrival of Kitty" has been played this season, has asked for an early return date, and this fact speaks volumes. The comedy has been finely produced and will be presented here by a splendid company of comedians. To add to the interest in the comedy and to allow audiences a few moments of rest from incessant laughter, several excellent specialties are introduced at intervals during the three acts.

Very Effective for Kidney, Bladder and Rheumatic Sufferers

The function of the kidneys is to filter and strain the impurities from the blood. Pains in the urinary region and the small of the back indicate that the kidneys are sick and need treatment. Neglecting such symptoms, brings rheumatism, diabetes, dropsy and heart trouble. while a simple home treatment will restore and keep the kidneys in fine working order. Being a mild, balmy healing tonic, old and young can use with perfect safety. One-half ounce fluid extract Buchu; compound fluid Balmwort, one ounce; compound syrup Sarsaparilla, two ounces; mix in a bottle. Take a teaspoonful before each meal. At night take another dose, drinking plenty of water. A local druggist says he fills it frequently for the best physicians.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

Are you a snob?

I do not think there is any failing which everyone pretends to hate so much and which at the same time is so near universal as snobbishness.

I fully believe that at least ninety-nine out of every one hundred people have at least a few drops of snobbish blood in their veins.

Of course almost everyone who reads this is either going to quarrel with that proportion or else elect himself by a vote of one to the position of the one out of the one hundred.

But before YOU—that is the particular individual who is reading these words at just this moment—do either of those things let me ask you a few questions.

I am going to take it for granted that you have some friends who are wealthier and more "in the swim" than you—most of us do.

I am also going to take it for granted that you also have some friend who is very much poorer than you—most of us do.

Well, suppose some day that this poor friend, in a ratty hat and ill-hung skirt and scanty coat of the style of five years ago, chances to meet you and walk down the street with you. And suppose you meet your wealthy friends.

Are you absolutely sure that you won't feel the least weest bit disturbed to have them see you with the dilapitated person? Are you sure that next time you see them you will not casually explain that she is an unfortunate woman, who in her better days—accent on the better days—used to live on the next street to you?

Then, again, maybe you are driving or motoring down the avenue with these same desirable friends and you pass some business associate or college mate of yours. Are you absolutely sure that as you bow to him you won't feel a little thrill of pride or pleasure to have them see you in such good company?

And if you say "NO" to any of these questions or to any others which you can probably put to yourself, do you not thereby convict yourself of some measure of snobbishness?

Myself, I hate snobbishness with all my heart and yet I am continually convicting myself of feeling it not showing it.

We are apt to think of this failing as connected with wealth. But it isn't necessarily. Rich people are no more apt to be snobbish than poor people—maybe because they are more sure of their position and therefore do not need to be continually trying to impress it upon others.

In a sermon on "American Snobs" the Rev. Herbert Johnson, a well-known preacher and social worker, recently said:

"American snobs are not limited to that class who seek French counts for their titles. They exist just as much in the tenement houses. The family on the first floor doesn't care to know the family on the third floor. Those on the third floor don't wish to have much to do with those on the sixth floor, while those on the sixth floor don't know anything about those on the tenth."

And of course that indictment is just as true of the middle as of the poorer class. We all complain of the wealthy man who looks down upon us, and yet most of us acknowledge his right to do so by feeling an instinctive superiority to those who are poorer than we.

What are we going to do about such a state of affairs?

I don't know.

But I hope that we are going to be thoroughly and healthily ashamed of ourselves every time we realize that we have felt or shown an attitude that if shown by anyone else to that we have felt or shown an attitude towards ourselves we would call snobbishness.

Ruth Cameron

Report Of The Committee Upon Bridge To Be Built

Following is the special report of the committee appointed to have the Squaw River bridge rebuilt.

To the Members of the County Council—

Gentlemen,—Your committee, as reported on a former occasion, pursuant to a clause in report of the Roads and Bridges committee at a former session, visited the bridge and decided to proceed with the building of the same under the supervision of the Reeve of Harvey.

Recently the Reeve notified your committee that the work was about complete, and the chairman of the Roads and Bridges together with the other members of the committee again visited the bridge for the purpose of being prepared to bring in a report at this session, and also to report on some other bridges which the Reeve of Harvey thought were in bad condition.

With reference to Squaw River bridge recently built you will remember, it was built formerly over a part of the river where the stream was about 150 feet wide and two low for lumbermen's purposes. At present the public traffic is provided for with a structure that inside of abutments is something less than 60 feet long. The abutments are stone encased with heavy cedars and the bridge is built of sound, strong cedar, with abutments sufficiently raised to amply provide for lumbermen's purposes.

Although being a wooden structure, the timber being heavy and foundations built solid, the County will be at little or no expense for some years to come in so far as the above bridge is concerned. It appears to your committee that the work has been done at a cost consistent with the work and is a credit to the builders.

With reference to other bridges our attention was especially drawn to what is known as Nogey's Creek Bridge, 130 feet long, built of wood, with stone approaches. It appears to us that the length of the bridge, considering the material it has been built of, is at present not suitable or adequate to meet the requirements on such a much travelled road. It is our opinion that to undertake to repair the present bridge would mean considerable outlay only to be temporary, and not economical, from the fact that repairs would take place too often. We would recommend that in the near future cement abutments be built, and a span of 60 or 70 feet of steel be placed on them, so that the construction would be then, of a material that would permit of the shortening of the bridge and adding to the approaches, thereby doing away with repeated repairing, eventually saving money and insuring safe public traffic.

J. A. Fife, chairman committee; R. N. Scott, Warden; Michael Perdue, Reeve, Ennismore; Robert Shaw, Reeve, Harvey.

Considering Names Registered On The Voters' Lists To-day

This morning at eleven o'clock the names on the voters' list both by the Moral Reform League for Local Option and in the liquor interests, were brought before His Honour Judge Hayche, at the Court House.

Mr. E. L. Goodwill was present for the Moral Reform League and Mr. G. N. Gordon represented the liquor men Over four hundred names were up for consideration, but after a consultation between the lawyers for the respective parties, over one hundred names were mutually agreed upon and this left about three hundred that were disputed and had to be decided upon by His Honour.

THE VA LUE OF EXAMINER ADS.

Here is another little incident that shows the value of The Examiner's want ad column.

On Sunday a Lakefield lady who was visiting in the city lost on the street a silk bag containing a pair of spectacles and other articles which were needed by her. She advertised her loss in last evening's Examiner and her wisdom was demonstrated by the fact that this morning her property was returned to the Examiner office this morning. A purse likewise that was advertised as lost was returned at 6.30 p.m. to the office within two hours of the issue of the edition.

IC E STILL MINUS QUANTITY

There is still no skating at the B rock St. Rink and the very many young people who have been anxiously waiting for the announcement of the opening will have to be patient for a day or two until a cooler brand of weather prevails. The water poured on the floor several days ago has not yet frozen and until the moisture congeals there will be no possibility of putting any more water on. Caretaker Jack Thirnbeck is using every effort to get a sheet of ice for the hockeyists, as with the opening of the season only a couple of weeks ag a the situation is getting serious. Had it not been for the fact that a week of good ice making weather was sacrificed for the sake of the Longboat-Sherring race there would have been good skating at the present moment.

THE WEALTH OF THE WORLD FROM OIL. YOU CAN CLEAR 20 P.C. BEFORE JANUARY 1st. OIL RUSH TO SOUTHERN ALBERTA IS GREATER THAN YUKON.

This Is An Opportunity for Men with Small Capital

At no time in the history of Canada was her natural resources more in the public's eye than to-day. The great coal fields of the Crows Nest Pass country in Southern Alberta, were quite recently explored and opened up and absorbed by gigantic corporations, which organizations have, through the profitable production of fuel, created and paid wonderful dividends, and through the enormous earnings made the shares of the various companies worth from four to five hundred times par.

We are to experience a similar condition of affairs in the development of the great oil fields in Southern Alberta. Men who invest a few dollars now will be practically buying in on the ground floor. It will be possible for them to experience profits as great as those of any coal company or oil company in Canada or the United States.

We feel that there are many persons reading this announcement to-night, who have a few dollars which they would like to invest in a proposition which embraces the maximum security and at the same time is endowed with a most promising future. It is to these persons we wish to talk to in this advertisement, and through the columns of this paper, place before them the merits of the property controlled by THE CHICAGO ALBERTA OIL FIELDS CO., LIMITED.

This Company is an all-Canadian corporation, operating under a charter issued by the Government of the Province of Alberta, Canada. The Company owns and controls a complete two-rig drilling outfit, one of the finest ever imported into Canada. This gigantic plant cost over 20,000 dollars. While the property itself is 9 square miles in area (5,760 acres,) perhaps the largest body of oil land ever owned and controlled by any one corporation. If you were to go with us to-morrow to the property, you would find that seeping from the surface, crude oil of the very finest quality. The eminent oil expert, John W. Warren, who visited the property in his comprehensive report sets forth an unconditional endorsement of the quality of the oil in our property, which in itself should place beyond the shadow of a doubt in the mind of even the most skeptic individual, the fact that there is oil in great quantities and of the very finest quality in our property.

The Rocky Mountain Development Co. have a developed property quite close to our land, and on the same a 60-barrel a day well; those who have visited our property tell us that it is even a better proposition.

We have several of the most reliable oil men in the country at work on the property, erecting our plant, and in a few days time, we expect to receive word by wire that the same is in operation. It is then that you may expect great activity in the shares of this Company.

It may be too late for you to apply for shares at 25 cents after Dec. 24th. You should not expect to even buy shares at 35 cents, after the 15th of January, because an ultimati'm has been issued by the Company to the effect that not a single share shall be sold at 25 cents after Dec. 24th, and that the price shall be immediately advanced to 30 or 35 cents. and continue to advance as the developments in the Company warrant.

Bear in mind that our Company is not a new corporation, bought east from the prairies for the initial flotation. This Corporation has been developing its property for the past year, and has in the neighbourhood of 800 shareholders, resident in the western provinces.

Men who know Southern Alberta and in particular the oil lands close to Pincher Creek, do not hesitate to buy into our proposition at 25cents a share, said shares having a par value of one dollar each, and being non-assessable.

We are prepared to receive applications between now and Friday night, Dec. 24th, for 25.000 shares, in blocks of 100 shares at 25 cents each. If all cash is remitted, a certificate will be issued at once; the shares however may be purchased on terms, as follcws: 10 cents per share with application, the remainder payable 5 cents per share, per month.

Now, do not wait until the last moment, or spend time in unnecessary correspondence; wire at our expense your reservation of shares and remit by first mail. Buy a block big enough to make it worth your while, when the shares are worth par—in about 90 days time.

Several shrewd, far-seeing business men in Toronto have bought double the amount of shares which they intend to retain. They intend to sell half of their holdings, when the stock is worth and selling at 50 cents a share, about 30 days hence. This will give them one-half of their present holdings, absolutely free of cost. Why not do the same, the stock will be more active and in greater demand at 50 cents, than it is to-day at 25c, and there is no reason why you should not participate in the profit.

Remember that $10 cash is the first payment on 100 shares, the remainder is payable $5 per month for three months; on receipt of last payment certificate will be issued immediately.

We want to point with particular emphasis to the fact, that while the roads are being built through the property for the machinery to be hauled in, a 10 ft. seam of the richest Bituminous coal was uncovered, which coal runs the full length of the property. This, in itself is an enormous asset to the shareholders. This holding will not be developed until the oil wells are completed.

We see no reason why this Company should not be paying enormous dividents inside of a year; from inside information we have every reason to believe the stock will be worth and be selling for 75 and 80 cents per share inside of 90 days time, since in about that time the drills will be down near the oil level, and in consequence thereof, there will be much excitement and considerable activity on the part of those who have not purchased shares to-day at 25 cts., but who, judging from the favourable reports from day to day as the work progresses, will see the necessity of buying in at even the advauced price before the drills actually tap the oil pools, and great subterranean lakes of petroleum which underlie our property.

In conclusion we say wire to-day your reservation for at least 100 shares, the smallest block of stock sold. If the block of 25,000 shares be all sold out, before receiving your application, you will be advised immediately of the fact and your money refunded. Bear in mind that after Dec. 24th, the price of shares will be advanced to 30 or 35 cents per share, so that those who buy in to-day at 25 cents will actually make 20% on their money before the 1st. of the year.

Address all your enquiries and make your money payable to

SHOT AN ANGRY BULL

What might in one sense be termed cruelty to animals, although it was entirely unavoidable, was the killing of a bull near Burleigh a few days ago. It had been sold to a man whose every attempt to capture it was unsuccessful. The bull from continued liberty in the adjoining field and woods had grown wild and would run at the sight of a man. It was then decided to shoot it and a rifle was brought out. The ammunition consisted of six bullets, but it was not thought that half of these would be needed. However, the bullets all went wild. None of the men, and there were three of them, was successful. One bullet alone struck the animal and then only a shallow furrow was grazed across its nose. They had been aiming for a vital spot, but they did not possess the Bisley qualities needed to turn the trick.

It was then suggested to bring out a shot gun and according to the story as told by the man who bought the bull the small shot was as effective as so much confetti. On several occasions the gun was fired from a distance of a few yards and it was not until a dozen shots were sent home that the animal was reduced to a condition that it bled. The gun was once discharged a few feet from its head through a fence and bowled it over as if dead. The owner ran to get a knife but when he returned the bull had struggled to his feet and although soggy and nearly done he retired down the field only to be finally overcome. There are numerous instances of cattle necessitating this method of treatment.

LAST OF PERJURY CHARGES DISMISSED

Saturday in reference to the characters of P. C. Newhall and P. C. Meharry

Victor Fowler called, stated that he did not have a drink with Lawrence in the hotel on Friday, November 19th

Mr. C. G. Graham, manager of the Oriental, swore that there were no beer taps such as described by P. C. Newhall.

Messrs. Frank Conroy, F. Connor and J. Boyce said that on Saturday night they were observing the Oriental. They saw the shadow on the frosted glass but could not tell who the person was. They knew accused to be honest and truthful.

Mr. Bogue said that he would not believe Newhall on oath. He did not know anything of ex-Ald. Johnston's reputation.

Messrs. Thos. Barrie, A. Hall, Jas. Lynch and Jas. Storey called stated that they would certainly believe the accused on oath. They had had ample ways of finding out his honesty and truthfulness.

Mr. Jas. Blackwell, architect, produced a plan, showing a drawing of the windows of the bar. A box the same as Newhall described was also brought into court. It was shown that it could not stand unsupported. It would'nt stand on its eye on the step as was stated.

Patrick Carroll, called, stated that he was a bartender at the Oriental. He denies as he did in the police court having served drinks to the bell boy on Friday night, November 19th. He described the taps as working like an ordinary tap. The bartenders always have to remain and clean up after eleven o'clock. The bell boy came for ice water once. He put a pitcher and a glass on a tray. Mr. Graham always pays for his drinks when he gets them. He did not see Chief Howard or Ernie Lawrence there.

A Demonstration.

The court adjourned at half past five until 8 o'clock. All the witnesses for the defence had been heard and at the request of Mr. O'Connell, the jury went down to the Oriental, and a box as described by P. C.'s Newhall and Meharry was placed against the bar and the two officers demonstrated three times how they climbed on the box and looked through the transom. An immense crowd gathered around to watch the officers.

Mr. O'Connell's Address.

In addressing the jury, the learned counsel for the defence said the perjury charge before them arose out of a prosecution against G. N. Graham, when the accused swore he did not serve drinks out to a bell boy. That was the statement the accused was alleged to have sworn to, falsely. The defendant was a man with an unblemished reputation and was never before a court before. He was the person who it is said, committed perjury. Perjury was so serious a thing that the law insisted upon the evidence being corrobated. It was a crime when the one who committed it knew the statement he swore to was false.

"In the first place you must satisfy your minds that he made a false statement and secondly that he knew it to be untrue. It is a charge that is hard to defend. If people come into a court and take a foundation of the fact upbuilded by a fabric of fancy, and give it to the court with an appearance of truth, an innocent person has great difficulty sometimes in proving himself guiltless.

Mr. O'Connell drew attention to the inconsistency in the story in this case. "Is it not highly improbable that a man in the broad bright light of the bar with the blind up would serve out drinks several times in the manner described? It is unnecessary to say that it is most absurd. At the hour of night mentioned when they said they could see everything going on, they were not satisfied, but they brought a big cumbersome box, and putting it up against the door they got up on it and looked through the transom. It was nonsense to think that this man could go on with his illicit work without hearing these men mounting the box. They could not have gotten up there without making some noise. He referred to the fact mentioned by Meharry that the lights went down in the bar, but the manager of the Light and Power Co. stated that such an occurrence could not take place.

Speaking of ex-Ald. Johnston's testimony Mr. O'Connell said there was no more honourable position for any man than to give his energies in the enforcement of the law, but he said men rejected that class of men that went prying about to hurt their neighbour's reputation. This man Johnston went there with these policemen with hatred and malice in his heart against Fire Chief Howard.

Never in a court of justice was there a more despicable state of affairs heard than revealed by this man. Mr. O'Connell spoke of the honest and upright character of the accused.

Mr. Johnston's statement that three prominent men went into the rotunda and disappeared in a rear passage was described as a deliberate lie. It was a dangerous thing sometimes to depend on policemen's evidence. Prominent citizens stated that these policemen who gave evidence were not to be believed on oath. Lawrence who was the star witness for the crown the other day, came in this case and swore that the police, with whom he was allied on Saturday, lied when they said he received a drink on Friday, November 19th. Chief Howard denied having anything to drink.

Crown Attorney's Address.

In addressing the jury the Crown Attorney asked them to leave aside every feeling of sympathy, regret or vindictiveness. It was the cold, bare facts that must be considered. This offence of perjury like many others, required corroboration, but once the story was corroborated, the jury's duty was clear. In regard to ex-Ald. Johnston's evidence, he stated that there was nothing but the kindliest feeling between Johnston and the Fire Chief. Mr. Johnston was a man who had served the city well and in whom much confidence was placed. He was not after the prisoner but Chief Howard. His manner in the witness box was not one of malice against the accused. He asked the jury to remember that his evidence had not been refuted.

Crown Attorney Wood said that it was very distressing that the attacks uopn the policemen were made. However, if they were based on facts, something must be done."

His Honour's Charge.

His Honour Judge Huycke coincided with the Crown Attorney's remarks, regarding the dismissal from their minds of any prejudice or sympathy they might have.

His Honour defined perjury as a false oath intended to be misleading. It had been proved that he had taken an oath. The question that was to be decided "Was his statement true?" It is on the evidence that you must make your decision. We have a strange story told by Johnston that he, after retiring, got up and came down town, not to enforce the laws but for no other object than to catch Chief Howard. It is idle to say that he had no grudge against Howard. His action was nothing short of a mean, shabby trick. Johnston said that Messrs. Denham, McIlroy and another man went into the hotel and back out of his sight. Johnston had no right saying such a thing, the inference being that they went into a passage where drinks were handed out. These gentlemen denied it, and Johnston should not be so careless in making such a statement, thereby casting an insinuation on his neighbour.

Some question arose as to the admission of character evidence. He believed a man should have the opportunity to prove his good standing. Where there was douht as to a man's guilt, it was then that character evidence should be considered. He drew attention to the good character given the accused. He deplored the character evidence against the policemen. Character was one of the dearest thing a man had and he told the jury that testimony showing personal animus should be regarded with suspicion when a man's character was in question. His Honour concluded by reminding them that the case against Graham for illicit liquor selling had been dismissed.

The Verdict.

The jury retired at ten minutes after ten and were out forty-one minutes when they returned to the courtroom.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict? "Is the prisoner "guilty" or "not guilty?" asked the Clerk of the Court.

"Not guilty," the foreman replied.

"I discharge you with pleasure. You are free to go,' His Honour remarked to the accused.

The jurors were then dismissed.

FOUND HIS COAT

Street Railway Employee Was Agreeably Surprised.

One of the motormen of the Street Railway Company was explaining why he was not wearing his overcoat and mitts this morning while the car was waiting at the George St. corner. He told of his sister having gone for a drive last night and as it promised to be cold he advised her to take his heavy coat for the return trip. She accordingly took the coat but did not return it this morning and he did not get a satisfactory explanation of where it was. He was telling this to one of his fellow conductors who was coming up town and the latter laughed at the story.

"Why we found your coat last night about half past seven o'clock near the switch at Central Park. It was lying rolled up and had undoubtedly dropped out of some cutter. We saw that it was a conductor's coat and brought it to the office. Some of the men said it was yours when they saw the mitts, which they recognized. It was his coat according to the men and he promised to get it on the next trip.

THISTLES AND DANDRUFF.

An Interesting Parallel and a Valuable Deduction Therefrom. ....

Cutting down thistles no more relieves the land of thistles than does scouring the scalp cure dandruff. In each case permanent relief can only come from eradicating permanently the cause. A germ that plows up the scalp in searching for the hair root where it saps the vitality, causes dandruff, falling hair, and baldness. If you kill that germ, you'll have no dandruff but a luxuriant suit of hair. Newbro's Herpicide is the only hair preparation in the world that cures dandruff and falling hair by killing the germ. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

FRASERVILLE ITEMS

Examiner Special.

Fraserville, Ont., Dec. 21—A very amusing little incident happened in our town last week, which was amusing and exciting for the time being. A certain farmer left a cow in the G. T. R. stock yard in the afternoon, where she was to be called for by a cattle buyer in the evening, but she thought she would have a joke on her future owner, and got out. She wandered around the village till about 4.30 p.m., and then got on the track, where she remained till the evening train for Port Hope came along. She got directly in front of the train and started up the track; the engineer blew the whistle, but the cow only shook her tail at him, as if in defiance. For a considerable distance there was a warm race, especially for the cow, and then the engineer, not caring to discourage her, stopped the train and called it off. Called what off—the race? No, the cow.

Does Local Option do the Work?

What a Representative of the Toronto Star found in Owen Sound—

1. That the law was being vigorously enforced.
During 1908 there were

Convicted—Hotelkeepers	35;	Blind Pigs	2
Absconded	"	8;	"	1
Sent to Jail	"	6;	"	1

Total Fines.....$1,420

2. More business done.
Two-thirds of the business men said that their business had increased materially. More cash paid, less credit asked for.

3. Less Rowdyism.
The Chief-of-Police said "There is not one drunk now to the 100 there were under the license system and the quiet of the town at night is wonderful."

4. Real Estate Values Increased.
In five years property in Owen Sound has increased over 30 per cent. in value.

5. Employers of Labour Pleased.
Employers of Labour said: "We have had no trouble with our men being off since Local Option came into force."
Approved by The People.

The best evidence that can be given that Local Option is a success in Owen Sound is that the people of that city, with all the facts before them, voted last January by a large majority to retain Local Option. Even the Ontario Brewers' Association could not induce them to go back to License.

THE LATEST NEWS OF SPORT — TOLD IN BRIEF FORM

FOUR TEAMS IN THE RACE AND CITY LEAGUE IS TO HAVE DOUBLE-HEADER

Schedule Was Drawn Up Last Night and Will Open on January 5th---Keene, West Ends, T. A. S. and Strathconas Will Battle for the Championship---Chieftains and Collegiates Drop Out---Games May be Played in the Auditorium Rink.

Four teams will fight it out for the championship of the Senior City Hockey League. The clubs are the Keene team, the Strathconas, the West Ends and the T. A. S.. The Chieftains and Collegiate Institute teams dropped out, leaving the other four, and for the first time in the history of the League, a double schedule arranged. This should prove very satisfactory as there have been complaints in other years from different teams that one game with each of the other teams did not give them a chance, as one defeat practically put them out of the running. The new arrangement will do away with these objections, will provide the public with more hockey and as there are fewer teams, better hockey, while the race should prove infinitely more exciting.

At a meeting of the executive held last evening in the Oriental Hotel, with President C. G. Graham in the chair, the schedule for the season was arranged. There were present in addition to the President, John Oldham, second vice president; F. D. Craig, secretary treasurer; Dr. McWilliams, representing the Keene Club; L. Dobson, West Ends; W. J. Methoral, Strathconas; Jack Deannard, T. A. S.; W. Gibson, Collegiate Institute, and Art Hall, Chieftains.

Secretary Craig read a letter from Eugene Hurtubise, manager of the Auditorium Rink Company, stating that the Company had converted the Auditorium Roller Rink into a skating and hockey rink and submitting a very reasonable offer to the League to play its games there. The new hockey arena will have an ice surface of 135 feet by 56 feet, and will afford seating accommodation for 800 people. The meeting discussed this offer and seemed to favour it, but it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the Rink Committee, composed of President Graham and Secretary Craig.

Arthur Hall, representative of the Chieftains, asked to have his club withdraw from the League ranks, on account of lack of interest among the players, and difficulty in financing a team. W. Gibson, of the Collegiate Institute team, made a similar request, stating that his team had entered the Junior O. H. A., and could not therefore undertake the expense of a team in the City League.

On motion of Messrs. Deannard and Oldham the withdrawal of the two teams was accepted, and the secretary was authorized to return to them their entrance fees.

The drawing up of the schedule was the next matter taken up, and it unanimously decided to play a double schedule, commencing on Wednesday, Jan. 5th—two weeks from to-morrow night. Keene asked to be allowed the privilege of playing the first game every night, and this was granted to them. The following schedule was decided upon:

Wednesday, Jan. 5—Strathconas vs. Keene; West Ends vs. T. A. S.

Jan. 12—Keene vs. West Ends; T. A. S. vs. Strathconas.

Wednesday, Jan. 19—Keene vs. T. A. S.; West Ends vs. Strathconas.

Wednesday, Jan. 26 — Keene vs. Strathconas; T. A. S. vs. West Ends.

Wednesday, Feb. 2—West Ends vs. Keene; Strathconas vs. T. A. S.

Wednesday, Feb. 9—T. A. S. vs. Keene; Strathconas vs. West Ends.

The following Board of Referees was suggested—Geo. Lynch, S. W. Rose, J. R. McIntyre, Keene.

ON HIS TRAVELS

Charles Johnston Charged With Vagrancy Was Given His Liberty.

Charles Johnston, 73 and showing the ravages of those years, had ninety cents in his pocket when he appeared in police court this morning, charged with being homeless and without visible means of support. His means would take him part of the way to his destination, and it was suggested that he walk the track the rest of the way to Toronto. Mr. Johnston denied the fact that having spent his money on whiskey and squandered it generally, he wanted to be fed and groomed in the jail. No thank you. He preferred liberty and stated that he wanted to go on to Toronto where his sister resided on Queen St. Mr. G. N. Graham, who happened to be in the court room, offered to pay Johnston's fare to Toronto, or at least to make up the portion he was lacking. Johnston who would excite the sympathy of the ordinary man, hobbled away from the police station for somewhere, probably for the sister's home in Toronto.

Claims Are Exploded

Country Which First Welcomed Explorer Is Deeply Chagrined to Find That He Has No Good Proof of His Statements — Friends In America and Denmark Are Disgusted—Cook Is Missing.

Copenhagen, Dec. 22.—The report of the special committee of scientists which the University of Copenhagen appointed to scrutinize Dr. Frederick A. Cook's claims that he had discovered the North Pole, was submitted to the consistory of the university yesterday, endorsed by that body and given to the public.

The report shatters completely the Brooklyn explorer's title to such discovery and fills the officials and people of Denmark with chagrin at the figure Denmark is made to assume in the eyes of the scientific world. Many still cling to the belief that Cook acted in good faith, but harbored a delusion.

After obtaining all available information the committee finds as follows:

First, the report of the expedition sent to the university by Dr. Cook is the same as that printed in The New York Herald during the months of September and October last.

Second, the copy of Cook's notebooks does not contain any original astronomical observations whatsoever, but only results.

Third, the documents presented are inexcusably lacking in information which would prove that the "astronomical observations" therein referred to, were really made; and also contain no details regarding the practical work of the expedition, and the sledge journey which would enable the committee to determine their reliability.

The committee, therefore, is of the opinion that the material transmitted for examination contains no proof that Dr. Cook reached the pole.

The report is signed by all six members of the committee, viz., Prof. Elis Stromgren, director of the astronomical observatory; Dr. O. R. Pochule, astronomer, attached to the observatory; Gustav Holm, explorer; Prof. A. B. Xepsen, president of the school of navigation; Dr. Royder, director of the meteorological office, and Dr. F. A. Engstrom, director of the Land Observatory.

Prof. Stromgren last night characterised Cook's treatment of the university as "shameless."

Explorers and scientists almost unanimously have lost faith in Cook's honesty, while one of his warmest supporters, Knud Basmussen, helped to frame the report. The evening papers attack Cook and severely reproach him for hiding, which they regard as a sign of a guilty conscience.

The rector of the university, Dr. Salomonsen, when questioned as to the possibility of the university cancelling the degree which it conferred on Dr. Cook, said that no decision had been reached, but he thought the degree could be withdrawn in the same way the Government could deprive a person of an order obtained under false pretences.

The documents handed the commission of the University of Copenhagen for examination were: 1st., a typewritten report, prepared by Cook's secretary, Walter Lonsdale, and covering 61 pages of foolscap, and 2nd, a typewritten copy made by Lonsdale from Cook's notebooks. This occupies 16 pages of foolscap and includes a description of the expedition during the period from March 18, 1908, to June 18, 1908, during which, according to the statement, Cook journeyed from Svartavog to the North Pole and returned to a point on the polar ice not specifically indicated, but west of the Axel Heiberg land.

The papers were not accompanied by a private letter from Cook, but Secretary Lonsdale stated that the origin notes and books had been sent to Europe by another route as a precautionary measure and would be delivered to the university in a few days.

In a letter to Prof. Torp presented by Lonsdale, Cook states that not only were his instruments left at Etah, but most of his astronomical observations were also left at that northern point, and he adds that without these it seems unwise and impossible to pass a final judgment upon his expedition.

"Gold Brick," Says Peary.

Washington, Dec. 22.—Commander Peary yesterday said: "Three months ago from the Labrador coast, I sounded an explicit and deliberately worded warning to the world, based upon complete and accurate information in regard to Dr. Cook's claims. In doing so, I accepted the responsibility devolving upon me and fulfilled my duty to myself and to the world."

Bradley Disgusted.

New York, Dec. 22.—"He has fooled us all, from the King of Denmark down," was the exclamation of J. R. Bradley of New York, Dr. Cook's backer in his Arctic trip. "And he fooled me with the rest."

"In common with the rest of the world, I was delighted at the first news from Dr. Cook that he had discovered the pole. His actions, however, and his failure to make more than the meager statements regarding his trip following his return to civilization took some of the smack off the supposed triumph.

"Cook's flight, for that's what it seemed to me to amount to, killed all my interest in him and his affairs. Before that I never had had reason to doubt Cook, and his whole course in this matter seems inexplicable to me."

Cook's counsel, H. W. Wack of New York says: "If the public knew the truth concerning Dr. Cook's mental and physical condition as it is known by his close friends, they would take a more charitable view of his present unfortunate situation."

The Hon. Seaborn Wright of Georgia will address the Mass Meeting to-night in the Grand Opera House at 8 o'clock. The Grand Opera House Orchestra will supply the Musical Programme. Dr. Morgan will be the Chairman. Everybody Invited.

Young Man Is Slain

W. J. Dyson, Aged 22, of Toronto, Tries to Eject Rowdy From Redwater, a Flag Station at Which He Was Agent, and In Melee Friend of Man Hits Him With Club — Cannot Escape.

North Bay, Dec. 22.—Redwater, a flag station on the T. & N. O. Railway, 56 miles north of North Bay, was the scene of a brutal murder last night, the victim being the night telegraph operator, W. J. Dyson, aged 22, of Toronto.

The tragedy occurred about six o'clock, when a man entered the station and became boisterous. Dyson attempted to eject the intruder, and a fight ensued, when another man rushed in and struck young Dyson with a club, crushing his skull. He lived only a short time.

The murder was witnessed by a man who happened to be in the Station at the time, but he did not recognized Dyson's assailants, who quickly made their escape.

Redwater consists of a station and section houses only, with lumber camps nearby. Provincial constables from Latchford are at the scene hunting for the fugitives, who can hardly escape, as the country is covered with bush and the railroad is the only outlet, unless they were well provisioned and acquainted with the district.

Fed Husband Poison.

New Albany, Ind., Dec. 22.—That Mrs. Pearl Armstrong systematically administered doses of poison to her husband, George Armstrong, for four days, and finally brought about his death, was the charge formulated yesterday by County Prosecutor Bulleit against her. She is in jail.

Florence Myrtle Harris, 16 years of age, who lived with the Armstrongs, told the prosecutor that Mrs. Armstrong said she "could have a better time if her husband was dead. He was ill and she gave him, last Thursday afternoon, the girl said, a dose of rat poison, pretending that it was medicine. On Sunday afternoon Mrs. Armstrong, protecting her hands with gloves filled several capsules with carbolic acid and Armstrong took them.

"I begged Mrs. Armstrong not to give her husband more poison, but she answered that she had started to end his life and she might as well finish it," the girl stated, "and on Sunday night she gave him strychnine." The woman says her husband suicided.

Declared To Be Illegal

Premier Roasts the Peers Who Are Talking Too Much About Military and Naval Affairs—Union Levies For Parliamentary Purposes Are Declared Unconstitutional —Wants a Clean Fight.

London, Dec. 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Premier Asquith spoke four times and Lloyd-George five times yesterday. The other Cabinet Ministers are also on the stump, whilst the ex-Ministers and lesser stars orated everywhere.

The Premier, at Liverpool, made a strong pronouncement on the efficiency of the navy, and said that Lord Cawdor's picture of Belfast as a German naval base showed the unwisdom of letting loose a band of peers and proconsuls, who had been making the political welkin ring. Respecting fiscal matters, he claimed that Britain had shorter hours for labor, higher wages and lower prices for the real necessities, and on the whole, less burden of unemployment than any protectionist country. The exportation of capital was one of the surest indications of the prosperity and productiveness of British industry.

Upon the constitutional issue Asquith was sarcastic. Really, he said, they had better close the House of Commons altogether (laughter). What need was there for it, when by the mercy of providence (laughter), at the other end of the palace at Westminster, free from the dangers and temptations of popular reflection (laughter), they were interpreting with disinterested detachment the true mind and permanent temper of the people (great laughter and cheers). The Premier declared the sky was full of good omens.

He asked that the coming fight should be clean. He regretted they had not got the clear issue, fearing that a combination and confusion of issues might land the country in trouble which would be dangerous to the Empire.

Lord Curzon was enthusiastically received at Burnley, where he replied to Winston Churchill.

Walter Long, in Wiltshire, said tariff reform would produce £18,000,000 annually and give Ireland home rule, and we should require to conquer it within twenty years.

Runciman, at Bradford, said that if the foreign fleet went to Belfast otherwise than on a visit of courtesy, they would be as pirates, flying the British flag.

The whole aspect of an electoral fight may be changed by a judgment quietly delivered yesterday by the law lords. Lord Shaw, ex-Radical Minister being at their head.

The judgment declares that trades unions cannot legally make compulsory levies on their members for Parliamentary representation purposes. Nearly two million members of trades unions have hitherto been compelled by their unions to contribute to the salaries of 47 members of Parliament, and, out of similar compulsory levies, some 80 Labor candidates are now standing for Parliament. Many members of trade unions habitually vote for a Unionist and Liberal and against Labor candidates at elections, and have only paid their shillings because, if they refused, they would have been driven out of the union.

The executive of the Labor party meets immediately to prepare a bill legalizing what the law declares illegal and will press Mr. Asquith to accept it as a Government measure, and fight the election on that issue.

One Peer Opposes Lords.

London, Dec. 22.—Lord St. Aldwyn, in a letter which was published yesterday morning, says he abstained from voting on Lord Lansdowne's resolution in the House of Lords on the budget because he did not wish to oppose his own side, but he saw nothing in the budget justifying its rejection by the House of Lords, nor anything in its proposals which could properly be described as socialistic or revolutionary.

At the same time, he says, he does not approve the budget, expressing the opinion that small duties on imports would be sounder finance.

Sir Robert Perks, in a letter, denounced the Free Church council and its claims to speak for the Protestant dissenters of the Kingdom. He points out that the Wesleyan Methodists are standing aloof distrustful.

Lifebuoy Soap is delightfully refreshing for bath or toilet. For washing underclothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and purifies.

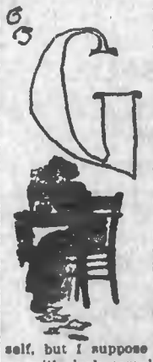
THE VILLAGE DRESSMAKER



GOOD mornin' Mis' Simmons. It's nice overhead, but awful muddy walkin'. Yes, I'll take 'em off and leave 'em right here in the entry. My land, ain't you done up your work yet? It's all of 8 o'clock.

"Is this your goods layin' here on the machine? Say, now, this is a real stylish pattern. 'Tain't exactly what I'd 'a' picked out myself, but I suppose this plum color'd go with dark complected folks. That Alice blue they're wearin' now would've suited you better, in my opinion, you're so sandy. But I guess this'll not be so bad, after it's made up. This yellow trimmin' will kill your complexion, though. Takes lots o' color to wear yellow.

"Remember Mis' Richards' Sadie's yellow dress I made up jus' 'fore her pa died? Land sakes, it had to be laid away for a whole year! The child was ailin' all winter, and when she wore it in the spring she looked as if she'd been buried and dug up. Still, mixed in real tasty with some of this white lace, it mayn't look so on you.

"Is these the buttons They're wearin' skirts buttoned up on the side, real plain an' close fittin', but you'd better have tucks, or a flounce round the bottom o' yours, 'cause the new style don't look good on fat folks. You want to be slim and not have no hips to wear what they call a sheath skirt. This is one I got on Mis' Beebe said in church las' Sunday she thought it real becomin' to me. I wore it on purpose this mornin' so you could see why it wouldn't do to cut yours this way. As long as a person hasn't got a stylish figure it appears like the will o' Providence, and don't seem's if there's any sense in tryin' to rig 'em up to look different than they're made.

"Well, no, this pattern ain't what you might call real new, but it's the one I cut your black alpaca by a year ago last spring, and you allus said you was partial to that dress. Oh, if you're tired of it, I suppose I can find somethin' else, but I wish you'd told me 'forehand, so I wouldn't have to lose such a sight o' time huntin' around.

"Come over an' look at this one. It does seem kind o' odd, but it's in this month's number, so it's sure to be in style. The picture's awful pretty, but she's tall an' kind o' thin, so maybe a chunky person wouldn't look like much. Here's one now, that's umpire, an' hangs sort o' loose from the armholes to the ground. I got that pattern, too. Oh, yes, you'll like it after you've wore it some.

"I'll cut out on the dinin' room table, soon's you get it cleared off. Don't Mr. Simmons object, havin' his breakfast so late? Goodness me, when my man was livin' he'd jus' take on something awful if breakfast was after 6 o'clock! Kep' me on my feet mornin', noon an' night, waitin' on that man. Well, he's dead an' gone, poor soul, an' I ain't complainin' against the ways of the Almighty.

"I do declare, I believe you're fleshier'n you was last summer, when I made you that sprigged calico you wore so long! Your waist measure is all of two inches bigger. It do beat all how some folks keep puttin' on weight that others'd give their eyeteeth for. There's Hank Minor's wife. She's too skinny for any mortal use. You can't tell whether she's a-goin' or a-comin' till you're close up. I made her a merino dress last November, an' I put enough cotton battin' in to stuff a sofy, an' then she done nothin' but complain 'bout how hot 'twas, as if her bein' such a spindlin' critter was my fault!

"It's too bad you can't afford a silk linin', Mis' Simmons. That resorter who had Warner's cottage last summer had a dress you could hear comin' a block away. It wasn't much for looks, bein' too simple, to my notion. But city folks has so much to do, I suppose, they've no time to spend lookin' at the fashion books, so they don't allus get the newest ideas, in spite o' the airs some of 'em put on. Mis' Warner said they was rich as time, an' wore their best clothes just's if 'twas Sunday all week!

"This is awful hard goods to sew, it's so pully. It'll be sure to sag, too, an' there ain't nothin' you can do to stop it. No, you can't change it now, it's most cut out—besides I'd lose a whole day.

"I'm goin' to make Sis Crawford's girl a princess costume this week. She ain't got a mite of natural style. Her figur's somethin' like yours, though the poor child's only goin' on 16. They do say her pa has the awfulest temper! An' you know what Sis Crawford is when her tongue gets to goin'. I expect I'll have a right smart time there, but, pshaw!—it'll be a blessin' after some o' these dull houses, where nothin' ever goes on."

SERVED AS HIS LADY'S MAID.

Romantic Manner of Wooing That Won Love of Young Russian Widow for Her Admirer.

A St. Petersburg paper publishes details of a Russian romance in which figures the wealthy and beautiful young Baroness Urusoff, the widow of a distinguished Russian government official.

All the young cavaliers of Moscow were hopelessly in love with her. The baroness, however, rejected all attempts to obtain an introduction to her and lived in perfect seclusion, attended only by an elderly relative. Some months ago a young peasant girl began to visit the residence of the baroness, offering the servants cheap articles for sale. Subsequently the baroness used to buy different articles from the peasant, who was intelligent, had good manners and considerable conversational talents.

The baroness eventually asked the girl whether she would enter her service as a lady's maid. She agreed and discharged her duties to perfection for a fortnight and then revealed "herself" as a young Russian nobleman named Maximoff, who, taking advantage of his fair hair and complexion, had masqueraded as a domestic servant to break down the barriers with which the beautiful baroness had surrounded herself.

The baroness was so much impressed by his extraordinary perseverance that she became engaged to him, and the marriage took place a few days ago.

ORIGIN OF FOOLSCAP PAPER.

Emblem First Made Use Of by Cromwell to Show His Contempt for All Things Royal.

Everyone who has handled paper recognizes foolscap as a sheet 13 by 16 inches. This is used as a standard size all the world over, officially and commercially. It will therefore be interesting to know where and how this word originated. After the execution of Charles I. Cromwell and his staff, in organising the commonwealth, made all possible effort to remove everything which had anything to do with the old monarchy. The paper in official use up to the time had as a watermark the king's crown; and, when Cromwell was asked what should be put in the place of the crown, to show his overwhelming dislike for anything concerning royalty, he directed a fool's cap to be put in place of the crown. This was done, and when Charles II. ascended the throne of England, it was at first forgotten to replace the cap by something else, and then, too late, the king was afraid to do anything to recall things dangerous to touch, and so it was neglected and the fool's cap may be seen as a water-mark on nearly all British official papers.

Hot Water Cure for Insomnia.

To insure the benefit of the hot water, it must be taken off the fire the moment it boils—not just before or after—and poured at once into a cup or glass. Then it should be taken while very hot. A little practice will enable one to swallow it at little less than the boiling point, and in addition to the proper temperature, the proper time must be observed. It is most efficacious in curing indigestion and improving the general tone of the system if taken immediately on waking in the morning, again an hour before lunch and an hour before dinner also, and to drink two glassfuls on retiring will almost positively insure sound sleep. It may require two or three days' trial before the desired result is effected, but once gained it can be held without interruption by faithfully pursuing this method.

Bridget's Beatitudes.

Blessed are the drippings of bacon grease; much better than lard for frying. Use it, too, to put over the meat loaf for basting.

Blessed are the fishyeplates and silver put immediately into cold water. Afterwards wash with hot water to which ammonia has been added.

Blessed are the baked potatoes which are first pared, and then put into a very hot oven. It saves the waste next to the hard skin.

Pratles and Bacon.

Select large, perfect potatoes, and cut a piece off one end so that they will stand firmly. When baked soft, remove part of the potato, and in the cavity put chopped boiled bacon, allowing it to rise a bit out of the top of the potato. Garnish with parsley. This is an excellent breakfast dish, or may do duty for a simple luncheon course. Serve for more elaborate occasions, with a pickle and square of toast on the plate.

Perfect Testing Systems Insure The Quality of Your Flour

Another big thing we saw at Keewatin—
The significant perfection of the Testing System.
We used to hear some millers boast of testing every pound of flour before it leaves the mill.
Which then seemed quite sufficient to our childlike credulity.
Till we beheld with our own eyes the FIVE ROSES quality tests.

The milling process, as you already know, Mistress Housewife, is a continued series of eliminations.
In a large modern mill, like the FIVE ROSES plant, it is estimated that some of the material travels nearly a mile, all this time being either cleaned or reduced into finer particules or granules.
Every step, Madam, means more impurities taken from your flour, additional purification.
None could be overlooked or slighted without affecting FIVE ROSES quality; they are reduced for financial reasons only in "bargain counter" mills where the flour production is governed by its cheapness.
You wouldn't expect a watch to run if some of the parts or wheels were missing, would YOU?

* * * *

Suppose, Madam, there are a hundred varied processes in FIVE ROSES milling and each were cheapened one penny.—Your dealer could sell FIVE ROSES $1.00 a barrel less.
But there's nothing stingy about FIVE ROSES quality.
Not only is every step essential, but after each intermediate process an individual test is made of the quality of the product; just as you, Mistress Housewife, at intervals anxiously peep into the oven to see what's doing in the pie line.

* * * *

With this test staring each in the face, no man can shirk his task: he dare not leave any little fault for the next man to correct.
Everything must be right—and it is.
Then, there's the regular daily baking of the finished flour by the Keewatin public baker.
Indeed, Mistress Housewife, your interests are well looked after.

* * * *

FIVE ROSES is never "killed" in grinding due to hot rolls or bearings.
It cannot lose its elasticity, its power of expansion in dough and oven.
It must be pure, and strong, and wholesome, and sweet.
You know this, Madam, by the true Manitoba wheat flavor, the rich creamy bloom, the different baking consequences.
We tell you all this because any flour 'is "good enough" till you know BETTER.

WHY AUNTY'S NEVER SICK.

OLKS tell me I look delicate,
And old, and past my prime,
And, yet, I'm never sick a day.
You see, I haven't time.
Occasionally, I feel bad,
A cold gets hold of me,
But just as I about give up,
Some one gets sick, you see.

I recollect once rheumatix
Got started in my side,
But just then Brother Sam took sick
And pretty nearly died,
And by the time I'd nursed him 'round,
And helped that wife o' his,
I felt so well I clear forgot
All 'bout my rheumatis.

Another time I started in
With a dyspepsy scare,
Then Marthy had a baby, and
I had to go out there,
Then Ma's back got to achin' so
Seemed nothin' would relieve her,
And just as she got easy, Pa
Came down with typhoid fever.

So how on earth can I get sick?
'Twould almost be a crime,
With everybody else upset,
I never find the time.

Bottles and Babies.

A prominent woman physician has this to say about the feeding of bottle babies: "Babies are creatures of habit, and can easily be trained to the utmost regularity. To this end the infant should be allowed 20 minutes to each bottle, and if it is not finished then it ought to be taken away. Thus it will learn to take its meals regularly and quickly."

For everybody knows that babies will dawdle over the bottle, keeping the nipple in the lips longer than is good, either for digestion or the shape of the mouth.

Meals properly apportioned are sufficient when methodically taken. If baby cries, give it water. And remember that baby's food should be regulated, not only by age, but by growth. Regardless of the months, a large fast-growing child requires more food than one who is small and slow in growth. There is a tendency to set opposite to this, and over-feed the puny child. This is bad because the sickly child will suffer more from the over-crowding of a weak stomach than from too little food. Fresh air, plenty of sleep, and care and regularity in what he eats are more important than quantity. Give the larger amount to the strong, healthy child who shows that he can take care of and assimilate it.

APRIL RAIN.

COME rain, soft April rain,
Bring back the flowers again!
Come, rain, make of my gambrel eaves,
A swimming-pool for winter's leaves.
Then rain on budding sprouts and say:
"To-morrow will bring another day,
And April's sun and my wet kiss
Shall waken thee to summer bliss."

Come rain, soft April rain,
Bring summer back again!

Rain, say which wind thou lovest best,
The north? The south? The burly west?
One thing I know, thou likest least
To drive before the churlish east.
Rain, rain upon the quick and dead,
Thou fallest alike upon the head
Of unjust and of just, with free
And all impartial charity.

"Woman's Militarism."

"Woman's innate militarism"—this is what one London paper calls the latest patriotic response on the part of women. It is ascribed partly to her innate militarism, and partly to her love of excitement and fads. Of course, the editor allows, too, nobler motives.

The movement under discussion is the formation of a military corps called "The First Aid Nursing Yeomanry Corps," and is an echo of the general jingo sentiment noticeable in all England. It was founded a year ago by Capt. Baker, but only last week did its real status become generally known. Its object is to render first aid to the wounded and to follow up close to the cavalry and horse artillery. Each trooperess must be over five feet three inches in height; she must provide her own outfit, including a horse and its care. So it will be seen that there are limitations, and that the ranks are recruited from women of position and means.

Daily practice combines the work of cavalryman and nurse. They ride up to the wounded man, dismount, produce surgical and medical appliances, and dress the (supposed) wounds. Rifles sometimes take the place of splints to guard against that emergency in actual experience.

The swash-buckler novelty of the idea may repel some critics, but the majority is charitably withholding judgment until time tells whether the movement has its root in a feminine fondness for smart tunics and jaunty caps, or in patriotic zeal and womanly sympathy.

A Curious Fact.

It is a strange fact, and one not generally known, that eggs which have been cooked soft may be boiled a second time without becoming any harder. Boiled eggs which have not been cracked may be thrown into boiling water and warmed through, tasting as good as "new."

To Serve Grape-Fruit.

Nowadays, the ultra fashionable folk never serve grape-fruit in the skin. If used it is taken out in cubes, and served on lettuce; if only the juice is desired, it is served in frappe cups.

THAT PICTURE GROUP.

AN anybody tell me why?
The cause of it decline?
We say whene'er a group we see:
"It's good of you, but look at me;
That awful poss of mine."

Then some one else will say: "It's fine
Of you, but look at me!
I am not one of those mincing creatures
Whose looks depend on regular features.
I'm changeable, you see."

Oh, why to human nature
The vision clear deny?
The picture flatters all the rest,
But never flinds us at our best.
Can any one tell why?

Extra Touches.

The following hints are for fancy occasions, and are not recommended for the every-day program of the busy housewife.

When cutting the butter into squares, it often sticks to the knife, thereby making an uneven pat. Try covering the knife with paraffin paper, and the slice will be smooth and even.

A nut and apple salad is improved by the addition of chopped figs. Use just a little to give a spicy suspicion.

Use Parmesan cheese instead of the ordinary kind in rarebits, with tomatoes, spaghetti, or any dish where the cheese is to be sprinkled on. It can be bought already powdered, and is, therefore, conveniently and more evenly spread.

Celery salad is improved by the addition of small blocks of cranberry jelly. It adds a tang to an otherwise tasteless salad.

A Free Dinner.

To the traveler of to-day who grumbles at the rate charged in the diners, restaurants, at depots, etc., it is interesting to note that, in the early coaching days of the nineteenth century, the rate charged at eating places for travelers was very low—in many cases the dinner was a bonus thrown in by the transportation line to lure travel. And the surroundings of these Wayside Inns was as attractive as the bill-of-fare was bountiful. Think of an early morning repast of "waffles, johnnie-cake, fish, flesh and fowl" thrown in with the price of a stage coach ride! It is enough to make one stingy the next time he is expected to tip the waiter in a pullman dining-car.

MOTHER ON HOLIDAYS.

O-MORROW is a holiday,
"Hoo, ay!"
But will som ibody please explain
Why such a febrile joy we feign?
Why thus we say:
"Hooray,"
Upon a holiday?

Now holidays drag wearily
For me.
More dinner—then an extra treat,
On such days they do naught but eat.
And everywhere, unbounded
"Confusion worse confounded."

The children must, all in their best
Be dressed;
And by the time I've seen to them,
Wiped Johnny's nose—let down Kate's hem,
Blacked shoe and mending stocking,
My state of mind is shocking.

Now, great events must have their day,
They say.
But, after shout and tumult ceases,
I—have to pick up all the pieces.
So, on a holiday,
I never say: "Hooray!"

A "Scalloped" Suggestion.

When oysters, potatoes, corn—anything "escalloped" is put in the oven, it is better if the milk and eggs are mixed together first before adding to the dish. The mixture is firmer and more evenly flavored if the moistening be prepared before putting in the baking-dish.

To Clean Furniture.

Use oil very sparingly, and then apply it mixed with one-third gasoline. As the latter evaporates quickly, it lessens the risk of leaving a sticky coat of oil on the surface. Rub it well afterwards with a dry cloth.

Rattan or willow furniture should be cleaned with ammonia, not soap, as the latter makes it turn yellow.

British Sailors Mutiny.

Plymouth, Eng., Dec. 22.—A full-fledged mutiny, which has occurred on the British cruiser Leviathan, Admiral Farquhar's flagship, is the sensation of all England to-day.

The Leviathan, one of the finest ships in His Majesty's navy, arrived here yesterday from Gibraltar, and reports that during the cruise 65 of the sailors mutinied.

The mutineers threatened their officers. Loyal members of the crew were summoned to arms and cowed the rebels, who were placed in irons.

A summary court-martial was held, and the ringleaders were dishonorably dismissed and sentenced to two years at hard labor.

Attempt to Smuggle.

Windsor, Dec. 22.—Charged with having attempted to smuggle jewelry valued at $1,100 into the United States, John A. Smith of Toronto was placed on trial in the United States District Court in Detroit yesterday morning. Smith was one of a gang which robbed a Sarnia jewelry store over a year ago, and was caught while trying to evade the customs authorities at Port Huron.

HER RED RABBIT.

It Brought the Knight to the Princess He Was Seeking.

By VIRGINIA BLAIR.

(Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

The small girl set the red cotton rabbit in the open window with his nose in a flowerpot.

"He's eating grass," she announced triumphantly.

"That's nice," said the weary woman at the sewing machine, "only don't let him fall out."

"Of course not," said the small girl. "He'd fall and fall and fall if he did, wouldn't he?"

"Yes, and you'd have to walk and walk downstairs to get him."

"And I'd have to walk and walk up again," said the small girl.

She stopped her singsong and leaned out.

"There's a man down there," she remarked, "a man in a gray hat, and he comes every day."

"Does he?" Her mother's voice was absentminded, she was so busy. The sun shone on her bent bronze head and brought out the golden lights in the little curls on her broad white forehead. The small girl's mother was very young, but her eyes were sad.

The small girl made the rabbit prance back and forth and back and forth, and still the man with the gray hat stood on the corner idly.

Then suddenly a dreadful thing happened. The red rabbit, being moved too rapidly on his red cotton legs, lost his balance and fell out.

"Oh," the small girl shrieked, "he's hit the man with the gray hat!"

"You'll have to go after him," said her mother, "and come right back."

"I'll walk and walk and walk," sang the small girl as she started.

On the lower landing she met the man in the gray hat. He was big and tall, and the small girl thought that his eyes were beautiful.

"I was coming up," he said.

"Well, you needn't now," the small girl told him, "and thank you for my rabbit."

She held out her hand for it. "Thank you," she said gravely when she had it safely tucked under her arm.

She turned to make the long climb upward, and then, struck suddenly by a thought, she asked him, "What makes you come and stand on the corner every day?"

He laughed. "I'm looking for some one," he said, "some one who is hidden in some of these big houses on this big street, and I can't find her."

"Oh, is it a fairy story?" asked the small girl eagerly, and she sat down on the step and spread out her small short skirts sociably.

"Yes; it's a fairy story," he said, and sat down beside her, "and I am hunting for the castle where the princess is imprisoned, and I'm the poor knight who has wandered and wandered and can't find her."

"But some day you will find her," comforted the small person, "and you'll give her a kiss and you'll live happy ever after."

"I'm not so sure," said the rueful knight, "that she'll let me kiss her."

"Why not?"

"Well, you see, the princess and the knight quarreled awfully, and the princess ran away from him and said she would never come back."

"Oh," gasped the small girl, "that's different from any fairy tale I ever heard!"

"Yes; it is different."

"Did the princess have golden hair?" the small girl demanded.

"No, but it was brown with golden lights and with little curls on her forehead."

"Like mother," said the small girl happily.

"Like"— He caught his breath and looked at her closely.

Then he put a finger under her chin and turned her little face up to him—such a baby face, but with the firm chin, the deep gray eyes, the broad, low brow of the woman he had loved!

"Baby," he whispered, "what is your name?"

"Lucile Dudley Morse."

"My God!" He was crushing her in his arms, red rabbit and all, until she gave a little squeal of protest.

Then he said "Beg pardon" and set down.

"Come," he took the small hand in his; "we will go up and see your mother."

"I AM HUNTING FOR THE CASTLE WHERE THE PRINCESS IS IMPRISONED."

But the small girl shook her head. "You mustn't," she said. "Mother doesn't have time for visitors, she's so busy. If she doesn't saw we can't have supper, you know. At least mother can't, but just the red rabbit and me, and we only have bread. But when she sews hard all day we have soup sometimes and meat, and one day we had tarts."

He stood looking down at her a moment. "What are you going to have tonight?" he asked.

"I'm not sure," said the small girl, "but I guess it's just bread."

"You run along up to your mother," he told her abstractedly. "Goodby. I'll see you again."

"He said he'd see me again," the small girl told her mother, who was waiting anxiously at the top of the stairs.

"Who?"

"The man with the gray hat. He's a knight looking for a princess, and they quarreled, and she ran away, and he hugged me when I told him my name."

Her mother caught her breath quickly. "What did he look like?"

"He had nice eyes," said the small girl meditatively, "and he was big and tall."

"Oh"—the little mother's face was white—"he mustn't come here—he mustn't."

But he did come, and behind him a colored waiter bore a tray loaded with good things.

The little mother stared at him like one who sees a ghost. "Why have you come?" she asked.

"Hush!" He glanced at the man who was setting the tray on the table. "Let me give the child a feast, and after that, if you think best, I will go."

The small girl clapped her hands. "Mother, mother," she cried, "there's chicken and everything!"

They ate and drank, the small girl rapturously stuffing herself and the red rabbit, the other two with little appetite.

And when they had finished the woman said, "You must go now—at once."

"I shall not go," he said "until I speak of the lies that have been told you."

"Lies?" Her startled eyes questioned him.

"Oh, my dear," he came over and took her hands, "why didn't you trust me? Why didn't you come to me and tell me the stories that those relatives of mine had told? Couldn't you see that if they got my wife out they could combine to live on my money and have the comforts I had always provided?"

"But they said you loved—some one else."

"I have loved only you," he said, and his eyes met hers very gravely. "They told me things of you, too—that you did not care for me, and that was why I let you go. And you did not tell me of the child."

"Oh, no," she breathed; "I could not!"

"And so for five years you have struggled." His voice broke. "And I believed that you did not care until last month. When I shut up the big house after my sister's death I came across your little diary far back in your desk, and in it I read—what you have thought—how you have loved me—dear."

She was sobbing now in his arms, and the sound attracted the attention of the small girl, who, with the red rabbit, had been finishing the sweets.

"You've made her cry," she reproached him.

"But we are going to be happy ever after," he said as he clasped her close. "I have found my princess, baby."

Lost Himself.

An absentminded professor was much annoyed by the trouble he experienced every morning in hunting for his clothes, for he never could remember where he had put them the night before when he undressed. So he devised the plan of writing down on a sheet of paper where each article of clothing was placed as he took it off, and this is what he wrote:

"Coat on third peg, left hand corner of room; waistcoat and trousers on chair by bed; collar on door handle; tie through key of door; vest on floor by window; cuffs on knobs by bedstead; shirt on portmanteau; socks on gas bracket; boots outside door; professor in bed."

Next morning this plan seemed to answer admirably. He collected his garments rapidly, and when he came to the last item on the list he went over to the bed and, to his great disgust, found it empty.

"Ah!" he cried in bewilderment. "Now the professor is lost! This plan is not good. What shall I do now?"

Proving His Love.

They were "sitting out" the dance when Miss Luvliwun glided silently by, waltzing most gracefully.

"Oh, Algy," said the girl, "don't you think Miss Luvliwun quite the nicest girl in the room?"

"Why, yes, May, darling, if you think so."

"And her eyes—aren't they just delightful?"

"Perfectly, pet!" Algy agreed.

"And hasn't she the prettiest mouth and the sweetest face imaginable?"

"Simply charming!" quoth Algy.

"And don't you think she's awfully clever too? Knows French, and—bo-he—oh-o-o!"

Poor Algy's face went ghastly white.

"Why, darling," he exclaimed, "whatever's the matter? Are you ill? Shall I"—

"Oh-o," sobbed May, "I—thought you—loved me—you loved me best, Algy!"

"So I do, darling!"

"W-w-well, how can you ta-talk so about that ugly, vulgar Luvliwun girl?"

Great Salt Lake.

The length of the Great Salt lake is about seventy-five miles and greatest width about thirty miles. It is 4,200 feet above sea level and has an area of 2,360 square miles.

When the Atlantic Was Bridged.

According to the distinguished French anthropologists Gabriel and Adrien de Mortillet, there was a junction between Europe and America by way of the British isles, the Faroes, Iceland and Greenland in what is known as the chellean epoch, which is supposed to have ended 150,000 or 160,000 years ago.

Old Roman Perfumers.

The perfumers of Rome lived in a special quarter set apart for their use, and whole streets were filled with their shops, which were lounging places for wealthy young nobles.

Wet Wedding Days Preferred.

The adage "Happy is the bride that the sun shines on" is one that is unknown in many lands. A Breton bride takes it unhappily when the day of her wedding dawns bright and sunny. Rain on her marriage morn is held to signify that all her tears are shed and that she will therefore have a happy married life.

Deer in Scotland.

It has been estimated that from 90,000 to 100,000 deer feed in the forests of Scotland and that 4,000 stags are killed annually.

Turks and Coffee.

Coffee reached Constantinople about 1554 and was of universal use in Mohammedan countries before the close of the sixteenth century. So essential was it deemed to domestic happiness that a Turkish law recognised a man's refusal to supply his wife with coffee as sufficient ground for her claiming a divorce.

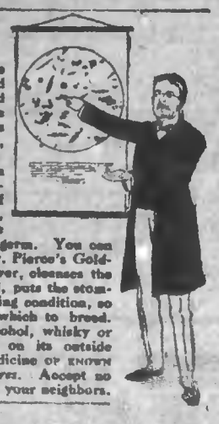
Dentistry in Greece.

In Athens there are good dentists, and the people take care of their teeth. In the rest of Greece the dentistry is usually performed by the barber, who only pulls teeth.

Parrots.

Some parrots are very quick in acquiring words and are generally fond of displaying these new acquisitions, but occasionally a bird will be profoundly silent until the teacher despairs of her mastering a certain phrase or word; then all at once and unexpectedly the "scholar" will repeat her lesson.

Afraid of Ghosts



Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a fallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

ARRESTED; SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Hamilton Youth Was Charged With Extensive Thefts.

Hamilton, Dec. 22.—Joseph Mitchell, 232 North Victoria avenue, 20 years of age, was found yesterday evening leaning up against a fence at Delaware and Sherman avenues, with two bullet wounds, one in the temple and the other in the forehead. He was in a semi-conscious condition, and Constable Goodmaff rushed him off to the hospital. He will likely die.

In the afternoon the police had obtained a search warrant and gone to the home of his widowed mother. In a shed in the rear of the house they discovered enough stuff to fill up the patrol wagon twice. Amongst the stuff were boots and shirts stolen from store doorways. There were also many bicycles and one motor cycle, valued at $150. All the bicycles were cut up into small pieces. The police claim that the shirts, boots and motor cycle were stolen.

In addition there were all manner of goods, including plumbers' and carpenters' tools, paint, etc., most of which they suspect were stolen. They value it at $500.

Mitchell was released on bail after the search was made. When found by the constable he admitted that he had shot himself in order to avoid disgrace. The revolver was found on him. It was a 32-calibre weapon.

He was placed under the X-ray at midnight and a search made for the bullets.

Relatives who were at the hospital last night scouted the idea of attempted suicide and maintained that he had been shot.

It is a very peculiar case. Mitchell belongs to a wealthy family, and in less than a year, when he came of age, he would have come into possession of $10,000 left him by his father. Kleptomania seems to be what led him to his downfall. It is said that he would sell the clothes that were given him by his parents and buy cheaper clothing in order to get money to put in the bank.

Parr, like the others, is charged with illegal selling of ore, and is known to have received more than $9,000 from the Wilkinson company during the past year. Neilson is also known to have received over $8,000 during the same period.

Still more arrests are expected.

DEATH OF REV. FATHER KIELTY AFTER MANY YEARS SERVICE

Parish Priest of Douro During the Past Two Decades — Passed Away This Morning at the Rectory of St. Joseph's Church, Douro—Had Many Friends in Peterborough and Throughout the County.

A REVIEW OF HIS LIFE

This morning at 10.30 o'clock death came to a venerable and beloved parish priest who has been associated with the religious life and activities of this county for the past generation. Rev. Father W. J. Keilty passed away at the parsonage of St. Joseph's church, Douro, after an illness which has long threatened his life. Some dozen years ago Rev. Father Keilty was afflicted with a severe illness which his physicians said must have a fatal ending in a year or two; but the fatal stroke was withheld till this morning. For all that time victim as he was to an incurable and weakening disease, he still faithfully fufilled the duties of his sacred office with a cheerfulness and fidelity which spoke volumes for his pious zeal and devotion to duty.

Rev. William J. Keilty was born in Roxmouth, on the bank of the St. Lawrence, sixty four years ago — in 1846. He received his literary education, which was of an aunusually liberal order, and his theological education at Regiopoles College, Kingston and The Grand Seminary, Quebec respectively. His first duties after his ordination which took place under Rt. Rev. Bishop Hiran in 1869 were at Kingston where for some time he was chaplain to the penitentiary. He was subsequently praish priest at Kitley in Leeds county and about thirty years ago was promoted to be parish priest of Enniskmore where he ministered faithfully. He was the first resident priest of the parish, his predecessors having been Rev. Fathers Coyle and Hogan. During Father Keilty's incumbency, the church of St. Martin was erected and also the commodious rectory. In 1880 he was transferred to St. Joseph's parish, Douro, exchanging churches with the late Rev. Father Dan O'Connel. Here he has been the faithful parish priest for a score of years. During his pastorate, the beautiful church of St. Joseph, solidly built of stone and, one of the finest rural churches in the diocese of Peterborough, was erected.

Rev. Father Keilty has had a large place in the religious life of Peterborough county for the past thirty years and held a warm place not only in the hearts of his parishioners, but in the affection and esteem of the general public; for his warm Irish heart, his geniality of disposition and cheery bonhommie, made him persona grata to, and popular with, all classes of the community, both within and without the pale of his sacerdotal influence. He passed away, conscious to the last moment, surrounded by all his living relatives and strengthened for the journey into the unknown but undreaded beyond, by the last rites of Holy Mother church, and after a life of fruitful and devoted service in the interest of his fellowmen and the Church, of which he was a venerated and zealous priest.

Rev. Father Keilty is survived by a brother and a sister. The brother, Mr. Marsh Keilty, is Bursar of the Mimico Asylum, Toronto, and the sister is Sister Mary of the Nativity, of the House of Providence, Kingston.

A solemn requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of the departed priest will be celebrated at St. Joseph's church to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock, after which the remains will be escorted to Indian River and placed upon the mid-day C.P.R. express for conveyance to Prescott, where the funeral service will be conducted and interment take place on Friday.

Thus passes to his reward "Father Keilty" as he has been familiarly called for the past generation by the people of Peterobrough; and not only the adherents of the faith he at once championed and adorned, but thousans of others will join in the prayers old as christendom. Requiescat in peace.

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding, or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refuded. 50c.

WAS TRYING TO OPEN WINDOW

What Was Thought to be a Cat Scratching Turned Out to be a Man Endeavouring to Gain Admittance.

MADE HASTY RETREAT

Awakened from sleep by what she thought to be a cat scratching on her window, Mrs. Tom Moore, who resides at 365 Mark street, East City, on Monday night, about 11 o'clock, was astonished to find on making an investigation, that there was a man trying to pry open the window. He apparently was endeavouring to gain an entrance, but went about it too noisily. He made a hurried retreat when he found he was discovered. Several thefts have been committed in this neighbourhood of late, and it is believed the same man is the perpetrator of them all. The matter has been reported to the police.

'ROUND THE STORES

Merchants are Quite Satisfed With the Christmas Trade With One or Two Exceptions.

No better indication of the good recovery that has been made in commercial business can be obtained than in the returns of the store-keepers of the Christmas buying. Nearly all merchants testify that this year will beat the figures for the previous year. There are several noteworthy features about conditions this season. The numbers buying are greatly in advance of previous numbers to begin with and they have responded well to the requests of firms to shop early. Up to date the sales have in many cases been as large as last year's total, while the remaining days to Christmas are expected to be busy ones, the storekeepers are of the opinion that the buying will be well distributed and will not come in a rush towards the end of the week. Another point of interest is the class of goods people are buying. The same people who purchased ten dollar articles are buying fifteen dollar goods this year, which shows that money is more plentiful. The large stores made a fairly good estimate of the amount of business that would be done and prepared larger stocks in order to be able to successfully cope with it. Perhaps the most interesting feature is the enormous business that is coming in from points served by the railway lines.

CANDIDATES

Quietness as Far as Announcements For Elections Are Concerned.

"Say, you reporter, what's doing in the election ring?" asked a citizen this morning. "Surely they're not going to wait until the last minute to come out and announce themselves. I understand that the most of last year's men are in the game again, but there should be the usual amount of new blood to liven things up and make the elections interesting. I can't see why we don't hear from those fellows that are coming out. There is more interest in the elections when you get the men out early and the people get talking. That's what we want."

A PIONEER OF THE CHURCH

Rev. Wm. Peer, Who is to Take up His Residence in Norwood, Has Had a Varied Experience in the Wilds.

NINE YEARS AWAY

One of those big little men, a doughty man in small compass, is Rev. Wm. Peer, the pioneer missionary of the Temiskaming, who, with his wife, is in Toronto to-day. They are en route to Norwood to take up permanent residence there.

For nine years Mr. and Mrs. Peer have fought the sturdy battle of the pioneer missionary on the fringe of civilization for the Baptist church in the wilds of New Ontario. Now they are coming back to Old Ontario to spend their declining years among the friends they made when Rev. William Peer was busy building up churches for the denomination, in Cramahe, Campbellford, Fenella, Menie, Norwood, Warsaw, Dummer, and Havelock. Truly his record in Old and New Ontario is a worthy one.

A casual glance at Rev. William Peer does not reveal the missionary at his true value. A ruddy face, perpetually wrinkled and crow's-footed by a smile that hovers even in his most serious moments, blue eyes that twinkle with kindliness, silver hair and moustache—a little man half buried in the depths of a big raccoon coat — these were the outstanding features of Rev. Mr. Peer as he appeared in Toronto yesterday. The removal of the coon coat reveals only a trim, well-groomed gentleman of not more than 150 pounds weight — a man who would more readily be taken for a successful Toronto manufacturer than for the man who pioneered that rough north country in a manner that rivals, for zeal, self-sacrifice, and carelessness of hardship, the hazardous undertakings of the French Jesuits.

A Hardy Old Man.

Think of it!

Sixty-seven years of age, and able to paddle a canoe 40 miles a day or face 30 below zero weather in a 16-mile journey across Lake Temiskaming and through the woods to hold service in a lumber camp.

A man who has faced death by storm ashore and afloat, by wild animals or forest fire almost a score of times, who will go back at it again this winter—and maybe for many more years—as a volunteer missionary. A man who loves his work above personal comfort and worldly advancement, and even in the face of the opposition of men in power in his church, is this chap with the smiling eyes and the coon coat.

There is no better known man in all the north country than Rev. William Peer, and he has done mighty work for the cause up in the silver country. Yet he and the Baptist Home Missionary Board have quarrelled.

MORE DAMS IN THE NORTH

Dominion Government Builds a New One at the Outlet of Cushog Lake—Making a Reservoir of 1473 Acres.

WILL BE BENEFICIAL

Amongst the several new reservoir dams that have this year been built on the tributary waters of the Trent Canal, is the dam at the outlet of Cushog Lake, in the Township of Snowden. The dam at Cushog Lake also conserves the water of Sawer's Lake, 250 acres in area, Head Lake, 214 acres, Grass Lake 226 acres, which together with Cushog Lake, form a reservoir of 1,473 acres. This dam is a substantial concrete structure, and has a five-foot head, so that the amount of water that can be stored above it will be substantial, and will be of great assistance in affording a regular and even flow down the main waterway of the Trent Canal throughout the fall and winter season.

That the Dominion Government is fully alive to the requirements of the Hydraulic Power interests, as well as the navigation interests, is quite evident, by the manner in which the work of building these new dams is being prosecuted. The new Cushog Lake dam adds still another to the number of splendid new dams that have been built since the Department of Railways and Canals took over from the Ontario Government these reservoir lakes and rivers.

BIG SUPPLY OF TURKEYS TO-DAY

An Unusually Large Wednesday Market—Poultry for Everybody and a Little Cheaper Than on Saturday Last.

EGGS UP ANOTHER CENT

Turkeys were about as plentiful as grasshoppers in harvest this morning, when the farmers specially provided for the midweek market had all arrived. In every respect it was as good as any Saturday market and if anything the prices were a little easier than on the last day of the week. If there had been predictions of a shortage of the turkey supply someone was "in wrong" for the showing to-day was almost as good as last Saturday. Geese were equally abundant and the prices were good. The poultry display was exceedingly fine, the birds being plump, fat and gave promise of gracing satisfactorily any board, be it the king's or a millionaire. There should be a good marked Friday the usual Christmas market day. The general price of turkeys to-day was from $1.50 to $3.00, with an occasional heavyweight demanding a higher figure. Geese sold at from $1.50 to $2.00 each and chickens were $1.00 a pair. Eggs were quoted at 35 and 36 cents, but the butter remains at 25 cents. The market was very satisfactory.

SANTA CLAUS HERE

Arrived at the Bee Hive This Morning And Was Warmly Welcomed.

At least a benevolent-looking old gentleman, whose appearance and whose prodigality would lead one to suppose that he was the original patron of the Christmas tree and the stuffedstocking, came into town this morning, and driving to the Bee-Hive established his headquarters in Toyland His journey through the streets in a sleigh was a triumphal procession, as he was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm by an immense gathering of youngsters. His popularity was enhanced by the giving away of hundreds of gifts, and it looked for a while as if he would be torn to pieces by the children, who besieged him for the toys. However, he arrived in safety at his destination and will, no doubt have many visitors before the week is over.

PUBLISH ASSESSMENT

Merchant Thinks Old Practice Should Be Continued.

A merchant stopped a reporter this morning with the following: "I would like to write a letter to the paper about the question of publishing the assessment. If I wasn't so busy, I would, but there is a thing that everybody is interested in and even though it would cost a little money, still I think it would be considered worth while by the citizens at large. No I am not merely curious. I look upon this as a matter of business. Probably it is a big job but it could be done and I do not see why the returns are not published. We had it once before, and I can't understand why it was not continued."

SPLENDID ADDRESSES FEATURE OF COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

At the Collegiate Institute Last Evening — Prominent Citizens Made Presentations of Medals and Diplomas Won During Past Year.

THE WINNERS

The comencement exercises at the Collegiate Institute last evening proved very interesting to the large number of citizens and pupils who assembled in the auditorium last evening. This was the second occasion, since the opening of the new school that a function of this kind has been held and it is an even teach year that is looked forward to wiht a great deal of pleasure by the pupils of the school. Last evening the occasion was marked by eloquent addresses by prominent citizens including His Honour Judge Huycke, Daniel O'Connell, Rev. J. R. Webb, Dr. McPherson and Inspector Mowat.

The pupils could not but be benefited and assisted to aspire to a higher standard in life. The parents must feel impressed with the immensity of the responsibility vested in them guardians of their homes and their children. It was pointed out that education depended even more upon home training than upon the training received in the schools.

The presentation of diplomas and medals was an important feature also and was made amid much applause.

The chairman of the evening was M. L. M. Hayes, K.C., chairman of the Board of Education. He expressed his pleasure and the honour he felt at being called upon to preside at such an important event. He was proud to be connected with the schools of Peterborough.

THE ADDRESSES

Dr. A. W. McPherson, presented the Athletic prises won at the annual Field Day of Sports, and in doing so he referred to the necessity of looking after the physical development as well as the mental. Success in life depended on both soundness of body and mind.

The Nicholls' scolarships won at the Normal entrance examinations were presented by Rev. J. R. Webb. His remarks were both interesting and inspiring. He spoke at some length on the duty of the parents towards the schools. The parents were responsible for the earliest training of the child, that which the pupil learned in school being only a continuation of the primary education which should be taught at home.

His Honour Judge Huycke delighted the audience with a splendid talk directed especially to the boys and girls in whom he has always taken a great interest, not only in their class but in the athletic field and in their homes. He was an old Collegiate master, he said, and he loved youth. He urged the boys to possess lofty ideals; to be straight and honest and upright. He impressed the girls with the beauty and honour and worth of pure and good woman hood.

Inspector Mowat presented the prises to the first six pupils of last year's entrance class, and to the winners of the five prises for penmanship.

He spoke of the development of personality.

In presenting the Honour and Junior Matriculation Scholarships, Mr. Daniel O'Connell referred eloquently to the necessity of developing a good character. Character was life itself. A person's character was himself, his very life, and his whole life. The foundation of character must be founded on the home. If not the teachers in the schools have nothing upon which to build, they had nothing to develop and therefore could not develop it. It rests with the parents and with the guardians to begin the young lives aright, and to keep a guiding hand upon them during the tender years and to stand by the schools and the teacher.

During the evening the addresses were interspersed with excellent musical numbers by the school orchestra, Mr. H. Morphet, vocalist, Miss Kathleen Wallis, violinist, and Misses Rudkins and Hetrick, pianists.

Miss Gertrude Yeuley, read the valedictory with credit to herself and the school.

The winners of scholarships and diplomas were:

GIFTS FOR THE CHRISTMAS TREE

The friends who have delayed sending in their gifts for the Christmas tree at the Shelter, are reminded that the time is getting short and that the gifts should be handed ito the newspaper offices or at the Shelter as soon as possible. The Examiner has received a considerable number of parcels and also several cash contributions, and on behalf of the Society thanks most heartily those who have already shown a desire to make Christmas happy for the little folks.

THE BOYS' CAMPAIGN

Boys' Cabinet of the Y.M.C.A. Completed Arrangements Yesterday.

The cabinet of the boys' department of Y.M.C.A., met yesterday afternoon to complete arrangements for their campaign to raise $250 for the purpose of furnishing their own rooms.

The members decided that some part of the amount should come from themselves and will pay $25 towards the fun before appealing to the citizens on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

A successful campaign is anticipated by the boys as they feel that their effort to improve and advance this department of the Y.M.C.A. will meet with popular approval.

A SILLY SAYING.

"It is a common, but silly opinion prevailing among a certain class of people that the worse a remedy tastes, smells or hurts, the more efficacious it is." So says a well-known English physician. He further adds: "For example, let us consider cod liver oil. As it is extracted from the fish this oil is so offensive to the taste and smell that almost everybody abhors it, and many cannot use it at all, no matter how badly they need it. Yet Cod Liver Oil is one of the most valuable drugs in the world, and it is the greatest pity that we have not thus far been able to free it from those peculiarities which so seriously interfere with its usefulness." This was written years ago; the work of civilising and redeeming it, however, has since been triumphantly accomplished; and as a leading ingredient in the effective remedy called the oil retains all its wonderful curative properties with no bad smell, or taste, whatever. It is palatable as honey, and contains all the nutritive and curative properties of pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry; creating a medicine of unequalled power for the diseases most prevalent and fatal among men, women and children. There is no other remedy to compare with it. It increases the digestive power of the stomach and in Blood Impurities, Weakness, Loss of Flesh, Throat and Lung Troubles, Nervous Dyspepsia, Scrofulous Affections, Thinness and slow development in the young, it gives quick and certain relief and cure. Dr. R. K. —— of Canada, says: "I shall continue its use with, I am sure, great advantage to my patients and satisfaction to myself." Has all the virtues of Cod Liver Oil; none of its faults. You may trust it fully; it cannot disappoint or fail. One bottle convinces. Sold by all chemists. —Warne Drug Co.

FERROL TASTELESS

CANADA'S OPPORTUNITY.

The announcement by cable of the successful launching at Wallsend-on-Tyne, of the Steamer Prince Rupert, is a matter of congratulation and suggestion to Canada. The Prince Rupert is the first launched of the Grand Trunk Pacific steamers under construction for service on the Pacific Coast, between Prince Rupert and the ports intervening between that place and San Francisco. A companion ship, the Prince George, will be soon launched. The building of these splendid steamers, which are models of modern effectiveness and equipment, marks another important step in Canadian development. This is the subject for congratultion. The suggestion comes in the form of a query why these steamers should not be built in Canada, out of Canadian steel and Canadian timber and by Canadian enterprise and Canadian skill? We have both the raw material and capability of contributing the principal raw material of modern steamships—steel. We have immense and practically inexhaustible deposits of iron ore in jusposition with similar deposits of coal, and where we have iron deposits not associated with coal, we have these deposits in the vicinity of immense water powers presenting conditions favourable for electric smelting and conversion into steel. We have developed the art of producing steel in quantities capable of meeting any ship-building demand that can be made upon them. We have shown that we can manufacture steamers of very important character. Collingwood and Toronto ship yards have a good reputation and have demonstrated a large capability in the matter of ship building. From building our own ships there is nothing to prevent us from entering upon an 'export trade,' so to speak, in ship-building—building ships for other countries.

From commercial ship building in Canada it is easy to drift into the building of war ships, if, indeed, we should not begin upon them. In this respect we possess advantages superior to any other nation or country. In the production of armour plate for warships nickel is an indespensable ingredient for admixture with steel. Canada is the only country in the world that has the largest deposits of nickel in the world occurring in easy relation to steel. In fact, Canada has not only the largest deposits of nickel in the world, but outside of the French penal settlement, New Caledonia, the only considerable deposits of nickel to be found anywhere. If we should elect to pursue the only really national policy, that of manufacturing within Canada to the ultimate or approximately ultimate form of development, all our natural resources, capable of economically profitable treatment — we should provide the greatest possible amount of employment for our working men and artisans, and provide a source of national enrichment which would go far toward placing us in the front rank of the industrial nations of the world. Those to whom such proposals may seem chimerical, should remember that in other respects Canada has made advances and achievements indicating her capability of a practical solution of the problem of not only building our own ships, but of establishing a large and profitable outside ship-building industry. This is Canada's opportunity. We are committed to a navy of combined national and imperial character. The country is aroused over it. While there may not be great enthusiasm the beginning of a Canadian navy is a turning point in our imperial relations, and in our industrial development. Why not direct things so that the beginning of a navy shall be made the starting point, the impetus, the inaperation to the establishment of a great national ship-building industry that shall not only provide the war ships, to which we are committed, but an uncounted fleet of ships of our merchant navy, which is developing in point of numbers and importance.

WHAT A CANADIAN NAVY MEANS.

There is a bye-election contest in Ottawa to fill the seat vacated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier who has elected to sit for Quebec East. In this contest the naval question is brought to the fore and made a distinct issue by the appearance in the field of Ex-Mayor Ellis as an independent candidate, who condemns the idea of a Canadian navy altogether; he favours the presentation of Dreadnoughts or the contribution of an equivalent in cash from time to time, from year to year. In taking this attitude Mr. Ellis places himself in antagonism to the policy unanimously adopted by both the Liberal and Conservative parties, that of a Canadian navy in cooperatin with the Imperial navy. Mr. Ellis, no doubt, honestly assumes this position, but it is neither a truly national one from the Canadian standpoint or even from the imperial standpoint. Both points of view demand that the developments of the units of the imperial commonwealth shall be the measure of general imperial development. In combatting the contentions of Mr. Ellis, the Ottawa Journal comprehensively summarizes the advantages of the truly national and truly Canadian policy adopted by both parties. The Journal says:

A Canadian navy means continuous systematic naval finance.

It means a stimulus to many al money in our own country.

It means the establishment of shipyards and naval training schools in Canada.

It means the building of ships in this country, the employment of men in Canada, the purchase to a larger degree than otherwise of materials here.

It means the encouragement of other Canadian industries.

It means a stimulus to some Canadian towns and cities.

It means a new development of National self-effort and education.

It means the avoidance of possible causes of friction with England. If mistakes should be alleged in the use of the money appropriated for naval purposes, or criticism aroused, England will not be concerned. The argument will belong to Canada.

All the reasons urged are sound, if even mere suggestions of what can be urged in argument to sustain the position that the building in Canada of a Canadian navy would be the medium of immense development of national resources, natural, industrial and commercial, in a score of most important ways, as well as for the development of a national spirit of independence, consistently consonant with a virile spirit of independence. As a Canadian navy can be built and manned in Canada, for Canadian purposes yet subject to cooperation with, and even temporary absorption by, the Imperial navy in time of need.

The Journal also points out that a continuous series of money contributions to the British navy would mean several undesirable conditions. It says:

On the other hand, an attempted continuous series of contributions to the navy of England, which is the alternative to a Canadian navy, would mean the following.

1. Canadian taxes spent by England, in England, constituting a continual irritation here among some people against Imperial connection.

2. Dissatisfaction occasionally or constantly either in England or here, or both at the shape in which we might put our gifts, or the way in which England might put or handle them.

3. No continuity or system in finance. Whenever a Canadian Finance minister would find his budget troublesome, he will cut two or three millions off the contribution to England or excise it altogether. This is the most deadly objection of all. It means constant annual squabbling over the navy question—over the principle of asisting England—over the amounts that Canada should be giving — constant turmoil, not merely between the two political parties here, but inside of each party also—constant irritation of many kinds, all tending to disgust at the imperial attitude. It can be a good principle in the British empire that any large autonomous dominion in it shall create in its own politics an annual question of gving money to England, and how much, and why, and have nothing to say about what may be done with it.

Canada's opportunity, in connection with the provision of a navy, represents not only a responsibility but a privilege; the privilege of using the occasion, for a national development, almost unbounded in the scope of its possibilities. The question of the Canadian navy is a national question, not a party question, and should be so regarded by all who honestly hold the future growth of Canada, as the true goal of ambition. A Canadian navy involves the double ideal—Canadian cooperation nd imperial cooperation and—unity.

USUALLY ONE DOSE ENDS INDIGESTION

Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas and All Stomach Distress Vanishes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or you feel bloated after eating and you believe it is the food which fills you: if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something to stop food fermentation and cure Indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body, you must rid your stomach of poisons, excessive acid and stomach gas which sours your entire meal—interferes with digestion and causes so many sufferers of Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, Griping, etc. Your case is no different — you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name; your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any Pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking a single dose that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will regulate any out-of-order stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly, without any fuss or discomfort all of any kind of food you eat.

SHORTEST DAY

Yesterday was the shortest day in the year, and from now until next June the lamp wick will burn less each successive night, and the meter will show a gradual diminution in the amount of electricity consumed. The change will not be noticed for a week or two, but about the first week or two in January the ebb flow will be slightly noticeable.

IN AGONY WITH PILES

Mr. C. W. Cornell, with the Shaw Milling Co., St. Catharines, Ont., writes, "For six years I was a victim of itching, protruding piles and was in dreadful agony day and night. Doctors were unable to help me and I was about as miserable as any creature could be. My druggist advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I did and obtained relief from the first box and complete cure with the second. This ointment would be cheap at fifty dollars a box in view of what it did for me."

UNCLE WALT---THE POET PHILOSOPHER

THE GREAT FIGHT

A hundred thousand shining wheels will go to Jeffries or the Smoke! The horny-handed toiler feels that all these figures are a joke. A hundred thousand clammy plunks reward those brawny acrobats, who stand around in shoes and trunks and swat each other in the slats! A hundred thousand golden bones! Who would not join the fighters' camp? No wonder that the poet moans, and tries to change a postage stamp; no wonder that the teacher sighs, and jars the shingles with his shriek, as he regards, with streaming eyes, his seven sentences a week. The parson, who must preach of bliss, is looking sorrowful and grave; while money's rolling round like this, he can't afford to buy a shave. The gifted Thinker, in his lair, is writing miles of prose and song; his wife will have to cut his hair when it becomes too all-fired long. A hundred thousand glowing bucks, for sundry rounds of blow and biff! No wonder that the cultured ducks with agony are frosen stiff!

WAS ARRAIGNED FOR NON-SUPPORT

Woman Had Her Husband in Police Court This Morning.

A woman charged her husband with non-support at the police court this morning, but the charge was not sustained and His Worship dismissed it. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the complainant and Mr. W. S. Davidson for the defendant

The complainant, wife of the accused, said that she was married two years ago last June. They lived in Ashburnham. Her husband left home on the first Thursday in December. He hadn't given he many money since November. She was not able to keep herself. There was no reason why he should not keep her. He earned good wages. She stated that she hed been maried before and her three children to her first husband lived with her. She did not refuse to live with her husband but did not care to live in an hotel.

The defendant in the witness box stated that he never refused to support his wife. He admitted having sworn at her. He wanted her to live with him alone, or if her children remained in the house, he was to assume the financial responsibility and receive their money for their board..

Mr. Gordon asked to have the accused committed to gaol or an order to make him pay five dollars per week to his wife.

His Worship said that there had been no evidence of neglect or ill-treatment and a wife should live where her husband desires. He dismissed the case.

"I will have him arrested on another charge then," Mr. Gordon remarked.

Many beautiful floral tributes, including the "Gates Ajar" from the local license holders, a cross from the employees of the brewery and wreaths from the Masonic order, the Sons of England, A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's church and a star from the Gun Club.

The pall bearers were six of the oldest employees of the brewery, namely, Messrs. Jas. Drain, Ed. Fredenberg, R. Butcher, J. Hughes, D. Hummell and Wm Beatty.

SUCCESSFUL ENTERTAINMENT

The Loyal True Blue Lodge, No. 277 held a successful entertainment in East City Town Hall last evening. Moving pictures were shown and were much enjoyed. The Halpany orchestra rendered excellent music during the evening.

TRY THE MONEY-BACK CURE FOR INDIGESTION

Nine times in ten stomach derangements are responsible for sallow complexion, dull eyes and thin body.

It is the stomach that supplies nourishing blood to the muscles, the nerves, and skin. If the stomach is healthy, plenty of nutritious matter will be absorbed by the blood. If it is not healthy, the food will ferment, and undigested, will pass along through the bowels, furnishing so little nutritious matter that the blood becomes impoverished, and the glow of health vanishes.

If you suffer from nervousness, sick headache, belching of gas, sour stomach disturbance, you need Mi-o-na, and the sooner you get it the quicker you will be healthy and happier.

It will relieve any distressed stomach condition almost immediately. It will cure if used according to directions. Wm. Madill sells it for 50c a large box, and he thinks enough of it to guarantee it to cure indigestion.

HYOMEI

CURES CATARRH, ASTHMA, Bronchitis, Croup, Coughs and Colds, or money back. Sold and guaranteed by Wm. Madill.

$10 ALL THE CASH REQUIRED TO BUY IN A PROPOSITION THAT WILL SURELY MAKE YOU INDEPENDENT.

YOU MUST MAKE YOUR APPLICATION IMMEDIATELY.

FRIDAY NIGHT, DEC. 24th CLOSING OUT DATE.

As a final word of warning we wish to explain to the readers of this paper that those who have not forwarded their application for shares in the CHICAGO ALBERTA OIL FIELDS COMPANY, LIMITED, while the price is at 25c, must do so immediately.

We positively guarantee that the price will be raised 5c or 10c per share on Monday, December 27th, and that we will receive no applications at the 25c price after Friday night, December 24th, at 9 o'clock.

The block of stock to be sold at 25c is limited, and we feel absolutely certain that the same will be taken up by the closing-out date. Such an activity will naturally warrant an advance of 5c. or 10c.

The developments which are taking place on the property permit the statement that the stock should be worth and sell for at least 50c. per share inside of 30 days, and 75c. inside of 90 days, since by that time the drills should be down close to the oil levels.

Do not overlook the fact that this Company owns one of the finest drilling equipments ever imported into Canada. The machinery cost about $20,000, and is a giant two-rig drilling plant, capable of sinking wells to the maximum depth at the greatest possible speed.

The Company controls nine square miles of oil lands in the Pincher Creek country in Southern Alberta. John W. Warren, the eminent oil expert and for many years in the confidential employ of the Standard Oil Co., visited our property and in his report unconditionally endorses it as one of the finest Petroleum properties he ever saw.

The discovery of a 10 ft. seam of the finest Bituminous coal running the full length of the property is a most valuable asset to the shareholder, naturally increases the security and will greatly enhance the dividends.

The stock is sold in blocks of 100 shares, $25. If you pay all cash, a deed---share certificate---will be issued at once. The shares, however, may be purchased on terms, $10 per 100 shares cash, with application, and $5 per month, for three months, per hundred shares. On receipt of last payment a certificate will be issued immediately.

We have advised our most intimate friends not to buy less than 200 shares, while the price is 25c a share, since the stock will surely be selling at 50c a share in a few weeks time, and being naturally more active at that price and in greater demand, they could sell 100 shares at 50c, and retain the other 100 shares free of cost to themselves.

A considerable revenue will come to this Company through the bounty on crude oil of 1½c per gallon of the whole output of our wells, which is payable from the Dominion Government.

We want to impress upon the readers that unless they are absolutely sure their application will reach this office on or before 9 o'clock, Friday evening, Dec. 24th, they should wire us the number of shares they wish to take up. On receipt of wire, the shares will be placed in reserve until application remittance is received.

Address all your enquiries and remittances to

SCHOOL CHILDREN DO CHRISTMAS WORK

And Inspector Threatens the Courts for Parents.

St. Catharines, Ont., Dec. 21.—The Public school authorities have a problem on hand which they hardly know how to cope with. Towards the end of last week it was noticeable to the teachers that the attendance at school was thinning out considerably. The inspector was notified and a quiet investigation was made. It was found that most of the missing youngsters were filling positions as extra cash and check girls and boys in the big stores. The inspector issued warning to the parents that they would be prosecuted if the children were not in school in the morning. Some of them obeyed the warning, but the majority did not. It is likely that the law will be resorted to. The school closes Friday night for the Christmas holidays.

"THE TIME, THE PLACE AND THE GIRL"

That Howard-Adams-Hough compilation of hilarious fun, witty lines and tuneful music "The Time, the Place and the Girl" paid its first visit to Peterborough last night and was welcomed by a large crowd at the Grand. The reason for its long enduring popularity was not hard to find Its twelve song numbers are good enough to give it an immense vogue but even without the music at all the production has enough brightness and funny situations to carry it along swimmingly. As a fun show and pure and simple it has not been surpassed by anything seen here this season.

The cast was fairly strong. George Ebner as Happy Johnny Hicks with a December 1909 vocabulary of slang which he shoots off like a rapid fire gun was the chief fun maker and to use his own language "he had the house strong for him all through the chapter." The part was created originally by Reggie Deagon, who will be remembered by his excellent work here in "Peggy From Paris.". Alma Hicks, as Molly Kelly, the nurse, also the possessor of a fluent flow of distorted United States was an able assistant to Ebner. Ogden Wright as an organ grinder and Fred Waelder as Jasper Simpson a "close" rube helped some. Vivian Allen as "The Girl" did well with the part and sang fairly well, while Jeanette Paterson as the widow sang and danced herself into popularity.

The chorus was large, well trained, and pretty. They sang a little too, and assited generally in promoting the gaiety of nations.

The song hits were "Thursday is My Jonah Day", "The Waning Honeymoon," "Blow the Smoke Away," and "Don't You Tell." but there was little choice among the musical numbers.

The production, while it will not cause a conflagration in the neighbourhood of any body of water, is a pleasant enough means of whiling away an evening, if the slang is away over the heads of the high brows.

"HIS LAST GAME"

A Splendid Baseball Story Film is Being Shown at the Princess.

"His Last Game" is the title of one of the most interesting moving picture films ever shown in Peterborough, which is being featured at the Princess to-day and to-morrow. The story in itself is highly exciting and the climax unusual, while the picture development is excellent. The picture is one that every baseball fan should see as a ball game plays a principal feature in the story. In addition the Princess is showing "The Prince and the Actor," a splendid film story and "How Brown Got Married" an unusually funny picture. There is a change of pictures daily at the princess now.

New York.—Geo. Dolling, seven feet and a quarter inch tall, arrived here today from England. He was met at the pier by his brother-in-law, Benj. Corday, who is a mere stripling of 6 feet, 6½ inches.

Dolling wears a number 17 boot, about six inches wide and sixteen inches long—eats enough for three ordinary men—and enjoys every monthful.

It is a great thing when one goes to the table with a hearty appetite and sound digestion. Many things tend to make us eat less than the body requires.

Constipation, Biliousness, Torpid Liver, Weak Stomach, Impure Blood, Sick Kidneys—all these troubles affect Digestion and the desire for food.

"Fruit-a-tives", made from fruit juices and tonics, is the best appetizer, because "Fruit-a-tives" makes the stomach strong—the liver active—the bowels and kidneys regular—the blood pure and the skin clean. If you want to be well and feel well, take "Fruit-a-tives".

The pall bearers were Messrs. James Esson, John Byrom, W. A. Richardson, Alex. Plunkett, Wm. Comrie and W. Fife.

A Xmas Present that will please your Boy or Girl is a Season's Skating Ticket to the Brock Street Rink. 3d144

The Questioner.

I called the boy to my knee one day
And I said: "You're just past four;
Will you laugh in that same light-hearted way
When you're turned, say, thirty more?
Then I thought of a past I'd fain erase—
More clouded skies than blue—
And I anxiously peered in his upturned face
For it seemed to say—
"Did you?"

I touched my lips to his tiny own
And I said to the boy: "Heigh ho!
Those lips are as sweet as the hay, new mown;
Will you keep them always so?"
Then back from those years came a rakish song—
With a ribald jest or two—
And I gazed at the child who knew no wrong,
And I thought he asked:
"Did you?"

I looked in his eyes, big, brown and clear,
And I cried: "Oh boy of mine!
Will you keep them true in the after year
Will you leave no heart to pine?"
Then out of the past came another's eyes—
Sad eyes of tear-dimmed blue—
Did he know they were not his mother's eyes?
For he answered me:
"Did you?"

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

It doesn't take any more time to do a thing now than it does to do it three weeks from now.

Promptness is a very big element in the value of favour.

There is a person who is always glad to do any favour for his friends, but who is so tardy about attending to it that he often halves or even entirely does away with, the value of his kind act.

Are YOU that person?

"Yes, she wrote a very nice piece for the church paper," I heard someone say of a girl who had been asked to contribute an article towards a church entertainment programme, "but she was so tardy about getting it done that she upset the publication of the whole thing. Next year we are going to ask a girl who may not write such a clever article, but who, we are sure will get it done in time."

When anyone asks you to do anything for him, if you possibly can go and do it straightway you will make your kindness twice as worth while.

There was one girl at college whom I would rather have on a committee with me than any of the rest. It was not that Eleanor had more ideas than the others. It was not that she was any more clever than they. It was simply that if you asked her to do anything she did not wait until the last possible moment, but did it at once.

I remember one occasion when she was on a dance committee which decided that each of its members should squeeze a dozen lemons for the punch.

The dance was not to take place for two weeks, but the day after the committee made that decision Eleanor appeared on the scene of action with her lemon juice and sugar in a preserve jar.

When I marvelled at her promptness she explained:

"It is off my mind and yours. It didn't take me any more time than it would have at the last moment, and I won't have to waste any time dreading it."

A queer old philosopher of a man once pointed to his house and said to me, "If it weren't for one man that house wouldn't be built yet. I wanted to build a house and I wanted a man to help me. Several men came to me asking for work, and I asked them when they could come to work, and they said 'To-morrow.' But there is no such day as to-morrow, so I didn't employ any of them. Then one day a man came, and when I asked him when he could come to work he said 'To-day,' and that's how the house got built.'"

That is the kind of spirit we need more of.

The girl who brought me the lemon juice within twenty-four hours of my request for it was the kind of a girl who could "carry a message to Garcia."

And the people who promise favours readily but put off their obligations until the latest possible moment and attend to them of necessity, hastily and insufficiently, and only after having been reminded of them, are the people who could never be trusted to "carry a message to Garcia."

Which kind are YOU?

Ruth Cameron

A number of the members of the Presbyterian church met in the school room on Friday afternoon, to tender a farewell to Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart before they take their departure to their new home in Toronto. After a well-worded address had been read Mr. Stewart was presented with a handsome leather-covered chair, and Mrs. Stewart with a beautiful lady's hand bag and purse. They both replied in suitable terms, expressing their gratitude at the thoughtfulness which prompted the gifts.

Mr. Stewart has held the position of elder for almost thirty-one years, and it is with much regret that the congregation bids him farewell.

Mr. Jas. McGillen has purchased a farm near Dartford from Mr. Jas. Young.

Concert Was Featured By Presentation To Teacher

A very successful entertainment was held last evening at the School house of S. S. No. 11, Douro, at Auburn, of which Mr. D. Stinson, of Omemee, was the teacher during the past year, the school being packed to the doors. Mr. G. G. Pratley acted as chairman, and in his remarks, complimented the teacher and scholars on the efforts involved in preparing such a good programme, which was a lengthy one, consisting of fifty numbers, including recitations, songs, choruses, dialogues, etc. The scholars took their parts well, which reflected great credit on the training they had received. The Dialogue, entitled, "Did you ever see a Ghost," brought down the house, and won merited praise for those who took part.

At the close of the programme, the teacher was presented with a beautiful gentleman's companion by the scholars of the school. Edgar Jones made the presentation and Asa Downer read the following address:

To Mr. Stinson.

Dear Teacher,—Having heard with deep regret of your departure from our midst, we could not let this opportunity pass without expressing our thanks to you for the many kindnesses you have so willingly bestowed on us during the current year.

We would ask you to accept this small token as a remembrance from your pupils, and we wish you all prosperity in the future.

Signed on behalf of S. S. No. 11, Douro.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway are in receipt of a cable message announcing the successful launching yesterday at Wallsend-on-Tyne, England, of the steamship "Prince Rupert," the first of the Grand Trunk Pacific steamers at present under construction for service on the Pacific Coast, between Prince Rupert, Vancouver, Victoria, and other Puget Sound ports. Upon the completion of the steamer within the next sixty days she will be sent via Cape Horn to the Pacific Coast and will go into commission next season. The companion ship, "Prince George" is also under construction and will be sent to the Coast as soon as completed. These fine steamships which will inaugurate the commencement of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in the Coast trade of the Pacific, are being constructed on the most modern designs and will be models of comfort in every particular.

BOY CHORISTERS

Boy choristers, with their sweet faces and voices, now hold indisputable sway in most Episcopal churches throughout New York. In fact, they have almost, if not entirely superseded women and girls, as soloists.

Quartette choirs, or the chorus choirs, composed of men and women, which were formerly considered an indispensable part of any Episcopal church, have been in large part done away with. In their places is the big vested choir and the soprano and contralto boy soloist. Nearly every big Episcopal church in New York has its "boy soprano," as well known to local fame as a star of a Broadway Theatre.

A choir master of long years' experience, in explaining the supremacy of the boy soloist, assigns as the principal reason tht fact that boys are far more easily handled than women on account of their freedom from professional jealousy.

"This is an important consideration from the choir master's point of view," he says. "If I have three boys, either of whom is capable of singing a certain solo, I feel perfectly free to select any one of them without fear of offending the others. This would not be the case if I were dealing with women singers."

"The boy has no mannerisms, and is not restricted by teacher's methods. If he can sing at all he sings as nature intended he should, and in church services as well as elsewhere, we admire anything natural.

Probably the most popular boy singer of the present day is Master Willie Golden, known as the "American Nightingale." When very young he showed that he possessed not only an exquisite voice, but musical taste and deep religious feeling. He is the enviable possessor of what is aptly called "angel voice," that touches and melts the heart. Master Willie reigned supreme at Trinity Church, New York, for two years, but resigned a year ago to become the principal singer in the famous "Volunteer Organist" Company.

Of the "boy sopranos" of Europe, Harry Johnstone of the Brompton Oratory, London, England, who has a voice not only of great sweetness and power, but of extraordinary range, is the foremost. This phenomenal young singer also gave up his church engagement and came to America to accept one with the same company, and with which he is now singing.

"The Volunter Organist" Company, with these boys as the big features of the intensely realistic church scene of the play is booked to appear at the Grand Opera House next Monday, Dec. 27th, with special Children's matinee at 2.30.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT WAS HELD AT MATHER'S CORNERS

Examiner Special.

A very successful school concert was held on Friday evening in the town hall of Mather's Corners. The evening was fine and the spacious building was packed to its utmost capacity and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all.

Great credit is due the teacher, Miss S. Weir for the very creditable way in which th children have been trained; two dialogues given by the young people of the vicinity were also very much enjoyed.

Miss Pearl Howson, assisted by Miss Bella Howson, Mr. D. O'Toole, violinist, and Mr. Harold Howson, harmonicist, performed the duty of organist very capably.

Mr. Joseph Taylor acted as chairman. He did not give the customary address at the beginning, but gave a good address at the last.

Miss Weir, at the close of the programme, expressed her thanks, in a few well chosen sentences, for the assistance that had been rendered her by those who had taken part in the concert, and ended by wishing everyone a very merry Christmas and a bright and happy New Year.

"THE ARRIVAL OF KITTY"

"The Arrival of Kitty," a farce comedy full and overflowing with humorous situations, side-splitting laughter and containing a delicately-handled plot woven around a show girl, who displays her numerous charms to win, and who, in a truly delightful manner, causes no end of merriment, will be the attraction at the Grand Theatre Christmas Day, matinee and evening.

The play has been written to amuse; sparkling wit and humour are everywhere in abundance. A veritable landslide of laughter, divided into three acts, during which time Kitty, for reasons of her own, deftly leads all to believe things, developing a unique counterplot and countless surprises, which, at all times, held the audience in anxious suspense. The opening of the play displays a scene of extremely amusing character. The action is fast and starts at the very opening of the act. As the plot matures it becomes more intricate, laugh-provoking incidents closely follow one another, bringing forth at all times peals of merriment that border closely on the hilarious. In addition to the brilliant dialogue and dramatic situations "The Arrival of Kitty" boasts of many musical hits, interpolated into the comedy, adding rhyme and jingle, and affording a resting place between laughs.

The character of Kitty is a delightful one. Her fascinating manner and enticing ways are splendidly handled by Florence Forrest. Hal. Johnson and a large company of well-known farceurs are seen in the many other interesting characters in the play.

FUNNY STORIES ABOUT WELL KNOWN BALL PLAYERS

New York, Dec. 22.—"Wee Willie" Keeler and "Bad Bill" Dahlen, former team-mates of Hughie Jennings', were making the rounds of the guests at the Dreyfuss banquet getting autographs of those present.

The two stars reached Jennings about the same time.

"What do you want?" asked Hughie.

"We want to sign," replied Keeler.

"Whom are you managing?" asked Jennings.

"Nobody," replied Keeler, "I couldn't ask you to sign me. You wouldn't on a bet, and you know it."

"But," broke in Dahlen, "Whenever they get tired of you in Detroit, come to me, I'll let you play first for Brooklyn."

The Hook for Mary's Lamb.

Jimmy Callahan, in addition to cleaning up about $50,000 with his semi-professional teams around Chicago, has developed into both a poet and a comedian. He had the gang laughing over the following effusion:

Mary had a little lamb,
And it fell into the brook,
"What shall I do?" said Mary,
The lamb said: "Get the hook."

"Mr. Bush League."

They are telling about a good joke pulled off by Christie Matthewson. When the crowd of magnates and players was thickest the big twirler sent a bell boy through the corridors of the Waldorf paging, "Mr. Bush League." It nearly caused a riot.

Cleaned up Last Fall.

Adolph Zinn was around the Waldorf making everybody laugh at his funny remarks. He met Fred Clarke walking through Peacock alley, "Hey, Fred, got your six shooter with you?" With that western 'Tex Rickard' hat on you look like you were about to clean up." "No," answered Clarke, "we cleaned up last fall."

Leaning on the Smoke.

Big Ed Walsh dropped into the big throng and he openly averred that he could not remain in the corridor, as the smoke was so strong one could lean on it with the elbow. "Yes, and if it came to a vote," suggested Seymour, "the 'con' thrower would have the magnates lashed to a mast."

Fog With a Hole in It.

"Talking about thick smoke," observed Bill Dahlen, as everybody moved up to the bar, "we had the thickest fog over in Brooklyn the other day that the world has ever seen. It was so thick a man could shove his fist into it, and when he pulled his arm back it would leave a hole."

Pop Anson's Recollections.

"Of all my experience in Cleveland, I recall most vividly the time that Lee Viau struck me out on three pitched balls, at every one of which I swung with all my might,' said "Pop" Anson at the New York meeting.

"The bases were full when I came up, and the crowd began calling on Viau to fan me. "You're two pretty to be in baseball," I said to him. 'You ought to be selling ribbons.' Lee didn't say anything, but shot one up around my neck and I nearly broke my back trying to hit it. The crowd jeered awfully when I swung and missed the next one. I called Viau all the names that a batter ever called a pitcher, but he only smiled and wound up for the third ball. It came up as big as a barn, and I ought to have murdered it, but I was so mad I couldn't see straight, and I missed it by a foot.

"'Now, you big Swede, go and sit down and shut up,' said Viau, and I did just as he told me."

How the Word "Bunt" Was Coined.

"How did the word 'bunt' get into baseball?" somebody asked Arthur Irwin.

"It came from the word 'punt'," said the old-time shortstop. "One day in Boston, back in 1877, I guess it was, Carroll laid the ball down and beat it out. The official organ said the next day.: "A wonderful thing happened in yesterday's game. In the eighth inning Carroll punted the ball and actually beat it to first, amid shrieks of laughter."

"I think I introduced the bunt in the West. I made four in one game in Detroit, all down the third base line. Old Jim White was playing third ,and it was funny to see him try to pick up the bunts and get them across; funny, because Jim could handle a hard hit ball as well as any man in the country."

A Freak Play of 1904.

The talk turned to freak plays, and Jim McGuire told of one that the old-time players appreciated.

"Detroit was playing in Washington one day in 1904," said Jim. "In the seventh inning they got men on first and second with no one out. The ball was hit to the first baseman, and he threw it home to me. The next day we had men on first and second with two out, and the ball was hit to Elberfeld at short. The Kid started to field the ball, but saw that nobody was covering first.

"'Hey, why in thunder didn't you cover the bag?" yelled the Kid.

"'Why, I thought you would probably try to make the play at third, the first baseman said."

JOHNSON HASN'T A CHANCE WITH JEFF, SAYS CORBETT

Gentleman Jim Says That Jeffries Will Easily Beat the Smoke—He Will be in Shape all Right, Too

CORBETT TO TRAIN HIM

(By James J. Corbett, Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.)

New York, Dec. 20.—When James J. Jeffries climbs out of a prize ring on the evening of July 4 next, in some western city, maybe Salt Lake City, or San Francisco, the world will cheer him as the real champion of the country. Between the time that he entered the squared circle and the second that he left it he will have disposed of all the claims of Jack Johnson to the title of the world's champion. The scoffers who spent months wondering whether Jeff had lost his punch or whether he still had his wind will wake up and try and dope out why they ever lost their bearings.

In my days there have been battles in which the contestants have been pretty evenly matched, but when Jim Jeffries faces Jack Johnson in the ring the spectators will see in Jeff a man who was cut out by nature to be a fighter pure and simple and in his opponent a dusky marvel of the science of boxing.

In the set of articles that the two men signed one paragraph called for "45 rounds or more." That was unnecessary, for Jeffries will dispose of his coloured rival long before half of that time has elapsed, and when it is all over the Johnson adherents will realize their idol was up against the marvel of the past decade.

This sounds like climbing into the sky," but there is one advantage that I have over many millions of men. I fought Jeffries twice, and when it comes down to talking from experience it certainly looks as if I had the inside track. While I am enthusiastic over Jeffries I don't want to say that Johnson has no merit. On the contrary, Jack is a good, clever, fast fighter, and entitled to all the praise that he now gets by being the world's champion. But there is one point that you must not overlook. In his career Johnson has not defeated any good man of heavyweight calibre. He won his title by beating Tommy Burns in Australia, and added more glory to his claim by knocking out Stanley Ketchel. They were a pair of good men—but good little men. What chance do you think either Burns or Ketchel would have with Jeffries even now? It would simply be a case of murder.

Johnson Has Only Two Good Blows.

They all chant about the wonderful cleverness of Johnson. Very few realize that he has only two good chances with his right hand. His specialty is a short uppercut, which he works to great advantage. The other is a lightning cross counter which always causes damage. His left arm is of no use to him except for blocking. Now take away those two blows and where does Johnson stand? Not in the running. He may try and improve on his present abilities, but he has been fighting in this train so long that it will be a tough proposition to add to his strength of wallops. I suppose you think it is very funny that I announce to the public just what Johnson's capabilities are? Well, it is quite a story:

When I was in my prime there was one blow that I practiced until I had it down to perfection. That was the right uppercut that Johnson now has. During one of my training stunts Joe Gans visited my quarters, and the game little fighter marveled at the manner in which I could get that right hand working. I demonstrated the blow to Gans and he taught Johnson how to use it. Kind of stealing my stuff, but it's all fair in fighting. That was the blow that really beat John L. Sullivan and gave me the championship. Charley Mitchell also remembers the wallop, for it stopped him in three rounds fifteen years ago. This is digging up ancient history to show that Johnson has nothing alarming in his little book.

Jeff. Greatest Fighter of History.

Now that we have discussed Johnson pro and con it is only fair to say a little about the real fighter. As I said it was my fortune or my misfortune to face the big man from the alfalfa twice in the ring. I want to go on record as saying that he is without odubt the greatest fighter that ever slipped on a glove. In my career I have battled with Sullivan, Fitzsimmons, Sharkey, McCoy and others. These were famous fighters, but in comparison to Jeffries they were a bunch of children. No matter how hard their wallop was it was a gust of wind against a tornado fighting with Jeffries' slam.

As an idea of Jeff's wallop I have only to go back to the night of May 11, nine years ago, at Coney Island. It is only fair in drawing the conclusion to say that Jeff was anything but an experienced pugilist that night, while I had all the scientific points down pretty well. For 22 rounds I pummeled his face at will, and kept out of his way, but in the next session when I stepped in he just shot one over and I was dead to the world.

Three years later in San Francisco I stacked up against the champion and was defeated in ten rounds. The records say ten rounds, but take it from me, I was beaten in the second. During that period Jeff caught me with a right to the ribs that paralyzed me, and if it were not for the fact that I did not want to be known as a quitter I would have jumped out of the ring. That blow felt like a steam piledriver at full speed and I have wondered how I ever got back after the smash. Just think how Johnson will feel when the big fellow tears one of those rib-breakers loose. The negro's friends will say that Jeff will not be able to hit Jack, but I can't see how he can be stopped.

Science no Use Against Him.

There is no science in the world that ca nnow stop Jeff. Johnson may pepper him with right uppercuts, swings, jabs and anything else he knows. The big fellow will just brush them aside and force his way through the barrier and then, "good night Jack." Look over the dope and se what terrible hitters smashed Jeff until they tired and then got knocked out for their trouble. When Jeff whipped Fitz the freckled wonder was some fighter and could hit like the hind leg of a mule. It is the same old story. Jeff would take ten blows to land one, and when he landed it meant the finish.

Johnson never was and never will be a real hard hitter. He probably figures on wearing down Jeffries and taxing his vitality until nature has to cry enough. That is good dope, according to a book, but when it comes down to fighting it won't be worth a hang. Johnson may display all the skill that he has, but when this raging lion rushes he will brush all science aside and slip over a haymaker that will make the coloured fighter turn white.

Jeff won't let his rival plan out the battle. The white champ will go into that ring to end the fifht as quickly as he can, and it will mean a test of strength instead of science. You must also realize that ever since Jeff invited Johnson to come down into the cellar and settle matters he has hated the negro worse than poison.

When Jeff was over on the other side he and I discussed the coming battle from all sides and it is not betraying a secret to say that Jim announced that he would make Johnson sorry that he ever issued a challenge Jim kept in shape durin ghis stay in Europe and came back perfectly fit. After he fulfils his engagements it means retirement to the training camp and then get down to hard work. When I take charge of camp it will be simply for the pleasure in helping Jeff regain his title. And you can put it down that it will be the most strenuous camp that a fighter ever stayed in. This is a big event and when Jeff enters the ring he will be fit and ready.

Jeff Will Be in Shape.

It makes me laugh when I see all the wiseacres shake their heads and say "Jeff will never get back his wind." I have been back two days and you would think that Jeff was being buried so steady is the condolence. Those weak chaps forget that Jeffries is out of the ordinary. He is a combination of our ancestors of the stone days and this century. What would kill an ordinary mortal would not hurt him in the least. A month or two in the Sierras, where the air is pure would get his bellows working perfectly. With those in good shape he could almost stop training for there is no need to build up his power which is tremendous.

One feature of the camp that has never been adopted before will come off several weeks before the battle. Mr. Jeffries and yours truly will strip and fight twenty rounds with no one but the seconds as spectators. This may happen three times or more. And each time it will be a mummer. To save myself for my family I will insist that we use big gloves, but that won't stop the festivities. This will be the severest test that any fighter ever ran up against and at the same time give Jeff a good idea of just how he stands. As a rule when a man is getting into condition he has a bunch of sparring partners who allow him to cut loose while they dodge the blows if able. The bouts between Jeff and myself will be just the reverse. If I can send one over he will have to suffer and if he can give me a tickle to dreamland it's up to me. Take a tip from me. Don't let al ithis talk about Johnson's cleverness worry you for when he stacks against Jeff he will meet a fighter that can give a bearcat nine rounds and beat him in the tenth.

Local Option Winks At Drink

In a license town, drinking is done under rigid laws and in the eyes of the public. Every condition operates to make men restrain themselves. The beverages sold are of honest quality, and pure. In a local option town, men drink adulterated stuff of the worst quality, and drink far more because public opinion is blinded by the law.

Practically, local option banishes the decent bar and tolerates the "blind pig." It winks at the abuse of alcohol and fosters its abuse.

Under local option, the man who profits is the keeper of the "blind pig," who sells adulterated stuff by stealth and contributes naught to the local revenues.

Under license, the community benefits as a whole, for the liquor traffic is regulated, is taxed, and is conducted under the watch of the whole population, with all the restrictions that implies. Local option takes the traffic from the grip of the law and delivers it over to private greed.

Local Option Profits The Few

London Graphic Admits That Unionist Forces Are Lacking In Men Who Appeal to the Imaginations of the Voters — Eight Hundred Stump Speakers Go to Work Next Week For the Liberal Cause.

London, Dec. 23—The Daily Graphic (Lon.) makes the following noteworthy admission to-day. "With the best cause in the world, the Unionists are lacking in men who appeal to the imagination of the electorate. There is also an uneasy feeling abroad that the methods of the Unionists associations are not so effective as they should be."

The Graphic hopes the Unionists whips will find a remedy for the disquieting situation during the Christmas lull.

The Free Trade Union will despatch 800 speakers next Monday in an organized campaign.

Tory anticipations of John Redmond in command of a German fleet in Belfast Lough, and the Cursonian dictum that the House of Commons is "not fit to be left alone," are the subject of much humor in the Radical press and on the platform. The Radicals profess exceeding gladness that it is clearly to be known that every vote for a Unionist is a vote against the popular House.

The Dublin Freeman's Journal London correspondent is responsible for the statement that the Conservatives expect to get only 20 seats in London, whereas last year it was commonly agreed the Radicals would get only ten.

With Lloyd-George, Burns, Grey and other Cabinet Ministers orating, the Ministerialists again had a big pull last night, at any rate in the newspaper space.

John Burns is in excellent form. Addressing his constituents, he described Robt. Blatchford as a "warmongering socialist, and a mischievous wanton firebrand, whom the Tory papers are using to bring about a colossal calamity." Talk about the inefficiency of the navy was rot. Britain would, however, take two lessons from Germany. She would avoid conscription and protection. (Cheers.) Between 30,000 and 60,000 British workmen were unemployed in 1908. Why were there 4,000 bureaus for registering unemployed in Germany if there were "two jobs for every man" in that country? (Laughter.)

Burns then detailed the Government's proposals dealing with unemployment.

Lloyd-George received a reception which can only be described as rapturous in the centre of the tinplate

NEW CENTRAL PRISON SITE IS LOCATED NEAR GUELPH

Province Secures 603 Acres for the Erection of a Model Reformatory on New Lines---To Revolutionize the System of Treating Amenable Prisoners---"Trusties" Will Wear Ordinary Clothes.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—After years of patient enquiry and the examination of in the neighborhood of fifty sites, the Ontario Government has at last settled on a location for the new Central Prison.

It is to be about three miles east of Guelph. The properties secured are five in number, of 210, 130, 50, 130 and 83, acres respectively, making a total area of 603 acres.

The Government considers that it was very fortunate in securing a site which combines almost everything which is required. The transportation facilities are unexcelled. The C.P.R. runs through the property and the G.T.R. skirts it. There are six trains a day each way to Toronto.

The situation is almost at the centre of the criminal population of Ontario, which is placed at about 25 miles west of Toronto. This will involve a minimum cost of transportation of prisoners to the prison.

The River Speed flows through the property, giving ample water supply.

The 210 and 130 acre properties contain limestone, which will be useful in the construction of the prison, and will also be utilized for the employment of the prisoners in supplying crushed stone for the improvement of the roads of the province. The 130 acre property contains sand and gravel in abundance, and an admirable building site. The other block is good land for farming, vegetable gardening and dairy purposes.

Since the project of a new Central Prison was decided on at the session of 1908, the special committee of the House, consisting of Hon. W. J. Hanna, J. P. Downey, J. E. Dargavel, G. Pattinson, Finlay McDiarmid and Col. Hugh Clark, accompanied by Col. R. W. Postlethwaite, inspector of asylums and prisons, have visited prisons at Detroit, Jackson, Cleveland, Chicago, Boston, Bridgewater and Elmira, in search of ideas on prisons, and have visited about fifty of the sites offered for the projected provincial place of detention.

Over 100 properties were offered, but about half of these were thrown out of the running by not being supplied with the essential features of limestone, sand and gravel. The care taken in making the final selection is exemplified by the elaborate report which was drawn up on the seven sites, to which the competition was narrowed in the course of elimination. This goes into minute detail on the suitability of the soil for farming and raising vegetables and fruit, in the classification of the available building material under rock, gravel, etc., in the listing of the transportation facilities and water privileges for power and water supply. The site selected bears the annotation, "excellent," under almost every head.

About 12 to 15 acres will be included in the actual prison enclosure, which will be surrounded with a high wall.

A feature, which may strike the ordinary citizen as somewhat novel, is that the prisoners employed will not wear the regulation prison garb. The Provincial Secretary, whose pet project the prison scheme is, believes that fully 40 per cent. of the inhabitants of the Central can be trusted not to run away. "Where would they run to?" he says. "They have homes to which they hope some day to return, and they won't make themselves wanderers upon the face of the earth for the sake of a little brief freedom. Moreover, they will be given to understand that their terms may be considerably shortened by showing that they are worthy of trust."

Such men, when the prison is built, will be employed without the enclosure in farming, quarrying, etc. For the untrustworthy remainder, as has been mentioned before, there will be an inexorably high wall, within which, however, ample provision is made for open-air employment and recreation.

industry at Llanally, Wales. Apparently he will return another solid phalanx of Radicals in January. Retaliation, said the Chancellor of the Exchequer, was not a policy for a principality. It was a sort of new version of the sermon on the mount. The flourishing state of the tinplate trade showed it was not wanted.

Sir Edward Grey declared that a reformed second chamber was necessary.

The lesser lights on the Conservative side are putting up a good fight, but Balfour's health is being anxiously watched.

Bonar Law, at Jarrow, combatted the statement that tariff reform would ruin the shipbuilding industry. That industry had made marvelous strides in Germany under the German fiscal system. Tariff reformers did not want to stop imports, but to change their character and have more raw materials and less manufactured articles.

George Wyndham at Dover declared that Lloyd-George meant to tax landlords until they were compelled to drive unfair bargains with either a prospective tenant or the town council. Old-age pensions would not have come out of the present Government's budget, but out of the simple expedient of not paying for the navy, trusting to next year.

Change In Cabinet.

London, Dec. 23.—The appointment of Herbert Gladstone, the Home Secretary, as Governor-General of South Africa, leaves a vacancy in the Cabinet, which probably will not be filled unless the Liberals are victorious at the elections.

In the case of victory it is expected that John Burns, President of the Local Government Board, will succeed Mr. Gladstone as Home Secretary. Winston S. Churchill, President of the Board of Trade, will succeed Mr. Burns and Lewis Harcourt, First Commissioner of Works, will replace Mr. Churchill.

Under the new arrangement all these officers will command the same salary, $25,000 yearly.

Zelaya Is Beaten.

Washington, Dec. 23.—At the Navy Department a cablegram from Capt. Shipley of the Des Moines, now at Bluefields, dated at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, says that Gen. Castrillo, four pieces of field artillery, 1,500 rels and one million rounds of ammunition were included in the surrender of the Government forces to the revolutionists.

Zelaya's loss in killed, wounded and captured, is reported as 2,600.

Effect of Coal Miners' Strike.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 23.—Deputy Commissioner of Mines Donkin, a witness in the alleged coal operators' combination enquiry, testified that productions of coal had been lessened at all Nova Scotia collieries during the past season. Since the strike and up to Dec. 1, the Dominion Coal Co.'s production was 760,000 tons less, and Cumberland collieries 240,000 tons less.

Political Murders

Arthur Mason Tippetts Jackson of Nasik, India, Is Killed In Theatre —Christian Youth Stabs Premier Yi of Korea, and a Bomb Kills the Chief of St. Petersburg's Secret Police Yesterday.

Bombay, British India, Dec. 23.—Arthur Mason Tippetts Jackson, chief magistrate of Nasik, in the Presidency of Bombay, was assassinated by a native which attending a theatrical performance Tuesday night. The motive is supposed to have been revenge upon the magistrate who had recently sentenced a criminal to life imprisonment. Nasik is a hotbed of sedition. Jackson had been in the British Indian service since 1900.

The outrage cannot fail to increase the ever-present fear of an uprising in India. Attempts have been made in Indian against the lives of Lord Minto, Lord Kitchener, Sir Andrew Fraser, and other British officials.

Premier Yi of Korea Stabbed.

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 23.—Premier Yi, the head of the Korean Cabinet, was stabbed and fatally wounded yesterday by a Korean, aged 20, a young Christian, for many years a resident of America. The Premier was riding in his jinricksha, when the assassin come up with a long kitchen knife in his hand. He drove this twice into the abdomen of the Premier, and once into the lung. The assassin then turned on the Premier's servant whom he instantly killed. He was immediately arrested.

Yi was always credited with fostering anti-Japanese sentiment in Korea. He bitterly opposed the faction among the Koreans which favored annexation to Japan, and refused to present a petition for a constitution to the Korean Emperor.

Yi was formerly Minister of Education in the Korean Cabinet and became Prime Minister in May, 1907. His efforts to carry out his policies met with continual opposition and intrigue.

Russian Chief of Secret Police Killed.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 23.—Col. Karpoff, chief of the secret police of St. Petersburg, was early yesterday, enticed to a modest apartment in a remote street of the Viborg district and there was blown to pieces by a bomb exploded supposedly by his host, one Michael Vosskressensky, who had leased the rooms a few days before.

The murderer rushed into the street and was captured. An assistant of Karpoff's was severely injured.

There have been several convictions of bomb-makers recently.

THE MUNICIPAL POT IS BOILING IN HAVELOCK NOW

Candidates for the Various Municipal Offices are Beginning to Get Busy.

OTHER HAVELOCK NEWS

Special to The Examiner.

Havelock, Dec. 221.—Mr. Bradshaw, of Peterborough, organizer for the I. O.F., was in town this week on business

Miss Julia Choate, of Peterborough, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Frank Brinton is visiting with friends in Roseneath.

The sad death occurred on Thursday night at 10 o'clock of Mr. Jas. Keene, who resides about two miles out of Havelock, and who formerly resided in town where he carried on a livery business. Deceased apparently was in the best of health and had been engaged during the day drawing in wood to the village. It was about five o'clock when he delivered the third load of wood to Mr. J. D. Foster, who resides at the west end of the town, where he was seized with a paralytic stroke. He as at once (when discovered) hurriedly conveyed to Dr. Holdcroft's office, where everything possible was done. He was taken to his home, but only rallied a few hours, never regaining consciousness. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, two daughters and one son, namely, Mrs. Jas. THE CASE OF THE CARVERS

By Frank Herbert O'Hara

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The pretty little peaches-and-cream wife of Carver dropped her evening paper with a murmur of dainty horror. Carver raised his eyes from the sporting page of his own daily and turned them inquiringly toward the golden-haired vision in pink.

"I think it's perfectly dreadful!" she exclaimed. "Don't you, Dick?"

"Of course. What is it?" he asked, smiling.

"Just to think of a man's being so inconsistent and false and—and cruel," young Mrs. Carver went on.

Carver's smile faded. His eyebrows lifted a trifle. Then he said:

"I don't know what you mean."

He said that aloud. To himself he kept musing, "I wonder—?"

"Didn't you read it?" queried she, indicating with a delicate forefinger an article in the paper. "This Afferton divorce case, you know. Just think—if you can!—of a man's doing anything like that. I don't believe a man could ever have loved a girl and then—Oh, it's shocking! And they hadn't been married a year; were hardly out of their honeymoon—like us, Dick."

Carver shook his head deprecatingly and fidgeted at his smoking jacket and then remarked:

"Who was the other girl? Chorus or—"

"Then you did read it?"

"No—er—why, I—I glanced at the headlines."

The big purple eyes across the table were becoming dim with an opalescent mist.

"Oh-h-h, Dick, Dick!" (Her voice was wavering dangerously.) "Are many men like that? You seem to—Oh, you aren't surprised, you aren't shocked—Dick!"

"Why, you silly dear," Carver laughed, jumping to her side and folding her tenderly in his arms. "Nonsense! Why, you just said yourself it was our honeymoon. You don't know how much I love you, girl. I could not begin to tell you. Just this morning I was telling Jack Trent what real happiness was like. Jack seemed sort of down and out with the blues. I told him he ought to get married—ought to get a little wife like mine."

"Jack always wanted me, I guess, even away back when we were children. And he made a game fight, didn't he?"

She laughed softly as she pressed his hand.

"But he didn't get you!" said Carver happily, returning the pressure.

Next morning, as he was being whirled officeward on an L limited, he rehearsed many times the days of his courtship and then the marriage and their honeymoon, and after that, the home life together, and he vowed that he would never even speak to Maisie again. He had just been out for a good time occasionally. He had meant no harm, surely no disloyalty to the pretty little peaches-and-cream wife in the suburbs. But from now on, there was to be no Maisie, no reunions with the boys—nothing.

All day Carver kept thinking of the waiting wife. He left early as possible that afternoon, and after visiting a confectioner for a box of her favorite bitter-sweets and a florist for a bunch of her adored red roses, he was on his way back to her, impatient as he never before had been to clasp her again in his embrace.

He bounded up the steps three at a time. He meant to rush in and surprise her. But the door was locked. His face fell. He had not thought of the possibility of her absence. Doubtless she did not look for him so soon. She never had failed to meet him before. He put down the candy and flowers found his key, unlocked the door. How lonesome the rooms seemed!

He gazed around, wondering somewhat. His eyes fell upon a letter lying on the library table. He picked it up and found it addressed to him in her writing. His brow wrinkled.

"I wonder what the devil—"

In a moment his eyes were skimming rapidly over the lines of large, [illegible] characters. This is lines sale.

"Dear old Dick: The [illegible] I am. You will never know how much it has pained me. But's [illegible] love you. Somehow that sounds blunt and cruel, but it is the truth. I don't suppose I ever loved you, though I used to think I did. [illegible] it was Dick! I know I shall be so as soon as we can arrange matters honorably and quietly. I must always have loved me always, though he's been a perfect brick since my marriage and as still as a brick, too. When I am Mrs. Jack Trent, I know I shall be happier and I know you will be just as happy. You men are so inconstant, you know. Good-by, dear boy!"

Carver stood a long time staring dumbly at the note. Then he crumpled it slowly and tossed it from him. There was a newspaper on the table. He saw the headline, "Mrs. Afferton Says Husband Was Unfaithful." Then Carver laughed a dry, mirthless laugh.

He looked wistfully at the love-tokens he had brought. Then he turned quickly, with a queer little lump in his throat somewhere and went to the telephone. After a time:

"Yes? Oh, yes; this is Dick, Maisie. Go to the show to-night? All right! By the way, got a box of bitter-sweets for you. Knew you liked 'em. Uh-huh! And how do red roses strike you? Ha, ha! Yes, eight sure!"

The KITCHEN CABINET

THE GIFT OF TONGUES.

ED from the underworld, the sun
Fills all the land with light.
His flamed beams are dancing-balls
For winged things' delight.
Then change—the skies fling thunder-bolts
And winds in awful fray;
And lightning's flame—the gift of tongues
That first taught men to pray.

Oh, youth, oh morning-time of life!
Like motes we dance and play,
Unheeding, in the sunshine
Of life's short summer day.
Then, after years bring storm and stress;
Care-clouds obscure the day,
And through them dart the lights of faith
That teach us how to pray.

With Roast Chicken.

There is nothing original and startling about roast chicken, but inasmuch as there is nothing nicer, and we cannot very well do without it often, let us serve it with as much variety as possible.

For instance, surround it with fried balls made after this recipe: Mix together finely chopped cold ham (fat and lean) and bread crumbs in the proportion of four ounces of meat to two of bread. Add the grated rind of one-quarter lemon to this amount; season well, and add one egg to make the paste right consistency. Fry in hot, deep fat and arrange on the platter around the chicken.

In chicken pies—remember to have the oven hot when it is first put in so that the pastry will rise and set, paradoxically. Afterwards the oven can be cooled, or the meat put into a cooler spot, but the pastry will be soggy if the oven be cool at first. A slice or two of eggs will help support the top crust, and the meat should be well piled up in the middle.

Hint for Decoration.

For a luncheon or party where there is an attempt at table color decoration it is a good idea to hang from the chandelier a large, wet sponge. Cover the sponge with violets, carnations, roses, or any appropriate flower. Or even ferns will do if the green effect is desired. The round ball of bloom is attractive, and is better than the large central bouquet which hides the view. Indeed, in most of the restaurants and hotels where table decoration is a study, the high centerpiece is entirely done away with.

An Optical Illusion.

Did you ever try to see through your hand? By following these directions you may at least make yourself believe you are looking right through the palm. Cut of a piece of pasteboard about five inches square roll a tube. Have one end just large enough to fit around the eye, and the other a little smaller. Take the tube between the thumb and fingers of the right hand; put the larger end to your eye, and press your left hand against the smaller end. Keep both eyes open. Objects beyond the left hand will be plainly visible, and there will appear to be a hole through the center of the palm. It is the uncovered left eye which is actually doing all the seeing, but so far as appearances go, it will seem as if the right eye were seeing, right straight through the left hand.

Does Local Option do the Work?

A Toronto Newspaper Says that—

It has closed the hotels in the smaller places, and obliged visitors and travellers to seek accommodation in private houses, and meals at the general store.

It has driven business to the licensed towns.

If a local option town is "looking up," it's because it's on its back."

It has caused liquor to invade the home—in quantity.

It has encouraged the bottle habit and solitary tippling.

It has caused young men to drink who never drank before. Boozing clubs import the stuff from the nearest wet town—every dry town gets its supply from the the nearest wet one—and the police have more disorder to quell, because these drinking bouts develop into two or three day orgies.

It has caused bad, adulterated liquors to be sold, and more "hard stuff" than beer to be drunk.

It has multiplied blind pigs. No license fee is paid the Government, and the liquor is cheap and nasty.

It has produced a contraband trade of large proportions.

VOTE AGAINST LOCAL OPTION, IT WILL NOT SUIT YOU.

WHEN MOTHER WAVES GOOD-BYE

OOD-BYE, son; got your rubbers on?
Goody-bye; take care of Kate.
No, don't run, sister; lots of time;
It's only half past eight."

We hear this, sis and I,
When mother waves good-bye.

"Wait! you forgot your spelling-book.
And, son, there is the note
Excusing sister's absence
Last Friday, with sore throat."

Each day she waves good-bye,
And we wave, sis and I.

"Good-bye; be nice, sweet children,
And do you understand
That you must come straight home from school
Kate, take your brother's hand."

Once, I saw mother cry;
And when I asked her why?
"I shall not have my babies long,"
She said, "Good-bye! good-bye!"

A Bay-Leaf.

So many recipes contain this: "Add a bay-leaf," and yet many a cook has never seen one, and considers it a fad of the cook-book writer, and leaves it out. This is as silly as it is unnecessary. The bay leaf is a real advantage to any stew or soup. It imparts a country tang which nothing else will do. Not a spice, not a strong flavor, just a hint of the herb. It is cheap, easily obtained at any grocer's the year round, and should be in every pantry.

Shrimp in Gelatine.

A pretty salad for an occasion where pink is the predominant color, is made of shrimps stiffened in pink gelatine. Before the gelatine is firm, add the shrimps. Serve when cold on lettuce with mayonnaise. The gelatine with no fruit flavor is best.

Pepper.

Shall we let the children eat pepper? The consensus of opinion by physicians and authorities on diet answers no. They say that pepper retards digestion, due to the unwonted stimulant acting on the sensitive glands of the stomach.

Angel-Child Cookies.

Two eggs, one cup sugar and a half cup butter. Beat well. Add a half spoon vanilla flavoring, two spoons baking powder and flour to make a soft batter. Cut thin, and bake quickly.

Olive Carter Strother.

The worst thing about doing some men a good turn is that they seem to think they deserve another.

Youthful Japanese Horseman.

Tour Tateishi, 14 years old, son of a prominent lawyer in Fushima city, is appointed by the government to proceed to Budapest, Austria Hungary. The young lad is to learn the art of horse riding, of which he is an expert. All his expenses will be paid by the department of agriculture and commerce.

The boy's mother, a bright and courageous woman, filled with Samurai spirit, was so pleased with the appointment that on the evening of the son's departure for Tokyo she invited a large number of his young friends in honor of her son and bade him farewell at the railroad station in the cheerful unconcerned way just as if her son was going for a few days' visit instead of to stay in Europe for three years.

CHILDREN'S ASTRONOMER.

Miss Mary Proctor Holds Small Folk Spellbound With Stories of Starland.

Miss Mary Proctor, daughter of the late Mr. Richard A. Proctor, the eminent astronomer, is herself known as the "popularizer of astronomy." She has given over a thousand lectures in this country and Canada, which she made attractive to the young and old, to children and adults, and specially succeeded in attracting children and in holding their attention spellbound while she told them in an easily understandable way of the wonders of starland or of the sun or the moon.

Miss Proctor was born in Ireland, but has made her home in America. Familiar from her early youth with astronomy through being an intelligent helper to her father, it never entered her mind to study this fascinating science with a view to imparting her knowledge to others. She began lecturing almost by an accident. When the World's fair was held in Chicago in 1893 Mrs. Potter Palmer published an article asking women to send her original ideas about entertaining children. Miss Proctor explained her idea about lectures which she proposed to give in the children building in the exhibition grounds and which should attract the children of America.

Mrs. Potter Palmer was delighted with this idea, and already at Miss Proctor's first lecture clever agents were quick in recognizing that a new star in the lecture world had arisen and were anxious to engage her for lecture tours. Visitors to the World's fair will remember that the children's building was crowded every time a lecture was given by Miss Proctor, and it did not matter if she took "the brownies up to the sky" or spoke pleasantly of the "wonders of starland," for she understood how to touch a responsive chord in her small listeners' imagination, and she had seldom, if ever, to complain of inattention in her youthful audiences.

Miss Proctor has also written two books for children which command a ready sale—"Stories of Starland" and "Giant Sun and His Family." It is small wonder, therefore, that she is called the "children's astronomer," for she has succeeded, where so many have failed, to come down from a lofty observatory to the children's intelligence and to take them up with her into the heavens, where a new world of wonders awaits the little people's pleasure.

Machine Hemstitching.

Few women seem to know that hemstitching can be done on the machine and done more evenly than any but an expert could accomplish by hand. It makes the prettiest finish for almost anything that must be hemmed at all and is really not a bit more work after the threads are drawn than to put in a plain hem. It is a pleasure to have one's best sheets, pillowcases and underwear hemstitched when it can be done without the tedious trial to the eyesight and the nerves that the handwork does.

To do it draw the threads and baste the hem over almost to the top of the drawn threads. Use a very fine needle, have both upper and lower tensions unusually tight and the stitch of medium length. Then stitch just as near the edge of the hem as possible. Remove bastings and draw the hem carefully down to the bottom of the drawn tucks. Hemstitched tucks are made exactly in the same way. If, however, you wish to do the work by hand after the threads are drawn and the hems basted run it through the machine as close to the edge of the hem as you can without having the needle threaded. The result is a row of perforations very easy to follow, and your work will be perfectly even without the labor of counting stitches.

Skirt Hanging Made Easy.

To turn up evenly the bottom of a skirt for hemming try this method: Place the end of a yardstick on the floor close to the skirt and at the top of the stick place a pin in the skirt. Move the yardstick little by little around the body, placing a pin in skirt at top edge of stick each time it is set on the floor. After going thus all around the skirt lay it on a bed and place one end of the yardstick at the line of pins, and at the lower part of the skirt place a pin as far from the end of yardstick as desired around in this manner, then turn the hem at new line of pins and baste it. This method insures a perfect hanging skirt and makes it possible to hang a skirt on one's own person unaided and without difficulty.—National Magazine.

WEAK LUNGS, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, HAWKING.

Even Though Head and Throat Are Diseased From Neglected Colds, Cure is Certain.

Hundreds die of chronic catarrh that could be cured by persevering with a remedy of real merit. Look for these symptoms in your own case—they all mean Catarrh in some form:

"Is your voice rough?"
"Do you cough up phlegm?"
"Is your nose stuffed up?"
"Do you snore at night?"
"Does your nose itch and burn?"
"Have you frontal headaches?"
"Do your eyes pain?"
"Is it a dryness in your throat?"
"Do you sneeze, hawk, cough?"
"Have you droppings in throat?"
"Are you losing sense of taste?"
"Have you stomach nausea?"

Catarrh has been pronounced a disease caused and maintained by germs, and, like other diseases where germs are present, is impossible to be cured by the ordinary constitutional medicines.

Hundreds of different remedies have been tried. Inhalers which produced steam, vapors and sprays were introduced, but turned out useless, as the vapor condensed and the medicaments were left deposited in the large bronchial tubes long before the air reached the smaller cells of the lungs.

Catarrhozone

is the only germicide ever found volatile enough to impregnate every particle of air breathed, yet leaving it FREE from moisture, thus enabling this powerful germ destroyer to reach every part of the air passages in the head, throat, and lungs, where it at once kills the bacilli that cause catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, colds, etc.

It cures by inhalation, and because it cannot fail to reach the seat of the disease. It is guaranteed, and incurs not the slightest danger of inconvenience to the patient.

BEGIN TREATMENT NOW.

Catarrhozone is absolutely certain to reach the source of the disease. It possesses marvelous healing properties, and quickly restores the raw, congested membranes to a normal, healthy condition. In a few breaths it clears away all foul mucous discharges, and quickly allays coughing, headache, pain over the eyes, and the manifold unpleasant symptoms of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, coughing, sore throat and colds.

QUICK CURE IS GUARANTEED

Now, bear in mind, you breathe Catarrhozone. Do you not think this a rational method of treatment—a reasonable way of reaching the diseased surfaces, which lie so far in the cavity of the body or of the head that they can be reached in no other way?

You cannot possibly fail to obtain quick cure if you will use Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment, absolutely guaranteed, costs $1.00, smaller size, 50c., at all dealers in medicine.

MOTHER AND CHILD.

One of the most difficult things for a mother to understand is the existence in her child of characteristics fundamentally different from her own.

Every child that is born into the world bears the burden of the mistakes and follies of his ancestors written indelibly in the tissue of his body and the limitations of his brain.

Every child is an unconscious criticism upon his parents. He is the sum total of their blunders, and the white slate of his nature carries many black strokes against their management of his life.

Many so called "naughty children" are only cases of unfortunate little ones trying to tell to their parents in the only language they can command that their bodies are fatigued and their minds overwrought.

It is a wonderful thing that children are born into the world with perfect faith in their parents. This faith is one of the most beautiful gifts a kind God has bestowed upon them to make their children happy.

Lack of thought is often at the root of our mistakes in this world. Even our most serious mistakes, over which we have prayed in anguish, could in all probability have been averted if we had given to our problems a little gift of time and thought.

HIGH SOUNDING NAMES.

Christening the Babies of a Noble Family—Genealogical Revival.

Fashions in names, especially feminine, come and go and come again, sometimes for some traceable reason, usually with none. Not many years ago there was in the United States a marked revival, generally thought to be due to the recent activities in research of genealogically inclined "daughters" and "descendants," of the names popular among our foremothers which had previously for a long while been considered commonplace.

Nurseries and kindergartens showed a crop of quaintly reminiscent little Susans, Ruths, Eunices, Priscillas, Julias and Dorothys. This fashion fortunately still prevails, but not alone. A few years ago a fancy was imported from England for "jewel names," and, although it never became so popular here as there, it found response in a fairly frequent bestowal of such names as Pearl, Ruby, Jacinth, Crystal, Garnet, Beryl, Emerald or Esmeralda and even an occasional Diamond.

For the last two years flower names have caught the favor of young English mothers in fashionable society and the chronicles of British "nobility and gentry" show many christenings by the names of Violet, Lily, Rose and Myrtle, and not a few by lesser names less familiar, such as Iris, Ivy, Daphne, Laurel, Lavender, Fuchsia, Heatherbell and Verbena.

The Duchess of Sutherland has a daughter Lady Rosemary Millicent Leveson-Gower, and Lady Angela Forbes named her little girl Marigold.

Not all these names, despite their pleasantly flowerlike suggestion, can be accounted successful, but the little maids who bear them are luckier than some of their elder sisters, named when the fashion of odd names from old Welsh, Scotch or Saxon chronicles or the poets of even parental invention were popular.

The English society reporter for the last two or three seasons has had to record the doings of debutantes bearing distinguished surnames, prefaced by such disconcerting Christian—rather un-Christian—names as Venetia, Agnes, Ela, Linnie, Eldrydd, Dulcibella, Ganfreda, Laline, Morwenna and Leigarde.

One noble family, especially the Tollemaches, name their babies queerly. Rhona, Mariota, Artemisia, Elfeyda, Hersilia and Lyonesse are far enough from the usual, but they have done worse. Even a princess royal might have been excused for a righteous howl of protest at the font had she had to submit, as did one poor infant Tollemache, to being christened by such an appalling sequence as Lyoncella Fredgunda Cuthberga Ethelwytha Ideth Ysabel Grace Monica Oranella Plantagenet.

A Smart Frock.

cinnamon, with a darker shade of the same color used for the vest, which is embroidered in dull gold.

The White Feather.

The origin of the expression "Show the white feather" is to be found in the fact that a pure blooded gamecock has no white in its plumage. The purest blooded birds are the best fighters.

The Charter Oak.

That famous landmark of the city of Hartford, Conn., the Charter oak, was blown down Aug. 20, 1856, during a fierce storm which prevailed in that city and section.

A BOWER OF ROSES.

An Original Decoration For a Young Girl's Room.

Quite the daintiest and sweetest room seen for a long time was the original idea of a charming girl who will make her bow to society this winter. The furniture in the room, fortunately for her scheme, was white, so there was nothing to do but give the pieces a fresh coat of ivory white enamel paint. The chairs, spindled legged affairs, had their seats upholstered in a pink brocaded silk patterned with rosebuds. The dressing table was the girl's next care. The mirror, oval in shape, was wreathed with the most natural looking pink paper roses mingled with artificial rose leaves. Even the dressing table scarf was of paper, a white crape variety scattered with pink roses being used. And the tiny pincushion was of this same paper, caught at the corners with chous of pink pompadour ribbon. The pink candles in the crystal holders had shades of thin cardboard completely covered with dainty little paper roses.

The walls were hung with an ivory white paper in satin striped colonial design. The door was treated to several coats of white paint, the last one being enameled, and when three good sized pink cotton rugs were laid on the floor the effect was very attractive.

Of course there was a window seat, and in this instance the covering and cushions were of cream cretonne, with a sprinkling of pink roses. The window had sash curtains of fine, white cheesecloth stenciled with a rose pattern. But the most unique feature of this bower of roses was the window hanging of ropes and paper roses and foliage, which fell in graceful garlands halfway down the casement. The tea table was also draped with rose flowered paper, but the wisdom of this piece of decoration is to be questioned, for tea tables are apt to feel the effects of an overturned cup of tea.

The UPLIFT of the HOMELESS BOY

MAKING Men of Little Chaps Who Have No Mothers to Guide Them and Who Face the Big Battle Backed Only by Their Own Sharp Wits and Sturdy Muscles.

The Pool Table Is Made to Pay for Shoes

BY WILLIAM ALLEN JOHNSTON.

NEW YORK, Saturday.

IF the urchin who yells "Paper! Paper! Here y'are, mister!" and swiftly pockets your penny should flash in your face a savings bank book with a balance of several hundred dollars, you need not be greatly surprised. If some time you are hard up and need a quick loan to tide over the business day—why, just consult your office boy!

Over at the West Side Boys' Lodging House, at No. 225 West Thirty-fifth street, they are teaching homeless youngsters how to save. It is an interesting experiment on interesting subjects, and the results are quite remarkable, not alone in the accumulation of fat bank accounts, but, what is more to the point, in the development of character and ambition among boys who have no homes to help them, no parents to guide them, and who, backed only by their own sharp wits and sturdy muscles, are holding their own in the battle of life in a big city.

They are waifs of the streets, these boys. About fifty per cent are orphans and about half as many half orphans; the others are homeless for one reason or another, in most instances because of a stepmother who can't find a place in her heart for another woman's offspring.

Some are city boys; a considerable number come from the country, "freighting it" in from the mill towns of New England, from the coal towns of Pennsylvania, from as far away as Texas. The irresistible magnet of New York city draws them, just as it attracts men. There's a "chance" here.

How do they find the Boys' Lodging House? Why, policemen bring them in, the Children's Aid Society sends them, but, principally, they are introduced by other boys, already inmates of the home. Every other night or so a waif is led to the desk and stands there, hungry and hopeful.

"Say," says his sponsor. "Here's a kid wot y' can look over. He's been livin' in a cellar on Grand street. I t'ink he's all right!"

In all likelihood the new applicant is admitted and then the problem—quite a problem—of his uplift is worked out.

In the first place, the home in itself is admirable in every way. It is modern in appointments—built in 1903 by John Jacob Astor—and looks more like a club than a lodging house. In front there's a spacious reading and lounging room, with books, magazines, games and a piano and pool table. To the rear is the dining room, which on certain nights is turned into a gymnasium. Below the first floor are wash rooms, swimming pool and a complete steam laundry; up stairs are the dormitories.

For board, lodging and laundry the older boys—sixteen to eighteen years—pay $1.50 a week. Boys under sixteen pay $1.05. Transient rates are:—Lodging, five cents a bed; meals, five cents each.

At these low rates—together with the free fare and clothing that must be furnished—the home, of course, cannot pay expenses. Last year the total expenses were $9,277.28, and the income was only $3,774.05. Seven thousand and ninety-five lodgings and 12,731 meals were furnished free.

To Support Itself.

But the home aims, to the highest possible extent, to be self-supporting—not for its own interests so much as for the sake of the boys. They must be taught to be self-supporting; and the way—the main way—to bring this about is to teach them to save.

That, indeed, is the central problem, the one that the superintendent, Mr. Hennefrund, and the bookkeeper, Mr. Patterson, face continually and struggle hardest with.

First of all, employment must be found for the newcomer. Advertising in the daily papers has been tried this year with splendid success. Through this means 532 boys were placed during the eight months ended October 1.

Then the wage earners must be clothed properly at the start. Feet that trudge for work, run errands, help sell newspapers, must be well shod. New shoes are a first consideration.

It is rather a clever scheme they have of making the pool table pay for these shoes. A cent a cue is the pool table rate and this income is set aside, after the upkeep expense of the table is subtracted, as a fund for shoes. A second hand dealer sells them for seventy-five cents a pair.

A Corner of the Spacious Reading and Lounging Room

Last year Mr. Hennefrund tried the scheme of offering large interest on deposits. He proposed to give twenty per cent for the three months before Christmas on all deposits of $25 and over. It worked well. There were many deposits of the required amount and they were all afterward transferred to the savings bank. This interest money, by the way, came out of Mr. Hennefrund's own pocket.

There is one vital difference between these homeless, self-dependent boys and those reared in prosperous homes:—They know the value of a penny—they fight so hard to earn each one—and that's a kind of knowledge that dependent boys never learn till they grow to be men, often never learn at all.

Appeals to Thrift.

So it is easier to teach these boys the savings bank idea. It appeals to their thrifty heads. Once let them be shown, by example, that money earns money and little further urging is necessary. The trouble is to start them, to get them up to the interest bearing point.

Said one youngster, noting his interest accumulation, and tapping his deposit book:—"Hully Gee! Dis t'ing works while I sleep. I'm on!"

Last year the savings deposits in the home reached $1,079.79. This year the amount will exceed $3,000. In the month of October $135 was deposited. This refers, of course, only to deposits at the home. Many of the boys have individual savings bank accounts of more than one hundred dollars, but all of them

The Dining Room Where Meals Are Served for Five Cents Each

Then underwear, purchased in wholesale lots, is dispensed at thirty-eight cents a suit. Hats, stockings, suits and overcoats are also to be had at reduced prices. All these articles are sold to the boys. Only shoes are on the charitable list, and, if at all possible, the price of them is taken out of the newcomer's future earnings.

Messrs. Hennefrund and Patterson strive earnestly to induce each boy to maintain a savings account, first with the home, later with some savings bank at four per cent rate of interest.

A struggle takes place each Saturday night, when the boys come home with their week's earnings. They are boys and money burns in their pockets, just as it does in the pockets of all other boys of high and low degree. They are not inclined to save it.

Mr. Hennefrund, a young man who combines with the genial and spiritual demeanor and self-sacrificing spirit of the social worker a vast amount of hard headed practical knowledge—he was once a newsboy himself—gives general talks on the advisability of saving. Then he and Mr. Patterson roll up their sleeves and go after each individual.

Here's "Red" Sweeney, for instance. "Red" has all of $4 in his pocket, but he is inclined only to deposit $2. Thence follows an argument, swiftly, shrewdly given by both sides.

"I want to buy a necktie," says "Red."

"You do not," says Mr. Patterson. "You bought a hire one last week."

"I need a hat," says "Red."

"All right," says Mr. Patterson, "I'll charge it. Come over with $3 now. A dollar you can keep," and the upshot is that "Red" deposits $3 and has soon forgotten the matter in a game of pool. First, however, he peered through the grating before the cashier's window and saw that Patterson put down the right amount.

started to save at the home.

"The trouble is," says Mr. Patterson, "that once they get the bit—of this savings idea—in their teeth they run away with it. They become regular misers. They'll sponge on you, if you'll let them, just like the shiftless boys. And they'll try to beat me before my very eyes and at my own game—of bookkeeping."

There are a few shiftless boys in the home, but the percentage is kept down pretty well. If a boy evades employment he is made to work within the home for his board and lodging. Then they have a scheme of making each inmate pay for his meals. Tickets are issued at the cashier's desk for every meal. If a boy has credit at the desk—a deposit account—or the requisite nickel, he gets a green ticket, which entitles him to a seat in the dining room and all he can eat. If, however, he is "broke" as to cash and credit, he receives a much despised red ticket which admits him to a small room in which he finds only a shelf to eat from and where he can have but one helping.

"Appetite is a vulnerable point with them," says Mr. Hennefrund. "Most of them have a capacity of several liberal helpings. Cutting them down to one is an excellent way to stir up their energies."

Messrs. Hennefrund and Patterson have each had experience teaching rich boys and goody-goody boys, and they prefer, they say, to handle these untutored waifs and wanderers. They are more amenable to discipline and you can generally reach and hold them with sympathy and kindness, in both of which possessions their lives have been sadly lacking.

Some cases are very pitiful. There's the one of Leon Wesley, who died in a hospital last year.

He was a courageous, hard working, thrifty little chap, suffering all the time with a serious malady, but never complaining about it. He was so sunshiny—in fact, so confident of speedy good health—that he did not reach the hospital until it was too late.

Mr. Patterson received word one afternoon that the little sufferer was dying and hurried to his cot. Even then Leon was cheerful. He had a firm belief in the efficacy of a little lemon juice and sugar, which had always cured his colds, and which he believed was good for every ailment. He had pleaded so hard for it that at last, to quiet him, the nurse gave him his "dose."

His Friend Patterson.

He was very optimistic as his friend Mr. Patterson sat down by his cot. "Aw, I t'ink I'll be up in a week," said he.

And then Mr. Patterson told him the truth, very simply and tearfully.

The boy listened with wide open eyes. "Is dat straight?" he asked, sharply. He seemed to find the answer in Mr. Patterson's eyes and was silent. "So, I'm going to chuck it, eh?" he said finally. "Well, all right." He closed his eyes.

"Shall I let your mother know?" asked Patterson. The boy opened his eyes quickly.

"Naw! Naw!" he said earnestly. "Don't say a t'ing. Don't never let her know."

"Why not?"

"Well, I'll tell you. I don't t'ink she is my mother. She always said she was, but I t'ink she lied. If she was she wouldn't 'a' treated me so mean."

"Old Man" Patterson, as they call him behind his back, knows boys. He is a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, and has tutored and taught all his life; moreover, he has raised "two broods" of children. This was all good experience, but nothing like his present one. He knows boys now because he deals with boys who know men.

They are sharp, shrewd, wily, these youngsters. They are used to a daily battle of wits and are constantly prepared for another. Moreover, they are the shrewdest, quickest judges of human nature.

"Let a new boy come in," says Mr. Patterson, "and they size him up in a minute; quite often I take my cue from them. At first they are silent. Then a remark rings out and—dash! It echoes over the room, a unanimous opinion. Generally that boy gets his nickname then and there."

Mr. Patterson keeps a prodigious set of books, as is natural when amounts are drawn out in pennies, and debits made in nickels—keeps them carefully, too. He is compelled to. If he makes the mistake of a penny—too little—he hears of it immediately.

Suspicion is a chief characteristic with these boys. Some time is required to disarm them. Just recently Mr. Patterson, "eavesdropping" in the washroom, overheard the following conversation:—

"Say," said one voice, "what did you tell me yow was broke for when I asked you for a nickel dis mornin'?"

"I was broke."

"Come off! I seen you in a Broadway car."

"Well, Patterson loaned me a nickel."

"Out of his own pocket?"

"Sure."

"He did not."

"I seen him."

"Den he tapped de drawer first. Say, what chance! Him standin' dere all day wid a cash draw er right under his fist. Aw, I guess he don't pull down on it, eh? Ask me."

As soon as the boys earn good living salaries they are expected to leave the home. Pride and ambition lead them to depart generally before the superintendent brings up the subject. Quite often they will club together and take furnished rooms. Some marry.

Just as soon as "Mike" Kelley, printer's assistant, was raised to $12 a week he led the girl of his choice to the altar and started life in a tiny flat. A week or so later he called at the home.

Mike is under five feet in height, but he was taller with importance as he came in. He led several of his friends over to the window.

His Wife, To Be Sure.

"Pipe de girl!" said he, pointing to a little woman standing obediently on the sidewalk and smiling back at them.

"Who is she, Mike?" they asked.

"Who is she? Dat's me wife!" He tapped his chest proudly.

Most of the boys who leave come back to visit the home. It is still "home" to them, the only one many of them ever knew. One comes all the way from Toronto each year, another from Ohio.

Two years ago a "graduate" returned after twenty-five years' absence and delivered an impressive address. He is to-day United States Senator O'Neill, of Idaho. Other distinguished "graduates" of this and other boys' lodging houses in New York include a Governor of a State, a Governor of a Territory, two Representatives, seven State legislators and a long list of physicians, lawyers, bankers, engineers, college professors, clergymen, &c.

There are several talented individuals in the home to-day. Who knows what the future has in store for them?

There's Charles Shoonman, writer of popular songs, including "Jimmy Mine" and others; two are being sung on the vaudeville stage. Then there's "Scotty"—just "Scotty"—of whom I get his own modest description:—"Late of Glasgow, Scotland, the world's undefeated champion of rope wrestlers, will challenge any man alive to bind me with ten yards of clothesline and will guarantee to free myself in the space of three minutes."

There are other interesting types in the West Side Boys' Lodging House. The past life, the struggles, the aspirations of every boy would make a good story in itself; and "Old Man" Patterson, shrewd, painstaking, ceaselessly busy, is a character one does not meet every day. I would earnestly recommend an evening there for all of those who are tired of the theatre and its puppets, and who find delight and refreshment in the study of genuine, vivid, boyish human nature.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 23.—Admitting that he saw more than $1,000,000 slip from his grasp in his Nevada mining ventures, Nat C. Goodwin, when seen yesterday at his seaside home at Santa Monica, said he had washed his hands of mining enterprises in which there is an element of stock speculation.

TWO MEN HELD.

Sectionmen Charged With Murder of Young Dyson.

North Bay, Ont., Dec. 23.—Two sectionmen named Morin and Cornish were arrested by Provincial Constables Fred and Jerry Lefebvre Tuesday night, charged with the murder of W. J. Dyson, the T. & N. O. Railway night operator at Redwater. The prisoners were brought to North Bay on a special train early yesterday morning.

Cornish's story of the tragedy is that he had words with Dyson over orders given by the latter to unload a car of coal. The quarrel resulted in a fight, and Dyson threw Cornish on the floor and was pounding him when Morin rushed in with a heavy club and struck Dyson repeatedly over the head until he rolled over unconscious and bleeding on the floor. Cornish and Morin then returned to their shack, where they remained until arrested.

Morin does not deny using the club, and states he was only helping his chum, with no thought of causing death. Morin is 21 years old, and Cornish 25.

The local despatcher relates that about 5.30 Tuesday night a jumble of letters came over the wire, evidently an attempt by Dyson to send a message of notification.

This is the fourth murder along the railway line this year.

Dyson was a son of Wm. Dyson, market gardener of Guelph. He was formerly an operator at Thorndale and Hespeler.

The body of Leopold II., King of the Belgians, was placed yesterday in the royal burial vault in the Church of St. Mary in Laeken. The funeral and the burial were conducted with all the pomp of which the state was capable, despite the monarch's wish that the obsequies should be of the simplest.

Compromise In Libel.

Vienna, Dec. 23.—The trial of the libel actions brought by deputies of the Croatian Diet, and the Hungarian people against the Austrian historian, Dr. Fried Jung ended yesterday in a compromise. In articles published last March, Dr. Fried Jung, accused the Servian Government of endeavoring to incite a popular rising in Bornia, Croatia and South Hungary, and also charged the plaintiff deputies with having received Servian bribes to promote such a rising.

Yesterday Fried Jung admitted that the most important documents adduced in support of his assertions were forgeries whereupon the plaintiffs withdrew their suit. The court ordered that the costs be divided.

Fatal Freak of Fire.

Gloversville, N.Y., Dec. 23.—Following the practical destruction of the Keystone Hotel late Tuesday, when there were several narrow escapes from death by occupants jumping from upper storey windows, three lives were lost in a fire which destroyed the Keystone stables late yesterday. The three men had remained up all night guarding the ruins of the hotel, and about noon yesterday went to the stables to sleep. At 3.30 the building was in flames. The men were smothered.

Best Is Now M.P.

Orangeville, Dec. 23.—As expected there will be no bye-election in Dufferin for the Federal House, John A. Best, Conservative nominee, being yesterday elected by acclamation. He succeeds the late Dr. Barr.

STEFOFF IS HANGED.

Murderer Who Killed Compatriot Goes to His Death.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Pavalo Stefoff, the man who slew his countryman, Vani Simoff, and robbed him of his money, was hanged here this morning. All hope was removed last night when the following telegram was received from Ottawa:

"Governor-General unable to interfere in capital case of Rex. v. Stefoff." (Signed) Thomas Mulvey, Under Secretary of State for Canada.

This telegram, received by Robinette, Godfrey & Phelan yesterday afternoon, removed Stefoff's lost lease of life. Only the man's spiritual adviser, those who have charge of the gruesome work and six press representatives were admitted to the jail to witness the last act in this sordid tragedy. Radcliffe, the official hangman, took that task off Sheriff Mowat's hands as usual.

Stefoff was told of the removal of his last hope. He heard the news calmly and seemed resigned. He had been an orderly prisoner, and seemed to have become attached to his guards, and asked that he be allowed to say good-bye to all of them.

Stefoff's death removes the necessity for secrecy regarding the statement made to his confessor, Rev. Geo. M. Atlas, some time ago.

Atlas declared that during his visits to Stefoff in the jail the prisoner had confessed to him that he murdered Vani Simoff. "He told me," said Atlas, "that he was possessed of an evil spirit, a very big devil. He told me that he needed the money, and had waited for Simoff as he came from work and killed him."

Atlas told that Stefoff described the deed committed in the dim light of the cellar of the Eastern avenue house, where they all lived together, and how he had struck Simoff down as he descended the stairs in the darkness.

With the first blow Simoff fell, but as he lay stunned upon the floor he struggled, and this drove his assailant crazy with fear. The "very big devil" possessed him and he struck blindly with the hatchet until his victim lay still. Then he took the money and went out and returned later, when he pretended to discover the body of the dead man.

Atlas asked that the story be kept secret until Stefoff's last hope was gone.

Canada's Navy.

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—The statement in a cabled despatch from Birmingham, Eng., to the effect that Canada is ready to provide ten million dollars for the establishment of a big naval base at Vancouver Island is without foundation.

Hon. W. S. Fielding stated in the House of Commons that the Canadian naval policy would be financed from current revenue, and that there would be no special appropriation.

The broad lines of Canada's naval policy are distinctly set forth in the estimates as follows: Naval service including the purchase, construction and maintenance of ships, the maintenance and the upkeep of dockyards at Esquimalt and Halifax, and the establishment and maintenance of training schools, 1909-10, $280,500; 1910-11, $3,000,000.

Painter's Narrow Escape.

New York, Dec. 23.—A battalion of firemen turned out on an alarm from a panic-stricken crowd at Broome and Green streets, where Christian Jarling, a painter, in falling from a scaffold, had grasped the edge of a wire sign and hung suspended in mid-air far above the street. Jarling's companion, Joseph Brown, fell four storeys and was fatally crushed. Jarling was rescued by fellow workmen. John Kirk lay on the edge of the roof, while Oscar Johnson, hung head down, Kirk holding his legs. Johnson grabbed Jarling's wrists and lifted him to the roof.

New Zealand's Professoress.

THREE BULLETS FAILED TO SNAP LIFE THREAD OF MAN WHO SAID HE SHOT HIMSELF FOR A GIRL

Bade Farewell to Her at Station, Attempted Suicide and Then Wanted to Telegraph to Stop the Train and Tell Her to Come Back to Him---Two Shots in His Head and One in Breast---Doctors Hope for Recovery.

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Dec. 23.—Streaming with blood from head to foot, a man staggered into the bar of the Thornhill Hotel on the Upper Lachine Road, a few minutes past eight on Tuesday night and collapsed. The proprietor of the hotel and a cabman were in the bar at the time. They thought the man had been held up, so called for the police and an ambulance from the Western Hospital. The man was at first unable to talk, but in a few minutes in answer to the questions of those around managed to say between the frequent hemorrhages that flowed from his mouth and nose that he had shot himself for a girl and that he wanted to die. Had the cabman not made him drop the revolver he had held deep in his pocket he was preparing to put the remaining shot through his head.

He wanted them to telegraph and stop the Boston train. He said that he had left a girl named Maud Torry in the train at Montreal Junction and that he wanted them to stop the train and tell her to come to him.

He at first refused to tell his name, but Mrs. Pinnsoneault, the hotelkeeper's wife, by telling him that they could not send a telegram, then, only got him to confess that his name was William Ellingwood, and that he had come from Montreal with the girl, on the 7.55 Boston train, leaving her at Montreal Junction.

The station master and express man at the station remember seeing Ellingwood get off the train and saw him saying good-bye to a girl through the car window. He waved his hand as the train moved off and she her handkerchief. Ellingwood then went in the direction of the Lachine Road, without saying anything to anyone about the platform. This was at 8 o'clock. Ten minutes later he staggered into the Thornhill.

In trying to stanch the flow of blood before the ambulance arrived, Mrs. Pinnsonneault found that his wounds were of a shocking nature. There was a bullet wound, from the 32 calibre revolver, in the roof of his mouth, another right back of his right ear, and a third in the middle of his chest. In attending to this third wound Ellingwood's vest was opened and he began to finger a photograph in his inner pocket. This was drawn out and revealed the image of a young woman, with the words written on the back, "Maud E. Torry, Hanover, Mass." and underneath, "Good-bye, picture."

After the young man had been taken to the hospital, Mr. Pinnsonneault accompanied by Leon Decarle, Chief of Police of Notre Dame de Grace, by tracking the trail of blood found the spot where the young man had fired the first shot about half way between the hotel and the railway station at Montreal Junction.

All the questions of these hotel people or the police could elicit nothing further than the fact that he came from Massachusetts, the wounded man persistently refusing to tell more.

The search of his clothes at the hospital revealed nothing likely to lead to his identification. He had plenty of money, but no railway ticket. In spite of the terrible character of his wounds, hope is held out by the Western Hospital authorities for his recovery.

The fact that he knew the neighbourhood well enough to make his way to the Thornhill hotel, and the fact that some of the Thornhill employees think they have seen him before, have led some to think that the young man was not unacquainted with Montreal and the vicinity.

CONFESSED TO MURDER BEFORE HIS EXECUTION

Special to The Examiner.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Confessing to two murders, Paval Stefoff was hanged this morning at the jail, shortly after eight o'clock. Although he walked calmly to his death and said good-bye friends" to his guards, he was deeply moved an hour before execution and confessed to the killing of Vani Simoff, and also to the murder of an Englishman in Terre Haute, Ind. The police here have information which connected him with the death of two Macedonians, who were robbed and murdered in a box car near Buffalo. They believe his victims were four in number.

Were Allowed 125 Names Out Of The Number They Asked For

The hearing of appeals in connection with 1910 voters' list before His Honour Judge Huycke was completed yesterday. Mr. E. L. Goodwill appeared on behalf of the Local Option committee and Mr. G. M. Gordon, and Mr. Summerhayes, of Toronto, represented the liquor interests. The Local Option workers, out of the one hundred and fifty names that they asked to have put on the list were allowed one hundred and twenty-five.

The local liquor interests asked for one hundred and ninety-three names and were allowed seventy-five. A total of two hundred names have been added to the list.

The Presentations To The Christmas Entertainment

The annual Christmas tree entertainment of the Park St. Baptist Bible School held last night was featured by two presentations, one to Rev. W. C. Riddiford and the other to Mr. Harold Foster the popular organist of the church.

There was a very large attendance and the evening was one of thorough enjoyment. The youngsters of the school were out in force and there was a present for everyone on the big Christmas tree, from which Santa Claus made the presentations. In addition there was a very enjoyable programme, the numbers of which were thoroughly appreciated.

The presentation to Mr. Foster consisted of a neat pair of cuff links and a pear stick pin, the presentation being made by Mr. Herb Reed, clerk of the church, while Mr. Chas. Green, Superintendent of the Bible School, read an eulogistic address.

Deacon Kempt, on behalf of the Men's Hand Bible Class, presented Mr. Riddiford with a handsome cane rocking chair, as a mark of the esteem in which he is held by the men of the church.

THE CHILDREN WILL BE HAPPY

The Examiner is pleased to announce that the contributions for the Christmas tree at the Shelter have come in to such an extent that the children there are assured of a happy Christmas. The appeal has been responded to as the good people of Peterborough always respond in a case of this kind, and toys, fruits and other desirable articles have been sent in in good numbers, while there will be enough poultry to provide a dinner that the little folks will not soon forget. The Christmas tree will be the centre of attraction to-morrow night, when the gifts will be given out. Santa Claus having promised at the earnest request of the citizens interested to visit the north end of the city long enough to be present in person.

Want Ad. Finds Necklace For A Young Lady

A young lady was visiting at a friend's home on Sunday, and on returning to her own residence discovered that she had lost a necklace which she highly valued. She waited a few days, thinking that she might have lost it in her friend's home, or that it might be returned in some other way. Nothing resulted and yesterday she decided to try the Examiner's Lost and Found column. Last night not long after the paper had been rolled off the press the Examiner was informed that the article had been found. "We've been waiting several days to see the lost advt. in the paper," the lady said. "We take the Examiner, and when the necklace was found we naturally looked over the Lost and Found column, but it was not until to-night the expected notice appeared." There is a little moral to this that should appeal to persons who have found themselves in a similar position. The number of persons who read an Examiner advt. would surprise the average reader.

The letter received by the Examiner is as follows:

144 Rubidge St., City.

Dear Sir,—I see in The Examiner to-night your ad. for the lost necklace. I found one on Bethune St., on Monday morning, and it answers to the description of it. I have been watching the paper every night for the owner. I have sent my boy with it.—Yours truly,

JAMES RICHARDSON.

ADAMS' TYPICAL XMAS STORE FOR WOMEN

One of the most Christmas-like stores in the grand procession of Peterborough's gay stores, is that of Harry Adams, George street. The two display windows abound with just the goods women are thinking of. The dresing of the windows, too, testifies to the good taste of the salesladies, all of whom have had a busy time supplying shoppers with choicest gifts. Perhaps it hasn't occurred to young men, husbands, or fathers, that Adams' is a favourite store for favourite things for the ladies—it works both ways:

4 CATTLE DROWNED

Broke Through the Ice on the River and Were Lost Before They Could be Rescued —Fourteen Head In Drove.

ICE VERY UNSAFE YET

Four cattle belonging to Stanley Blewett, who resides on the Monaghan side of the river three or four miles from the city lost their lives yesterday afternoon by breaking through the ice. According to the report of the affair he had cut a hole in the ice to enable the animals to drink. It had not been used for some time but had frozen over and when the cattle went down to drink yesterday four of them broke through. There were fourteen altogether and the four had gone through before the small herd was driven away from danger zone. They were dragged out, but too late, as they had been in the water too long.

Old Country Organizations Draw New Settlers Back for Campaign

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 22.—Eastbound trains are all crowded with the last rush of people en route home to spend Christmas. The Toronto express went out in three sections last night. Brock Street Rink Will Open for Season To-morrow Night—Band Will be in Attendance—Ice in Splendid Condition.

NO PRACTICE THIS WEEK

The Brock St. rink will open its skating season to-morrow night, when the arena will be thrown open for the first time to the public. The hockeyists tried out the ice surface last night and Caretaker Thirnbeck had a splendid sheet ready for them. In order to have the surface in good shape for the opening there is nothing doing around the arena to-day except icemaking.

The band will be on hand for the opening and also on Christmas afternoon and evening. There will be no hockey practice this week for any of the teams except the West Ends, who will practice Saturday morning instead of Saturday night, their usual hour. The O.H.A. practices will start next Monday night, and the two teams will practice Mondays, Wednesdays and Friday nights from then on. The Strathconas City League team has Tuesday nights and the West Ends Saturday nights, while the Collegiate has hours in the afternoon.

TWO DRUNKS FINED

In the Police Court This Morning

Only two drunks were brought before Magistrate Dunbie at the police court this morning and these were quickly disposed of. Each of them was arrested last night and one might have been frozen to death had he not been taken into custody by the police. He was found lying in the snow. Both were fined two dollars to be paid within ten days.

FIRST CHRISTMAS TREE AT THE FIRE HALL WAS GRAND SUCCESS

Wives and Children of the Firemen Spent Very Enjoyable Afternoon and Evening---Affair Made Possible by the Generosity of Many Prominent Citizens---Speeches, Music and Supper.

The Christmas tree, supper and concert at the Fire Hall yesterday afternoon and evening for the firemen's wives and children was in every respect a most pleasing affair for those for whom it had been planned and likewise was a gratifying success for those who had arranged it. The men unlike most others, are unable to be in their homes on Christmas Day. Their position requires their services on that occasion in the same manner as any other day in the year. Realizing this Chief Howard suggested to Ald. Turner three months ago that the firemen would appreciate some kind of an entertainment for the children whereby their wives and children could be with them for a while at the hall. Ald. Turner expressed his approval of it and the Chief mentioned it to the committee, who as a unit were in favour of the suggestion. Many citizens, friends of the department, very generously assisted materially in making the occasion a most enjoyable one by sending presents to be hung on the tree for the children. Fruits and various other gifts were received at the hall and everything combined to make the affair one that will be long remembered particularly by the little tots.

The hall was brightened for the occasion with flags and bunting and the dormitory had been cleared, being transformed into a very creditable assembly room.

It served the purpose perfectly and with a temporary platform at the east end with a piano and Christmas tree, the spacious dormitory, was a truly festival scene. The first part of the afternoon, beginning about four o'clock, was devoted to music and a few speeches. Chief Howard occupied the chair and the proceedings were opened by prayer, Rev. Mr. Riddiford leading. A short address was given by Dr. Greer in which he referred to the Chief and the men in very complimentary terms. Rev. Mr. Riddiford gave a humourous and entertaining address, following which the presents on the tree were distributed among the children. Old Santa appeared to the little ones as merry and genial as they expected and with the assistance of Mrs. (Dr) Greer and Mrs. R. J. Kingan the little ones received their pretty gifts.

Supper was served afterwards and the tables fairly groaned beneath a weight of good things. Chief Howard was at the head of the table with Dr. Greer on his right and Judge Huyoke on his left. After the supper speeches were given by Ald. J. J. Turner, Judge Huyoke, Ald. Buller, Ald. Phelan, Mr. R. J. Kingan, and Mr. Miller, of the Quaker Oats. During the evening Mr. John King contributed several very acceptable solos and the Halpany orchestra made the affair a most enjoyable one. The orchestra graciously tendered their services as an appreciation of the services of the brigade.

The citizens of Peterborough entered heartily into the spirit of the occasion and their generosity made such a highly successful event possible. Many merchants and manufacturers sent highly complimentary letters to the Brigade, expressing appreciation of their services and enclosing contributions to the fund. Some, in fact, sent in such large amounts that Chief Howard did not feel justified in accepting them, and they were sent back to the donors with a letter of thanks, stating that no such large amounts were expected by the fire fighters. Cases of oranges, barrels of apples, great heaps of nuts and candies, turkeys and geese, toys, and cigars were sent in by the friends of the brigade and the members are delighted with this mark of approval on the part of the citizens. They appreciate the gifts in themselves, but enjoy far more the fact thattheir services have been appreciated.

It was a great occasion for the brigade and their friends, who were present as well as for the children of the neighbourhood.

CONSERVING THE WATERS OF THE CANAL IN NORTH

Liberal Sums Have Been Placed in the Estimates for the Construction of New Dams---Work Will be Carried Out in Even Greater Proportions Than During the Past Year---Work That is Scheduled to be Done.

That the present Dominion Government is determined to take advantage of every possible means to conserve the tributary waters of the Trent Canal, in our north country, is quite evident from the liberal sums that, through the efforts of Hon. Mr. Stratton, have been placed in the estimates for the year 1910-11, for the construction of new dams on the Gull River, Burnt River, Jack's Creek and other tributary waters. While an aggressive policy in this respect, under the management of Mr. J. H. McClellan, Supt. of the Trent Canal, has been carried out, during the past year, the indications are that next year's work in this respect will be of even greater proportions.

The estimates for the coming financial year provide for the sum of $4,000.00 for the building of a new dam at White Lake, on the east branch of the Burnt River, $4,000.00 for the building of a new dam on Devil's Lake, which is also on the east branch of the Burnt River, and is $4,000.00 for the construction of a new dam at Jack's Lake, the water of which passes through Jack's Creek into Stony Lake. The building of these new dams, which will be of concrete, will substantially enhance the value of our back waters for reservoir purposes.

Devil's Lake is situated in Snowden Township, in the County of Haliburton, and has an area of 298 acres. A substantial new concrete dam will be placed at the outlet of this lake.

White Lake, with its sister lakes, in Galway, will have a handsome new concrete dam which will be of great assistance in conserving the back waters.

Perhaps the most important dam to be built next season, is the dam at Jack's Lake, in the Township of Methuen. This lake with its tributary streams, the water in which will also be conserved by the new dam, has an area of 4,198 acres. The new dam, which will be of concrete, will afford an eleven foot head.

Of course, provision is being made to build a number of small dams at a number of other points of perhaps lesser importance. A timber dam will be built at Dinner Lake on the Deer Bay watershed, which together Fair, Buzzard and Poplar Lake, will make a reservoir of 460 acres.

That the construction of these new dams will prove of great benefit to the owners of power privileges, and to navigation interests on the Trent Canal, goes without saying. The flow of the Otonabee River and other streams on the main line of the Canal, will be greatly increased at a period of the year, when these streams would otherwise be scarcely larger than large sized creeks. An idea of this can be gained from what has already been accomplished. For instance, some weeks ago, before the work of conserving the back water was commenced, the minimum flow of the Otonabee River was estimated at 43,000 cubic feet per minute. A measurement of the flow of the Otonabee River at the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Company's dam was made the other day, and the minimum flow was found to be 125,000 cubic feet per minute. This is certainly a wonderful increase in the minimum flow of the river, and the citizens of Peterborough will certainly see that the Government is pursuing a wise and progressive policy in building reservoir dams on our tributary waters.

A BACKWARD STEP.

Among the by-laws to be voted upon on January 3rd, 1910, there is one that represents a distinct retrograde step; that to restore the ward system of electing aldermen, instead of so doing by general vote, as at present. There does not seem to be any good reason for a change, while there are many reasons why a change is undesirable.

The City of Montreal has been suffering from veritable saturnalia of civic corruption. Judge Cannon of Quebec, has just concluded an exhaustive investigation into the conditions and the causes of them. In his judgment, recently delivered, he discovered and has reported, that, for every dollar of the ratepayers' money there has been wasted or stolen, or corruptly diverted 25 cents; that is out of the total tax roll one quarter has been wasted in "graft," favouritism, and other forms of waste. In giving the causes of these conditions, after thorough investigation; after examining scores of witnesses on oath; after mature deliberation and with the full knowledge of what he was saying, Judge Cannon advanced as one of the chief causes the prevalence of the ward system of aldermanic election and representation. This is a weighty object lesson of the evils of the ward system and Montreal, at the first opportunity of amending its civic charter will remove the system and adopt the system of election by general vote.

If Montreal, in self defence, rejects the ward system, which is held accountable as one of the chief contributory causes of a waste of one quarter of the civic revenue paid by the taxpayers of that city, is it wise for Peterborough to return to the discredited ward system of electing aldermen? The experience of Montreal should be a warning, even if there were no other reasons against taking a backward step.

One of the chief features that have presented themselves objectionably under the ward system is that known as "log-rolling," a term referable to the days when, through the medium of "bees," log-rolling was a form of mutual assistance, adopted by early settlers in clearing the land for the plough. But in municipal matters, under the ward system, "log-rolling" has been converted into an evil, resulting, in the aggregate, in a large waste of public money—not, necessarily corruptly wasted, but unnecessarily spent. Every alderman is supposed to do the best for his ward, and is sure to suggest expenditures that in the general interests are not necessary. In order to gain his end he has to have the help of other aldermen; and this help is forthcoming on the promise of support to aldermen representing other wards to get through similar deals. Without elaborating the idea it is easily seen that while not necessarily contributory to corrupt expenditure—though, as in the case of Montreal it makes it more easy — the ward system tends to wasteful and unnecessary expenditure, having regard to the general interests of the city.

Space will not permit of fully dealing with the objections to a return to the ward system. While it is not good policy in an economic sense, it is not good policy in regard to the opinion outsiders and the Provincial Legislation will form of our knowledge of what we want. By great effort and as a special favour, Peterborough obtained legislation giving us biennial aldermanic terms, something not enjoyed by any other municipality in the province. We have not even tried this new system, when some one proposes a return to the ward system. Under the two years term system, we have not given one complete term of trial. If we go to the legislature next session asking to have the ward system substituted for the two-year-term system we shall receive not only a cold welcome, but be overwhelmed with ridicule—for not knowing our own minds—for renouncing a system granted us as a favour, and after much hesitation, in favour of a system we have tried, found wanting, and rejected years ago. Apart, altogether, from the respective merits of the two systems, we do not want to be made a laughing stock. Peterborough is in renewed earnestness over a publicity campaign to call attention to Peterborough as a desirable industrial centre, and it will not give business men—the men behind industrial concerns—a very good idea of our business methods, and our stability of judgment, if we reject a municipal method of very important character before we have even given it half a trial, and return to a system which, even rotten Montreal is rejecting.

The by-law to restore the ward system is one that should be seriously thought over by the ratepayers; should be considered dispassionately, and with an eye to the best interests of the city as a whole. If this is done it is safe to say that we shall decide "to bear the ills we have, than fly to others that we—as well as other cities—know too well.

CANADA PROSPEROUS.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier, some thirteen years ago, was appealing to the country for its confidence, he told the people that if they entrusted the the administration of the affairs of Canada to him and the Liberal party, there would be no need of laboured statistics to prove that the people enjoyed prosperity—they "would feel it in their pockets." The people took him at his word, and his promise has been splendidly fulfilled. We have had nearly a baker's dozen of years of prosperity and progress unbroken, save by one brief period of financial flurry. The budget speech very fairly represents the standing of the country. Hon. Mr. Fielding has made fourteen consecutive budget statements, an individual record unsurpassed in the history of the Dominion, or, perhaps of any other country. Another distinction, attached to Mr. Fielding's budgets is, that each succeeding one has shown marked superiority to its predecessor—in national prosperity, in national growth in increasing revenue, indicating a continuous advance in national wealth, and development. The budget of 1908, it is fair to say, showed a slight retrocession from the figures of the preceding year, but this year's budget brought compensation, the revenue for the current year showing an improvement on even the banner year of 1907.

The current financial year does not terminate until 31st March next, so that for four months the figures are estimated. While they are not likely to be lower they may well be higher. Estimated revenue for the current fiscal year is placed by the Finance Minister at $97,500,000. Estimated expenditure for the current fiscal year, $81,000,000. Estimated surplus for the fiscal year ending 31 March, 1910, $16,500,000. In presenting these figures to the House, Mr. Fielding stated that he would not be surprised if the expenditure proved to be less, and the revenue more, in which case the surplus would be correspondingly increased. For the eight months ending November 30, the revenue amounted to $64,856,509, which exceeded that of the previous year for the same period by $9,541,289, or a sum equal to $1,200,000, a month for eight months. As to the four months yet to come, allowing for the same revenue as received last year, the total revenue would be $94,834,687. However, as there has been an average increase every month for the past eight months of $1,200,000, it is reasonable to assume that this rate of increase will be continued; but allowing only $2,800,000, or $700,000 a month increase for the next four months, the total revenue will be $97,500,000. This will be $1,500,000 greater than the record year of 1907-8. The fact is that there is very little doubt that the revenue for the year will reach the hundred million dollar mark.

With this actual and prospective growth of revenue there is promised reduced expenditure not as great as that of last year, which was twenty-two millions, but the very considerable decrease of sixteen and one-half millions. These conditions proceeded from the employment of good financial methods, combined with a policy that has aided the development of national resources and promoted national prosperity.. Since 1896 the Liberal Government have spent in capital and special expenditure $212,602,816. Of this sum $147,000,000 was provided for out of revenue. In other words, since 1896, the Liberals provided for their ordinary expenditure out of current revenue, and 69 per cent. of capital and special charges as well without resorting to borrowing or going into debt. However, there has necessarily been an increase of the public debt. Since coming into power in 1896, the Liberals have increased the public debt by $65,432,846. Of this sum $58,391,983 has been expended on the National Transcontinental and the Quebec Bridge. The balance, $7,041,000, represents the increase in the public debt, which may be accounted for by the fact that last year there was a falling off in revenue of $11,000,000. In contrast with this, compare the showing under Conservative rule from 1878 to 1896, eighteen years. In this period the Conservative Government spent on capital and special expenditure $167,162,252, but during this period they added to the public debt $118,000,000, providing only 29 per cent. of these expenditures out of revenue. Putting it in another form, the Conservatives had to add 70 per cent. of their special exepnditures to the public debt, whereas the Liberals only added 30 per cent. of theirs to the public debt, and of this 30 per cent. the greater part is invested in the National Transcontinental Railway, one of Canada's most valuable assets. Leaving out of the calculation the expenditures on the Transcontinental and Quebec bridge, the Liberal Government have provided more than 95 per cent. of their expenditures on capital and special account out of the ordinary revenue of the country. Canada is growing fast, and to keep pace with the necessities of the people, public works of many kinds must be constructed. Under these circumstances it becomes necessary to borrow money. The borrowings of the Liberal Government have been necessary, first, to pay off loans made years ago, under Conservative rule, now maturing, and for the construction of great public works.

As to the public debt of Canada it is less per capita to-day than it was in 1891. In 1891 the per capita debt was $49.09, and it gradually increased under Conservative administration until in 1896 it amounted to $50.82. To-day the per capita debt is $45.85, notwithstanding that it had become necessary to increase the debt $45,000,000 last year, and this year $17,000,000 more will be added in consequence of the National Transcontinental Railway. Having regard then to the growth of Canada and the development of national resources, they grow faster than the public debt. The above figures are based upon an estimated population on March 31, 1910, of 7,450,990. The question is, has the debt of the country increased unduly, and is it a greater burden to carry now than formerly?

We certainly are prosperous. Not only is this shown by increasing customs returns, indicating large popular purchasing powers, but the growth of trade and the deposits in the chartered banks is another evidence. Trade figures show a great improvement over last year. The latest available returns are up to October 31 last, and they indicate an improvement in total trade for the seven months of $48,400,000 over the same period last year. If this rate of improvement is maintained the total trade this year will exceed $650,000,000, which was the record of 1907-08. Another proof of prosperity is found in the amount of deposits in the chartered banks of Canada. Ten years ago they amounted to $250,000,000, and on October 31, 1909, they had reached the sum of $731,806,000, or nearly three times greater than was the case ten years ago.

All this is evidence of good government and prosperous conditions. Such a cursory review at the end of the year gives us confidence to enter upon the work of a new year, well fortified to meet its duties with cheerfulness in a common effort, to advance the material interests of this thriving and happy country.

THE VALUE OF TURPENTINE

When all else fails the physician recommends his wealthy patient to take a trip to the turpentine groves as a cure for throat and lung troubles. The turpentine of commerce cannot very well be used but by adding linseed Dr. Chase succeeded in getting up the most effective treatment for throat and lung troubles that was ever discovered. It is known as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

UNCLE WALT---THE POET PHILOSOPHER

ON THE HOMESTRETCH

The Old Year's most ready to take in his sign; his gait is unsteady—old Nineteen-and-Nine! He brought me some sorrow, some cream and some whey; he strung me, as Laura Jean Libbey would say. O, great was his nerve; he fooled me, as Thomas Carlyle might observe. His start was so graceful! So graceful! So coltish his wiles! And he had a face full of won-come-off smiles; O, he was a deatie, when charming and young; and now he is weary, and minus a lung. He's tired of the tiltin', his shins are all barked; he's all in, as Milton, the poet, remarked. You'll soon see his hide on the fence of the years; he's done up, as Dryden once said, through his tears. He seems almost human, this year old and gray, who goes to the tomb in his sorrowful way. For man has the habit of following fate, as though he would nab it, before it's too late; he gambols and prances, when morning is fair, and carols and dances, his heels in the air; at evening this bold one is given the hook; he's wilted, as Goldwin Smith wrote in a book.

A SOLDIER'S LIFE.

The Examiner has received a copy of a new book, "A Soldier's Life," by Edwin George Rundle, The writer is better known in Peterborough as Sergt.-Major Rundle, who was for some time a resident of this city, and well known as Sergeant-Major of the 57th Rangers and drill instructor to the Collegiate Institute. The book is a recital of the incidents and course of a soldier's life in the regular army, in Sergt-Major Rundle's case the 17th Regiment. Though there are chronicled no "moving incidents by flood and field," such as those with which Othello anared Desdemona, the book is full of interesting reading, giving a clear idea of the routine, varied by episodes, of a soldier's life. When the 17th was quartered in Toronto, Major Rundle was drill instructor in the military school, conducted in connection with it, and of the more than 800 who passed under Sergt.-Major Rundle, many have risen to positions of eminence in military and civil life, some of them being residents of Peterborough. In addition to the interest in the story it conveys a valuable lesson. By virtue of obedience, courtesy, deference to authority and obedience to discipline, Private Rundle rose from the ranks to the highest position in the army possible to a non commissioned office. The same characteristics which won him promotion, he took with him when he retired on pension, and those who passed under his influence in Peterborough, both in the regiment and in the institute, received not only the benefits of physical development, but moral development and "set-up" as well. The "Life of a Sodier" is written in simple, direct style, but makes most interesting and profitable reading; and the book would make a nice Christmas present for boy or man. Toronto; Wm. Briggs, price $1.

WOMEN'S WOES

Peterborough Women are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only, that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. John Wallace, of 323 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., says: "I have suffered with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble for over two years and could find nothing that would benefit my condition. My back was weak and a dull, heavy pain settled across the small of it, extending into my sides and shoulders. I could not sleep at night as the kidney secretions were so frequent and irregular that I would have to leave my bed a number of times. I was dizzy and would usually awake with a dull headache. Booth's Kidney Pills procured at McDermid and Jury's Drug Store cured me when all else failed. I am stronger and feel better generally. I can conscientiously recommend Booth's Kidney Pills and I would not be without a box in the house."

Robert Smith, Lambton Co., Ont.

The turkey has a much more delicate constitution than the chicken. The crate system is too confined for fattening turkeys. Where the turkeys have been accustomed to roaming over the field and picking their own living they must be fed with great care else they will overload their stomachs and become sick. Place the turkeys in a dry, light and well ventilated place. Feed them the same sort of feed as you would the chickens. It is best to feed whole grain for two feeds a day. The amount of food will depend on the time they are to be confined and the constitution of the turkeys. If they are to be confined for a short time only the full feeding may be begun in a few days, but if the turkeys are to be confined for a month or more it is better not to advance to the full feed for nearly two weeks. Give them not quite as much as they will eat up, always giving plenty of exercise. Give plenty of clean water and don't forget the grit.

It is better not to confine the turkeys at all if they can be fed in some dry, clean place. Get the turkeys accustomed to coming home at night and roosting in a building where they can be shut in till fed in the morning. Give them a good feed night and morning. They will roam over the fields all day and have excellent appetites, grow fine and fattening will not be troublesome.

Turkeys are easy to dry pluck as the feathers are far apart and pluck readily. Those shipped to distant markets must be dry plucked.

DAIRY LESSONS FROM THE PAST SEASON

From Farm and Dairy.

J. A. Ferguson, Caistorgn, Leeds Co., Ont.

At the close of another dairy season it will be well for the dairymen of Eastern Ontario to look back over the past season and discover where mistakes have been made in order that at the commencement of next season, they may begin to profit by past experiences.

We have met with many difficulties during the last few seasons. This year the weather conditions in the spring were very unfavorable. Owing to the excessive drought of the previous autumn and to the cold weather in the spring, the grass grew very slowly. Added to this difficulty was that of the poor condition of the cows on account of the scarcity of feed.

The experience of the past few years has taught the farmer of Eastern Ontario that it is next to impossible to successfully run a dairy farm without a silo. Since hay and grain is so scarce, the farmers, recognizing that it pays to keep cows in the best condition possible throughout the year, have both diminished their herds and increased their production of corn. Whether this falling off in numbers is detrimental or not is a matter which may be regarded from two standpoints, quantity and quality. Although the quantity has suffered, the quality has improved, for, in most cases, it has been the old poorly-bred stock which has been sold.

But even if the quality of the cows has improved, that, in itself, will have very little effect on the finished product unless the farmers learn and practise the proper methods of caring for milk cooling and by keeping everything clean. In handling milk, ice is a very essential factor in preserving its original condition. Every farmer should have a supply of ice and could have at a small expense.

Then too, every factory should be provided with a cool curing-room. By saving in shrinkage and by the improved conditions owing to the uniform temperature during the curing process, the room will pay for itself in a few years. If the Dairy Commissioner had taken a broader view of the subject and, instead of building several illustrative cool-curing rooms, had given each factory a sum of money to aid in building a room, I have no hesitation in saying that nearly every factory in the Dominion would have a cool curing room today. But now it will take years to accomplish what should have been done long ago.

The Dairymen's Association is doing good work in sending instructors to the factories but they do not go far enough. The producer of the raw material needs to be educated. I would advise sending instructors to the farms to encourage and instruct the farmers to deliver milk in better condition. Then, too, besides having instructors for both farm and factory, every maker should take a course in some good Dairy School in order to work intelligently.

There has been too much "patting the farmer on the back," in the past, by the Dairymen's Association. I do not believe in coction but think it time that their faults were shown up more clearly. Try to educate them, in some way, to send cleaner and cooler milk to the factory.

A number of factories in the east have made improvements but a great number have not yet complied with the Sanitary law. It is hardly fair to those who have spent so much money in making things better, to let this go any farther without calling the attention of those in authority who can enforce the law. It is hardly fair to the manufacturers to let the producer of the raw material do as he likes. It is just as necessary to have the farms inspected as to have the factory examined for quality in the milk is the first essential in the making of cheese and butter of high quality.

Now, in making these observations, I wish to do it in the right spirit for I know there is room for improvement all along the line and I hope to see, during the next season, a great stride towards advancement in the dairy work of Eastern Ontario.

SHINES IN SOCIETY

Women With Fascinating Hair Always Attract Attention.

If you are a woman with dull, lifeless, ordinary hair, do not feel distressed. Just make up your mind now that you can have just as luxuriant and captivating a head of hair as any other woman, and quickly, too.

Just go to Mr. Madill's this very day and get a bottle of Parisian Sage. Use it as directed, and in two weeks your scalp will be free from dandruff, your hair will be soft, lustrous and beautiful.

If your hair is falling out, Parisian Sage will stop it.

If your hair is thin, Parisian Sage will make it grow in heavily.

If you have dandruff it will quickly vanish when Parisian Sage is used.

It prevents hair from turning gray, stops itching scalp almost instantly and is the ideal dressing for daily use.

A large bottle costs only 50 cents at Wm. Madill's, or direct, all charges prepaid, from the Canadian makers, Giroux M'f'g Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

POULTRY POINTERS

From Farm and Dairy.

Fowls have no sense of smell. They have nostrils, but no noses.

Don't rob the pigs but see if you can't have some nice sweet milk for the hens every day.

In killing and dressing poultry, handle gently to avoid bruising. Discoloration quickly follows a bruise, and diminishes the market value of the property.

Both sexes of geese are feathered exactly alike, which makes it difficult to distinguish ganders from geese, especially when young.

In selecting ducks for breeding, size of frame, length of body and general activity should be looked for. Without size of body we cannot expect to obtain large ducklings.

It requires three months or more to grow a broiler, much depending upon the weight desired, the stock and the care. Broilers shrink about a half pound each when dressed.

Some poultrymen, in order to have a regular supply of eggs throughout the year, have a pen of two-year-old hens, one of yearlings, and one each of February, March, April and May hatched pullets.

Naturally fowls are healthy, and no other stock on the farm has been so much abused. Yet in spite of all the ill-treatment they receive they do much better than any other stock on the farm of equal value.

Never introduce a new bird into the regular yards until it has been duly quarantined. Keep it alone for a week and note its condition, appetite, etc. Disease is often introduced into a flock by carelessness in this matter.

As a general thing, not enough attention is paid to the family history of fowls for breeding purposes, as regards their health. Constitutional weakness though it be apparently overcome, should never be allowed to enter the breeding pen.

It is claimed that a freshly laid egg placed in a bucketful of water will sink to the bottom; one day old will sink nearly to the bottom, two days old about half way up; three days old, will float not quite at the top; four days old, just touch the top; five and six days, rise a little above the top, rising a little higher as it daily grows older.

Every Man Read This

This treatment is said to have acquired a wonderful reputation throughout the East, owing to its peculiar propensity to fortify the nerve force and generate health and a consequent personal magnetism, so essential to the happiness of every normal human being. It is claimed to be a blessing to those who are physically impaired, gloomy, despondent, nervous, and who have trembling of the limbs, dizziness, heart palpitation, cold hands and feet, insomnia, fear without cause, timidity in venturing and general inability to act rationally as others do. Also of vast benefit to writers, professional men, office workers and the victims of society's late hours and over-indulgence in wines, liquors, etc.

By preparing the treatment at home secretly, no one need know of another's trouble, while the ingredients are much used in filling various prescriptions, so that even the purchase of them separately need occasion no timidity.

If the reader decides to try it, get three ounces of ordinary syrup sarsaparilla compound, and one ounce compound fluid balmwort; mix and let stand two hours; then get one ounce compound essence cardiol and one ounce tincture cadomene compound, (not cardamom), mix all together, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one at night.

This contains no opiates whatever and may also be used by women who suffer with their nerves with absolute certainty of prompt and lasting benefits.

APPLE GROWING SIXTY YEARS AGO

From Farm and Dairy.

J. E. Orr, Middlesex Co., Ont.

About 60 years ago the owners of orchards that had previously only borne the natural fruits, began grafting their apple trees. The scions used in grafting principally came from the vicinity of Rochester, New York state. And some of the varieties were the "Greenings," which still hold their own among most of the newer sorts. The "Jelly Flowers," a large globular shaped apple, with alternating stripes of red and green were lovely and mellow about Christmas time. The "Nonsuch" was a large yellow apple, with a very poor flavor. The "Mucus" was a late keeper, at its best in May and June. The "Spitzenburg," a splendid variety, with an agreeable flavor, was for many years a universal favorite.

The "Pippins" with their various divisions were all very good. The "Pearmain" was a much sought after apple, with nearly always a water core, making them very juicy. The "Russet" of several kinds and many others, gave the people of former days apples in great abundance.

The grafting was generally done by a gang of men, who devoted all their time in the season to this work. They were thus able to do several orchards in a day. Sometimes the scions must have gotten mixed, for the writer remembers in his youth of seeing a half dozen varieties growing on the same tree, giving an appearance of many colors.

OBITUARY

DR. J. A. FITZPATRICK.

The following account of the death of Dr. J. A. Fitzpatrick appeared recently in the Lockport Phoenix-Advertiser. He was born in Dummer, was educated in the Norwood High School and graduated from Chicago University.

"Dr. J. A. Fitzpatrick, of this city, died at St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet early Wednesday morning, Dec. 1, 1909, of hemorrhage and pneumonia, aged 58 years.

"The announcement of Dr. Fitzpatrick's death comes as a distinct shock to his very wide circle of friends and acquaintances who feel his untimely taking away as a personal loss and sorrow fills many hearts that had been touched by the charming personality, kindliness and brilliant intelligence of the decedent in days gone by.

"Dr. Fitzpatrick came to Lemont thirty years ago as a young man of twenty-five, who at that early age had finished his medical education, and selected this field for the practice of his profession. His ability soon acquired for him a wide acquaintance and a large practice, and during his career he was called as a counsellor in many cases far removed from the local field. The shadows of death gathered all too soon over his earthly life and the fruition of his talents and endeavours were never fully realized. For several days the doctor's friends had noted his worn and ill appearance, but it was not until Tuesday afternoon, only twelve hours prior to his death that he repaired to the hospital."

Dr. Fitzpatrick is survived by his brothers, Daniel, Patrick, and William, at home, in Dummer; Dennis and Timothy, of Duluth, Minn.; Michael, of Livermore, Col., and his sisters, Elizabeth, at home, and Mrs. Martin Carroll of Downeyville.

LOVE MAKES LIFE WORTH WHILE.

Soul and I sat in the Christmas time looking into the heart of things as a boy and girl into the flame of the back-log, and I asked, "Soul, what makes life worth while?" And Soul said, "Love makes life worth while." Then I looked into the flame and I saw the world, and I beheld a vast heap of animals and serpents and birds and beasts of prey, and everything that the mind could think of, in the sea and the air and upon the land, and they were all contending and fighting in awful passion, and lust full of fear, while their fierce breath grew into a whirlwind that shook the flame and destroyed whate'er it touched. And I too, was full of fear, but Soul said, "Look again," and I looked and behold, the mass was clothed and fair to look upon, and it was man. Then Soul said, "Such is the state of those who pervert love."

So then I looked deeper into the fire, and I saw that love was greater than fear. And Soul said, "Trust not in the appearance of things; trust things. Do not distrust the details of life; trust life, that love shall manifest in thy inmost thoughts and be thyself."

Then I looked still deeper into the Yule-fire, and behold, I saw a man-woman. And I said, "Soul, who is the man-woman that walks in the fire?" And Soul said, "Look again," and I looked and behold, it was myself. And Soul said, "Look again," and I looked and behold, it was my friend; and I marvelled. But Soul said, "Look again," and I looked and behold, it was a strange man who was lost; and I marvelled greatly. But soul said, "Look again," and I looked and within the form of the man-woman I saw all men and things whose hearts hunger for God and Love and Beauty and Heaven. And I said, "Wait hungry one, I bring thee food." But soul said, "Look again," and I looked and behold the man-woman was thou my friend. So then together we break the precious inner box of ointment in our hearts, and lo, the ointment was become a wondrous song, "Unto you a son is born." And I looked out the window, and behold, it was Christmas day. And we knew that love had come.
—F. E Coulter, Secretary Single Tax Association, Toronto.

A MAP OF CANADA IN STAINED GLASS

An excellent specimen of the stained glassworkers' handicraft is afforded by a novel map that has been prepared for the west-end office of the Grand Trunk Railway System on Cockspur street, London, S.W. On a solid sheet of glass, 1¼ inches thick, measuring 12 feet in length and 6 feet broad ,a faithful reproduction of the map of the Dominion of Canada has been executed. The names of places in great numbers, the rivers, the lakes and the mountains are clearly shown ,while the distinctive colours for the various Provinces comprising the Dominon and adjacent terrtories of the United States have been burned in to ensure fixity. Stretching across the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific may be easily followed the eroute of Canadas all-red route, the Grand Trunk Pacific, by means of which millions of square miles of new grain-producing territory are being opened up to the settler. The work not only axords a graphic idea of the vastness of the great Dominion, but also gives an impressive idea of this 3,600 miles of new road. The preparation of the map was a delicate task, since it is the largest piece of ceramic work that has ever been attempted. It required the combined services of eight expert operators continuously for five months, and it is one of the most costly reproductions of a map that has ever been undertaken. In its manufacture the great difficulty was to obtain a result which would be quite legible in daylight, and which would yet be sufficiently transparent to allow of illumination by means of twenty-four 25-candle power lamps by night. The delicate blending ofq the various tints, the definition of the finest hair-like lines, and the distinctiveness of the names renders it a work of artistic and educational value. Owing to its frugile character and large size, combined with its great weight of one-one ton three hundredweights, its transport from Birmingham, where it was manufactured, to London had to be carried out by special means.—"Canada," London, Dec, 4, 1909.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

A few weeks ago I read a little notice in the paper to the effect that—"Mamie Tierman and Virginia Owens, who were burned in last night's north pole tableau at Loretta Academy, as a result of Miss Owen's tinsel dress brushing against a lighted candle, died early this morning."

Not big news, just a three-line notice in the smallest of type; but in two homes at least it must have seemed a paragraph that the biggest type that ever flamed across a yellow journal would not half do justice to.

Next Friday night and next Saturday several hundred thousand—maybe almost a million—Christmas trees will glow with the light of candles, such as caused these girls' death.

Isn't it worth a little care to make sure that there shall be no such notice in any paper in the land next Sunday?

Christmas candles undoubtedly add a great deal to the beauty of a Christmas tree. Myself, I should hate to have to try to make a tree beautiful without them.

Every year for several years I have trimmed a Christmas tree for a group of young girls, and every year when they enter the parlour they see a tree glowing with the soft light from at least a dozen little tapers.

But they see it from a distance of several feet.

For no one is allowed to go near that tree in its lighted state.

When my guests have admired its fairy-like beauty to their hearts' content I myself carefully blow out every candle, and then—and not until then—we fish out the gifts from the branches.

That isn't a very difficult plan of action to keep to,is it?

And it's a very safe one. There is a rod of iron just three words long, by which a great many households are ruled.

And the three words are:

"I shall worry."

Usually this rod is wielded by women, but occasionally by men, and the rule of it is one of the most exasperating tyrannies that was ever submitted to.

You people who use these words—or their equivalent in martyred looks and protests,—to make the members of your household do what things you think they ought, doesn't it ever occur to you that you are treading on their love in rather a mean way?

And also in rather a dangerous one?

For "I shall worry" is a dread threat only because those to whom you make it love you.

And if you trade on their love in that way don't you think you are likely to weaken it?

Andthen what?

Forbid the little child to do the thing you disapprove of—

Advise and urge the older child who has grown beyond forbidding, and the other members of your family over whom you have no authority, not to do the thing you disapprove of.

But don't—if you want to keep their love—try to rule any of the members of your household by that selfish rod, "I shall worry."

It doesn't pay.

Ruth Cameron

"ARRIVAL OF KITTY" ON CHRISTMAS DAY

Attraction at the Grand Opera House is Entertaining, Bright and Well Presented.

C. S. Williams brings to the "Grand" his amusing farcical comedy, "The Arrival of Kitty" on Christmas Day. No comedy that has been produced in recent years in this country has met with such instant favour as this play from the pen of Norman Lee Swartout, a clever author who has written a number of successful plays, but none of which has taken such a firm hold upon the affections of the public as this. Mr. Swartout has woven together a most entertaining comedy of unflagging interest. It has a consistent plot that is new in its conception and carried out in a most original style. It starts with a young man who attemtps to practise a little deception and he weaves such a tangled net about him that his escape is almost beyond the comprehension of the spectator and he is finally obliged to make a full and complete confession. Mr. Swartout succeeds most admirably in rivetting the attention of his audiences on the play, and he keeps them keyed up to the tension point right up to the fall of the final curtain. "The Arrival of Kitty" will be presented here by the same proficient company of favourites that have won the endorsement of theatregoers in other cities.

JOHN McNAUGHTON, GREETING

Mr. John McNaughton, the well-known repairer of boots and shoes will leave his present shop on Stewart St., next Monday, and can be found after that date in his new shop on Bethune St., adjoining his own residence, near corner of Sherbrooke. WARNE BROS.
345 GEORGE STREET

AT SCHNEIDER'S BUSY MECCA FOR PRESENTS

Crowds in the Store Choosing Their Tokens of Good Will.

Never in all the history of Peterborough did the jewelry stores of the city come in for so large a share of the Christmas shoping as they have done this year.

One has only to follow the crowd into Schneider's jewelry store to realise how much the people still adhere to jewelry for their Christmas gifts. Never is a happier, jollier crowd to mix in with. This store is radiant with the very latest productions of the jeweller's art and other handicrafts. It must be put to the credit of Schneider's store that it is showing itself in an exceedingly enterprising way this year and it will hold its own wth any of the great stores of larger cities for extensiveness and variety. Nobody need go out of the city to procure their Christmas tokens, because suitable presents and suitable prices can be found in endless variety at Schneider's.

FRIDAY MARKET DAY

Friday is the regular market day this week owing to the holiday on Saturday, and will doubtless mean a big business for the merchants. The farmer's market will, of course, be an important feature of the day, especially for those who have not already secured the Christmas turkey and "other things." The prices to-morrow may be satisfactory and they may not and thereupon is one of the matters of importance to the housekeeper. No one seems to be holding out strong hopes that the prices are going to be cheaper to-morrow.

BEAUTIFUL WINDOWS OF ROBERT FAIR & CO.

Such an artistic display in window dressing as that presented by Robert Fair & Co. has seldom or never been witnessed by Peterboro' people before. The beatuiful designs in the mind of the clever artist who performed the work were most carefully and handsomely executed so that the windows of that well known dry goods firm command with the least difficulty the attention of every passer-by. The moment a person's gase meets the fairy-like display, not only within the windows but also in the interior and throughout the whole store, his fancies are turned to thoughts of Christmas.

PRESENTATION TO FIRE CHIEF HOWARD

The men of the fire brigade took advantage of the festivities yesterday to show their appreciation of Chief Howard, and their gratitude to him for his many kindnesses during the year, by making him the recipient of a very handsome gold-headed cane and an appreciative address. Chief Howard was taken by surprise, but managed to find words in which to express his thanks to his men. The address was as follows:

Peterborough, Dec. 22, '09.
W. A. Howard, Esq., Chief Fire Department, Peterborough, Ont.—

Dear Chief,—At this festive occasion when everyone is extending the good hand of fellowship, and all are appreciating that joy which in boyhood days filled the heart, we the firemen under your command wish to extend to you and yours our heartiest good wishes, for a Merry Christmas, and a Happy and prosperous New Year.

At the same time we wish to express our loyalty to you and our confidence in you as chief of the Peterborough Fire Department.

You have shown many times your great interest in our welfare, both as a department and individually, and we desire to express our appreciation In doing so allow us to take the opportunity to present to you this stick, and may you be spared very many years to lean your weight upon it.

Once more, chief, allow us to wish you and Mrs. Howard and Clifford, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the firemen.

WHITE & GILLESPIE'S IN HOLIDAY ATTIRE

Tasteful Window Displays of Xmas Groceries, Fruits and Sweets.

One of the most Christmasy grocery stores in the city is that of Messrs. White & Gillespie, 336 George St. Within these spacious premises there is sufficient assurance of the variety and goodness of his Christmas edibles. The reliable character of the stock is one of the pronounced attractions. The diversity of foods and luxuries for the table is apparent, the clerical service courteous, and the price lists satisfactory. The store windows have also been gaily decorated for the festive season, with a representative display of the firm's brand raisins and currants, as well as superior samples of candies, peels, etc. In another window the display consists of Christmas creams, chocolates and other delicious candies, nuts, etc. The windows are profusely decorated with garlands of evergreens, red Christmas bells and other features, artistically arranged by the tasty window dresser, Mr. Percy Fitzgerald.

EVERY CITIZEN IN THIS CITY IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SALOON

Honourable Seaborn Wright, Governor of Georgia, Gave Splendid Address on "The Regulation of the Liquor Traffic" in Grand Opera House Last Evening—Was Not Against Hotel Keepers But Against the Law That Allows Them to Sell Liquor.

A splendid meeting in the interests of Local Option was held last evening in the Grand Opera House when over seven hundred people listened to a stirring address on "the regulation of the liquor traffic" by Honourable Seaborn Wright, Governor of Georgia. The Honourable gentleman is a clever and interesting speaker. Last night he spoke most emphatically in his denunciation of the bar and his remarks in support of local option were based upon the experience in his own state where the law is in force.

Dr. Morgan acted as chairman after some selections by the orchestra and prayer by Rev. H. J. Keith, and in a few appropriate remarks introduced the speaker of the evening.

Honourable Mr. Wright in giving his address on "the regulation of the liquor traffic,' 'remarked at the outset, that the movement in which they were interested was not a local one only. It had a very broad scope. In every civilized country the fight was being taken up and more than half of the republic to the south had voted out the saloons, 32,000 having been abolished in the past three years. The war, he said, was not against any one man who drank or who sold liquor. He did not assume the right to interfere with the habits of adult men. The trouble was not with the drinking men but it was with the law. "Your law," the speaker stated, "has inaugurated an outrageous system. The man who drinks understands the iniquity of sin. It is he who needs the help. Don't fight the men who run the taverns. They are not responsible, but it is the people who created the liquor traffic. The law permits the saloon. It is legitimate business because the laws of Canada have made it so." Governor Wright further claimed that every man, woman and child in Peterborough was in open shameless partnership with the liquor trust that never blessed a soul but that had damned millions. For the privilege of debauching the manhood of the city, all that the latter asked was $5000 per year. Just as long as the city treasury was enriched from the coffers of the hotels, the citizens were responsible for the evil it made. Permission was not only given the liquor interests to ruin the manhood of the town but a demand was being created for strong drink, not for this generation alone but for generations to come. More than $100,000,000 was invested in the liquor business in the Dominion and if a demand for the drink was created in the sons of the men of to-day, in twenty years all that money would be lost. The life of the average man was only twenty years. The lecturer pointed out that the consumption of liquor per capita in this Dominion had doubled within the last forty years. Every mother who sent her boy out of her home put him in danger of bars that were upheld by his own father who shared in the responsibility of allowing them.

Since coming into Canada, Honourable Mr. Wright said that on many occasions he heard Peterborough mentioned as a coming city of the Dominion. "Are you going to have your bright, ambitious boys, dragged down to the lowest degradation by the gaily illumined and attractive bars?" he asked. Nobody wanted a drinking man in their business. The business world valued the virtue of sobriety almost more than any other. The speaker continuing, argued that a municipality that permitted the bar was doing nothing more than capitalizing the passions and virtues of its people. He referred to the slavery that once existed in the South, when men's bodies were sold upon the block.

Here, he said, mens' souls were sold for $5,000. The statement that it was a shame to confiscate the hotelman's business was often advanced against Local Option. The liquor men went into the business with a full knowledge of the law. The people made the law and had full right to abolish it. Every legitimate business blessed life in some way, but the liquor trade never brought happiness to any person.

Mr. Wright in conclusion, urged his hearers to stop the dreadful traffic now and it would not be necessary to, in the coming generations. If this city was to be a great one, much would depend on its citizenship, its great wealth. Therefore, it was necessary to wipe out evil and degrading influences. "If you put it out" he said, "you will wonder in two years why you ever tolerated it. Give it a try."

Many Song Features are introduced into the sparkling comedy "THE ARRIVAL OF KITTY" which comes to the "Grand" Christmas Day, Matinee and Evening, including "Experience," "My Cousin Caruso," "Don't Go Near the Water, Daughter," "I'm Going To Do As I Please," Carry-Mary-Harry." The Seat Sale is now open. Mark your seats early.

ST. PAUL'S S. SCHOOL ANNUAL XMAS CHEER

Contributions From the S. S. Scholars and Bible Classes for the Poor of the City

The annual Christmas festivities of St. Paul's Sunday School took place last night, and was a delightful demonstration of the spread of the "good-will to men" sentiment among the young.

The programme of the evening was carried out in the church, where the scholars were arranged in their respective classes, along with Rev. Mr. Pogue's adult Bible Class, and Mr. Mowat's young men's Bible Class.

Mr. William Madill, superintendent of the Sunday School, presided, and the following programme was sucessfully gone through. Mr. Crane presided at the organ:

Opening hymn—"Hark! the Herald angels Sing," by the whole school.
Prayer—Rev. Robt. Pogue.
Singing—By Primary and Kindergarten classes.
Recitation—Gladys Hunter.
Solo—Miss Florence Scott.
Address—Rev. Robt. Pogue.
Quartette—Misses Moore and McCaw, and Messrs Nelson and Gillespie.
Singing—Primary and Kindergarten classes.

At this stage of the programme all the classes filed out of the church to the Sunday School room, and returned carrying their gifts wor the poor. These were deposited on a long range of tables, and made a display not unlike that of a commissary for a military post.

A systematic arrangement for the distribution of the gifts was adopted, and soon the list of the deserving poor was covered by volunteer hands.

The character of the gifts was very varied—flour, Quaker Oats and other cereals, sugar, potatoes, vegetables, butter, cheese, meat, cakes, candies, apples, fruits, etc.

A hymn was sung, "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow," the Benediction was pronounced and everybody went home with a gladdened heart.

The only regret was the meagre attendance of adult members of the church. It was remarked that if the absence last night by fathers and mothers and other adult members was any criterion for the interest taken in the young of the congregation, the rising worshippers of St. Paul's would certainly have to "work out their own salvation."

COLEMAN BROTHERS BEST DISPLAY

Christmas Dainties of the Most Artistic and Fascinating Character.

No person interested in the confectioner's art can afford to miss the meritorious display of cakes and confectionery shown by Coleman Bros. The two bewitching show windows of this enterprising firm's store, on George street, have been growing more and more Christmasy every day, until the exhibit of to-day is the finest they have ever made. The really artistic iced work on the cakes displayed has attracted crowds of passers-by and has been highly spoken of by good judges. The delicate confections, fancy candies and chocolates are also much admired. Beautifully designed bon bon boxes for Christmas giving are shown in a pretty decorated booth and are in various assorted sizes and designs. In fact, all through the store is a sparkle and glow which tells Merry Christmas is near with its snow. Already the sleigh and its tiny reindeer, with Santa Claus shouting the road for to clear.

To-night, all day to-morrow and to-morrow night, the "stocking stuffing" at Coleman's will be a sight worth taking in.

OBITUARY.

MARGARET SOUCIE.

Word was received last night by Mrs. John Soucie, of the sudden death of her second daughter, Margaret, at Willard, N.Y., where she had been engaged in teaching at the high school of that town. No further particulars have been received as to the cause of death. The family had a letter from her a few days ago, and she was then in the best of health, and intended coming home to spend the Christmas holiday with her mother.

The body will arrive this evening by the 10 p.m. G. T. R. train, and will be taken to her home at 236 Perry street. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, and will be given later.

The deceased was of a very bright and lovable disposition, and she will be sadly missed in the family circle and among her host of friends.

Besides her mother, she is survived by five brothers and four sisters. The brother are John, of St. Ignace, Mich., Edward, of Revelstoke, B.C., and Frank and Andrew of Vancouver. The sisters are Mrs. J. F. Ryan of Okmulger, Oaklahama; Josie, of Willard, and Caroline and Katharine, at home.

LIQUOR CASES

Many of Those Referred To Were Offences Under the Black List Clause

In an article in the Examiner last night attention was called to the number of cases under the Liuor Act that have been brought up by the police and the License Inspector respectively. There is liable to be an erroneous impression of the hotel men of the city because of the number of cases. However, it should be understood that many of these cases referred to were in connection with the black list clause, in many instances the charge being laid against the black listed person himself and not against the hotel men.

SPORT NOTES

Manager Oldham of the West Ends has signed Ken Crane the crack rover of the Collegiate Institute team, and captain of last year's Chieftains for his City League team. Crane is fast and clever and will be a source of strength to the West Enders. The Stratheonas had a line out for Crane, too, as he would have rounded out their team nicely by filling the centre position in place of Herb Long, who is out of the city. However, the West Enders beat the Commissioners out in the scramble and secured the Collegiate boy.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE LATEST NEWS OF SPORT — TOLD IN BRIEF FORM

O. R. F. U. SHOULD CONSIDER THE CASE OF "DUKIE" COTTON

Somebody has evidently been playing with the O.R.F.U. Executive. About the time when Lindsay was drawn to play the St. Mike's in the first round of the junior series at Lindsay, Cotton, who was the captain of the team in 1908, was moved to Lindsay by his bank, and the club there applied for a permit to play him in the game. This was speedily granted by the Ontario Union, and he played. A week later the same man was moved back to Toronto by the bank "for keeps." In the first place the O.R.F.U. should never have issued such a permit, as the case is not an ordinary one. The rules say that a man must be a continuous resident of a town or city from July 1st, and Toronto is not a suburb of Lindsay. It was understood all along that no permits would be issued at all this season—in fact the rule was altered, preventing the issuance of special favours. The fact that the bank for which Cotton worked moved him at such a convenient time makes the whole think look rather peculiar to the other clubs.

It is to be hoped that the Union will be more conservative in allowand special privileges next season, as the fewer the better, for the general satisfaction of all. Even if St. Mikes did not object to Cotton playing with the 1908 champions, the permit in this case makes a bad precedent unless the Executive sits down on all similar grants with a special ruling.

LEO DEROCHER.

Leo Derocher, goalkeeper of the Peterborough Intermediate O.H.A. team, who will be with the Strathcona City League team this season. He was with the T.A.S. in the City League last year, but played with the champion Strathcona team in 1907 and is back in the red and white sweater of the Commissioners again this season.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM MR. LASTAR

This letter and any others that may follow, under the signature of Mr. Lastar, are independent of any other party or parties, and are paid for by him for their insertion.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

The biggest bluff of the local option campaign is over, and at last, everyone can see that the campaign is not worthy of consideration; and again the Police have been required for protection, when an answer was demanded to my question. What have they stated on the public platform and through the press. At first, they said it was just to show the people that they were not afraid to discuss the question publicly; and announced that they would bring a speaker who would answer all questions. When I proposed to pay for half the opera house to be allowed to discuss this matter with them, the answer was that they would not let me ask any questions ;but that I must put them in writing and hand them in three hours before the meeting started. Then the speaker was not there. The questions were in typewriten form, so they would have no excuse that they could not read them. In answer they stated from the platform and through the press, that the questions would be answered by the next speaker. The next speaker came, and made the excuse, that it was Sunday, and they would not discuss such matters on a Holy day. Then I announced that I would demand an answer from the speaker at the next meeting, as that was advertised for a week day. They therefore made their arrangements beforehand, as they knew they would not be able to answer by questions. I took a seat right at the back, and behind me was stationed a policeman, who had I presume instructions not to allow me to ask any questions. When the speaker finished, and did not answer my questions, I just stood up and asked them to answer my first three questions. Then the policeman jumped and asked me to take my coat and leave the meeting. The meeting was over anyway. Now does this not break every moral law of hospitality. They first announce that everyone is invited, and then state that every question will be answered; and when they entrap the people to come and discuss the question with them, to have the atrocity, when they cannot answer a simple, straightforward question, to have the man whom they have invited expelled by the police. Now that is about the meanest trick that could be done. I would not have expected such behaviour from a wild negro; much less men who pretend to be moral workers. I say shame on you, who on the platform and by ways of morality try to induce the people to follow you. What have they said through the press? That they wanted a man who was not ashamed and not afraid to come and discuss the matter on its merits. Was I afraid for their long advertised speaker, to go and discuss the matter with him? No. I was there. And I am proud of it, that I was able to show the people that I meant business. No fooling nor boasting. Oh you moral reform workers; if I could only just say what I would like to, and express my opinion; but the papers would not take it: So you may understand from this what I think, and what everyone of the city thinks of you. You were shown up in your right colour, as big bluffers, who are trying to bring the people together, by presenting to them one side of the story, that suits them, and to induce the people to believe them. But you cannot stand my straightforward question, nor discussion. Nor can you, nor any of your professional speakers, answer the questions.

If they are afraid to meet me on the open platform, I will fight you through the press as well as I can; and I am going to prove to you that every one of your stories are misleading. As I have stated before, I am more against drunkenness, than the best moral reformers. They only want to close a few hotels and bring indiscriminate crime by actually forcing the poor people to break the law by selling liquor on the side. Because all the speakers acknowledge that lawbreaking will come when local option is passed. The way I purpose is to educate and teach the people, the same as the T.A.S. have done; then the poor people will be spared breaking the law and perjuring themselves ,and teaching our children in such a way that not a hundred hotels would affect them. I will leave to the good judgment of every citizen of Peterborough, to choose which is the better way, mine or theirs.

Now the speaker last night, and also the water-waggon preacher made such a noise about saloons, and told us how many saloons they had succeeded in closing. I say, that every saloon in existence should be closed, and they should never appear in a civilized place. Now what are saloons? They have not told you that. We have no saloons here, not in our surroundings. Why should we fight a thing that does not exist. Now let me tell you where saloons do exist. These are only in the United States, and not in any one place in this province. That is why they are fighting them in the United States more than any where else; and through these saloons those moral reformers are trying to take away from hundreds of men their means of making a living, and actually robbing hundreds of people, directly, of what they possess. A saloon is an open bar with nothing suspicious in front; but in the back they have a big dancing hall where hundreds of all kinds of men and women come together, and besides they have private roms where couples come and pass their time in private. Also some rooms where men sit night and day and gamble and drink. And in some of them, they even have under-ground rooms where they take opium. Those are the places that every honest man should fight to close. But the question is,—have we such saloons. I say a hundred times, "No." He then stated that these kind of saloons puts every man, woman and child in this kind of business. That is just the kind of thing that I want to prevent. We have no women and children here, behind the bars. They are not tolerated here in the open bar; but when you pass local option, you will find lots of married women and girls discriminating themselves against their husbands and fathers by the secret sale of liquor. Do you want that, then pass local option. If so, you are sure to have it.

Then you were told the story of a boy that leaves his country home, and comes to town to learn a trade or business, and the first thing he finds is the open bar first on one corner and then on the other, and he cannot withstand the temptation and gets drunk, and the next thing he is getting sick of the place where he is employed. The story is very sad; if true. But such a thing could not happen in Peterborough under the license law. In the first place, there are no boys under age who can get liquor from the open bar; then if led on and tempted by friends of his own age to crime. It is certainly not caused by the open bar. But they will be able to get anything they like from the blindpigs under the local option law. Would you have this? And besides a boy like this, who is strange in town will learn bad habits, and even crime. But where? Not in the bar, where he is not permitted. But in the pool-rooms. There is where he learns all those things. That is where he learns to gamble, and when he cannot get on further, for the want of money, in the legitimate way; that is the time when he begins to steal, and takes the first opportunity that presents itself.

Those are the places where you moral workers should turn your attention, and you will find the foundation of crime. But if you would adopt the plan of the T.A.S. and have rooms for the young men and boys to pass the evening, when they come strangers to the city, they would not be tempted to crime and drink; but would be guided by the good advice of good men, and be saved. Then be acknowledged unintentionally that liquor is more used under the local option than under the license law. He also stated that by looking through the records of the use of liquor, he found that in the last years, there has been more than double the liquor used, than in the same number of years before. Well, there is a clear answer to that, and the reason why more liquor is used, it is because it is only of late years that they have agitated the local option by-law. Where local option is, it diminishes the use of beer, but increases the sale of all kinds of poisonous strong liquors. Now you will surely be convinced by what your own advertised speaker tells you, that under the local option law, drink has been used more than double that under the ordinary license law. Then he stated that your children are bound to be tempted when the bars are open. I say "No." If you bring up your children, as the men who belong to the T.A.S. do; if there is a hundred hotels, they will not be tempted. And that is what we have to prove right here in town; and everyone can convince himself if he wants to.

He cannot answer my three first questions because he has been paid and brought here to preach local option. He unintentionally answered it, by appealing to the audience, and saying, "that he does not care what way they save the children from drinking, but that he would like to regulate it in any way at all. Well that is what I am advocating; is to regulate the drinking question the best way we can; and I can honestly see no better way than that the T.A.S. have adopted. Then he stated that we would be criminals if we did not pass local option here. Now let me tell him that this is not right and that the people of Peterborough are not like his to be made criminals of. I would certainly advise the reformers to advise their speakers to use a little more moderate language, when they come to Peterborough, or you will have another occasion to complain of abuse.

Then he must have been supplied with my letters before he came here, so as to be ready. But the only attack he thought fit to make, was when he stated that I said I would not let them take my liberty. Not even by the Chief of Police. He did not finish, and state what my word liberty meant, but stopped at the word liberty. Now let me inform that gentleman that I knew what the word liberty means, as well as himself, and that I know the worth of liberty, better than he will ever know, or will ever be able to understand. Because I have suffered for the sake of liberty, where he himself is only bluffing. If he knew the meaning of the word liberty, he would not advocate for any man to bend to the will of another, for either right or wrong, and do just as they command. All this you won't get unless you fight for it.

He also stated that I was a strong man, and could handle the drinking question, myself, only; and for my sake they should not endanger their children, nor make drunkards of them. Let me thank him for the compliment. That is the worst he could say against me. He was wrong, there again. The whole population of the City of Peterborough, with the exception of a few only, are strong men ;and can handle themselves; and none of our children are in any danger of becoming drunkards. There is no need to tell the stories here. They might work among your own class of people, but they are not the proper thing for the people of Peterborough.

He also stated that the weak drunkard needed helping, and should be pitied. I will deal with this question in my next letter. And will show you the ways that our workers are handling these kind of people.

And now wishing you a Merry Christmas,

I remain,
Yours truly,
B. LASTAR.

A TRIP AROUND THE WORLD AS IT IS AT PRESENT TIME

Interesting Paper Read by Mr. W. McIlroy at the Canadian Ticket Agents' Association Meeting at Buffalo Recently — The Convenience of Modern Travel.

INCIDENTS OF JOURNEY

The following paper was read by W. McIlroy, C. P. R. Ticket Agent, at the regular meeting of Canadian Ticket Agents' Association, at Buffalo:

"A Trip Around the World," looked upon as a wonderful trip, not many years ago, has now become an easy undertaking, through the great advance in civilisation and the splendidly improved facilities for transporting around the world passengers on the railroads and ocean-going steamships. Such a tour, therefore, is a most interesting study for the ticket agent, and with your kind attention, I shall outline, as briefly as possible, one route.

Starting from the City of Peterborough the tourist boards the Canadian Pacific Railway, which I have the honour to represent as ticket agent, having decided to travel westward, is transported to Toronto, thence over the new line to Sudbury, on to Winnipeg, through the immense wheat-producing fields of the great Canadian North West, and on through the Rocky Mountains, comprising five hundred miles of the wildest and most picturesque scenery on the continent, that has been described as fifty or sixty Switzerlands rolled into one, and whose scenic magnificence has been pronounced matchless, time and time again, by the royalty of Great Britain and Europe, and prominent American travellers.

The mountain scenery passed, the tourist reaches Vancouver, the San Francisco of the north Pacific Coast, and if the steamer is not ready to sail, splendid accommodation is offered at the Hotel Vancouver, owned and operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway, noted as one of the best in America, for those qualities which go to make up the sum of a traveller's comfort.

From Vancouver the routes across the Pacific Ocean diverge, that of the Canadian Pacific Empress Steamship Line to Japan and China being nearly due west, while that of the Canadian Australian Line, operated by the C. P. R., lies southwest to Honolulu, Suva, Fiji, Brisbane, and thence to Sydney. Around the World passengers, by these two routes, would meet again at Colombo, Ceylon.

The tourist, having selected the Canadian Pacific Empress route, boards the Empress of China—a splendid twin-screw type of ocean-going vessel, which has given a new charm to the voyage across the Pacific. They take a specified northern course between Vancouver and Yokohoma, which is the shortest trans-Pacific route by about three hundred miles, and which also usually enjoys the most pleasant weather. On such an ocean, therefore, and such a ship, it is impossible not to enjoy the trip from Vancouver to Japan, and there is much of novelty, the ways of the Pacific Steamship lines not being those of the Atlantic, which will be new to many. The servants are not called stewards, but "boys," they are not black jacketed Europeans, but white-frocked celestials. There is no luncheon on board, but there is a luxurious "Tiffin" and many oriental dishes, if the passenger is an epicurean, and so on.

In about ten days after leaving the shores of British Columbia, the steamship is in Japanese waters, the first port reached being Yokohoma, in the land of the Chrysanthemum. Unless in a very great hurry, indeed, the tourist will here leave the ship and take a little time to see Japan. The tourist can then regulate his daily programme with the greatest economy of time and the maximum amount of sight seeing.

A run of 400 miles brings the tourist to the Woosung River, on which the great mercantile centre of Northern China is situated, the City of Shanghai. A transfer is made at Woosung to a small steamer for Shanghai, which is twelve miles up the river.

Southward, the tourist continues his journey and next anchors at Hong Kong, a mountainous island of 29 square miles, lying off the province of Kwang Tung, of which Canton is the capital. It is a British Colony, the capital, and, indeed, the only city of, which, is Victoria, though generally spoken of as Hong Kong all over the world. It has a fine harbour which is continually crowded with warships of Britain and other nations, numerous junks, sampans (native boats), and merchant vessels of all kinds. Hong Kong, with its magnificent naval dock yard, is the base for the British Chinese squadron.

From Hong Kong the tourist continues his globe trotting trip in one of the Peninsula and Oriental or North German Lloyd steamers through the China sea to Singapore, a very busy and important place and a rendezvous and coaling station of the British East India Squadron, a large trade being done with the Malay Peninsula. It is famous for its flowers and fruits.

The route to Europe is continued through the Straits of Malacca via Penang, to Colombo, where travellers from the Canadian Australian route, join the main route. Colombo is one of the most interesting points on the route. There are some good hotels there and it is noted for its beautiful drives. It is a great place for jewellery of all descriptions, unseen in shops at home, imitation ones, and other curios. Some of the finest jewels seen in the shops of London, Paris and New York are purchased at Colombo.

From Colombo, the tourist selects the Mediterranean route as far as Naples, passing through on the way the Gulf of Aden, the Red Sea, the Suez Canal and crosses the rippling blue waters of the Mediterranean Sea, to Naples. From there he decides to take the rail route to Rome, Genoa, thence to Lausanne, Paris and Antwerp, where he takes the steamer for the Capital City of England, "Dear Old London," where he feels that at last he is nearing "home," and can speak freely in his native language once more. You all know what a great place the City of London is, and it needs no further comment. Historic places are visited there and throughout the British Empire, not forgetting of course, "Bonnie Scotland," and the "Emerald Isle," where those great men Casey, Kelly, O'Brien, Travers, Charles and others were born..

The tourist, having selected "The Empress of Britain" of the Canadian Pacific Atlantic Steamship Line, feels right at home when he steps upon the deck of this splendid Canadian owned and operated vessel, and feels proud of his native land, when he thinks of having travelled more than half way around the world on the Canadian owned railways and steamships. He has experienced the pleasure derived from the strange and beautiful sights which he has seen and insight gained in the trade and economy of these eastern and western people, whose easy inter-communication is so rapidly influencing the trade and political relations of the world.

The broad Atlantic is soon crossed in the palatial "Empress" steamer, and considerable discussion here takes place about a side trip to the North Pole, before landing in Canada, but this could not be arranged, as "Cook's Tours" to that ice-bound burg are still in doubt.

With mingled feelings of pleasure and patriotism the traveller sights the shores of his native land "Canada" and he is still glad to be "still nearer home." The "Empress" lands at Quebec, that picturesque and historic city, on the noble St. Lawrence River, with its magnificently located Canadian Pacific Hotel "The Chateau Frontenac" where he boards the special train awaiting arrival of steamship, passes through the French section of Canada to Montreal, the largest mercantile centre in the Dominion with a tremendous shipping trade, and finally lands at his starting point, the Electric City of Peterborough, with its cheap power, charming inland waters, the biggest canoe factories, the largest lift-lock and the biggest ticket agent in the world.

MR. ESTABROOKS PRESIDENT

Annual Election of the St. John Board of Trade.

Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, proprietor of Red Rose tea, was this week elected President of the Board of Trade of St. John, New Brunswick. In no city in Canada is the Board of Trade more intimately identified with the ambition and prospects, industrial and civic, of the city than in St. John.

The St. John Sun says: St. John is forunate in the men who serve and have served her interests in the difficult and responsible Presidency of the Board of Trade. Mr. W. E. Foster, whose two years 'term of office came to a close yesterday, has been particularly devoted and active. Under his administration the board has largely increased its membership and efficiency and has been unremitting in its efforts for civc advancement. And in his successor, Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, the board has secured a man admirably equipped in public spirit and business energy and experience to carry along vigorously and progressively the board's work for the upbuilding and development of St. John. In the present circumstances Mr. Eastbrooks is peculiarly well fitted for the position. By his personal ability and vim he has built up from small beginnings one of the most successful business enterprises in the Dominion. One of the chief factors in this success has been extensive and intelligent advertizing, and Mr. Estabrooks, we believe, recognises this and recognises also that civic as well as private business is capable of development by imilar methods. There is nothing St. John needs more at the present time than an energetic and well-directed campaign of publicity.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

It was nightfall when the little army entered the outer gate of the Castle of Ploermel and encamped in the broad Bailey yard. Ploermel was at that time the centre of British power in Mid-Brittany, as Hennebon was in the West, and it was held by a garrison of five hundred men under an old soldier, Richard of Bambro', a rugged Northumbrian, trained in that great school of warriors, the border wars. He who had ridden the marches of the most troubled frontier in Europe, and served his time against the Liddlesdale and Nithsdale raiders was hardened for a life in the field.

Of late, however, Bambro had been unable to undertake any enterprise, for his re-enforcements had failed him, and amid his following he had but three English knights and seventy men. The rest were a mixed crew of Bretons, Hainaulters and a few German mercenary soldiers, brave men individually, as those of that stock have ever been, but lacking interest in the cause, and bound together by no common tie of blood or tradition.

On the other hand, the surrounding castles, and especially that of Josselin, were held by strong forces of enthusiastic Bretons, inflamed by a common patriotism, and full of warlike ardor. Robert of Beaumanoir, the fierce seneschal of the house of Rohan, pushed constant forays and excursions against Ploermel so that town and castle were both in daily dread of being surrounded and besieged. Several small parties of the English faction had been cut off and slain to a man, and so straitened were the others that it was difficult for them to gather provisions from the country round.

Such was the state of Bambro's garrison when on that March evening Knolles and his men streamed into the bailey-yard of his Castle.

In the glare of the torches at the inner gate Bambro was waiting to receive them, a dry, hard, wisened man, small and fierce, with beady black eyes and quick furtive ways. Beside him, a strange contrast, stood his Squire, Croquart, a German, whose name and fame as a man-at-arms were widespread, though like Robert Knolles himself he had begun as a humble page. He was a very tall man, with an enormous spread of shoulders, and a pair of huge hands with which he could crack a horseshoe. He was slow and lethargic, save in moments of excitement, and his calm blond face, his dreamy blue eyes and his long fair hair gave him so gentle an appearance that none save those who had seen him in his berserk mood, raging, an iron giant, in the forefront of the battle, could ever guess how terrible a warrior he might be. Little knight and huge squire stood together under the arch of the donjon and gave welcome to the newcomers, whilst a swarm of soldiers crowded round to embrace their comrades and to lead them off where they might feed and make merry together.

Supper had been set in the hall of Ploermel wherein the knights and squires assembled. Bambro and Croquart were there with Sir Hugh Calverly, an old friend of Knolles and a fellow-townsman, for both were men of Chester. Sir Hugh was a middle-sized flaxen man, with hard gray eyes and fierce large-nosed face sliced across with the scar of a sword-cut. There too were Geoffrey D'Ardaine, a young Breton seigneur, Sir Thomas Belford, a burly thick-set Midland Englishman, Sir Thomas Walton, whose surcoat of scarlet martlets showed that he was of the Surrey Waltons, James Marshall and John Russell, young English squires, and the two brothers, Richard and Hugh Le Galliard, who were of Gascon blood. Besides these were several squires, unknown to fame, and of the new-comers. Sir Robert Knolles, Sir Thomas Percy, Nigel Loring and two other squires, Allington and Parsons. These were the company who gathered in the torch-light round the table of the Seneschal of Ploermel, and kept high revel with joyous hearts because they thought that much honor and noble deeds lay before them.

But one sad face there was at the board, and that belonged to him at the head of it. Sir Robert Bambro' was wont to sit with his head leaning upon his hand and his eyes downcast upon the cloth, whilst all round him rose the merry clatter of voices, everyone planning some fresh enterprise which might now be attempted. Sir Robert Knolles was for an immediate advance upon Josselin. Calverly thought that a raid might be made into the South where the main French power lay. Others spoke of an attack upon Vannes.

To all these eager opinions Bambro' listened in a moody silence, which he broke at last by a fierce execration which drew a hushed attention from the company. "Say no more, fair sirs," he cried; "for indeed your words are like so many stabs in my heart. All this and more we might indeed have done. But of a truth you are too late."

"Too late?" cried Knolles. "What mean you, Richard?"

"Alas; that I should have to say it, but you and all these fair soldiers might be back in England once more for all the profit that I am like to have from your coming. Saw you a rider on a white horse ere you reached the Castle?"

"Nay, I saw him not?"

"He came by the western road from Hennebon. Would that he had broken his neck ere he came here. Not an hour ago he left his message and now hath ridden on to warn the garrison of Malestroit. A truce has been proclaimed for a year betwixt the French King and the English, and he who breaks it forfeits life and estate."

"A truce!" Here was an end to all their fine dreams. They looked blankly at each other all round the table, whilst Croquart brought his great fist down upon the board until the glasses rattled again. Knolles sat with clenched hands as if he were a figure of stone, while Nigel's heart turned cold and heavy within him. A truce? Where then was his third deed, and how might he return without it?

Even as they sat in moody silence there was the call of a bugle from somewhere out in the darkness.

Sir Richard looked up with surprise. "We are not wont to be summoned after once the portcullis is up," said he. "Truce or no truce, we must let no man within our walls until we have proved him. Croquart, see to it!"

The huge German left the room. The company were still seated in despondent silence when he returned.

"Sir Richard," said he, "the brave knight Robert of Beaumanoir and his Squire William de Montaubon are without the gate, and would fain have speech with you."

Bambro started in his chair. What could the fierce leader of the Bretons, a man who was red to the elbow with English blood, have to say to them? On what errand had he left his castle of Josselin to pay this visit to his deadly enemies?

"Are they armed?" he asked.

"They are unarmed."

"Then admit them and bring them hither, but double the guards and take all heed against surprise."

Places were set at the farther end of the table for these most unexpected guests. Presently the door was swung open, and Croquart with all form and courtesy announced the two Bretons, who entered with the proud and lofty air of gallant warriors and high-bred gentlemen.

Beaumanoir was a tall dark man with raven hair and long swarthy beard. He was strong and straight as a young oak, with fiery black eyes, and no flaw in his comely features save that his front teeth had been dashed from their sockets. His Squire, William of Montaubon, was also tall, with a thin hatchet face, and two small gray eyes set very close upon either side of a long fierce nose. In Beaumanoir's expression one read only gallantry and frankness; in Montaubon's there was gallantry also, but it was mixed with the cruelty and cunning of the wolf. They bowed as they entered, and the little English seneschal advanced with outstretched hand to meet them.

"Welcome, Robert, so long as you are beneath this roof," said he. "Perhaps the time may come in another place when we may speak to each other in another fashion."

"So I hope, Richard," said Beaumanoir; "but indeed we of Josselin bear you in high esteem and are much beholden to you and to your men for all that you have done for us. We could not wish better neighbors nor any from whom more honor is to be gained. I learn that Sir Robert Knolles and others have joined you, and we are heavy-hearted to think that the orders of our Kings should debar us from attempting a venture." He and his squire sat down at the places set for them, and filling their glasses drank to the company.

"What you say is true, Robert," said Bambro, "and before you came we were discussing the matter among ourselves and grieving that it should be so. When heard you of the truce?"

"Yester-evening a messenger rode from Nantes."

"Our news came to-night from Hennebon. The King's own seal was on the order. So I fear that for a year at least you will bide at Josselin and we at Ploermel, and kill time as we may. Perchance we may hunt the wolf together in the great forests, or fly our hawks on the banks of the Duc."

"Doubtless we shall do all this, Richard," said Beaumanoir; "but by Saint Cadoc it is in my mind that with good-will upon both sides we may please ourselves and yet stand excused before our Kings."

Knights and squires leaned forward in their chairs, their eager eyes fixed upon him. He broke into a gap-toothed smile as he looked round at the circle, the wisened seneschal, the blond giant, Nigel's fresh young face, the grim features of Knolles, and the yellow hawk-like Calvesly, all burning with the same desire.

"I see that I need not doubt the good-will," said he, "and of that I was very certain before I came under the errand. Bethink you then what this order applies to war but not to challenges, spear-runnings, knightly exchanges or the like. King Edward is too good a knight, and so is King John, that either of them shall stand in the way of a gentleman who desires to advance himself or to venture his body for the exaltation of his lady. Is this not so?"

A murmur of eager assent rose from the table.

"If you as the garrison of Ploermel march upon the garrison of Josselin, then it is very plain that we have broken the truce and upon our heads be it. But if there be a private bickering betwixt me, for example, and this young squire whose eyes show that he is very eager for honor, and if thereafter others on each side join in and fight upon the quarrel, it is in no sense war, but rather our own private business which no king can alter."

"Indeed, Robert," said Bambro, "all that you say is very good and fair."

Beaumanoir leaned forward toward Nigel, his brimming glass in his hand. "Your name, squire?" said he.

"My name is Nigel Loring."

"I see that you are young and eager, so I choose you as I would fain have been chosen when I was of your age."

"I thank you, fair sir," said Nigel. "It is great honor that one so famous as yourself should condescend to do some small deed upon me."

"But we must have cause for quarrel, Nigel. Now here I drink to the ladies of Brittany, who of all ladies upon this earth are the most fair and the most virtuous, so that the least worthy amongst them is far above the best of England. What say you to that, young sir?"

Nigel dipped his finger in his glass and leaning over he placed its wet impress on the Breton's hand. "This in your face!" said he.

Beaumanoir swept off the red drop of moisture and smiled his approval. "It could not have been better done," said he. "Why spoil my velvet pall-tock as many a hot-headed fool would have done. It is in my mind, young sir, that you will go far. And now, who follows up this quarrel?"

A growl ran round the table.

Beaumanoir ran his eye round and shook his head. "Alas!" said he, "there are but twenty of you here, and I have thirty at Josselin who are so eager to advance themselves that if I return without hope for all of them there will be sore hearts amongst them. I pray you, Richard, since we have been at these pains to arrange matters, that you in turn will do what you may. Can you not find ten more men?"

"But not of gentle blood."

"Nay, it matters not, if they will only fight."

"Of that there can be no doubt, for the castle is full of archers and men-at-arms who would gladly play a part in the matter."

"Then choose ten," said Beaumanoir.

But for the first time the wolf-like squire opened his thin lips. "Surely, my lord, you will not allow archers," said he.

"I fear not any man."

"Nay, fair sir, consider that this is a trial of weapons betwixt us where man faces man. You have seen these English archers, and you know how fast and how strong are their shafts. Bethink you that if ten of them were against us it is likely that half of us would be down before ever we came to handstrokes."

"By Saint Cadoc, William, I think that you are right," cried the Breton. "If we are to have such a fight as will remain in the memories of men, you will bring no archers and we no crossbows. Let it be steel upon steel. How say you then?"

"Surely we can bring ten men-at-arms to make up the thirty that you desire, Robert. It is agreed then that we fight on no quarrel of England and France, but over this matter of the ladies in which you and Squire Loring have fallen out. And now the time?"

"At once."

"Surely at once, or perchance a second messenger may come and this also be forbidden. We will be ready with to-morrow's sunrise."

"Nay, a day later," cried the Breton Squire. "Bethink you, my lord, that the three lances of Rahenac would take time to come over."

"They are not of our garrison, and they shall not have a place."

"But, fair sir, of all the lances of Brittany——"

"Nay, William, I will not have it an hour later. To-morrow it shall be, Richard."

"And where?"

"I marked a fitting place even as I rode here this evening. If you cross the river and take the bridle-path through the fields which leads to Josselin you come midway upon a mighty oak standing at the corner of a fair and level meadow. There let us meet at midday to-morrow."

"Agreed!" cried Bambro. "But I pray you not to rise, Robert! The night is still young and the spices and hippocras will soon be served. Bide with us, I pray you, for if you would fain hear the latest songs from England, these gentlemen have doubtless brought them. To some of us perchance it is the last night, so we would make it a full one."

But the gallant Breton shook his head. "It may indeed be the last night for many," said he, "and it is but right that my comrades should know it. I have no need of monk or friar, for I cannot think that harm will ever come beyond the grave to one who has borne himself as a knight should, but others have other thoughts upon these matters and would fain have time for prayer and penitence. Adieu, fair sirs, and I drink a last glass to a happy meeting at the midway oak."

CHAPTER XXIII.

All night the Castle of Ploermel rang with warlike preparations, for the smiths were hammering and filing and riveting, preparing the armor for the champions. In the stable yard hostlers were testing and grooming the great war-horses, whilst in the chapel knights and squires were easing their souls at the knees of old Father Benedict.

Down in the courtyard, meanwhile, the men-at-arms had been assembled, and the volunteers weeded out until the best men had been selected. Black Simon had obtained a place, and great was the joy which shone upon his grim visage. With him were chosen young Nicholas Dagsworth, a gentleman adventurer who was nephew to the famous Sir Thomas, Walter the German, Hulbitee—a huge peasant whose massive frame gave promise which his sluggish spirit failed to fulfil—John Alcock, Robin Adey and Raoul Provost. These with three others made up the required thirty. Great was the grumbling and evil the talk amongst the archers when it was learned that none of them were to be included, but the bow had been forbidden on either side. It is true that many of them were expert fighters both with ax and with sword, but they were unused to carry heavy armor, and a half-armed man would have short shrift in such a hand-to-hand struggle as lay before them.

It was two hours after tierce, or one hour before noon, on the fourth Wednesday of Lent in the year of Christ 1351 that the men of Ploermel rode forth from their castle-gate and crossed the bridge of the Duc. In front was Bambro with his Squire Croquart, the latter on a great roan horse bearing the banner of Ploermel, which was a black rampant lion holding a blue flag upon a field of ermine. Behind him came Robert Knolles and Nigel Loring, with an attendant at their side, who carried the pennon of the black raven. Then rode Sir Thomas Percy with his blue lion flaunting above him, and Sir Hugh Calverly, whose banner bore a silver owl, followed by the massive Belford who carried a huge iron club, weighing sixty pounds, upon his saddle-bow, and Sir Thomas Walton the knight of Surrey. Behind them were four brave Anglo-Bretons, Perrot de Commelain, Le Gaillart, d'Aspremont and d'Ardaine, who fought against their own countrymen because they were partisans of the Countess of Montfort. Her engrailed silver cross upon a blue field was carried at their head. In the rear were five German or Hainsult mercenaries, the tall Hulbitee, and the men-at-arms. Altogether of these combatants twenty were of English birth, four were Breton and six were of German blood.

HER DEATH WAS HOURLY EXPECTED

Enterprise, Ont., Oct. 1st, 1908.

"For seven years I suffered with what physicians called a "Water Tumor." I could neither sit, stand, nor lie down. Hypodermics of morphia had to be given me to ease the pain.

MRS. JAMES FENWICK

My case seemed hopeless, and my friends hourly expected my death. I was so bad that I wanted to die, and it was during one of these very bad spells that a family friend brought a box of "Fruit-a-tives" to the house. After much persuation I commenced to take them, but I was so bad that it was only when I had taken nearly two boxes that I commenced to experience relief. I kept up the treatment, however, and after taking five boxes I was cured, and when I appeared on the street my friends said. "The dead has come to life,' and this seemed literally true, because I certainly was at death's door."

Such Mills, the Boss Says, Make Wholesome Flour

"Sure, you've forgotten something," suggested the Superintendent as we were climbing to the fourth floor of the big FIVE ROSES mills.

"The solid concrete construction?" inquired yours truly.

We hadn't forgotten—merely waiting for a favourable opening. Evidently we had guessed right.

"Yes, sir", smiled the Supt., "this reinforced concrete business in modern flour mills does help some."

"Strength, of course, and economy" we put in with our chronic know-it-all air.

"No sir. More than that. Durability and economy strictly apart, there's the sanitary argument, you know."

We didn't know. He must have sensed our "show-me" attitude, for he went on without awaiting our gracious permission.

"You saw the basement just now when I showed you our giant power wheel. Sure, you then remarked on the wonderful healthy conditions below.

"Well, I couldn't keep this mill so spick and span as it is except for this concrete flooring. The main reason in cementing the basement—in fact, building the whole mill solid concrete—is to keep the entire plant sweet and wholesome; to shut out the mice and rats that always harbor in the basement of flour mills when they see a chance to get free bed and grub—and they generally get it in lavish abundance." Here the only feminine member of the company shuddered violently and looked about apprehensively for a high stool with an instinctive clutching of skirts.

"The housewives", continued the Supt. absently and politely garing t'other way, "are so terribly squeamish these days about their flour that I always emphasize these precautions to lady visitors. When rats and other pet (?) rodents grow too familiar with a flour mill, you know what happens."

"Nuf sed", we chirped in chorus.

"I'd like to see the rodent that'd apply here for free lodgings", quoth this fierce enemy of diminutive live stock, "I'd also like to see that nervy individual two seconds later.

"And, say", he added wickedly, "mention that in your advertising."

"Sure thing", we chirped again.

* * * *

If there is anywhere a cleaner, more wholesome, purer, more sanitary flour than FIVE ROSES, our extended experience and immense capital have failed to locate it.

FIVE ROSES appeals irresistibly to the woman who buys critically, who really wants her money's worth—flour that's never musty, tainted, impure.

Surely, Madam, you are not too exclusive to belong to that class.

See your grocer about it.

Woman's World

THE WOMEN OF CHINA.

Politics and Educational Movements Interest the Oriental Fair Sex.

The women of China have begun to assert themselves in earnest. A political meeting held by women took place a short time ago in Canton, and 10,000 were present. The object was to demonstrate the feeling of the women of China in favor of boycott against Japan. The platform was decorated and bands played. Women were the only speakers, and an address by Miss Pun Kut Fang aroused the 10,000 to enthusiasm. "It rests upon us," she said, "to contribute our portion of patriotism and loyalty to our country and emperor. I say women never lack such patriotism, and I call upon one and all to show that China can rely on us whenever there is a call." When the women of a nation show this spirit it means danger to meddling outsiders. After scores of centuries the Chinese women are at last awake and doing. They have abolished the custom of compressing feet, they have organized a chain of women's clubs throughout the empire, and even a princess of the royal blood, one of the six daughters of Prince Ching and a sister-in-law of the present regent, is doing splendid work along educational lines for Chinese girls. The illustration shows the daughter of Prince Ching gowned in royal splendor.

The Newspaper Excuse.

Thrice foolish is the woman who is jealous of her husband's newspaper. Of all the puny, lame, wanting excuses for taking offense the newspaper excuse is the weakest.

There is that intolerable woman who thinks her husband has ceased to love her because he would rather read the morning paper than scan her countenance as she pours his breakfast coffee.

If she only knew it, the newspaper is her best friend. It is a conservator of the peace in any home, and its presence should be welcomed and encouraged rather than scorned. Take the morning, for instance, when you thought to take those extra forty winks, which turned out to be more like forty minutes, and the breakfast is late—irretrievably, hopelessly late.

Then is the time for you to pin your faith and trust to the newspaper and say nothing.

Words are fatal at a time like this. Don't apologize; don't explain. Simply hand your husband the morning paper and put the coffee on.

Ignore the clock, and before he knows it that irate husband is plunged into an article that bridges him peaceably over that quarter of an hour before breakfast is ready.

Then, too, the newspaper is an excellent safety valve.

If John is in an irritable mood it is much better for him to vent his wrath on his pet abomination as depicted in the columns of the modern newspaper than to express his views on the shortcomings of his family. Better berate the slowness of the senate than the slowness of the cook, and far better decry greed and graft on the part of public officials than wanton extravagance on the part of his wife.

The newspaper, indeed, should be a saver and keeper of the peace instead of a stirrer up of jealousy and aggrieved feelings.

Then, too, think with how much more sympathy does the man well versed in newspaper lore view his wife's little excursions into shopdom. Those little jaunts after bargains that result in late dinners are heard with the sympathetic ear, for have not his own eyes scanned the screaming ads.?

By all means encourage the newspaper habit in your husband. Read the paper yourself, too, and be able to talk to him about something else than why the pudding is burned. If you had been drawing him out tactfully on the latest sensation in politics or even on the murder trial on the front page he wouldn't have known that the pudding was burned, and if he had he wouldn't have cared.

Lord Greenfield, being asked to buy something by a smart young matron who kept a table at a London bazaar, said that he wanted what was not for sale, a lock of her hair, whereupon she promptly cut off the coveted curl and handed it to him, naming the price —$100. Later the purchaser was showing his trophy to a little circle of friends. "She rather had you there," laughed one benedict. "To my certain knowledge she paid only $3 for the entire bunch."

NOVEL CURE FOR CATARRHAL ILLS.

Stops Bronchitis, Relieves Hoarseness, Cures Asthma, Prevents Throat Irritation.

The most effective way to treat and cure ailment of the breathing organs is by inhalation.

New as this method is in application, its practice is as old as man. Down from Adam has spread the reputation of the air of the pine woods, charged with balsam and healing for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages.

Yet medical men neglected to employ the natural curative agency for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages until the wonderful results which attended the Catarrhozone dry air method were brought to their notice and compelled attention.

The air of the pine woods, charged with little drops of balsam and ozone, has been enhanced by the Catarrhozone method through the addition of vegetable antiseptics more powerfully healing than the air of the pine woods.

This balsamic and healing vegetable compound is broken up by the air INTO MINUTE PARTICLES so small that the air is enabled to carry them to the remotest parts of the lungs, throat and nasal passages—in fact, it is the air of the pine woods concentrated a thousandfold, and you can have it at home.

FAILURE IS IMPOSSIBLE.

You can now understand why Catarrhozone cures with such certainty. It is medicated air carried to the seat of bronchitic congestion or situation here the micro-organisms which excite asthma or hay fever exert their baneful and dangerous influence.

The air distributes evenly over the entire diseased surfaces a covering of healing Catarrhozone. Immediately congestion is relieved, inflammation is subdued, the microbes which cause the trouble are destroyed, and cure follows as inevitably as the sun follows the night.

THOUSANDS CURED DAILY.

No other medicine has achieved such remarkable success, and to-day not less than twenty thousand physicians in America alone are prescribing Catarrhozone. And why? Simply because they realize that a healing remedy like Catarrhozone which air carries direct to the sore, inflamed membranes is bound to cure every form of Catarrh, all types of bronchitis and throat trouble, and will almost instantly stamp out coughs, colds, sneezing and bronchial deafness.

CATARRHOZONE CURES.

The reputation of Catarrhozone has grown by leaps and bounds. It reaches the diseased spot. It cures speedily. Almost the first use gives such relief in the worst cases that most people cannot understand its action.

Don't experiment longer—Catarrhozone means sure cure. Two months' treatment (guaranteed), price $1.00; smaller size, 50c, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

NEW DOLL FACES.

Paint Won't Come Off—Lifelike Expressions.

A doll that every child will want to have—every up to date child, at least—is the "lucky Eskimo doll." A quaint plaything it is, with true Eskimo features and a little suit of cloth and fur. The best ones cost $3 or $4, but tiny ones, not so well made, are to be had as low as 50 cents. To go with these mimic Eskimos are sledges drawn by shaggy dogs, traveling kits, hampers, thermometers and various other things a doll living within the arctic circle would be likely to need.

Fashions in doldom change, like fashions in everything else. Just now little peasant dolls are the thing. All the toyshops are showing them. The finest of these costume dolls, as they are called, come from Munich, and their costumes are wonderfully accurate. There are flaxen haired German dolls, Swedish dolls and dolls dressed like the peasants of the Swiss Tyrol in velvet suit, alpine hat and long feather. These are matronly peasant dolls in full skirts of green silk, black bodices and sheer blouses. There are Dutch dolls with their quaint caps and wooden shoes. In fact, now a distinctive type is forgotten in these collections of peasant dolls.

Their faces are good too. Dolls certainly do seem to be growing better looking every year. The faces of these peasant dolls, painted evidently by artists, are exceedingly natural. Their hair, too, is real, and, best of all, their faces can be washed and the lovely, soft coloring will not come off. These artistic dolls, as they are termed, are to be had undressed also. The smaller ones sell for from $3.50 to $7. Those in costume, of course, are higher.

Nowadays, by the way, the undressed dolls are not garbed in the coarse muslin slips in which unfeeling dealers used to expose them to the public eye, a sight calculated to wring the heart of any sensitive little girl with a mother heart. Cunning little suits of pajamas or pretty lace trimmed nightgowns adorn the best dolls now when they aren't in full costume.

OUR RADIATOR CAT.

A Silly Pussy That Caused Lots of Trouble For His Friends.

"Mother, where is the cat?" He hasn't touched his milk this morning!" called Tommy.

"I thought I heard the cat crying somewhere in this house yesterday afternoon," cried Theodore, "but it was not very plain."

"Hark! What was that?" It sounded very like a faroff, weak, "meow-ow-ow!" and it sent the three little Mayos in every direction to see if he had been shut in anywhere by mistake.

"Look in here, children," said their father. "He seems to be in this room," and as he spoke Coaxe's very voice answered the children's call. "He must be in the furnace pipe or the cold air box." So he jumped up from his chair and lifted the radiator out of the floor.

And what do you suppose they saw there? Only a little white, furry paw sticking out through a rat hole in the side of the box that the radiator slips into!

"Oh, what shall we do?" cried mamma. "We'll have to let that beautiful new floor be ripped up! You naughty, naughty cat!"

So the father took a small saw and tried to cut away the boards—oh, so carefully! The children took turns in holding poor Coaxe's paw so that he would not feel frightened and would not get hurt.

At last, with patient sawing and coaxing, the board fell away, and there was the house cat cuddled up on the rafter.

And was he not pleased to get out? And were the children not glad to have him? But mamma said as she smoothed his ruffled fur, "Don't you ever, ever do that again, Coaxe!"—Youth's Companion.

A Decorative Toy Box.

During the holidays is a good time to make out of a small, low packing box a chest in which to keep best toys and books. It will fit beautifully into the playroom corner and be lots of fun to make. The edges of the box are rubbed down with sandpaper and stained dark brown. Four panels are cut out of linen or denim to correspond with the front, lid and sides of the box. On these panels are pasted figures of children and animals cut out of calico or cretonne. The back of the box is stained, and the linen panels are tacked with brass headed nails.

Take Care.

This is a contest for little children. A small flag is stuck upright in the center of a bowl or flowerpot filled with sand. Each child in turn then has to remove a little sand from the pot on a stick or spoon without upsetting the flag or making it change its position. At each attempt all cry out, "Take care." The interest toward the close of the contest grows most exciting, and the one who upsets the flag pays the forfeit of a "traitor" who degrades and insults the flag of his country. The culprit is condemned to be shot, is blindfolded, stood against the wall and is the target for a bean shooter pistol.

An Amusing Trick.

Stick a fork or any pointed article in the wall about four or five feet from the floor and on the end of it place a piece of candy. Then tell some person to place his forefinger by the side of the candy. When he has measured the height carefully tell him to walk backward about five yards, then shut one eye and walk forward and try to knock the candy off the fork with one blow of the forefinger. The probabilities are that he will make the attempt a dozen times before he is successful. When he is successful he may eat the candy.

The Surprise Party.

A good amusement for a young folks' party is the "package game." After the children are assembled each one is given a large, neatly wrapped package. Of course it is addressed to him or her to whom it is handed. The receiver opens it eagerly, only to find that inside is another wrapping addressed to another member of the party. This causes much fun in the exchange and in the surprise. As many wrappings may be inside as the hostess cares to have, but in the last is a little gift appropriate to the real recipient. Each wrapper bears a new name.

Debby's Dilemma.

"Autumn" was the awful word that Debby couldn't spell.
With other words, it seemed to her, she got along quite well.
The teacher kept her in one day until she could remember
The spelling of "the season which ends with bleak November."

For one-half hour poor Debby sat, but memory failed to aid her
Or bring before her saddened eye the word which had delayed her.

At last, when deep dejection seemed to shut out every hope,
A happy thought broke through the gloom, and Debby ceased to mope.
"How stupid of me, silly! Why, it isn't hard at all!
Few people call it 'autumn,' and I surely can spell 'fall.'"

The SIGN of HONOR

THE DAY OF THE DUEL
(A True Story)

THEN, WITH A GASPING CRY, HE FELL BACKWARD, HIS WEAPON EXPLODING HARMLESLY.

(Copyright, 1909, by The New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

"TWO in the red circle, a very fair record at fifteen paces," said Colonel Joyce approvingly.

"But Mason is still ahead, is he not?" asked the slender, fair haired young woman who stood in the throng close at her father's side. He nodded in answer. A new contestant had taken stand before the target and the Colonel was keenly interested. The girl followed his glance and a faint glow flamed her cheek as she recognized the man who had come forward for his turn.

It was John Willis, tall, handsome, with laughing eyes and easy poise. As the two pistols, freshly loaded, were handed to him by one of the officials of the contest he accepted them in mock alarm.

"Fall back, good people, fall back!" he called to the friends and neighbors who crowded the lawn. "This is a dreadful risk for any one who stands within a rod. If there is a person present who desires an absolutely safe place let him stand before the target. I know an ideal spot where I am sure the bullet will not strike."

"Oh, modesty," gibed Cameron, grimacing. "If you fail to land both within the white we shall make certain it was merely a courtly refusal to take the prize yourself."

"You know me better, Cameron. But, truly, I am a wretched shot."

He took aim with both weapons at the circular shield, with its three concentric rings, that hung against a tree trunk and squinted awkwardly along the barrel of the one in his right hand. Celia Joyce watched him anxiously. He fired the pistols in quick succession, according to the rules of the competition. There was a moment of silence after the double explosion, broken by a general shout of laughter.

"Why, you didn't even hit the tree," shouted Cameron. "Come, now, that's carrying the joke too far."

"I assure you I did the best I could," returned Willis, calm and smiling in face of the merriment aroused by his poor exhibition, and apparently not at all disturbed at having failed so abjectly.

It was Celia who took to herself all the disappointment that the young man might have shown. "What [illegible] supposed. Then, as the Colonel turned a quick, inquiring glance upon her, she added hastily, "Mason is still ahead and there are only two more to shoot."

"Mason has made an excellent score and deserves to win," her father commented rather stiffly. "It is a good thing for young men to have command of the use of arms."

She made no denial. The crowd fell silent again as the remaining entrants took their chances at the target. Neither scored well and Mason Hoyt was pronounced the winner amid general acclamation in which all the losers generously joined. Celia looked with a little toss of defiance at the noisy group surrounding Mason. Among those who were forward with congratulations was Constance Neill. Some instinct caused her to catch Celia's eye and the two girls exchanged a rapid flash. Then Constance, laughing up into the bold, dark face of the winner, pinned upon his breast the ribbons of victory.

The Question of Aim.

As the gay party moved back toward the Willis mansion, where the slaves were setting out refreshments upon the wide verandas, Cameron took the arm of young John Willis affectionately. He spoke again of John's poor shooting.

The other answered with the warmth due a close friendship but recently renewed after long interruption. "How absurd of you, Cameron. Really, I shot as well as I know how. I'm not such a poor sportsman as to spoil the fun deliberately."

Cameron glanced about him and shook his head. "There, I'm sorry, John. It's a small thing, perhaps. But there may be"—— He paused.

Willis threw back his curly head and laughed, falling silent quite as suddenly at the sight of Cameron's grave face. He suffered the other to lead him aside around the corner of the house. "What's all the fuss, now?" he complained.

"Listen," said Cameron, earnestly. "You've been out of touch with our people here and there are matters you know nothing of. I will tell you why it is necessary, uneasy to have you show, and more than that, acknowledge, your lack of skill with weapons. This man Mason Hoyt has made himself the bully and terror of the county. Oh, it's very well to smile, but he has killed three men within two years in duels."

"What has this to do with me?"

"Nothing, probably. But possibly a good deal. Hoyt is a ruffler, a braggart and a professional trouble maker. Only his wealth, his family and his unenviable reputation as a duellist have maintained him against an evil record. As it is, no one dares fail to recognize him."

"But I am not interested in Hoyt," said Willis, impatiently. "You speak as if every man about Harrodsburg were in deadly fear of his life from this person."

"Practically, that is the situation," returned Cameron, with no abatement of his serious manner. "It is not generally understood or accepted in that light, strangely enough those who, like myself, have watched the man. And here lies the danger. He has never reckoned with one who approached him in marksmanship. At little risk to himself he has built up a reputation that delights and feeds his fierce fire of vanity and self-love."

"I have no quarrel with him, nor am I likely to have," insisted Willis.

"So you may say, now. But the mere fact that you have proved yourself helpless makes you available material for him. You will see a great deal of him, now you have come back to stay. I did my best to make your poor exhibition appear to proceed from courtesy. All that I wish to beg of you is to bear his character in mind and avoid hostility."

Willis was angry. "You make me out as great a coward as Hoyt himself evidently is," he said. "Now let me have a say. If I learned nothing else during my absence I learned to detest this weak and utterly futile attitude of lenience toward duelling. It is abhorrent. I do not fear Hoyt or any one else, but I shall do all I can to abolish the practice as an accepted part of social conditions."

Cameron stared a moment. "Very well, John," he said, and the two young men returned to the veranda, where laughter and small talk held sway.

Back In Kentucky.

During the first half year following his return to Kentucky John Willis picked up many threads where he had left them at the time he went East to read law in his uncle's office, and among them was that of a childhood romance with Celia Joyce. The only opposition to the tenderness they now resumed with the deeper strength and understanding that had come to them was Colonel Joyce, her father. As an old soldier of Harrison, a Kentuckian, and an intense partisan of the institutions native to his State and community, he was inclined to look with disfavor upon this Eastern bred fellow. Willis had acquired manners and views which did not meet with his approval.

"An able young man, no doubt, sir," he would say. "An able lawyer, they tell me. But any son of mine should be educated on our own soil. It is a question whether Willis has not lost more than he has gained by contact with a less manly and vigorous civilization."

Meanwhile John Willis was building up a good practice in Harrodsburg, and a name for ability, kindliness and sunny disposition throughout the county. Contrary to Cameron's prediction, he was not thrown much in company with Mason Hoyt and the more boisterous set of young idlers that gathered about the duellist. It was in pursuit of ordinary business that the two men crossed paths.

Hoyt, following the honorable tradition of his family, had acquired a degree in law, though he seldom took or sought a case. There came a land suit, however, in which he was engaged by a kinsman, Brewster. It was well known that Willis was to appear for the opposite side, and Hoyt was aware of this fact when he accepted Brewster as a client.

The matter came to trial at Harrodsburg, and during preliminary argument it was plain that Willis was eminently the superior of his legal adversary in knowledge of his profession, eloquence and judgment. On contested points he invariably won. With the decision going steadily against him, however, the duellist retained a jaunty air of confidence and gradually his retorts to the pleading of Willis became tinged with an acrid sarcasm. Before long he had proceeded to personalities and the judge had been forced to call him to order several times.

At the noon recess, as Willis was stepping across the street to the hotel where he was accustomed to take luncheon, he encountered the broad figure of Mason Hoyt. He was about to move aside when the other detained him.

"I suppose you expect to win?" sneered Hoyt.

"I have some such hope," answered Willis, calmly.

"See here," said Hoyt, stepping closer. "You needn't think you can come back here with a lot of tricky, sneaking ways you picked up in Philadelphia. You've got the wrong side and everybody knows it."

Willis smiled easily. "Supposing that that were true what would you suggest that I do? Would you have me withdraw?"

"I'll tell you what you won't do. You won't keep on using all these smart shyster methods to bolster up a bad case. We're accustomed to be straightforward here in Kentucky and we conduct our affairs, in law and out of it, as gentlemen."

A sharp and obvious reply was on the other's tongue, but he reflected that Hoyt had given him the opening with full intention that he should seize it. Retaining his poise and his smile, he drew aside gracefully. "I am afraid we shall have to leave such decisions to Judge White, though I can quite understand that you do not approve," he said.

Talking Fight.

Hoyt stood staring after him in surprise. He was occupied with this new problem when he sighted his client, Brewster. The two adjourned to a corner of the hotel bar to discuss the case. Brewster was agitated and querulous.

"I thought you told me you'd have it your own way," he began; "that there wasn't a lawyer in the county would dare make a fight against you? We've as good as lost already."

"Not quite," returned Hoyt. "He's more difficult to handle than I expected, that's all. We've enough witnesses to keep the case on its legs for a few more days. After that the other side will have to change lawyers."

Hoyt was waiting in the road again when Willis returned to the court house. He was flushed with liquor, but he had formed his plan with measured determination. He would make Willis fight. He was aware that his former exploits had thrown a shadow upon him and that he must manage this affair with more exact regard for the sentiment of his neighbors. It would not be well, for instance, to strike a blow offhand. But if he could taunt Willis into striking the blow no possible reproach could attach to him.

"Are you going to resume your contemptible tactics?" he asked, sharply, as the other drew near. Willis looked him over with quiet glance and made to pass. Hoyt stepped in front of him.

COLLEGE YELLS.

SAVANS of the future in search of truly native products will not fail to seize upon the American college yell, though, perchance, they may be puzzled in a more enlightened age to determine the meaning of the barbarous cacophony.

There is a far cry, and a loud one, from the "Well played, old chap" and the polite handclap of an English athletic trial of skill to the thunderous "Rah! Rah!" roar of an American college contest. Visitors from abroad frequently express amusement, not unmixed with fear, when they are brought within a mile or so of a football stadium while a game is in progress, and they are scarcely to be blamed.

The origin of the college yell has been given as a contraction and, later, an elaboration of "Hurrah!" with the name of the college attached. That it has undergone many changes in development is evidenced by the complicated cheers favored by many institutions, though Yale, Harvard and other older schools still retain the nine "Rahs!" as their official noise inducer.

The University of Chicago yell has been frequently quoted as one of the most remarkable and effective triumphs of the kind. It begins slowly and works up to a whirlwind climax, with steadily increasing tempo and a significant emphasis on the important syllable.

Go, Chic-a-go, Chica Go, Chica Go!"

Quite as noteworthy is the cheer of Cornell University, which rings out over the trampled field at crucial moments as a tonic and a heartening to the helmeted warriors.

"Cornell! Cornell! Cornell!"

Another that makes a slow start and a galloping finish is the yell of the University of Michigan, which is calculated to thrill the crustiest and most crabbed spectator when voiced by some ten thousand sturdy throats in perfect unison.

"Rah, rah, rah, rah, Mich-i-gan, Mich-i-gan,
Rah, rah, rah, rah, Mich-i-gan, Mich-i-gan,
Rah, rah, rah, rah, Mich-i-gan, Michigan—Rah-h-h!"

Hobart College has an explosive yell and one with a good lilting rhythm.

"Hip, Ho-bart, Hip-Hobart,
Hip, Ho-bart!"

And this is the battle cry of Johns Hopkins University:—

"Hullabaloo, Kanuck, Kanuck,
Hullabaloo, Kanuck, Kanuck,
Hoo-rah! J. H. U.!"

"No one but a cur and a scoundrel would conduct himself in that manner," continued Hoyt.

Again Willis ran his eye over his persistent opponent. "You're drunk," he said coolly, and proceeded to the court house. Hoyt, under the influence of hot passion, was about to hurl himself upon Willis, but restrained the impulse. There was a better way.

The first day of the trial was Saturday. On Tuesday afternoon Constance Neill drove up to the Joyce home in state. Celia received her with perfect friendliness, though an antagonism as old as their early girlhood lay between these two.

"Oh, Celia!" began Constance. "Isn't it dreadful about John Willis?"

"Dreadful! What?" asked Celia composedly, too accustomed to the extravagance of her visitor and her unbridled comment to feel uneasy.

"Why, it's all over the county," Constance rippled on. "At the trial in Harrodsburg the other day John was most rude and offensive to Mason Hoyt. Mason stood it as long as he could and then when John insulted him flatly he flared up and demanded an apology—outside of court, of course. And then John backed right down and sneaked away. Oh, he's made himself a byword. None of the really good people will speak to him any more."

"Why not? What are you trying to tell me, Constance?"

"Don't you see?" Mason demanded reparation and John refused it. He's afraid—afraid to fight. Mason said that if he wouldn't it would be his duty to inform every one that John was a coward. And he has. He's gone up and down the last two days saying all kinds of things about John—and most of them true, I guess, for John hasn't dared deny them."

Avoiding Him.

"How absurd you are!" said Celia, but she began to dread what lay behind.

"Absurd, my dear! Never further from it, I assure you. Why, only yesterday John was passing the Burt house in Harrodsburg and Deacon James and Mrs. Wyeth and Captain Corkle were coming out. He bowed to them and they didn't even look at him. And later he saw Smith Lawson, the best lawyer in the county, coming toward him. And Mr. Lawson crossed the street rather than speak to him. Oh, he's absolutely not respectable, Celia. I always thought there was something weak in him, as Cousin Tom said. You remember how miserably he appeared at the shooting match."

Celia rallied her forces as well as she could and endured the caustic monologue of Miss Neill until she was able to dismiss her by feigning indisposition. Constance left with a cheerful smile upon her lips. Celia, more deeply pained than Constance could have hoped, waited for the return of her father, who had been absent in Harrodsburg for two days. She met him at the door when he came, just before dinner.

"Celia," he began, without preamble, "you are not to see that young man, John Willis, or to hold communication with him in any way. He has proved himself utterly unworthy to be received by those who care for honor."

"What has he done, father?" she asked, pale and fearful. He looked down upon her sternly.

"Done? He has done that which will make him an outcast in his own county," said the Colonel angrily. "He has allowed his name to be dragged in the gutter and has made no protest. He has permitted another man to spread vile tales and insults concerning him on all sides and has done nothing. This comes of sending a young man of good family into the large cities. He returns worthless and stripped of all that a gentleman should hold most dear. You will oblige me by never speaking his name in my presence. This will be a sad blow to his father." Celia bowed her head and made no answer.
